THE DOMINION NOMINATIONS.

THE reports of the nominations for the House of Commons yesterday are still very incomplete, but we give elsewhere the great majority of the Ontario constituencies.

The elections by acclamation are not so numerous as usual, the Reformers having put up many candidates where they have not a hope of success, the opposition to Sir John Macdonald in Carleton for example.

So far the Government has a substantial advantage, there being only one Reformer elected to six Conservatives. They are as follows:—

CONSERVATIVE.

Coursol (Nat.), Montreal West, Que.
Dupont, Bagot, Que.
Gaudet (Nat.), Nicolet, Que.
Gigault (Nat.), Rouville, Que.
Mara, Yale, B.C.
Ross, Lisgar, Man.

REFORM.

Scriver, Huntingdon, Que.

The nominations for the other seats in British Columbia, and for those in the North-West Territories have not yet taken place, and are likely to add to the number of Conservatives elected by acclamation. It may also be remembered that there are over a dozen constituencies in which the Reformers have no candidates.

We observe that the Globe, with its usual dishonesty, claims editorially that no Ministerialists were elected by acclamation. We will let the Globe answer itself. In its news columns it classifies the members elected as one Opposition, three Ministerialists, and three Independents. These so called Independents are Conservatives who profess to be in accord with the Ministry on every other point but the Riel question. If that is to be the dividing line, Mr. Scriver is a Ministerialist, for he voted on it with the Ministry and against Mr. Blake.

Go to the Opera House this evening and hear the issues in the election discussed.

The Fisheries Question.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15.—Some Republican members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs pretend to believe that the reply of Secretary Manning in regard to the fisheries was not submitted to the President before it was sent to the Committee. They say also that they do not believe that Mr. Bayard was consulted. They are mistaken, however. Mr. Manning submitted his fishery report to both the President and Mr. Bayard, and had their approval.

A Peculiar Experiment.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—There has just been tried in this city for the first time the experiment of transferring the eye of a living rabbit to the head of a human being, viz., Mr. Chas. A. Williams, city editor of the Minneapolis Tribune.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

THE OFFICIAL NOMINATIONS OR THE COMMONS ELECTION.

Mr. John Burnham, Conservative, and Mr. John Lang, Reformer, Nominated—Speeches on Public Questions.

At twelve o'clock, noon, on Tuesday, Mr. B. Morrow, Returning Officer for East Peterborough, took a seat on the platform to receive nominations for candidates for the House of Commons. He read the nominations handed in—one paper nominating Mr. John Burnham, Conservative, which had fifty names signed to it, and another nominating Mr. John Lang, Reformer, which had twenty-nine names appended After waiting till 2 o'clock, and receiving no other nominations, the Returning Officer read the election proclamation and left the chair.

Mr. THOMAS BUCK was then, on motion of Mr. Pearse, seconded by Mr. Rose, called to the chair.

The CHAIRMAN asked for good order and a fair hearing for each speaker.

Mr. JOHN BURNHAM was warmly received. He was pleased to see Mr. Buck in the chair. He had the honor of having Mr. Buck for an opponent in 1878, and he never had a harder opponent to defeat. He was pleased that their relations had remained so cordial. His present opponent objected to him (Mr. Burnham) because he was a lawyer, but he was a lawyer in 1878 and 1882 when the people elected him. The fact that he had a knowledge of public business was not, he thought, a disqualification The objection was absurd, because if Mr. Lang went to Ottawa he went to support a lawyer. He was also charged with not attending to his Parliamentary business. He did not believe that the electors wished him to neglect his own business, so long as the interests of his constituents did not suffer. It was also said that, while absent part of the time, he drew his sessional allowance, but every day he was absent he was fined $8. In 1878 he was elected on a distinct issue. The country was depressed, and the Mackenzie Government refused to do anything to relieve the depression, pinning their faith to what was called free trade doctrine. That question was a distinct issue in 1878, the Conservatives advocating protection, and the people agreed with the Conservatives. In 1882 the Government was returned on the National Policy by an increased majority, and the Conservatives at this election. He quoted statements made by Sir Richard Cartwright in Parliament in 1886, showing that the Reformers still opposed the National Policy. He also quoted from Mr. Blake's speech at Malvern, in which he tried to get on the Conservative side of the question. Mr. Blake's position put him in mind of an orator in the Western States who said, "Gentlemen, them's my sentiments, but if you don't like 'em I'll change them." That appeared to be Mr. Blake's position. Mr. Blake denounced the duties on breadstuffs and coals as barbarous, but now he says only he would "readjust" those duties. The National Policy was practically on trial LOW as much as it was in 1882. The people who had denounced the policy from its inception were not the ones to carry it to completion. Three-fourth of Mr. Blake's supporters were opposed to the National Policy. The Conservatives believed in building up industries in our own country and giving employment to Canadians at home, and of affording for the farmers for perishable produce. If they had left the tariff as it was previous to 1879 how many manufactured articles would have been sent from the older Provinces to Manitoba? If they had any faith in the future of the country—and the Conservatives had faith in building up here a nationality that would be an ornament as an integral part of the British empire—they should support the National policy, which would make this part of the Dominion a manufacturing centre for supplying the west. Mr. Lang called the National Policy a "humbug." He defended the duties on grain and showed that it would be opposed to the interests of the farmers to remove them. He also explained the duties on pork and flour, and showed the advantages of the duties. He considered the tariff question was of vital importance, and, considering the position of Canada with regard to the United States, where they imposed duties on goods going in from here, he was a protectionist on conviction and if elected would do all he could to maintain the National Policy. Mr. Blake was dissatisfied with the duty on coarse woollen goods, which were now manufactured here and gave them a market for their wool, while the price to the purchaser of coarse woollens was no greater. Mr. Blake's wail was now on behalf of the manufacturers, because there was too much competition, which proved the Conservative prediction that competition would keep down the price. He exposed the fallacy of the Reform statement that a protective tariff was necessary to raise the large revenue needed. He then took up the question of the

STOOD ON THAT PLATFORM

A HOME MARKET

DOMINION DEBT,

and said that debt was not in itself evidence of bad government. To find a country that would suit the Reformers, where there was no debt, they would have to go into Africa, where the people wore no clothes. (A voice—And no bridges.) A man from the North-West, who was asked how they stood the cold there, said: "They would not know it was so cold only for the blamed thermometers." So the people would not know they were crushed and smashed by debt only for the Reform canvassers. He explained that the debt was made up of Provincial debts assumed and of moneys expended on public works, and showed how the Reformers had increased the debt more rapidly than had the Conservatives. Would the people rather be without the canals, harbors, railways and other public works; and would they rather not have the country which Providence had given them developed? He contrasted the present Government's policy regarding the Canadian Pacific Railway with that of the Reform Government. There was a road

THROUGH THIS VICINITY

which would not have been built but for the policy of the present Government, and it cost them not one cent more than it cost the general public of Canada. He referred to the benefits the country derived from the Pacific Railway. He exposed the misstatements of the Reform speakers and fly sheets regarding superannuation and the Indians. Taking up the question of the Northwest rebellion, by explaining the question of surveys, script and patents, he showed that the halfbreeds had no cause for rising. He ridiculed the pretensions of some Reformers in holding up Riel as a patriot—the man who was willing to sell the "halfbreeds cause" for money and who caused an Indian war. He described in pathetic terms the

FROG LAKE MASSACRE,

and other crimes of Riel, and asked how he could be considered a patriot or martyr. The commissioner who went into Batoche found that 175 claimants were Manitoba half-breeds who had received their script once and had no right to receive again and 35 were American treaty halfbreeds, and there were only 24 who had a right to script. He found only ten cases of delay in issuing patent owings to conflicting surveys, and that no halfbreed had had his land sold. There was nothing to justify the rebellion. He appealed to them for support on the principles he advocated. The Reform party was in alliance in Nova Scotia with men who wished to in Quebec with men who raised a race agitation, and in Ontario they raised sectional cries. He asked them to contrast the parties and cast their votes conscientiously. Mr. Burnham, who had been frequently applauded, sat down admid cheers.

DISMEMBER THE CONFEDERATION,

Mr. JOHN LANG was cordially received. He said that he was a candidate, having been nominated at the Reform convention. He would go to Ottawa to support Mr. Blake so far as he thought he was right and no further. He opposed the present Government because of their extravagance. He gave figures regarding debt and expenditure, and said that if the Conservatives were allowed to remain in office much longer they would not have any country worth fighting for. He read from the Mail to prove that the Government was extravagant. He charged the Government with increasing the civil service employees more rapidly than was necessary. He then dwelling especially on wool. If the farmers were getting rich it was owing to their export of cheese and cattle. The duties on wheat and flour were attacked, and the Franchise Act was termed "infamous." He advocated manhood suffrage, because

ATTACKED THE NATIONAL POLICY,

UNPRINCIPLED YOUNG MEN

swore they earned $300 and voted and principled young men would not swear falsely and had no vote. He said Riel should have been hung, and the Government should also have been hung for the rebellion and they would be hung politically. He again quoted from the Mail, which he said had got to be

A VERY TRUTHFUL PAPER.

He opposed giving grants of lands to colonization companies. The Senate they could dispense with altogether. The Senate was filled with old fogy Conservatives, and if Mr. Blake got in and stayed in for some years it would be filled with old fogy Reformers. He solicited the votes of every one present.

At the conclusion of Mr. Lang's speech, the two candidates having been heard, a large number of the audience left the hall, three rousing cheers being given for Mr. Burnham.

Mr J. B. MCWILLIAMS blamed the Government for not bringing on the elections sooner, although the House was dissolved as soon as all the voters' lists were filed. He repeated figures regarding expenditure which Mr. Lang had given, and, in dealing with the debt, manipulated figures in a peculiar fashion. He repeated figures regarding the Civil Service employees that Mr. Lang had read, but added other figures to them. He gave his views on printing immigration pamphlets, and went into the "boodle" charges, attacking the Hon. T. White, Hon. J. H. Pope, Hon. J. A. Chapleau, Sir Adolphe Caron, and others. He attacked the families of Sir John Macdonald and Sir Charles Tupper. Mr. Burnham, he said, connect with any transaction that was not right. He then read Mr. M. C. Cameron's mutilated extracts from the reports of officials in the Northwest. He believed that the rebellion was caused by the Government's dealing with the Indians and lands of the Northwest, and to prove it made unfounded statements regarding the Prince Albert Colonization Company. He referred to the Peterborough Post Office, and then turned to the "gerrymander," and attacked the Government for enfranchising the Indians, and for the Franchise Act generally. The Senate was again overhauled. He charged Mr. Burnham with having different policies for different parts of the Riding. The Conservatives, he said, through their whole career were following the platform of the Reformers. He then branched out in an attack on the National Policy. He charged Mr. R. B. Rogers with, while he was a Government official, using his influence for Conservative candidates. He asked if they thought Riel's blood washed away the Government's sins. He insinuated that Riel's name was forged to the roll in the House when Mr. Mackenzie was in office, and took some time in endeavoring to show that Riel should have been hung in 1870, although Reformers are now opposing the Government because Riel was hung. He appealed to them as farmers to elect Mr. Lang.

HE COULD NOT

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Chairman, which he briefly acknowledged.

The meeting, which had been growing still smaller while Mr. McWilliams was speaking, closed with cheers for the Queen and Mr. Lang.

The peculiarities of earth vibrations in two remote places at the same moment were very similar.

THE DILLION TRIAL.

DUBLIN, Feb. 15.—The trial of Messrs. Dilon, Redmond, O'Brien, O'Reilly and others on a charge of conspiracy, for agitating in favor of the Plan of Campaign, was formally opened to-day. Mr. Redmond was absent on account of illness. the traversers' counsel raised several technical points against the proceeding. Mr. Samuel Walker, Q.C., who was the Irish Attorney-General under Gladstone, defends. In a conversation with him I learned that instead of the usual number of 80 jurymen summoned on a pannel, there are on this occasion 250. The venue is laid in Dublin county, it having been removed from Dublin city. This gives greater freedom for getting anti-Nationalists on the panel. The accused have only seven challenges, while the Government, by making juors stand aside, have a substantial pick of the panel.

GENEROUS OFFER.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Junius S. Morgan, the banker, has offered to give $50,000, toward Guy's Hospital fund now amounting to $240,000, provided its govenors raise by May 1, $240,000 more.

Temperance in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Feb. 15.—The amendment prohibiting the manufactur or sale of intoxicating liquor in Tennessee passed the House yesterday by 87 to 4. It has passed the Senate and must now be submitted to the people. The date of the popular amendment has not yet been fixed.

THIS EVENING.—The National Policy and other Public Questions will be discussed in the Opera House.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1887.

THE MEETING TO-NIGHT.

Those who wish to hear a lucid explanation of the great questions at issue in this contest should not fail to attend the meeting at the Opera House this evening. Mr. J. S. Larke, who is coming from Oshawa to deliver an address, is a very able and pleasing speaker, and is thoroughly well acquainted with the important subjects upon which the electors are now called to pass their judgment.

NOT SO STUPID.

After the general election of 1882, the friends of Mr. Blake made a variety of excuses for their defeat. The Reform Lindsay Post laid all the blame upon the Toronto Globe, and in the course of its remarks said:—

"The most idiotic act of the Globe's, however, was the publication of what was called the "factory girl's slander," a statement in a descriptive letter about the Montreal cotton mills to the effect that many of the girls employed there were immoral. The publication of this statement, whether true or untrue, was most inopportune, and was handled with great effect by the Tories in every town, and, it is believed, lost the Reform party many votes and many constituencies. In publishing this statement the Globe displayed unparalleled stupidity."

The friends of Mr. Blake are now more cautious in their hostility to the N. P., at least some of them are, but the hostility is still unmistakable. They have dropped their brutality to the operatives and manufacturers, which the Post so mildly termed "stupidity," and are trying to make duplicity answer their purpose. Their enmity remains all the same.

A QUEER CLAIM.

The claim that Mr. Blake makes to the support of the people of Canada is very peculiar and far from reasonable.

Briefly summed up it is as follows:—"For eight years I have been opposing every measure of Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues, but now I see that he was right in his most important measures which I opposed most fiercely. So now as I have come round to his way of thinking and yours, I ask you to support me instead of him."

The people will hardly consider this reasoning sound. If Mr. Blake was for eight years so wrong in opposing the National Policy, the construction of our great national highway, the extension of the franchise, and grants for the benefit of the Provinces, that he is now obliged to confess more or less frankly that he has seen the error of his ways, is it not probably that he might make further blunders in the future? Then there is the alternative that he may not have thought these measures wrong at the time, but that he was dishonest enough to oppose them because it was a political rival that would thus benefit the country. There is yet another possibility, that he still adheres to his old views and that he is now concealing them to delude the people by such duplicity.

Under either supposition it would not be safe to entrust to him the management of our public affairs.

THE NEW VOTERS.

It is only right that the new electors, who have been enfranchised since the last general election, should give due weight to the consideration that this right was procured for them by the Conservative party, under the leadership of Sir John Macdonald. Of course it would not be justifiable to claim that they are bound to vote Conservative on this account, for the franchise was given to them to enable them to vote freely according to their judgment, after giving full consideration to the circumstances. But there would be no impropriety in their allowing gratitude to those who obtained for for them a share in the direction of the affairs of our country, to have its favourable influence among other considerations. Not only so, but the very fact that the Conservative party has proved itself to be so truly liberal in extending the electorate till it is almost as wide as manhood suffrage, may well lead those who are voting for the first time in a Dominion election to recognise that in other matters also the Macdonald Administration has displayed true liberality and a public spirited regard for the interests of the whole community. The statesmen who thus show their willingness to submit their policy to the judgment of the people as a body, evidently do so with the well-founded confidence that it will be acknowledged that they have acted for the benefit of the whole population.

To the unthinking who would say that if the Conservatives have done right in extending the franchise the Reformers would have done the same if they had been in power, we may point out a few facts. When the Reformers were in power at Ottawa they made no attempt thus to extend the franchise. When they were in Opposition in Ottawa they fiercely and pertinaciously opposed the bill for the extension of the franchise. And if Mr. Mowat has also added to the voters' lists, it was under Conservative pressure, for he flatly refused time and again to assent to the proposals to do so, and only yielded at length because the Franchise Bill was introduced at Ottawa, and he was then at length reluctantly driven to act by fear of the unpopularity that he would incur by a prolonged refusal.

The young voter who considers these things will find in them a strong reason for inclining towards the Conservative party. In every respect indeed the young and rising men of Canada should be drawn towards the policy that promotes the union and progress of the country, rather than towards a party miscalled Liberal or Reform which simply trades upon the old-time performances of those whose name it has usurped and from whom it differs so widely.

EATING THEIR WORDS.

An "alternative policy" is what Mr. Blake calls his policy, which appears to mean to oppose everything the Government proposes, and to condemn everything they do. This necessitates sometimes a change of base on the part of the Opposition, as has been strikingly illustrated in the case of the leader of the rebellion. "There were clamors in Ontario for his execution," say the Reformers. So there were, and the clamoring was done by Reformers, and Reform journals which called loudly for his execution, as vigorously condemned the Government for the course which it followed in the interests of justice.

The Globe and all the Reform papers in Ontario, including the Peterborough Examiner, and down to the Port Hope Guide, demanded that Riel be executed. "Simple justice demands the execution of the sentence of death against him," said the Peterborough organ on Aug. 4th, 1885, and now Mr. Peter Ryan enters this constituency and demands the overthrow of the Government because they did not take Riel out of the hands of the law. Riel rose "with a strong determination to overthrow the Queen's authority in the Northwest," declared the Examiner, and Reform orators dare now tell the people o this town, as one did in the Opera House, that he did not rise against the Queen's authority, although he had in the meantime been convicted of that crime. "If Riel and the promoters of the late rising are allowed to escape condign punishment, the savages will be encouraged in indulging their atrocious instincts," said the Examiner, and a few months after its columns contained laudatory references to Riel in which he was termed a martyr. In August, 1885, Riel was, according to the Examiner, "a PROMOTER of the late rising," but now that it wishes to make political capital out of his punishment, he is not called a "promoter," but in the Examiner of last Saturday is termed only an "effect" of the rebellion.

The "effect" of the rebellion was the shooting of the Mounted Police and citizens of Prince Albert, the imprisonment of loyal settlers and of missionaries and nuns, the attacking of Battleford by savages with "atrocious instincts," the massacre of settlers, public officials and priests at Frog Lake, the shooting of the volunteers at Fish Creek, Cut Knife Hill, Frenchman's Butte, the hard marches of militiamen, the seizure by Indians of men, women and children, and the expenditure of millions and the loss of millions more by immigrants being frightened away. These are some of the melancholy effects of the rising of which the Examiner said Louis Riel was a promoter. And yet electors of West Peterborough have been appealed to and urged to condemn the Government for allowing the promoter of such atrocities to be punished.

The London Advertiser asks:—

"Is it seemly for the Government to deal directly with companies in which its members are shareholders?"

We would ask our contemporary does it advocate the repeal of the legislation passed under the Mackenzie Administration legalizing such dealings? Does it still maintain that Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues were right in having such dealings, in defiance of the law as it then stood, with Speaker Anglin, Messrs. Jones and Vail, who were selected as Cabinet Ministers in the Reform Administration, and others? If so, does it think Conservatives are wrong in having such dealings, after Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues had made them legal?

The gang of falsifiers on the staff of the Ottawa Free Press seem to like variety in their criminal performances, for they have now betaken themselves to theft instead of forgery. They have been stealing some public documents prepared to be laid before Parliament.

MR. PARNELL'S HEALTH.

Suffering from Bright's Disease—The Man of Misery, Not the Man of Mystery.

London, Feb. 14.—Although for two years Mr. Parnell has done little systematic work, he was believed to be all powerful; surrounded, like Homeric deities mingling in battle, by a cloud that concealed him from the vision of mortals, he has been called the man of mystery. His silence in the House and his absence from the platform have been taken for proof that in the secluded chamber he is working out Ireland's destiny, and by the invisible pressure of his mind compelling events to his will. Rather all this time should he have been called the man of misery. It is now more than four years since his real foe disclosed its deadly warnings—Bright's disease. He has no pulmonary consumption. He is not insane. Nobody who knows him well attaches the slightest importance to his pedigree of disease. But the malady which defies medical skill and is scarcely within medical knowledge has been doing its slow but dreadful work, and it is known of it that it so involves the entire physical organization that its victims, before its features are fully revealed, are supposed to be going into consumption, to be suffering from heart disease, and to be falling into nervous decay resembling incipient insanity.

Those Coast Defences.

Boston, Feb. 15.—The Legislature has adopted resolutions urging upon Congress the appropriations of liberal sums for the purpose of coast defence and for the building of a navy that will command the confidence of our people and the respect of other nations.

BUY NOW FOR NEXT WINTER!

GOUGH

MOVES INTO HIS NEW STORE ABOUT THE FIRST OF FEBRUARY NEXT.

The Store heretofore known as the Bon Marche, is being refitted and remoddeled on a Grand Scale, after the plan of a Clothing House in New York, which is the finest on the Continent, and from now until day of removal, I will sell OVERCOATS at the following MARVELLOUS REDUCTIONS:

$18.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $9.00
$12.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $8.00
$10.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $6.50
$8.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $5.75
$6.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $3.75

All our Overcoats must go before removing. Don't miss the chance. The goods are all marked in plain figures and it is an easy matter to see if we make the reduction. Or, if any person doubts the genuineness of this sale, let them bring some person along who bought an Overcoat from me one week ago, and see what I will sell one like it for now. Remember for two weeks only. Don't miss it. You cannot buy the cloth for the money.

GOUGH, THE WONDERFUL CHEAP MAN.

A Plea for Homely Girls.

There is an old adage which says, "Beauty is but skin deep, but ugly goes to the bone." It doesn't bear the truth on its face. A homely girl of the restless that she isn't pretty, is generally good, generous; and if she gets married she makes a good wife. The pretty doll of a girl, with the face of a wax figure and sylph-like form, generally becomes the cross ugly old woman. She grows ill-natured because her beauty has faded, which was all she prized when young. On the contrary, the homely girl welcomes age because it brings with it the respect due accumulated years. Age is the leveller of distinction, and the pretty, vain minx who would slight a homely sister of her own age, will pay due respect and reverence to the age of her sex. The homely girl never attempts coquetry. In the absence of personal charms of the face and figure, she cultivates her mind to make up the deficiency, and generally succeeds. She is always modest, and seldom pouts if her parents are unable to supply her with the latest style of spring bonnet. She is not addicted to the pernicious habit of having her ears pierced and wearing pendants which cause her auricular organs to assume the dimensions of a sleuth hound. When she gets married she never falls in love with a tin-horn gambler and becomes defaulter to her wedding obligations. She makes a good mother, and feels proud to have his friends say her baby is pretty, and on such occasions she is certain to declare that it is the very image of its father. It is seldom that a homely girl marries a scrub. That glass of the genus homo can't appreciate homely worth. They search for beauty, no matter if it be found in the possession of one possessing neither intellect nor education. With such men beauty is an article of merchandise. Let the homely girl take courage. Men of sense and honor admire her for her good qualities of mind and heart. Don't be discouraged if you are left to sit like a wall flower at a dance while girls whom the light-minded gentry deem pretty glide through waltz and quadrille, and flirt past you in apparent disdain. It will all come out right at last. The true gentleman will take note of such things, and ten chances to one but he will sit down and entertain you with sensible conversation. Here's to the homely girls, one and all. Let every young man who respects himself and wishes to understand the true worth of womanhood be courteous and respectful to them.—Exchange.

Grant Memorial Bridge.

Washington, D. C., February 14.—The proposed memorial bridge across the Potomac in honor of General Grant has at last taken form and shape. The proposed bridge is to be a very handsome structure of granite and iron, 4,650 feet long. The approaches will be forty feet wide. There will be two side walks, each ten feet wide, and two large towers near the centre connecting the draw bridge, the bascule span being 160 feet. The main arch spans are 240 feet, and the small spans 120 feet each. It is to connect this city with Arlington. Capt. T. W. Symons is the engineer, and Smith, Meyer and Peiz, the architects. The plan is approved of by the district commissioners.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up dishearted, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

Dominion Elections

Nomination Day, February 15th.
Polling Day, February 22nd.

A New Candidate in the Field

HIS PLATFORM:

Gentlemen.—I have no desire to tamper with the votes of that noble army of our citizens who freely exercise the Franchise on behalf of their favorite polititical leaders. But in order to take a hand in the present political struggle for supremacy between Grit and Tory, I have decided to come out and offer such tempting

BRIBES TO THE ELECTORS

As cannot fail to place me at the head of the polls.

I would scorn, like all other candidates for parliamentary honors, to buy up votes, or do aught that might be construed as a violation of our Election laws. My object is a far more patriotic one, namely—that of making a CLEAN SWEEP of all my Winter Clothing and Tweeds before Election day.

Nor will the secresy of the Ballot be infringed by asking purchasers whether they will vote for LeBRUN, COX, or STEVENSON. No, not by a home rule scuttle full! But every elector is expected to attend this exciting Political-Winter-Clothing Sale, and to hurrah for LeBRUN, so as to elect him by an overwhelming majority as the Workingmen's Favourite Candidate.

SAMPLES OF THE BRIBES

SUITS, made to order - $12

SUITS, made to order - $14

SUITS, Ready-made for $8
And upwards.

PANTS made to order for

If the Electors will only ponder over these facts and see and handle these Bribes for themselves, I feel certain that the 22nd will be a cold day for the other candidates.

THE GREAT BONSPIEL.

A CURLER'S SATURDAY EVENING REFLECTION.

Companions in the roarin' game,
Dear brithers o' the broom,
Life here is but a long bonspiel,
Frae cradle to the tomb.
The slippery rink we a' maun tread
Wi' prudent, tentie care,
Or we may find, ere weel begun,
Our lowest level there;
And on the "tricker" is our turn
We each maun tak' our stand,
And try to "draw straught up the lead"
Wi' firm and steady hand;
For woe betide us if we swerve
O'er far to either side,
Or lag ahint "the hoggin' score,"
Or "o'er a' ice" should glide.
The cautious e'e, the prudent head,
Guide faith, we sairly need it!
And nane the less the friendly "soop,"
And neibor's "cowe" that gied it.

And should we get a worthy shot
Within "the sma' ring" planted,
O, then, for "guard and angle-guard,"
For baith, we'll find, are wanted
To "close up ilka port" by which
Our foe us "out may rin,"
Or, by some wily, crooked shot,
May "wick-and-curl in."
Thus warily in life's great match,
Aye "keepin' what we hae,"
Let us play out the slip'ry game
Wi' a' the skill we may;
And when our "score" is totted up.
The handle o' the broom
May show for us a "nick or twa"
Against the day o' doom.
What matter then the cruel "rubs,"
That scarce could be withstood,
If but the Maister skip should say,
"Ye've done the best ye could."

STANLEY FALLS AFFAIR.

M. de Brazza Thinks There is Trouble Ahead on the Congo.

LISBON, Feb. 14.—M. de Brazza has taken his departure from this port for Africa. Prior to embarking he said to the capture of Stanley Falls was a much more deplorable event than the Free State will own to its being. It would produce the worst moral effect in Africa, as it would rouse the native races and lead them to resist all European civilization. He thinks the great trouble, therefore, is ahead. He also thinks that Mr. Stanley's Emin expedition is a mask for another ambitious object, which will come to the surface later on.

SALVATION ARMY MARRIAGE.

Illustration of the Line "We'll Fight and Never Tire."

LONDON, Feb 14.—The taste for extravagance, whether in dress or deportment, grows by what it feeds on, and to pander to this taste the Salvation Army has constantly to invent new sensations for its adherents. At the marriage of Marechale Catharine, Gen. Booth's daughter, to Col. Clibborn, at the army barracks, such a sensation was provided. The young woman, tall and excitable, as well as rather a comely creature, as soon as the marriage was over sang a song of which one line was very encouraging to the newly married husband, namely, "We'll fight and never tire," and to illustrate her meaning in worldly fashion she squared off at her husband in true pugilistic shape, dodging her head and shifting her ground, and with much spirit she battered him about considerably. The immense crowd screamed and shouted. It was too much for the excitable nature of Gen. Booth. He dragged out his venerable spouse, and they sparred right merrily at each other. When that tired them, both couples began a frenzied breakdown, hanging on to each other's waists. The worshippers were as much pleased as if they had been witnessing a clogdance in a music hall.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

Dr. Von Galihan has cured insomnia in himself by bandaging one of his legs to the knee with layers of wet calico and covering these with a sheet of water-poof cloth. The vessels of the leg were dilated and the amount of blood in the head diminished, and sleep followed.

HEREDOTUS PUDDING.—Take half a pound each of bread crumbs and chopped figs, six ounces each of fresh suet and brown sugar. Mince nicely together the figs and suet, add a half teaspoonful of salt and three eggs well beaten, also half a nutmeg. Boil in a buttered pudding mould for four hours. Serve with some nice sweet sauce.

APPLES IN SYRUP.—Pare and core some hard apples, and throw them into a basin of water. When all done, clarify as much loaf sugar as will cover them; put the apples in along with the juice and rind of a lemon, and let them simmer till they are quite clear; care must be taken not to break them; place them upon the dish they are to appear upon the table, and pour the syrup over. These are for immediate use.

BLACK PUDDING.—Prepare the skins. Have some pig's blood, and while it is warm salt it a little, stir it for a while and strain it, add a cupful of milk to the blood. Have as much chopped suet as of dried oatmeal, and half as much chopped onions; plenty of salt and pepper to taste, some nutmeg if to be very nice. Stir all this into the blood and make it pretty thick; fill the skins, tie, prick, and boil gently three-quarters of an hour.

SCONES.—Flour, two pounds; bicarbonate of soda, quarter of an ounce; salt, quarter of an ounce; sour buttermilk, one pint, more or less. Mix to the consistence of light dough, roll out about half an inch thick, and cut them out to any shape you please, and bake on a griddle over a clear fire about ten or fifteen minutes, turning them to brown on both sides. These scones are excellent for tea, and may be eaten either cold or hot, buttered or with cheese.

HOT WATER FOR SPRAINS.—Hot water is said to be the best thing that can be used to heal a sprain or a bruise. The wounded part should be placed in water as hot as can be borne for fifteen or twenty minutes and in all ordinary cases the pain will gradually disappear. Hot water, applied by means of cloths, is a sovereign remedy for neuralgia and pleurisy pains. For burns or scalds apply cloths well saturated with cool alum-water, keeping the injured parts covered from the hair.

MARBLED BEEF STEAK.—A dish equal to a beefsteak, and cheap enough for any man, is prepared from a shank of beef. Have the bone well broken, wash carefully to remove bits of bone, cover with water, watch when boiling begins and take off the scum that rises. Stew five or six hours till the muscles are disolved; break the meat small with a fork, which is better than chopping. Boil down the gravy till you think it will jelly, season with salt and pepper, and pour it over the meat while hot; stir together and set aside over night, when it will cut into handsome marble slices for breakfast or supper.

A petition has been presented to the Benchers, signed by a large number of the Ontario bar, praying for a grant from the Law Society for the erection in Osgoode Hall of a statue or bust of the Queen in commemoration of her Jubilee.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods,

Without which none are genuine.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Bandsmen, Attention.

The members of the Fire Brigade Band are requested to attend at their hall this evening at 7 o'clock precisely.

Off For the Races.

The Peterborough Driving Park people are going to Hasting in full force to take a hand in the races to be held to-morrow and Friday. Mr. F. J. Daly sends Fanny B.; R. Lundy, Factory Girl; A. P. Morgan, Little Ned; Ed. Brown, Lady B Maggie Roach will participate in the running race. No doubt part of the stakes at least will be brought back.

Turnbull is now agent for the Domestic Paper Patterns of New York. The best and simplest patterns ever shown.

Meeting this Evening.

Mr. J. S. Larke, of Oshawa, will deliver an address on the National Policy and other public questions of the day in the Opera House at 8 o'clock this evening. As Mr. Larke is thoroughly conversant with the working of the National Policy, and is also said to be a clever speaker, those who attend will hear convincing arguments in favor of a policy that has proved such a blessing to this young Dominion.

The Campaign.

A meeting was held in Mr. Stevenson's interest in the hall on the 4th line of Smith on Tuesday evening. Mr. Stevenson was the first speaker. Mr. Stratton followed, speaking about ten or fifteen minutes and then reading the speech delivered by Mr. Paterson a short time ago in the Opera House and clippings from Sir Richard Cartwright's efforts. He also recited selections from the Globe. Mr. W. H. Moore followed, and the meeting closed in the usual way.

New Goods. Turnbull has just received a large shipment of Scotch and English Suitings and Trouserings. If you want a cheap and stylish suit try Turnbull's.

Election Number of "Grip."

Grip has made special arrangements—telegraphic and artistic—by which a feat, hitherto unattempted in illustrated journalism, will be accomplished on Wednesday, 23rd inst.—the day after the elections. On that day Grip will appear as a 24-page paper, with a large double cartoon in three colors, giving (pictorially) the result of the elections. The front and back pages will also be in colors. This issue will go to all regular subscribers free, but will sell to others at 10 cents. Address Grip, Toronto, or ask your bookseller.

W. C. T. U.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held on Tuesday afternoon in the usual place. The President, Miss Sanderson, occupied the chair. The Treasurer's and Secretary's reports were read and accepted. Communications were received from Mrs. Chisholm, F. S. Spence and Mr. Clark; also from Miss Pearson of Bractford, with instructions for carrying on a kitchen garden, and as soon as suitable rooms can be obtained, for which a committee was appointed, the work will be commenced. A fuller report on this branch of work will most probably be ready for the next meeting. The ladies are also pleased to acknowledge the receipt of $5 towards their reading room fund, the gift of a sympathizer in a distant city. It was also decided that the Union continue to hold their meetings on Monday as formerly.

Spring Lace Curtains at Turnbull's. The designs are so new and prices so low that they are sure to be sold early in his clearing sale of Spring Goods, which has now commenced.

C. Stapleton's Coming Sales.

SATURDAY, Feb. 19.—General sale on Market Square of horses, cutters, harness, robes, furniture, &c. Sale at 10 a. m.

SATURDAY, Feb. 19.—Sale of ready made clothing, &c., at Gough's Cheap store, Arcade. Sale at 11.30 a. m.

THURSDAY, Feb. 24.—Estate Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of the late Thos. Stewart on the premises, Lot 11 in the 7 Con. of Otonabee, about two miles from Mather's Corners. Sale at 12.30.

FRIDAY, Feb. 25.—Unreserved Sale of Farm Stock, Implements, &c., of Mr. John P. Sullivan, on his premises, Lot 2, in the 2nd Con. of Douro, about one mile from Indian River P. O. Sale at 12.30.

TUESDAY, March 1.—Bona Fide Sale of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Impliments, &c., of Mr. H. J. Michels, on the premises Lot 12, in the 15 Con. of Otonabee, about one mile from Wallace Point. Sale at 1 p. m.

PROTECTION—Everybody believes in the Protection that Blankets, Comforters and Flannels afford. They are sold very cheap at Rowse's Trade Palace.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

Three Stores and a Dwelling Damaged Millbrook.

By Telegraph to the Review.

MILBROOK, Feb 16.—At a quarter to three o'clock this morning a fire broke out in James Fitzgerald's dry good store here. The flames quickly spread to A. Duncan's shoe shop and Leach's drug store and Hunter's dwelling above the store. Fitzgerald's dry good store was completely destroyed and the others were badly damaged. There is $8,700 on Fitzgerald's store, and Leach's loss will be covered by insurance, but there was none on Duncan's store. It is not known how the fire originated.

THIS EVENING.—The National Policy and other Public Questions will be discussed in the Opera House.

The Campaign.

Capt. M. J. E. Chagnon, advocate, etc., of Montreal, will address the French speaking electors in the old Music Hall to morrow evening.

Personal.

Mr. Monk, M.P.P. for Carleton, the whip of the Conservative party in the Local Legislature, is in town and will likely speak at the meeting to-night.

Capt. Chagnon is the guest of Mr. H. LeBrun at the Oriental Hotel.

A Row.

On Tuesday evening the people in the Salvation Army barracks were disturbed by several persons who acted in an unruly manner. After considerable trouble they were ejected. The police say that if the members of the army will appear as witnesses they will prosecute any who make disorder in the meetings.

Curling.

Two rinks from the Peterborough Curling Club went to Lakefield on Tuesday to have a friendly game. They were defeated by the Lakefield players by 14 shots, the score standing.

WHENEVER you take your walk abroad visit Rowse's Trade Palace. Every department is teeming with novelties.

Railway Business.

The Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway is doing a prosperous winter trade. It is especially lively at this point. Apart from bringing in merchandise to supply the wants of a rapidly growing town a considerable through traffic is being done. The rolling stock is inadequate to the demand. When the link across at the locks is built—and operations will likely soon be commenced on it—the passage of freight will be much facilitated.

We May Expect.

—A large attendance at the National Policy meeting to-night.

—Mr. Monk, M. P. P., to speak.

—Also Mr. Larke of Oshawa.

—Another thaw.

—If the weather keeps on inclining this way.

—Lots of "stumping" through the country.

—The French electors to be addressed in the old Music Hall to-morrow night.

—An eloquent speech by Capt. Chagnon.

POLICE COURT.

PERJURY.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 16.—Peter Warner was charged with having committed perjury in the Lipsett case recently. A plea of not guilty was entered and the case was adjourned till Monday.

DISORDERLY.

Wm. Lehey was charged with being disorderly in a public place. He pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs.

YOUNG'S POINT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

POLITICAL.—A large audience assembled on last Friday evening in spite of the storm, to hear M. F. O'Donoghue speak on the Home Rule and North-West questions and their connection with the Dominion Government. The chair was occupied by Mr. T. N. Lee. Mr. O'Donoghue is an eloquent speaker, and presented his subjects, especially the North-West question, in the most eloquent and most lucid manner it has ever been our good fortune to hear. He closed a stirring address of over two hour's duuration by a strong appeal to the people to support Mr. Stevenson. Mr. Stratton followed and occupied some time in telling his "old, old story." After the meeting a working committee of the electors was formed with Mr. P. P. Young as chairman and Mr. T. N. Lee as recording Secretary.

Progress in China.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15.—It is said at the Chinese Legation that the recent order guaranteeing religious liberty to all classes throughout China is but another step in the upward and progressive movement of the Empire. The Dowager Empress who has just abdicated in favor of her young kinsman, Quon-Shu, is a woman of broad and liberal views. It was under her reign that China renounced intoleration and isolation and joined the nations of the earth. During the recent troubles between the Chinese and French, orders were given to the army and navy to protect the missionaries. Quon-Shu, the new emperor, is a bright young man of seventeen, thoroughly educated and progressive.

Just received at Turnbull's, an assortment of New Patterns in Cottonades and Shirtings. Warranted fast colors, and prices the lowest in the market.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

POWDERLY'S PROTECTION IDEAS.

Mr. Powderly, the chief of the Knights of Labour, says: "I am a protectionist from the sole of my foot to the top of my head." This is the position of the thoughtful labouring men of this country.—Springfield Union.

FLIES ON THE WHEEL.

"We cannot make you rich! We are but flies on the wheel!" These were the words of Sir R. J. Cartwright when approached by the Trade deputations in 1876, with petitions for a Tariff Revision in their favor. Mr. J. R. Minhinnick, of this city, was present on the occasion on which the Grit Minister of Finance spoke in this way. Mr. Minhinnick, as a large manufactuerer, is in a position to say how far the N. P. has been beneficial to the country. His testimony given in a few straight and plain sentences, is worth all the trimming rhodomontade of Mr. Blake.—London Free Press.

BLAKE AND THE COAL DUTY.

A telegram was received in the city yesterday from Cape Breton, by a gentleman resident here, stating that Mr. Blake had written to one of his supporters announcing his intention to retain the coal duty and wanting to know if such was the case. Of course, it is impossible for us to say whether Mr. Blake made such a promise or not; but he has been endeavoring to humbug the electors to such an extent that we should not be surprised if he wrote the letter referred to. His only object at present is to secure power, and he is prepared to sacrifice principle—everything to obtain it.—Ottawa Citizen.

A ZANZIBAR TROUBLE.

Portuguese Men-of-War Sent Out to Bombard Tungi

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Advices from Zanzibar state that the Sultan refuses to comply with the demand of the Portuguese governor of Mozambique to surrender the territory claimed by Portugal, but recognized in the Anglo-German agreement with the Sultan as belonging to Zanzibar, and has referred the matter to the friendly powers. Portugal has ruptured diplomatic relations with the Sultan and hauled down the Portuguese flag from the consulate at Zanzibar. A number of Portuguese men-of war have proceeded to Tungi, the bombardment of which is threatened.

ENORMOUS CATTLE LOSSES.

Severe Weather on the Yellowstone Ranges—Whole Herds Annihilated.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—A special from Fort Keogh, Montana, says in round numbers there were on January 1st 200,000 head cattle and 520,000 sheep on the ranges north and south of the Yellowstone River, within a radius of one hundred miles of this point. Up to that date the stock had not suffered much from the severity of the winter, but during January and the half of February just closing losses have been enormous, in some places amounting to practically the annihilation of whole herds. An Indian Territory special says reports from all parts of Indian Territory state that the stock have wintered well and are in fair condition.

ANOTHER OFF TO THE POLE.

An Old Hudson Bay Officer Thinks He Can Reach It.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 15.—Mr. Alexander MacArthur, an old Hudson Bay officer, has left on an expedition to the North Pole. At Norway he will get a dog sledge and will go overland directly north for 2,000 miles, which will bring him close to the pole. He expects to reach the magnetic pole by May 12th, and will go as far north as possible next summer. He will return in time to spend next winter on King William's Land. Mr. MacArthur will take an entirely new route to the Pole. He will keep about three hundred miles to the west of Smith's Sound, through which all previous expeditions have passed, and he hopes to escape the ice hammocks, which stopped Markham and Greely, and to find a comparatively smooth road to the pole. He will be gone from two to three years. He is accompanied by a young drug clerk named M. H. Young and a servant. He took provisions for only two months, relying on his skill in hunting to supply him with food after that. He will collect but little scientific data, but will make a very elaborate collection of Arctic birds. He is one of the best ornithologists in the Dominion. The Federal Government is bearing a portion of the expense.

Go to the Opera House this evening and hear the issues in the election discussed.

Received this week at Turnbull's, a large shipment of Wool and Tapestry Carpets. All new patterns. Extra good value.

RETIRING

from the Dry Goods Business.

$10,000.00

worth of Dry Goods must be sold before

The 15th day of March, 1887

T. DOLAN & CO'S

As on the above mentioned date, the Dry Goods business carried on by T. Dolan & Co. for the past ten years, will pass into the hands of a new firm, we have decided to reduce our present magnificent stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods amounting to $20,000.00 to one half its volume. In order to accomplish this we have marked all our goods to the bare cost price.

JUST IMAGINE

$3,000 worth of Dress Goods at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Black and Colored Silks at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Mantle Cloths at less than Cost.

$1,000 worth of Gloves and Hosiery at Cost.

$3,000 worth of Cottons, Bleached and Unbleached, at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Cotton Shirting at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Domestics, etc., at Cost.

$2,000 worth of Clouds and Woolen Goods at less than Cost.

$1,000 worth of Prints and Ginghams at Cost.

EVERYTHING AT COST

The goods must go. This is a genuine cash sale, and no hoax. Remember from now until March 15th, as after that date we intend to direct our attention exclusively to our Tailoring establishment.

MR. LARKE'S SPEECH.

His Masterly Address on the National Policy.

THE WORKING-MEN'S POSITION

VIVIDLY SET FORTH BY VARIOUS EXAMPLES.

The Policy For the Upbuilding of the Country—Down With the Reform Hard Time Policy—Keep Canada For the Canadians and Don't Give away the Fruits of our Toil to Foreign Countries.

On Wednesday evening a meeting was held in Bradburn's Opera House at which Mr. J. S. Larke, of Oshawa, was announced to speak. Although no notice of the meeting had been given up till noon there was about nine hundred people present.

Mr. W. H Moore occupied the chair, and in his opening remarks refered to Mr. Stevenson's success throughout the riding.

CAPT. CHAGNON, of Montreal, who will address a meeting of French speaking electors in he old Music Hall to-night, was introduced. In his brief address he stated that according to the Hon. Mr. Chapleau's figures given to him yesterday Sir John would carry Quebec with and possibly 22. (Cheers.) The Riel question was all dead there now. The people had come to their senses and had agreed that a scoundrel should be hanged. Quebec would on the 22nd say, "Sir John we admire you once more." (Cheers and applause.)

AT LEAST 20 OF A MAJORITY

MR. A. P. POUSSETTE, Q. C., spoke a few minutes during which he said that he thought Mr. Stevenson was the popular candidate and that the opinion pronounced at the rink a few evenings ago when Mr. Stevenson was elected by 121 would be reaffirmed on the 22nd. (Applause.)

MR. LARKE, who entered as Mr. A. P. Poussette concluded, was received with applause. On being introduced he commenced his speech by stating that as Canada was not bound down by diplomatic relations with foreign countries and that as her chief business was to administer her own affairs well he would speak as a business man would speak of his own affairs and as a working man would consider his own interests. The Conservative Party with Sir John Macdonald at its head had administered the affairs of this country for fifteen years since Confederation. As wise men and prudent men the electors should ask themselves why they shall or shall not continue their support. The opponents of the Government charged them with increasing the public debt. Well, we had a large debt. Mr. Blake said it was $220,000,000. But the Conservative Party were

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR ALL THIS.

Owing to Confederation $167,000,000 of Provincial debt was assumed, this eaving $113,000,000.

There were two kinds of debt. A kind that yielded no return and a kind that yielded return. Thus if money was spent in developing the resources of the country it was well spent, but if sunk in profitless investments it was ill spent. Now, of this $113,000,000 of debt the Reform Government was responsible for $40,000,000 and the Conservatives for about $73,0000,000. The Conservatives were said to be extravagant, and yet they, in 15 years, increased the debt at the rate of $4,800,000, and the economical fellows who governed the country for only five years piled it up at the rate of $8,000,000. He thought of the two the people had better keep the four million fellows instead of the eight million men. (Applause.) But let us see how these Reformers spent the money. What did we get for that $40,000,000? There were some things they would not like to speak out loud about. (Cheers.) We got Sir Richard Cartwright's $4,500,000 deficits. Did that develop the resources of the country? We got Sir Richard's losses on "shaves" to the tune of $4,500,000 more. Did that develop the country's resources? Did it help the people who have it to pay? He did not accuse the Reformers with not trying to do right, but they blundered at our expense. Then there was the $350,000 thrown away on the Fort Francis locks, $100,000 on the Georgian Bay line, and so forth. He didn't charge upon the Government of the Reform party that they did this as jobbery, but he did accuse them of blundering in the most unbusiness-like way. The bulk of their addition to the national debt gave no returns to the people. For the increase of debt under the Conservative rule, at nearly half as much a year, we have the Canadian Pacific Railway, the Intercolonial, canals deepened and built, public buildings throughout the land, and a great Northwest. Sir John had been accused of throwing away eight millions in the sea because he insisted that the Intercolonial should be built wholly and

SOLELY ON CANADIAN TERRITORY.

Where would we be to-day if he hadn't done this, and if he hadn't speedily built the C. P. R.? The Yankees not only hunger after land, but they also hunger after fish (applause), and they want it without paying for it. Sir John says "no." If you want fish you have to pay for it. (Cheers.) And they then say "we'll retaliate." But we have our railways and canals and are no more cut off from ourselves. What would have been a few years ago an absolute embargo upon us would now only do us good. Sir John replies, "All right, brother Jonathan; if you want to cut off your nose to please your face, proceed to disfigure your countenance, and I'll look on." (Cheers.) Who do we owe this to, that we are in such and independent position to-day? Who but Sir John, who went on through misrepresentation and charges of corruption in this grand patriotic course. In spite of Mr. Blake's continued hostility is the country in such a position. (Applause.) Was the money added to their debt by Sir John wisely expended? (Shouts of "yes.") Well we have our country, and we have our railways; and, strange as it may seem, Sir John has accomplished the building of the greatest railway in the world, and the people are taxed no higher than when we hadn't it. Sir John has carried out the promise he gave that he would not build the road if it would unduly tax the country. And what do we find to-day? Owing to lower rates of interest on the public debt got since Canada's credit rose, and consequent on the increased population, we pay tax per head on the public debt as in 1879, viz.: $1.59. Now that we have this debt see what benefits we get from it. In the first place we have our markets to ourselves. The whole Northwest market is thrown open to the Canadian manufacturer. He employs his mechanics and the Ontario farmer feeds those mechanics. Thus all are aided in paying the debt imposed. Not so under the deficit and shaves regime. Now he came to the point at issue. We have the benefits deriving from the way our money was spent, but the Reform party want to give all the benefith to Brother Jonathan, and if the electors here wanted to turn over the benefits the expenditure of our money was now bringin to us they should just vote for Mr. Blake and Mr. Cox. But the people found out what it was worth to them to preserve their own market to themselves, and had enjoyed the fruits of it for the past eight years. If they wanted to continue thus then they should mark their ballots for Mr. Stevenson. He referred briefly to the Globe's "boodle" cry. He referred also to the Globe's unfortunate habit of lying. A short time ago a statement appeared in the Globe purporting to be a despatch from Ottawa, stating that Sir John was insane and that the Hon. Thos. White was in charge of the lunatic. It was a downright malicious, despicable falsehood. Even the Globe's correspondent, accustomed to all sorts of dirty work, disclaimed having even sent such a message. But it was charged upon the Globe that the lie was concocted in the Globe's own editorial room and no denial had yet been made. The Globe's boodle howls were

EXACTLY THE SAME

ABOUT AS TRUTHFUL

as its statement as to Sir John Macdonald. (Cheers.) He asked all fair Reformers what they thought of a paper which would publish such abominable lies and attempt to palm them off on the public. Well, the people now enjoyed the fruits of their labors in the construction of the C.P.R., the Intercolonial, the building up of the great Northwest, and the people are asked if they will give this away to the Yankees. For that is precisely what will be done if Mr. Blake gets into power. He didn't know tonight what Mr. Blake's policy was on the tariff question, because he hadn't seen his last speech. (Laughter.) He might here remark that Mr. Cox was somewhat more careful than Mr. Blake. Mr. Cox wrote down and read off what he thought of the National Policy. Probably because if he didn't he might forget what he said about it the night before. (Cheers.) Mr. Blake started out on this campaign saying that his policy was the same as it was in 1882, and then he read from his address to the electors. But some fellow got up and said, "Mr. Blake, what does this mean, anyway?" In Toronto, before a labor meeting, he proceeded to explain. "You are bearing a veritable burden of taxation," says Mr. Blake. "I'll take that from your shoulders. I'll give you cheap wheat, cheap flour, cheap meat, cheap clothing and cheap sugar." "Just what we want," says Mr. Jury. But the farmers heard of it and were astounded. "What! take the duty off our wheat, off our beef, off our pork, and everything we have to sell, and then tax us for what we buy to suit the purses of these mechanics," they said. "Mr. Blake, we'll let you know that we have votes." Then Mr. Blake went out to Malvern to speak to the farmers, and under the changed conditions the duty on wheat and flour, &c., was to remain just about what it was. They might revise it a little, you know. But just a little. (Laughter.) Then after all the Toronto mechanics were GOING TO BE FOOLED.

Then down in Nova Scotia his opinions are just the same as they were in 1882. And he reads. The monopoly given to Ontario wheat and flour must be crushed. The duty on coal will remain much about the same. And Mr. Blake is a first rate fellow. But up in Ontario the coal tax is barbarous. And Mr. Blake is still a good fellow. He can prove that he is for and against these duties by that wonderful document, his address of 1882. In his (the speaker's) tour through Ontario he got some interesting facts. In Petrolia he found the Reformers in favor of a high duty on coaloil and the admission of piping etc., to run the oil free of duty. In Goderich he found them against the coaloil monopoly and were railing against the Government because a heavier duty was not put on salt. In Petrolia they want protection because they have oil wells, and in Goderich because they have salt wells. Then when these Reform orators was preaching to farmers he found them telling what cheap implements they would give them and when talking to manufacturers what cheap food they would get and how amply they would be protected. The Conservative party say "Protection to every interest—agricultural, manufacturing,—every interest that can be developed in this our country." (Tremendous cheers.) Ours is a National Policy. (Continued cheers and applause.) Theirs is a sectional policy—a selfish policy. The result of this National system is that we have better goods at lower prices and the the goods are Canadian. (Applause.) But some say "no." Some say as that the manufacturers are tax gathers. Out of $5 they keep $4 and give the other $1 to the Government. They say that the farmer suffers at the expense of the manufacturer. See it this is true. During the last four years, according to the returns published by the Ontario Government, the farms and stock of this country increased in valuation $100,000,000. No Reformer will dispute these figures. And all this with lower prices for wheat, barley, beef, and other commodities than he has had for years. Why this prosperity among the farmers? Because they got a lower price for what they had to sell? Of course not. But it was because what they had to buy was far cheaper in proportion to the prices they got for their products. There was the secret of the farmers' prosperity. A bushel of wheat was, in 1878, worth $1 a bushel. To-day it was worth about 80 cents.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT DOES,

But mowers that sold in 1878 for $75 were now bought for $55; reapers then at $130, now at $90; drills then at $78, now at $55. In 1878 it would take 285 bushels of wheat to buy these three articles. To-day it takes only about 240 bushels. There was the difference. The farmer pocketed the price of the odd 40 bushels and went his way. He went on to compare what a farmer's wife could buy in 1878 for her butter and what she could buy to-day. Butter was then worth 12 cents per pound; to-day it is worth over 20 cents per pound. Sugar is much cheaper, tea is cheaper, coffee is cheaper. What the farmer's wife had to pay for what she got in 1878 for 33 pounds of butter she could

NOW GET FOR 12 POUNDS.

Cottons were cheaper, woollens were cheaper,—really everything was cheaper, better and it was Canadian. (Cheers.) The mechanic and workingmen were likewise benefitted. They knew what the wages were then and what they are now. Nay, it was not a question of wages in 1878. Then it was a question of work. The workingmen and artizans well knew that in those dreary times of Reform rule they could get next to nothing to do and next to nothing for it. And they had then to pay far higher prices for what they ate and what they wore. Some said it was a cheaper country to live in then. The Irishman gave the best answer to that, "Bedad," says he, "to judge from the look of my externals, and the feel of my internals, yez are makin' it a good country to die in." (Cheers and laughter.) The situation of the workingman is well illustrated by the story of the fellow who wanted to get into heaven, and when he got at the door he didn't know what excuse to make. After waiting a time he saw another fellow come up, and St. Peter says, "Well, what have you to say?" He replied, "I have been a married man." "You've suffered enough," returned the saint, "go in." (Laughter.) The other then took heart. He went up to St. Peter and said: "I've been married twice, sir." "Go below," answered the saint. "This is no place for fools." (Cheers.) The workingmen were wedded to hard times once. If they wanted to get wedded again to hard times they had just better vote for Mr. Cox. And Mr. Blake went on to say that the interests of the workingmen would be perfectly safe. Although he was against the National Policy yet he would give it to them with "a little revision." And Mr. Blake said there was a unanimity of opinion between himself and his colleagues. Mr. Cartwright, not a week ago, called the National Policy a "blunder" and

"WAS SURE IT DID US HARM."

Jones and the Maritime Province demagogues say it "must go" and here he might just say that it was this same Maritime Province crowd that prevented Mr. Mackenzie from adopting protection. They said "you put on protection and we will vote against you and put you out." They are as bitter against the N. P. now as they were then and if Mr. Blake doesn't demolish it they'll demolish him. Even Mr. Blake himself isn't friendly to it. In the good old times preachers used to get their hotel fare at half price. One day a man in settling his bill said "Landlord, you havn't charged me right. I'm a preacher and should get my fare at half price." "Be you so" returned the landlord. "Well, I saw you eat and ye didn't say grace. I saw ye go to bed and ye didn't pray. I seed ye with them loafers. You eats like a heathen, you goes to bed like a heathen, and ye talks like a heathen. I guess, stranger, ye'd better pay like a heathen." (Uproarious applause.) Mr. Blake has voted free trade, talked free trade, and his company is a nest of free traders. I guess he'd better take the free trade penalty on the 22nd. (Continued cheers.) The speaker then went on to show how different countries prospered under protection, and closed with a discussion of the North-West question.

The meeting closed with enthusiastic cheers for the Queen, Mr. Stevenson, Sir John and the speaker.

A PECULIAR PEOPLE.

The Economites Celebrate their Eighty-Second Anniversary.

ECONOMY, Pa., Feb.—The Economites or Harmonists celebrated the eighty-second anniversary of the formation of that society yesterday. The day was devoted to feasting, praising God, rejoicing and making merry. For nearly a century the Economites have been daily expecting the second coming of Christ, as it is believed His glorious advent will take place before the death of the last surviving member of the society. Elder Henrici said he believed the time for which they had so long waited was close at hand. The prophecies concerning the "last day," prior to the coming of Christ and the destruction of the world, had been fulfilled, and he thought the present troubles in Europe, the United States and Canada, would shortly involve the 200,000,000 people spoken of by St. John, in bitter strife. He reiterated the firm belief of the Harmonists that Christ shall establish a kingdom upon Mount Sinai, and hinted at the removal of the entire society to Palestine as soon as there was an indication of the fulfilment of the last of the prophecies, that they might be ready to greet the Master at his coming, and place all their possessions at his disposal. The Economite society numbered nearly 7,000 members at one time, but now there are not more than 500 survivers. Their property is valued at from $50,000,000 to $100,000 000.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

LIBERALS IN CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Mr. Chamberlain and Sir George Otto Trevelyan to-day resumed their conference on Irish affairs with Baron Herschell, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, and Mr. Morley. Mr. Chamberlain presented the draft of a scheme for the Government of Ireland, which is a modification of his former proposals for the establishment of Provincial councils. He would now establish an Ulster Parliament at Belfast and another Parliament at Dublin, both to be subordinate to the Imperial Parliament, the Irish bodies holding executive authority within their own limits, but the Crown retaining the appointment of judges and the control of customs and excise matters. The conference lasted several hours. Mr. Morley declared his emphatic opposition to Mr. Chamberlian's proposals. He said it would be impossible to obtain the assent of the Parnellites or of the bulk of the Gladstonian Liberals to the scheme, which had already been rejected by Mr. Gladstone.

CELEBRATING THE JUBILEE.

CALCUTTA, Feb. 16.—In all the chief cities of India to-day imposing fetes are being held in commeration of the Queen's Jubilee. The celebrations will last three days. In all the Christian churches and in the native temples and mosques thanksgiving services have been held.

IMPORTANT CHANGES NEEDED.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The committee on naval contracts states that it has been unable to find any case of actual corruption, as indicated in Lord Charles Beresford's statement, but recommends that various important changes be made in the contract system, which it affirms, requires reforming in order to make sure of honest work.

CONFLICT WITH THE POLICE.

DUBLIN, Feb. 16.—A conflict occurred today between a force of police on their way to execute a number of eviction orders and a party of the population of Dingle, County Kerry. The people barricaded the doors, in some places building stone walls across them. The police were at first driven away and compelled to retreat. They re-formed and then chrrged with batons and clubed rifles upon the populace, compelling them, after a severe struggle, to give way. A number of men and women were injured.

A MECHANIC SPEAKS.

We have been requested to republish the following letter from the Times:—

DEAR SIR.—Will you be good enough to give me space in your valuable paper to write a few lines on the approaching elections. We are asked to vote for Mr. Stevenson or Mr. Cox, both good men, but that is not the question. Of course during the excitement of an election there is a great deal of nonsence talked, and an ordinary man who has not the time or money to spend on buying papers hardly knows what to believe or what not to believe. But there are a few simple facts that any man cannot help but know; some of these are are as follows:—Can we not buy more of such things as tea, sugar, &c., for one dollar now than we could when the followers of Mr. Blake were in power from 1873-78? Have we not more work and better wages than during that period? Every working man answers yes. Now if these are facts, they are about all working man need trouble himself about, and we had better "let well alone" and support the present Government.

However, there is another matter I wonder very much has not been brought more prominently before the voters than it has. I mean the Trent Valley Canal. Now, although the canal has not been built as fast as we would like it to have been, however, there has been an immense amount of money spent in our midst. I was working on these works last season, I was surprised when I first arrived there to see the vast amount of work that had been done. I am sure people in general don't know how much work has been done, or I am sure we would hear more about it. I have not been at Fenelon Falls, but I am told there is a double lift lock there, which was a big job, and a canal about a half a mile long cut through the solid rock. At Buckhorn there is a fine lock and quite a long piece of canal cut through the rock. The channel at Little Bvckhorn has been blasted out. There is a fine lock at Lovesick rapid and a magnificent double lift lock at Burleigh. They are building a dam about 30 feet high at Burleigh, besides the dams already finished at Lovesick, Perry's Creek, Black Duck Creek Young's Point, Lakefield, and three or four other places. The gates are about finished for the several locks and by July next there will be through navigation from Lakefield to Balsam lake. Now, I think it is a question of the greatest importance to the town of Peterborough and surrounding country to have this work continued, and I think we hould know exactly what Mr. Blake would do in that direction in case he gets into power. I have taken some trouble to find out, and I find that Mr. Blake IS DEAD AGAINST THE SCHEME, and if he gets into power that would be the end of the Canal. Now, if this is the case, would it not be a most serious matter for the progress of this district? On the other hand I have it on good authority that if the present Government is sustained that it will continue the construction of the Canal, and that the next stretch undertaken will be that between here and Lakefield. This will give our town a "send off" that we can't get in any other way I know of, and it will leave an immense amount of money in our midst. Now I don't think there is the least doubt about the present government being sustained, although the Reform papers try to make themselves and others believe the contrary, and if such is the case we would be much more likely to get what we want if our representative in Parliament is a government man. We know how much satisfaction an opponent of Mr. Mowat at Toronto gets, and I think it would be about the same at Ottawa. So my advice to all that have the good of the town and country at heart is to be "for" and not "agin" the Government.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1887.

THE INDIANS.

Among the grossest misrepresentations made by Reformers at this time are those in regard to the treatment of the Indians. Among the statements made in several papers is that:—"The Dominion Public Accounts for 1885 show these results:—"Annual grant to Indians, $1,109,000; food and clothing purchased, $454,000; to be otherwise accounted for, $655,000." The impression sought to be made is that $655,000 are unaccounted for and wasted. But the Public Accounts show no such result, for on page 258 a statement of how the whole appropriation was expended is given. The readers of those Reform journals would think that in food and clothing was the only way in which money was expended on the Indians, but the treaties made with the Indians—made, the greater number of them, by Mr. Mackenzie's Government—provides that yearly payments be made to the Indians in money, and those annuities account for a large share of the expenditure. Expenditure in connection with the Indians in the whole Dominion is included in the $1,109,000, but the statements made by Reformers do not show that. Money was also expended in agricultural implements, tools, seeds, &c., in order to induce the Indians to turn their attention to agriculture, so that in time they would be able to entirely provide for themselves.

It is also stated that an official report says, in regard to clothing furnished the Indians, that "the trousers and shirts distributed were inferior and wore out in three or four days." No such statement was made by any official. One officer reported that "an Indian informed him" that the trousers and shirts were inferior, but he (the officer) did not say they were, and although the same goods were distributed to various bands, no complaint was made except by the one Indian. Again it is stated that an official report says that "the potatoes and barley received last spring were half rotten." This is made to read as though it applied to the whole North-West. One official reported that some potatoes and barley, received for seed (not food), had been left by some of the Indians not coming for their share and had spoiled. Thus the wholesale charge dwindles down.

Such are the misrepresentations by which the Reform party hopes the electors will be misled into voting against the National Policy and the policy that tends to develop and unite the country, and in favor of the party of secession and sectional cries.

INCREASED EXPENDITURE.

Among all the cries that are being used by Mr. Blake and his supporters one of the silliest, if it is not worse, is that in regard to the increased expenditure since Confederation.

Do not the electors find in their private capacity that their expenses increase as their families grow, and as they enlarge their dwellings? Do not they find that their outlay grows larger as their business extends? The Review certainly pays out more money in the year than it did in 1867, and no doubt the Examiner does also, yet we are not prepared to admit that the increased expenditure is extravagant or ruinous, or that it is any cause for regret. The Auburn Woollen Mills, Mr. Brodie, Mr. Wm. Hamilton, Mr. Peter Hamilton, all our manufacturers, and all our storekeepers, find their outgoings heavier than they were some years ago, because their business has grown, and they congratulate themselves on the growth. Our Town Council and our Board of Education call for larger sums each year as our population increases, and new requirements make themselves felt. Do not the Grand Trunk and the Midland find that their expenses increase as their business, their receipts and their profits grow?

Who would wish to remain always at the same stage without growth or progress? What man, or body of men repines at an increased expenditure if is recouped with larger profits, or even if it is to provide for new wants as the world advances and we with it. The question for us all is not whether the public expenses increased, but whether the expenditure is remunerative and we get the worth of our money.

And so it is with our Dominion. Our population, our territory, our business and our wants have all increased and our expenditure has naturally increased also. The question is whether we have spent our money judiciously and have obtained an adequate return. That the increased expenditure has not been extravagant is shown by the fact that it has not kept pace with our growth, and that it has afforded us benefits that we would be loath to do without, even if we could have all the money that has procured them. Would any Canadian be willing to give up our additional Provinces, to be deprived of our railways and canals, to do without our postal facilities, etc., if we could thereby recover all the money we have spent upon them? We feel that this money has been well expended, and we know that in many cases it has not only given us increased conveniences but has even brought in a direct return that far more than compensates for the outlay.

As a matter of fact the demands upon us individually have hardly been augmented, and we are far better able to meet them. The parade of columns of figures to show that we are spending more money than we did is absurd if not dishonest. The money has been well spent and we are getting a good return for it.

WHAT SAY HIS LIEUTENANTS.

In 1882 Mr. Blake, as now, gave a sort of reluctant assent to the N. P. as a system which he would not greatly disturb if he came into power. For the next four years, however, when he had no fear of an immediate election before his eyes, he showed that his hostility te the protection of Canadian industries was by no means eradicated; he uttered many jibes at it as a whole, and supported suggestions formodifications that would have completely emasculated it.

Apart from t.is, however, and allowing, for the sake of argument, that Mr. Blake has really become a sincere convert to a policy, for adopting which he had for years uttered the bitterest denunciations of his political opponents, his conversion is by no means sufficient for the safety of the country. Mr. Blake could not form a Ministry by himself; he must have colleagues. Now every one still in political life who was formerly in the Cabinet with Mr. Blake, and everyone of his prominent supporters who would be likely to be taken into his Administration, without one exception that we can recall to mind. have declined to follow his lead in this matter. They steadily assailed the N. P. during the last Parliament and they are assailing it still. Sir Richard Cartwright, Messrs. Mackenzie, Mills, Jones, Vail, Davies, Patterson, Charlton, &c., are all at present denouncing the N. P. as an iniquity or a folly.

Even accepting Mr. Blake as a protectionist, a difficult stretch of the imagination, it is certain that he could not find a dozen others to form a Protectionist Reform Cabinet. Under such circumstances his own views on the subject, even if they were not so very unsatisfactory, would be of little importance, for he could not carry them out. He evidently could not control his colleagues, since he cannot now prevent them from openly contradicting on every platform their leaders, expressions of sympathy for Canadian industries. Probably they have no more faith in his sincerity than the country has.

THE EAST RIDING.

The Reform candidate in East Peterborough is endeavoring to gain support by, in a measure, repudiating his party. He would have the people understand that he will support Mr. Blake "so far as he is right, and no further." Mr. Lang should go farther. He should explain how far he thinks Mr. Blake is right, and wherein he is wrong. But what must be the condition of the Reform party when their own candidate feels it necessary thus to repudiate the party? Mr. Blake was nominated at the Reform convention; that convention cheered for Mr. Blake; Sir Richard Cartwright, a Reform leader, has entered the constituency to assist Mr. Lang, and if the people vote for Mr. Lang they vote to turn out of office the Conservative Government and to put the Reformers, led by Mr. Blake and Mr. Laurier, in their place. And they are asked to do this while the Reform party's own candidate feels bound to repudiate the party, while trying to get support for them. Such a mode of trying to get support can hardly commend itself to the electors of the Riding.

Mr. Lang also objects to Mr. Burnham as a representative because he is a lawyer, while at the same time he supports a Government at Toronto which is composed of four lawyers and has not in it one farmer, and is himself endeavouring to get to Ottawa to support a party led by Mr. Blake, Mr. Mills, Mr. Laurier, Mr. Langlier, Mr. Cameron, Mr. Scott, Mr. Edgar, Mr. Mulock, &c., all lawyers, and not a farmer among the leaders, while in the present Government there is at least one man, at the head of an important department, who is a practical farmer, and more than one who has been directly interested in farming.

Mr. Burnham was a lawyer in 1878 and in 1882, and the electors shewed then that they did not consider that fact a disqualification. It is necessary to have in Parliament a certain number of lawyers, for how could Parliament make or amend laws if it did not knew what laws already existed? Mr. Burnham has supported a Government which has given Canada protection for native industry, whether mechanical or farming; which has developed the country by public works, and to whose policy the West and East Ridings owe two railways, the Ontario and Quebec and the Irondale road. What do the Reformers offer in place of the benefits the Conservative Government is giving us? Nothing, except to open our markets to the United States agricultural produce and manufactures.

All sorts of reports may be expected as the election draws near, but they should be received with caution. Look at the public records of the parties, and vote in the interest of the country.

The East Riding is in sympathy with the Conservative policy, and in favor of the popular representative of the Riding in the last two Parliaments. It remains for the friends of good government to see that all Conservative votes are got to the polls, and Mr. Burnham will be returned again by a good majority.

FROM ALL OVER.

A Nihilist conspiracy was discovered last week in St. Petersburg, which extends through the whole of Russia.

Sir James Stephen has abandoned his idea of writing a life of Carlyle for Mr. John Morley's English Men of Letters series.

It is stated to be the deliberate conviction of nine men out of ten in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna, that there is no chance of escaping war.

It is considered certain that the British Parliament will shortly pass coercive Irish legislation which will result in a bloody and turbulent resistance.

In the British Foreign Office it is believed that Russia contemplates striking at both Afghanistan and Hong Kong, in the spring, as well as at Bulgaria.

The municipal nominations in Montreal were held on Tuesday. Mr. Abbott, the English-speaking citizens' candidate for mayor, is opposed by Mr. Rainville, a French-Canadian.

We do not sound a needless alarm when we tell you that a taint of scrofula is in your blood. Inherited or acquired, it is there, and Ayer's Sarsaparilla alone will effectually eradicate it.

Tenders for the new drillshed in Hamilton have been received by the Militia Department, and the contract will be awarded immediately upon the return of Sir A. Caron to the Capital.

It is postively asserted in London that the new proposals made by Sir Henry Drummond Wolff to the sultan do not involve the neutralization of Egypt, which would be very unpopular in England.

The largest gun yet made has been tested at Woolwich Arsenal. It is a 111-tonner, is 44 feet long, takes a maximum charge of 900 pounds of powder, and its projectile weighs 1,800 pounds. It is for the iron-clad Benbow.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer imparts a fine gloss and freshness to the hair, and is highly recommended by physicians, clergymen and scientists. It removes dandruff, makes the scalp white and clean, and restores gray hair to its youthful color.

At the nominations in the city of Ottawa on Tuesday a disgraceful scene took place in the Council chamber. For over four hours the utmost uproar prevailed, varied by occasional free fights between the supporters of the respective candidates, and most of the aldermanic chairs and desks were wrecked in the confusion.

Supreme Court of Canada.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—The Spring term of the Supreme Court opened to-nay, Judge Gwynne presided in the absence of the Chief Justice. A maritime case of no particular importance occupied the court today.

A New Shell for the Militia.

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—The Deputy-Minister of Militia, Colonel Panet, has just returned from Quebec, and says that arrangements are complete for the manufacture of a new shell for the use of the Canadian militia. It is is claimed to be an improvement on the English shrapnell, and a factory for its manufacture will be established. The new shells will be used in nine and twenty pounders.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

A New Candidate in the Field

HIS PLATFORM:

Gentlemen.—I have no desire to tamper with the votes of that noble army of our citizens who freely exercise the Franchise on behalf of their favorite polititical leaders. But in order to take a hand in the present political struggle for supremacy between Grit and Tory, I have decided to come out and offer such tempting

BRIBES TO THE ELECTORS

As cannot fail to place me at the head of the polls.

I would scorn, like all other candidates for parliamentary honors, to buy up votes, or do aught that might be construed as a violation of our Election laws. My object is a far more patriotic one, namely—that of making a CLEAN SWEEP of all my Winter Clothing and Tweeds before Election day.

Nor will the secresy of the Ballot be infringed by asking purchasers whether they will vote for LeBRUN, COX, or STEVENSON. No, not by a home rule scuttle full! But every elector is expected to attend this exciting Political-Winter-Clothing Sale, and to hurrah for LeBRUN, so as to elect him by an overwhelming majority as the Workingmen's Favourite Candidate.

CARRISTON'S GIFT.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Author of "Called Back," "Dark Days," "A Family Affair," etc.

It was a journey! I think I must have been three-quarters of an hour going about a quarter of a mile. I was just beginning to despair, when I saw a welcome gleam of light. I steered toward it, fondly hoping that my troubles were at an end. I found the light stole through the ill-fitting window-shutters of what seemed, so far as I could make out in the darkness, to be a small farm-house. Tying to a gate the knotted reins by which I had been leading the horse, I staggered up to the door and knocked loudly. Upon my honor, until I leaned against that door-post I had no idea how tired I was—until that moment I never suspected that the finding of speedy shelter meant absolutely saving my life. Covered from head to foot with snow, my hat crushed in, I must have been a pitiable object.

No answer came to my first summons. It was only after a second and more imperative application of my heel that the door deigned to give way a few inches. Through the aperture a woman's voice asked who was there.

"Let me in," I said. "I have missed my way to Midcombe. My horse has fallen. You must give me shelter for the night. Open the door and let me in."

"Shelter! You can't get sheltered here, mister," said a man's gruff voice. "This ain't an inn, so you'd best be off and go elsewhere."

"But I must come in," I said, astounded at such inhospitality; "I can't go a step further. Open the door at once!"

"You be hanged," said the man. "'Tis my house, not yours."

"But, you fool, I mean to pay you well for your trouble. Don't you know it means death wandering about on such a night as this? Let me in!"

"You won't come in here," was the brutal and boorish reply. The door closed.

That I was enraged at such inhospitality may be easily imagined; indeed I was thoroughly frightened lest no one would be surprised. As getting into that house meant simply life or death to me, into that house I determined to get, by door or window, by fair means or by foul. So, as the door closed I hurled myself against it with all the might I could muster. Although I ride much heavier now than I did then, all my weight at that time was bone and muscle. The violence of my attack tore from the lintel the staple which held the chain; the door went back with a bang, and I fell forward into the house, fully resolved to stay there whether welcome or unwelcome.

CHAPTER II.

The door through which I had burst like a battering-ram opened straight into a sort of kitchen, so although I entered in a most undignified way, in fact on my hands and knees, I was well established in the center of the room before the man and woman emerged from behind the door, where my successful assault had thrown them. I stood up and faced them. They were a couple of ordinary, respectably-attired country people. The man, a sturdy, strong-built, bull-necked rascal, stood scowling at me, and I concluded making up his mind as to what course to pursue.

"My good people," I said, "you are behaving in the most unheard-of manner. Can't you understand that I mean to pay you well for any trouble I give you? But whether you like it or not, here I stay to-night. To turn me out would be sheer murder."

So saying I pulled off my overcoat and began shaking the snow out of my whiskers.

I dare say my determined attitude, my respectable, as well as my muscular appearance, impressed my unwilling hosts. Anyway, they gave in without more ado. While the woman shut the door, through which the snowflakes were whirling, the man said sullenly:

"Well, you'll have to spend the night on a chair. We've no beds here for strangers. 'Specially those as ain't wanted."

"Very well, my friend. Having settled the matter you may as well make yourself pleasant. Go and put my horse under cover, and give him a feed of some sort—make a mash if you can."

After giving the woman a quick glance, as of warning, my scowling host lit a horn lantern and went on the errand I suggested. I gladly sank into a chair and warmed myself before a cheerful fire. The prospect of spending the night amid such discomfort was not alluring, but I had, at least, a roof over my head.

As a rule, the more churlish the nature the more avaricious it is found to be. My promise of liberal remuneration was after all not without its effect upon the strange couple whose refusal to afford me refuge had so nearly endangered my life. They condescended to get me some tea and rough food. After I had disposed of all that the man produced a bottle of gin. We filled our glasses and then, with the aid of my pipe, I settled down to make the best of a night spent in a hard wooden chair.

I had come across strange people in my travels, but I have no hesitation in saying that my host was the sullenest, sulkiest, most boorish specimen of human nature I had as yet met with. In spite of his recent ill-treatment of me, I was ready to establish matters on a friendly footing, and made several attempts to draw him into conversation. The brute would only answer in monosyllables, or often not answer at all. So I gave up talking as a bad job and sat in silence, smoking and looking into the fire, thinking a good deal, it may be, of some one I should have met that morning at Lilymere, had the wretched snow but kept off.

The long clock—that cumbrous eight-day machine which inevitably occupies one corner of every cottager's kitchen—struck nine. The woman rose and left us. I concluded she was going to bed. If so I envied her. Her husband showed no signs of retiring. He still sat over the fire, opposite me. By this time I was dreadfully tired; every bone in my body ached. The hard chair which, an hour or two ago, seemed all I could desire, now scarcely came up to my ideas of the comfort I was justly entitled to claim. My sulky companion had been drinking silently but steadily. Perhaps the liquor he had poured into himself might have rendered his frame of mind more pleasant and amenable to reason.

"My good fellow," I said, "your chairs are excellent ones of the kind, but deucedly uncomfortable. I am horribly tired. If the resources of your establishment can't furnish a bed for me to sleep in, couldn't you find a mattress or something to lay down before the fire?"

"You've got all you'll get to-night," he answered, knocking the ashes out of his pipe.

"Oh, but I say!"

"So do I say. I say this: If you don't like it you can leave it. We didn't ask you to come."

"You infernal beast," I muttered—and meant it, too—I declare, had I not been so utterly worn out, I would have had that bullet-headed ruffian up for a few rounds on his own kitchen floor, and tried to knock him into a more amiable frame of mind.

"Never mind," I said, "but remember, civility costs nothing, and often gets rewarded. However, if you wish to retire to your own couch, don't let your native politeness stand in your way. Pray don't hesitate on my account. Leave plenty of fuel, and I shall manage until the morning."

"Where you stay, I stay," he answered. Then he filled his pipe, and once more relapsed into stony silence.

I bothered about him no more. I dozed off for a few minutes—woke—dozed off again for some hours. I was in an uncomfortable sort of half sleep, crammed full of curious dreams—dreams from which I started, wondering where I was and how I got there. I even began to grow nervous. All sorts of horrible travelers' tales ran through my head. It was in just such places as this that unsuspecting voyagers were stated to have been murdered and robbed, by just such unmitigated ruffians as my host. I can tell you that altogether I spent a most unpleasant night.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Evangelistic.

Messrs. Marshall and Case will hold a meeting in the Gospel Hall over China Hall to-night at eight o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Turnbull is now agent for the Domestic Paper Patterns of New York. The best and simplest patterns ever shown.

St. Paul's Church.

A series of Evangelistic Services conducted by Mr. G. H. Marsh will be commenced in St. Paul's Church on Sabbath next. As Mr. Marsh is an Evangelist who has been much blessed in his work it is hoped that many will make a point of attending these meetings.

Just received at Turnbull's, an assortment of New Patterns in Cottonades and Shirtings. Warranted fast colors, and prices the lowest in the market.

Personal.

Mr. H. LeBrun has been doing the honors of our town to Capt. Chagnon, who is staying with him, and who expresses himself as delighted with what he has seen of Peterborough. All his compatriots and many others will no doubt meet him in the old Music Hall this evening to hear his message and friendly greeting from our sister Province.

New Goods. Turnbull has just received a large shipment of Scotch and English Suitings and Trouserings. If you want a cheap and stylish suit try Turnbull's.

Curling.

The final draw for the Ontario Tankard is being played in Toronto. As was predicted by the REVIEW, St. Mary's and the Paris clubs stand high in the list. St. Mary's beat Listowel by 55 to 24, and Paris beat Whitby by 28 to 12. In the second last contest of the final draw Paris is pitted against Orillia and St. Mary's against the Caledonians of Toronto. It is likely the saw off will be between St. Mary's and Paris.

Lake Islands.

A very paltry attempt is being make to attack the Macdonald Administration for selling a few islands in these waters, chiefly to Reformers. Have these critics ever found fault with Mr. Mowat for selling islan is in Muskoka Lake, as he has been doing for several years past? Or if they think it is too far a cry to Lake Muskoka, we will give a case nearer home. Are they not aware that it was Mr. Mowat who made the first attempt to sell islands in the waters of our own county, but finding he had made a mistake, as the islands belonged to the Indians, he had to desist?

Spring Lace Curtains at Turnbull's. The designs are so new and prices so low that they are sure to be sold early in his clearing sale of Spring Goods, which has now commenced.

Campaign Notes.

—Messrs. Stevenson and Hilliard addressed a large meeting in Montgomery's School House, North Smith, on Wednesday evening.

—Mr. Larke made a most convincing speech in favor of the N. P. at the Opera House meeting.

—He exhibited Mr. Blake's "alternative" policy in an able and amusing manner.

—Capt. Chagnon, of Montreal, a well known advocate there, says that Sir John will carry Quebec Province by 20 or 22 of a majority.

—He will address the French speaking electors in the old Music Hall to-night.

An Address in French.

Capt. Chagnon, advocate, from Montreal, should have a large audience in the old Music Hall this evening, when he will deliver an address in French on the questions of the day to our electors of his own nationality and others. From the few words he addressed last night to the audience in the Opera House in English, a language in which he does not claim to feel at home, a very favourable idea must have been formed of the eloquence he will display when speaking in his own tongue. Having just left his own Province he will be able to give an interesting and intelligent account of the state of public feeling there at present.

BARGAINS extraordinary. Previous to the arrival of a large consignment of Lace Curtains now en route from Manchester we will sell the balance of our magnificent stock on hand at sacrifice prices. An early call solicited as they must be cleared. R. Fair

PROTECTION — Everybody believes in the Protection that Blankets, Comforters and Flannels afford. They are sold very cheap at Rowse's Trade Palace.

MANUFACTURERS AND MECHANICS.

What the Reform Candidate is in Favor of.

The Reform candidate in West Peterborough has made a definite statement of what he is in favor of in respect to the duty on one article at least.

In soliciting the support of Mr. Wm. Matthews, of the Peterborough Pork Packing House, he fairly committed himself to the action he would take in regard to that one article.

The Reform candidate solicited Mr. Matthew's support in the usual way.

"But" replied Mr. Matthews, "How can I support you when you support a party opposed to the National Policy?"

Mr. Cox answered that he would pledge himself to support the National Policy in main. There were one or two things which he thought should be revised. "For instance" he said, "There's woollens. The woollen manufacturers are making from 35 to 40 per cent. on their money while other manufacturers are barely getting along. I am in favor of a substantial reduction of the duty on woollens."

In regard to the 35 and 40 per cent. profits the statement is altogether at variance with facts. Most of the woollen industries do not earn dividends of more than 7 or 8 per cent and one large factory last year only gave the owners a dividend of 5 per cent. In this factory there is $150,000 invested.

Mr. Kendry, manager of the Auburn Woollen Mills, and Mr. Brodie, of the Brodie Mills, are very naturally alarmed at such a declaration and will do all in their power to promote Mr. Stevenson's return. They are obliged to take this course in order to protect themselves, for if the duty were "substantially reduced" it would simply mean the closing up of these factories as the Auburn Mills was under the old tariff system. Those who who were thrown out of work at that time, and who ever since the advent of the National Policy have secured steady work at the Auburn mills, should not hesitate a moment in marking their ballots for Mr. Stevenson. Those in other lines of industries, who sympathize with their fellow artizans, should give them hearty support, and thus help to maintain the woollen industry in its present satisfactory state by voting against a man who would endanger the very life of factories which are giving, as everyone knows, steady employment to a large number of laborers in this country.

THE PRICE OF WHEAT

How the Duties on Grain Benefit the Farmers of Ontario.

I will take the farmer's case, as he belongs to the largest class, and with him associate the miller, since their interests are the same. All the wheat grown by a farmer has to be sold, except what he requires for his own flour and seed. He has his choice of two classes to sell to—and only two—the miller and the exporter; the miller of his own town or the buyer for some other Canadian miller, or the exporter or the exporter's agent. Which of the two, the miller or the exporter, does he sell to? To the one who pays him the best price. Which of the two does give him the best price? Which of the two has given him the best price during the past seven years? I want the answer to these questions to come from any man who comes much in contact with Toronto exporters or their agents at any outside places, such as Aurora, Newmarket, Bradford; and I want that man to say how continuously he hears this remark: "We are not getting any wheat, the millers are taking it all." Why are the millers taking it all? There is only one answer to that question, and the answer is, because they are paying more money for it than the exporter allows his agent to pay. I am not stating more than the fact when I say that nine months out of every twelve the state of affairs is exactly as set forth above, and in many large farming sections where there are plenty of mills, the exporter can scarcely ever touch a bushel the year round because "the mills are taking it all," and of course paying the grower more money than the export price warrants.

I challenge any man to establish any other conclusion than this—the millers pay the farmers better prices for their wheat than the exporters door can pay.

This is under a system of protection. Change that system. Come back to free trade. Remove the duty from wheat and flour, and what will result? The great millers of the western states will send their salesmen to Toronto, and Montreal, and Quebec, and Kingston, and Ottawa and London; and later on to the smaller cities and the towns and the villages of this country—to every place where there is a flour store with cash enough to pay for a car load of flour—and will sell car loads and train loads of flour at prices lower than the Canadian miller can afford to sell at even if he gets his wheat at export figures. There will be no more complaints among wheat shippers that the millers are taking all the wheat. The miller will have to shut down, and silent mills will become as plentiful in Canada as they are to-day in England Ireland and Scotland. When once thoroughly shut down, workmen scattered—gone to the United States to help make American flour out of American wheat to supply Canada with—when customers are lost, it is an easy matter for the American millers to keep them shut down and get high prices for their flour, too. The plan is an old one, well tried and found satisfactory by the manufacturers of the protected United States who wanted free trade Canada for customers in years gone by, before the N. P. was taken hold of by this country. I ask any farmer to recall the prices he has had from millers all the year round, the eager competition between millers in his own town and buyers who wanted his wheat for millers at other points in Canada, to say whether he can afford to kill off this competition for the wheat he has to sell.

I am not a politician—certainly not a Tory one—and never gave a Conservative vote in my life except on two occasions when I voted for the protection candidate who was a Conservative candidate as well; but I am interested in getting the best pay for my labor that I fairly can get, and do not propose to give my vote to assist in clearing the way for American wheat and American flour to deluge this country and throw mire on the money of the exporter, who, however patriotic he may be, is limited in the price he pays me by the competition he has to meet in the European market, from every wheat field from India to California.—Correspondence Dominion Milling News.

IS HE THE SAME MAN?

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR.—I see by the press that Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Grit candidate for the Commons in your riding, is fishing after the votes of the working men of Peterborough.

Is this the same Geo. A. Cox, who, as President of the Midland, tried so hard a few years ago to assist the striking operators of the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co. to obtain decent living wages?

If he is the same philouthropic party who sent operators from off the Midland Railway to Toronto and elsewhere to take the places of men who were striving to wrest from this gigantic monopoly sufficient wages to keep their wives and children properly clothed and fed, then I have not the slightest doubt but what the intelligent workingmen of your town will rise up in their might and allow him to spend the time he would spend in Ottawa in bringing out and flooding the country with the pauper children of England.

RETIRING

from the Dry Goods Business.

$10,000.00

worth of Dry Goods must be sold before

The 15th day of March, 1887

T. DOLAN & CO'S

As on the above mentioned date, the Dry Goods business carried on by T. Dolan & Co. for the past ten years, will pass into the hands of a new firm, we have decided to reduce our present magnificent stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods amounting to $20,000.00 to one half its volume. In order to accomplish this we have marked all our goods to the bare cost price.

JUST IMAGINE

$3,000 worth of Dress Goods at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Black and Colored Silks at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Mantle Cloths at less than Cost.

$1,000 worth of Gloves and Hosiery at Cost.

$3,000 worth of Cottons, Bleached and Unbleached, at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Cotton Shirting at Cost.

$1,000 worth of Domestics, etc., etc., at Cost.

$2,000 worth of Clouds and Woollen Goods at less than Cost.

$1,000 worth of Prints and Ginghams at Cost.

EVERYTHING AT COST

The goods must go. This is a genuine cash sale, and no hoax. Remember from now until March 15th, as after that date we intend to direct our attention exclusively to our Tailoring establishment.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1887.

OUR SISTER PROVINCE.

AN ELOQUENT ADDRESS IN FRENCH ON PUBLIC QUESTIONS.

Good meeting in the Old Music Hall—Presentation of a Cane Voted to Mr. Stevenson.

There was a large assemblage in the old Music Hall on Thursday evening when the French Canadian electors and others met to hear an address in French by Capt. Chagnon, advocate of Montreal. A number of ladies were among those present,

Dr. Crevier acted as chairman. There were also present on the platform Mr. Jas. Stevenson, the Conservative candidate, who was enthusiastically received when he entered, Messrs. H. LeBrun, Poussette, Moore and others.

The chairman briefly introduced Capt. Chagnon to the audience.

CAPT. CHAGNON, speaking in French, expressed his pleasure at meeting so many of his compatriots in this fine town. Their Province of Quebec had loyally accepted Confederation, and he dwelt eloquently on the unity of the different parts and the different races of Canada, giving due credit to Sir John Macdonald, who, as the father of Confederation, had done so much to bring about such happy results. The love of their country felt by all good Canadians was vividly depicted. Forcibly he described how the Conservatives had favored this unity, in contradistinction to the Liberal programme of disintegration. The selfishness and inconsistency of the Liberal leaders was exposed by the manner in which one after another, when they had obtained power they retired with place and salary, thus deceiving the country after all their promises. The Conservative leaders preferred to work for their country. The electors should see that the Liberal leaders did not deceive them again. The Conservative leaders, having at their head Sir John Macdonald, one of the greatest men of his age, had determined to make Canada a great nation. They had acquired the Northwest Territories, they had opened them to settlement, and it was objected that there was large public debt, though we had a large public property that was a full return for all that was spent. Very plainly he showed the difference between the railway policy of the Reformers and Conservatives, exciting much amusement by his comical description of travel by the magnificent water stretches. He contrasted this with the Conservative policy that linked ocean to ocean by a great National highway. The National Policy was lucidly treated, the depression and misery under the Reform administration being contrasted with the prosperity and progress under a system which protected our Canadian industries. He drew a striking picture of the misery that existed in the family of many a workingman, who would only have been too happy if he could have got work to earn money for those dear to him. When the Conservatives succeeded in carrying their National Policy this was all changed. Quebec had done its part in giving Sir John Macdonald his majority in favour of the policy and it would do so on the 22nd. He denounced in appropriate terms the falsehoods of the Globe and other Reform papers in claiming as their supporters the members who had been elected by acclamation. These members were Conservatives and supporters of Sir John Macdonald, and he had the personal assurances to this effect of Messrs. Coursol, Duport and Gigault. The financial questions were well treated and the exaggerations and falsifications of the Reformers as to the public debt, the expenditure, &c., were plainly shown, the advantages that the money spent had given us being described in glowing terms. We had a country, we had public works, we had public buildings, which did us credit, and which we could show to the world with pride. Our canals and railways had excited the admiration of the civilized world. The energy of the Administration in protecting that important Canadian industry, our fisheries, received its due praise, as did the steps taken for the safety of our mariners, the fine lighthouses, &c. In these and many other ways which were described, the country had full value for the money spent. Returning to the National Policy he compared the effect of free trade to the large flocks and herds of a rich proprietor devouring all in a poor man's garden if there were no fences, while the poor man's cow would have little effect if it entered the wide estate of the rich proprietor. So the manufacturers of a neighbouring people of twelve times our number would destroy our industries, while we could not return an equivalent if all barriers were thrown down. France had grown rich by erecting barriers against foreign manufacturers in favour of their own artisans, and so with other countries.

As to Riel, he would speak as frankly as on other questions. It was terrible that the life of a man should be taken, but was it not terrible also that the lives of innocent men, their wives and children, should be endangered by criminals? He quoted the Bishops and Priests of the Northwest as his authority for condemning the conduct of Riel. The misery he had caused, the deaths of settlers, missionaries and volunteers, and the grief of their relations and friends were due to this man, who was ready to sell his cause for money, to desert for the sake of his brother-half-breeds and who had caused the death of Fred. Cumberland, to carry out his ambitious views. Was the trial of an offender more fair or were facilities for his defence more freely provided. It was said that he should not have received his punishment, but it was merited and justice must be done. He concluded with thanks to those who had assembled to hear him and who welcomed him to the Town of Peterborough.

MR. THOS. RUTHERFORD with a brief but appropriate address, presented to Mr. Stevenson the handsome gold headed cane which had been voted to him at the Fireman's carnival at the Skating Rink by the handsome majority of 121—a majority which he hoped would be doubled on the 22nd of February.

MR. STEVENSON in returning thanks also expressed his gratitude for the assistance that had been given to him by his friends in this contest, and he believed they would ensure his success. He was fully confident that his French friends, whom he was very glad to meet that evening, would do their share in giving him a majority. Even if he should not be successful he would never forget the kindness he had been shown throughout this contest. He offered his warm thanks for the reception he had met with on that and other occasions.

The CHAIRMAN announced that there would be a meeting in the South Ward at Brault's Hotel on Monday evening, when Capt. Chagnon and other speakers would deliver addresses in French and English.

Capt. Chagnon called for three cheers for Mr. Stevenson, the Conservative candidate and future member for West Peterborough, and they were given with enthusiasm. A hearty response was also given to the call for three cheers for Capt. Chagnon. Cheers for Sir John Macdonald and for the Queen terminated the proceedings.

Just received at Turnbull's, an assortment of New Patterns in Cottonades and Shirtings. Warranted fast colors, and prices the lowest in the market.

MR. BLAKE'S CONSISTENCY.

To the Editor of the Review

DEAR SIR,—It appears to me that a reasoning man cannot be satisfied with the unsteady support given by Mr. Blake to his "principles." In a recent speech he distinctly asserts that the vested interests of manufacturers shall not be endangered by any act of his in the capacity of a free trader. Let us, for a moment, argue from this apparently innocent statement. We all know that he does not refer to the interests that were vested before the N. P. came in. If he meant these interests his statement would be unnecessary, nay, absurd. It would be equivalent to an announcement that he is not dangerously erratic though subject to intervals of wandering—in search of power. The only other meaning that can be attached to his words is that the inducement held out to manufacturers by a protective policy, to invest in a larger measure in the building up of industries and this opportunity so eagerly taken advantage of by capitalists shall not be varied to the peril of these increased interests. Is this not an endorsement of the N. P. as applied to manufacturing industries? Does this not mean that the great commercial advance under the present policy is an acknowledged fact? No other interpretation can be offered unless his language be without meaning and used to aid in the hopeless task of trying to set aside the comfort of real prosperity for the uncertainty of theoretical probabilities.

ELECTOR.

BARGAINS extraordinary. Previous to the arrival of a large consignment of Lace Curtains now en route from Manchester we will sell the balance of our magnificent stock on hand at sacrifice prices. An early call solicited as they must be cleared. R. Fair

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

HOPING BUT PREPARED.

VIENNA, Feb. 16.—At the ball given last night, Prince Rudolph, speaking of the political situation, said, "Let us hope that the crisis will pass without war; if it does not, however, we shall do our duty."

THE BRITISH IN EGYPT.

CAIRO, Feb. 17.—The withdrawal of the annual subvention to Egypt has not been formally decided upon. Sir Evelyn Baring, British diplomatic agent, has informed the French agent that Sir Henry Drummond Wolff's proposals imply neither the recalling of the British troops nor the fixing of the date for their withdrawal from Egypt.

THE ENTRANCE TO BELGIUM.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—The Army Gazette points out that the entrance to Belgium from France is quite open and that is a mistake to believe that the roads are covered by Antwerp. The Gazette hopes that Count Schettan, who has just been appointed military attache to the German Embassy at Brussels, will impress Germany's views on the subject upon Belgian Government.

RIOT IN RUSSIA.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—An Odessa despatch says that at a recent riot at the Demidoff spinning mills, occasioned by the discharge of 2,500 women and children, in accordance with the new law, Chief Orloff and his assistant, Akaharoff, were murdered by the mob, and other officials had narrow escapes. The offices at the mills were completely wrecked, and the entire plant, including machinery, demolished. The outbreak was tormented by Socialists.

ITALY AND THE SOUDAN.

ROME, Feb. 17.—General Gene, commander of the Italian troops at Massowah, telegraphs, under date of last Sunday: "The situation is unchanged. Rasaloula's camp is still at Gura. Rasalouia has gone to Mokalee. He was summoned by King John of Abyssinia. Count Salimberie invited on Thursday from Asmara with a verbal demand from Rasalouia to imprison Mohamed Bey, who, Rasalouia says, incited him to attack us and prevent our invading the country. I arrested and imprisoned Mohamed Bey and informed Rasalouia that I had done so, and that it rests with me to punish Mohamed Bey, as he was in my employ. I asked Rasalouia to release Count Salimberie and his companions. Count Salimberie confirmed the information that only the usual garrison are stationed at Ghinda and Asmara, and that Rasalouia considers the campaign ended."

A WARNING NOTE.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—The Berlin Post has a brief article entitled "The Latest Peace Swindle," warning the country not to be bullied by deceptive appearances. The Post says it still depends on the elections whether the country will have to prepare for war within a period much shorter than is generally supposed.

ITALIAN REINFORCEMENTS.

SUAKIN, Feb. 17.—Advices from Massowah say that 800 Italian troops, with Gatling guns, landed there on the 15th inst, and that 2,000 more men were expected. The Italians have raised a corps of 1,000 Bashit Bazouks and have armed the inhabitants of Massowah. Ras Aloula has gone to meet the King of Abyssinia, who is displeased on account of the attack upon the Italians.

THE ADDRESS ADOPTED.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the House of Commons Mr. Smith moved "That the question be now put." The motion was carried by 289 to 74 and the address was adopted by a vote of 283 to 70 amid Conservative cheers.

RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 17.—It is semi-officially stated that the relations between Austria and Russia are so much improved that it is no longer expected that Austria would make a Russian occupation of Bulgaria a casus belli.

THE CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

DUBLIN, Feb. 17.—In the case of the Government against John Dillon, et al., the prosecution to-day applied for an order compelling the defendants to be present during the trial. The Court refused the application.

FIVE MEN KILLED.

By the Fall of Rocks on the Kingston and Pembroke Railway.

KINGSTON, Feb. 16.—Shortly after midnight a large section of rock in the Wilbur iron mines, situated on the line of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, fell killing five men. Further particulars so far have not been obtainable. Coffins were shipped to the place to-day.

KINGSTON, Feb. 17.—The names of the men killed at the Wilbur mines are John Benton, foreman; Thomas Woodruff, Julius Bagot, William Carver and Jas. McCormick. Louis Clow and Joseph Revel were injured seriously.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 1887.

SHORT MEMORIES.

When politicians turn their coats because they are disappointed of portfolios in their old party and hope for better luck with their new allies—when newspapers think they do not get enough Government advertisements, and trust that by becoming renegades they will earn such patronage, they should have good memories, or they are likely to find their contradictions too glaring. People who had preserved any of their old utterances might contradict them with these later purchased denunciations.

We have happened to come upon an old number of the Montreal Herald, which is the mouthpiece of the Hon. Peter Mitchell, a fact which it is no breach of etiquette to mention, for he himself obtruded it upon the House of Commons when he was lamenting an insufficiency of Government patronage. In its issue of March 2nd, 1886, less than a year ago, we find the following:—

"The debt contracted by the Government of the Dominion has been contracted for the people's good. The people who have to bear the burden of that debt have had the worth of their money and they have the most of it still. Compare the way in which the people of Canada's money has been spent with the objects for which the debts of almost every other nation in the world have been contracted, and the difference will be very conspicuous."

Since then the Herald has turned a complete summersault, and is as fierce in denouncing the financial administration of our affairs as he was formerly zealous in commending it. As the first specimen that comes to hand we will quote the following from the Herald of February 16th, 1886:—

"The extent of the wisdom which has directed the finances of Canada for the last seven or eight years has not been remarkable. We venture to say that if any bank manager were to make such a record for his institution as the Finance Ministers of Canada have made for the Dominion, he would be quickly decapitated."

It will be seen that if any change has occurred in the past ten or eleven months, it is in this turncoat, not in the policy or management of the Macdonald Administration. We see that the Herald now thinks the financial administration has been faulty for "the last seven or eight years," that is for a period during which the Herald and Mr. Mitchell were at one in their expressions of admiration.

Necessarily with such flagrant contradiction, either the previous admiration or the present condemnation must be dishonest. Under the surrounding circumstances, who can doubt that the dishonesty is in the present change? And of this nature is much of the opposition that is being made to the Administration of Sir John Macdonald. It is factious, not patriotic.

OUR BRIDGE WORKS.

The fact that Mr. Law has just secured contracts for the construction of two important bridges at the Central Iron Bridge Works is not only another evidence, but also a very satisfactory realization, of the benefits that Peterborough is deriving from the statesmanlike policy of the Macdonald Administration.

In the first place, but for the National Policy it is very certain that we would have had no such works established in our town. In the case of the bridge to be constructed over the Thames, this is very plainly shown. Though Mr. Law's tender was the lowest, and thus secured for him the contract, he was very closely run by a tenderer from the United States, who was indeed lower than the two other Canadian tenderers. It is thus obvious that if it were not for the present protective duty on iron bridges this work would have been done in Ohio, instead of being done in our own town. In the recent case of awarding the tender for the C. P. R. bridge at Lachine, we are informed that the lowest tender came from the United States, and that the Canadian company obtaining the contract had to reduce their figures to those of the company in the states. This contract also must have gone to our neighbors but for our wise protective policy.

In the case of the Bow River bridge we have again an instance of the great advantage we are deriving from the N. P. But this instance shows something more. But for the enterprise displayed in the construction of the C.P.R. it is certain that Mr. Law would not be making an iron bridge in Peterborough to be erected under the shadow of the Rocky Mountains 2,300 miles from here. If the magnificent water stretches patronized by Mr. Blake and Mr. Mackenzie were the only facilities we had to rely upon in order to reach Banff, they would not have troubled Peterborough to build a bridge for them. Like our protective tariff, our great railway is part of a great national policy of developing our country and its industries.

Now much of the money expended on these bridges will go for wages. Is not this a boon to mechanics in Peterborough? And the wages do not remain in the pockets of the earners, who spread throughout our community at least the greater portion of them.

The policy that secures our town such benefits is that of the party to which Messrs. Stevenson and Burnham belong and which they will support. Here is a plain question for the electors, not of some philosophical theory, but of their "bread and butter." It is hardly necessary to add that Mr. Stevenson's encouragement to this industry, as to the lock works, should entitle him to the good wishes of the electors on the 22nd, when their gratitude can be practically shown.

Here in the same block we have proof of two industries that have been established in Canada by the N.P. in spite of Mr. Patterson's assertion that he knows of no such cases. We did not make either our bridges or locks when Mr. Blake was in power, but imported them from abroad.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Political.—The Conservative party has everything in good order for the elections on the 22nd, and are confident that they will give Mr Burnham as large, if not a larger majority, than he got at the last election. Lakefield is especially interested in the return of Mr. Burnham to Parliament. He has worked in the past, and will work in the future to push on the Trent Valley Canal, which is a work of great importance to Lakefield as a village and to the workingmen and mechanics of Lakefield as individuals, as the continuation of the work, especially between this point and Peterborough, would rapidly increase the wealth and prosperity of this village and would give employment to workingmen and mechanics residing here. The work at Lovesick and Burleigh is so near completion that next fall we will probably see the fine boats that now ply between Fenelon Falls, Port Perry, Bobcaygeon and Lindsay, coming down the Katchewanook, which will naturally open up a large back country trade. It is to be hoped that the voters of this village with an eye to their own interests will give Mr. Burnham a larger majority on Tuesday than he got at the last election.

New Flour Mill.—The new flour mill will begin work this week, and Mr. McLean is to be congratulated on having a mill that is even more complete in every way than the one so unfortunately destroyed by fire last October.

Village Council.—A Council Meeting was held on Monday evening, Feb. 14th. The Reeve was in the chair and all the Councillors were present. It was moved by Councillor Watson, and seconded by Councillor Cox—That an order be drawn in favor of the Committee (Councillor Henderson and the Clerk) in full of the expenses incurred by the late George Hamblin as follows:—

Hospital	$28 50
Funeral	9 00
Mrs. Dunsford keep	4 00

T. J. Bird, Drugs	5 00
S. Sherin, agreement	50
Councillor Cox, expenses to Peterborough	75
Dr. Bell, attendance	4 00
Isaac Watson, grave	4 00

Moved by Councillor Henderson and seconded by Councillor Moore.—That an order be drawn on the Treasurer as per request of Mr. A. P. Pousette in favor of Mr. R. C. Strickland for $80 in full, of account for rent for Village Hall for the year 1886.—Carried. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—

A. P. Pousette, hall	$80 00
John Simpson, snow plowing	11 00
S. Sherin, postage	50
Isaac Watson, work on roads	51 30

Moved by Councillor Henderson, seconded by Councillor Moore.—That this Council take no action regarding Leahy's bill.—Carried. The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Reeve.

Concert.—On Friday evening a Concert was held in aid of the St. John's Sunday School organ fund. Considering the stormy weather that prevailed there was a very good attendance. A capeal programme was presented and thoroughly enjoyed by an appreciative audience.

Curling.—On Tuesday two rinks from the Peterborough Curlers played two of the Lakefield rinks with the following results.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Political Meeting.—On Friday last, the 11th, Mr. Burnham, the candidate for East Peterborough, addressed the electors of that part of Harvey residing near Nogey's Creek. Sir R. Cartwright's manner of addressing was so irritable and sarcastic as to sour the pure milk of political government; and Mr. Burnham's free and honest statements were welcomed with as much avidity as a sugar-lump is swallowed by an urchin. The night was very stormy, however there was a large attendance. Mr. Burnham discussed the political matters of the day so tersely and emphatically as to call the deserved applause of all the electors present. He dwelt principly on the National Policy and the Northwest rebellion. In the former he stated that he firmly believed that the maintenance of the N. P. would build up the industry of the Eastern Provinces in a manufacturing point of view, and the Northwest would be enabled to become among the greatest of the agricultural regions; and in the latter he affirmed that it was wrong to judge Riel in the light of a patriot and a marytyr; he who was endeavoring to act merely as a mercenary expecting the Government to buy him out of the country. He showed fully the duplicity of Mr. Blake in his speeches through several parts of the Dominion, mentioning especially the cities of Quebec and our Province. Before retiring to his seat he denied the asertions made by his opponent that he was not acting fully in the interest of his constetuency. Although called home at times under pressing emergencies he ever devoted himself to the interests of those he represented, and he relieved the minds of a great many of the impressions made at Mr. Lang's meeting by stating that he did not receive the full sessional allowance but was docked $8 for every day absent.

MOVES INTO HIS NEW STORE ABOUT THE FIRST OF FEBRUARY NEXT.

The Store heretofore known as the Bon Marche, is being refitted and remoddeled on a Grand Scale, after the plan of a Clothing House in New York, which is the finest on the Continent, and from now until day of removal, I will sell OVERCOATS at the following MARVELLOUS REDUCTIONS:

$18.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $9.00
$12.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $8.00
$10.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $6.50
$8.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $5.75
$6.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $3.75

All our Overcoats must go before removing. Don't miss the chance. The goods are all marked in plain figures and it is an easy matter to see if we make the reduction. Or, if any person doubts the genuineness of this sale, let them bring some person along who bought an Overcoat from me one week ago, and see what I will sell one like it for now. Remember for two weeks only. Don't miss it. You cannot buy the cloth for the money.

Polling Day, February 22nd.

A New Candidate in the Field

HIS PLATFORM:

Gentlemen.—I have no desire to tamper with the votes of that noble army of our citizens who freely exercise the Franchise on behalf of their favorite polititical leaders. But in order to take a hand in the present political struggle for supremary between Grit and Tory I have decided to come out and offer such tempting

BRIBES TO THE ELECTORS

As cannot fail to place me at the head of the polls.

I would scorn, like all other candidates for parliamentary honors, to buy up votes, or do aught that might be construed as a violation of our Election laws. My object is a far more patriotic one, namely—that of making a CLEAN SWEEP of all my Winter Clothing and Tweeds before Election day.

Nor will the secrecy of the Ballot be infringed by asking purchasers whether they will vote for LeBRUN, COX, or STEVENSON. No, not by a home rule scuttle full! But every elector is expected to attend this exciting Political-Winter-Clothing Sale, and to hurrah for LeBRUN, so as to elect him by an overwhelming majority as the Workingman's Favourite Candidate.

PLEADING FOR SODOM.

NOTES ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

For Sunday, Feb. 20—Text of Lesson Gen. xviii, 23-33—Golden Text, Heb. iii, 2—Critical and Practical Notes by Samuel Ives Curtiss, Ph. D., D. D., of Chicago.

Introduction.—Lot in Sodom—We left Lot just outside of Sodom (Gen. xiii. 12). In due time he became a citizen of Sodom. As such his fortunes were linked with those of the city. Hence when the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah were overcome by Chedorlaomer and his allies, Lot was taken captive and all that he had. With rare generosity Abraham, who had heard of his nephew's misfortune, gathered together a small but trained force of 318 men, and at much personal risk rescued his nephew (v, 16), who had been so ungrateful. Lot's choice had thus proved to be a mistake from a worldly point of view. He returns to Sodom, and becomes still further involved in its destiny. Good men are often instrumental in transforming bad communities; but they are likely to have little power over the moral condition of a people if their ambition is to get rich.

At the time of the events described in this chapter Abraham was over 99 years of age (Gen. xvii, 1). God had appeared to him again, had promised him a numerous posterity, had given him a new name, Abraham, as a constant reminder of his promises, and the land of Canaan, and had suffered him to have a son, Ishmael, although he was not to be his heir (Gen. xvi, 15; xvi, 19-21), and had made a new covenant with him (Gen. xvii, 10).

Abraham's Guests.—In the chapter from which our lesson is taken, Abraham was favored with three heavenly visitors, one of whom seems to have been the Angel of Jehovah, who appeared as the Old Testament Redeemer at different times in the history of the patriarchs and of their descendants. While he spread a meal before them, they told him that the long promised son was to be born at the appointed time. After these joyful tidings his angelic guests looked toward Sodom. It was then that the Angel of Jehovah announced his purpose to Abraham to visit Sodom, and speaking after the manner of men, he proposed to see whether the character of the people corresponded to the report that had come to him. The two companions of Jehovah now turn to go toward Sodom, and Abraham is left alone with Jehovah, as his grandson, Jacob, was with the same person many years later (Gen. xxxii, 24, 30, revised version, margin; Hos. xii, 4).

No threat has yet been uttered against Sodom, but Abraham knows that the wicked city cannot endure an investigation. He makes no plea for Gomorrah, but his heart yearns for his nephew, who is living in

THE LESSON.

Abraham's Plea (v. 23).—He does not ask that the wicked should be spared. He does not intimate that they have not had a sufficient opportunity for repentance. His whole plea is in behalf of Lot and his family. To understand it we must remember that in Old Testament times men were not considered so much as individuals as they were with reference to the families and tribes with which they were connected, so that if a man were punished for his sin his whole family suffered with him. Abraham, therefore, felt that if Sodom were to be destroyed there would be no escape for Lot. Hence he asks Jehovah, Wilt thou destroy the righteous with the wicked?

Vs. 24-25. With these verses begins a plea which is without a parallel in the entire Scriptures. To appreciate it we must remember the truly Oriental character of the transaction. Abraham, with all his reverence, is here shown to be a genuine child of the east in asking for more favorable terms in connection with each petition. He begins by supposing that there are fifty righteous in the place, and begs that Sodom may be spared for their sakes. In this petition and those that follow he probably has in mind Lot and his household as righteous, for not only Abraham, but also his servants, were included in the covenant. It was not unreasonable for him to suppose that Lot, who must have been the possessor of a goodly number of servants, like himself, had a truly religious household of at least fifty persons.

The First Theodicy.—These verses may be considered as containing what the theologians might call the first theodicy, or the first attempt to justify the ways of God with men. It does not seem to occur to Abraham, however, to make any plea for the wicked that they should have another opportunity to repent. His sole petition is that the righteous shall not be as the wicked. That be far from the Lord. And then he raises the question, shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?

V. 26. Jehovah readily accedes to his prayer, and tells him that if he finds fifty righteous within the city he will spare all the place for their sakes. Nobody knows how much cities are indebted to Christianity for their peace and prosperity and how many judgments are averted from wicked places for the sake of God's people.

Vs. 27-32. Abraham becomes bold in his plea. Like an Oriental making a bargain, as we have remarked, he drops from point to point in his intercession until he reaches ten. He is all humility. He speaks of himself as dust and ashes in God's sight. In this he has the spirit of true prayer, for while at the beginning of his petitions he makes the grand argument that the Judge of all the earth should do right, yet he manifests submission to His will and is ready evidently to accept a denial of his request. God meets him graciously at each point and promises to grant each petition, even to the saving of Sodom if not more than ten righteous persons should be found in it.

The question may be raised, if God would have promised to save the city for the sake of five righteous persons. The sequel, however, shows that there were not even five (Gen. xix, 16).

This lesson is most instructive in the light it sheds on the presumption of our expressing an opinion as to the righteousness of God's government. There are many unbelievers who are ready to call God, as he is represented in the Old and New Testaments, a harsh, unfeeling tyrant. There is a great disposition in some quarters to try to justify the ways of God with men, by affirming that men who have had no opportunity to hear of Christ in this world may have such an opportunity in the next. They say, shall not the judge of all the earth do right? Therefore they say, we have reason to expect that those who have not heard of Christ before death will have the opportunity to hear of him between death and the final judgment.

Folly of justifying God's ways with men. The story of Abraham's intercession for Sodom shows how foolish it is for finite man to sit in judgment on the infinite God. It is clear that Abraham utterly misapprehended the case about Sodom. It was destroyed. Every right minded reader of its history would say that it deserved to be. But Abraham's prayer was answered, and not one righteous person was destroyed with the wicked. Nothing, therefore, is gained by trying to justify the ways of God with men, by trying to read into Scripture that which is not in it. When we have made God like one of ourselves the unbelieving do not care for him. The world has not much respect for a religion which does not treat every man like a poor lost sinner, who is only saved through God's infinite grace.

If we take the plain and obvious teaching of the Bible as to the future condition of those who die in their sins we need not doubt that when we pass from this world, where we know only in part, we shall say with all the redeemed: "True and righteous are thy judgments, O God."

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.

1. Christians cannot be instrumental in transforming communities unless they are truly consecrated to the service of Christ (Matt. v, 13).

2. The angel of Jehovah, who visited the patriarchs, was the Old Testament redeemer.

3. We should not attempt to justify the ways of God with men by deviating one hair's breadth from the obvious teaching of Scripture.

4. No prayer offered in faith is unanswered. God gives the best thing, although he may not grant the exact petition that is asked.

5. When we reach heaven, the things that have been dark to us here will become clear, and we shall see that the Judge of all the earth does right.—Sunday School World.

An Incident.

At the nomination in Madoc on Tuesday, Mr. Wood read the article in the Standard, accusing the manufacturers of the United States of sending to the Grit Central Committee, of Toronto, the sum of $150,000 to be used at the election now pending, and pointed to the significant fact that the deposit made in behalf of the Grit candidate was in American gold—a statement that not only brought down the house, but created no little sensation. That American gold should be used under the circumstances is significant.—Belleville Intelligencer.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Band Night.

The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance at the Charlotte Street Rink to-night.

St. Paul's Church.

A series of Evangelistic Services conducted by Mr. G. H. Marsh will be commenced in St. Paul's Church on Sabbath next. As Mr. Marsh is an evangelist who has been much blessed in his work it is hoped that many will make a point of attending these meetings.

Gold Headed Cane.

On Thursday evening Mr. Stevenson was presented with the handsome gold headed cane which the popular vote at the last carnival awarded him by a majority of 121. On the knob is inscribed the words, "James Stevenson, Peterborough." The engraver forgot to add "M.P."

Rally! Rally! Rally!

A special meeting of Mr. Stevenson's committees will be held this evening to complete the arrangements for polling day and for the transaction of other business. Let every one interested in the cause come and give his assistance. Rally! Rally! "Work" is now the motto of the hour.

Received this week at Turnbull's, a large shipment of Wool and Tapestry Carpets. All new patterns. Extra good value.

Lock Works' Ball.

The employees of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company's works held their second ball of this season in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday evening. The Fire Brigade Band orchestra were present and gove choice music. The attendance was large and happy.

Iron Bridges.

Mr. W. H. Law, of the Central Iron Bridge Works, has just returned from the West, where he has been on business connected with his establishment. The County Council of Kent has awarded him the contract for a bridge over the Thames river near Thamesville. It has one centre span of 164 feet and two spans of 64 feet each, the roadway being 16 feet wide. He has also secured the contract for an iron bridge of four spans of 90 feet each, with 16 foot roadway, and one 5 foot sidewalk, across the Bow River at the Hot Springs, Banff, N. W. T.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings in all the latest shades. His Clearing Sale of Spring Goods is now going on.

Big Time at Lindsay.

The bills are out announcing a big Salvation Army demonstration at Lindsay on Wednesday next. The bill reads thus: "Jail birds who have been spending 15 or 20 days in Lindsay jail for praying on the the streets will be released on Feb. 23rd, when a grand torchlight procession will leave the barracks at 7.15 p.m., headed by 15 or 20 officers from different parts of the division, with the jail birds. War chariot and brass band will march to the jail, where we will give our comrades a right royal welcome, thence through the principal streets of the town, when there will be speaking, singing and a general review of the troops. Inside the barracks at 8 p.m. Adjutant Bolton will lead a great welcome home meeting to Capt. Smith, Lieut. Wood, Cadet May, Jennie Menzies, Bob Lindsay and Happy Jack Rodgers, who will relate their experience in soul-saving while behind the bars." Reinforcements are expected from several stations in the division including Peterborough.

Organ Recital.

An organ recial was given in the George Street Methodist Church on Thursday evening. Dr. Davies, organist of St. Alban's Church, Ottawa, formerly of Toronto, again delighted the people of Peterborough with rendering a programme in his most finished style. In order that no member of the church, or any one else, might be kept away by prices it was decided that no admission fee be charged, each one giving what he pleased. The church was well filled. At eight o'clock Dr. Davies took his seat at the organ and rendered the following solos:—

Overture.....“Zampa”.....Herold
Pastorale—Op. 2.....Chas. E. Stephens
Finale to 3rd Symphony.....Mendelssohn
Bourree, from the Fire Music.....Handel

FIGHTING.

FRIDAY, Feb. 18.—J. Langford and A. Dobbin were charged with fighting in a public place. The case was adjourned for a week.

ASSAULT.

James Farley was charged with assaulting his wife. He was found guilty and committed to gaol for two months.

The Town's Insurance.

Negociations are still going on between the Fire, Water and Light Committee and the Underwriters Association in regard to the classific of the town's insurance rates. More information will be laid before the Council at its next meeting.

Jersey Mantle and Dress Cloths have been all the rage. The latest Turnbull is showing is Jersey Corsets. See them.

The Tankard Trophy.

The ownership of the Ontario Tankard for this year is at last decided. In the second draw, played in Toronto on Thursday, Paris defeated Orillia by 50 to 26, and St. Mary's the Toronto Caledonians by 37 to 34 a narrow shave. The final tie was then played off between the two veterans, Paris and St. Mary's, the former winning by only three shots, the score standing 41-38. The REVIEW made the prediction three weeks ago, when the preliminary draws had not yet been played, that the final saw off would be between St. Mary's and Paris. Talk about Wiggins and the weather after that!

WHENEVER you take your walk abroad visit Rowse's Trade Palace. Every department is teeming with novelties

Personal.

Mr. Geo. Brown, of Madoc, formerly of Peterborough, is in town.

Mr. T. Dunn took part in a concert held in Campbellford on Wednesday evening in aid of the Church of England of that place. At each appearance he was enthusiastically received, but on singing the magnificent sea song, "The Skipper," the audience were uproarious in their applause. A beautiful bouquet was thrown by one of his admirers, which trophy Mr. Dunn has brought back to town.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Brophy, and Mr. Harry Phelan, arrived in town this morning from Ottawa. They have been in Montreal during the Carnival week.

Mr. C. E. Sherin, of the St. Paul, Minn., Despatch, and formerly of Peterborough, is in town on a visit to his friends. Mr. Sherin has shown us a copy of the carnival number of the Despatch, and it is a creditable production, containing splendid illustrations of carnival events and cuts of public men and large buildings of the city, as well as reading matter descriptive of the city and literary matter. The illustrations are well conceived and admirably executed.

CARTWRIGHT.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SAW MILL.—Mr. J. Ball, formerly of Cavan, who has located in this township, has put up a saw mill, which works well. He intends building a bank barn, 70x40, and a house 24x34, during the coming summer. He will also have a boat in which to give his friends, who may wander that way, a treat.

NORWOOD.

OBITUARY.—We regret to have to chronicle the sudden death of Mr. Wm. H. Elliott, of Asphodel, on Thursday morning last. Deceased was in good health until the day previous to his death, when he was suddenly stricken down by that fell malady, heart disease. He was born it the County of Donegal, Ireland, in 1828. His parents afterwards emigrated to Canada, settling in the township of Smith in the County of Peterborough, where they resided for a number of years and then removed to the township of Asphodel. In this latter township deceased has resided continuously up to the time of his death. His remains were interred in the Norwood cemetery on Saturday, and the funeral procession was one of the largest ever seen in this section, being comprised of over 120 conveyances. We extend our sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives.—Register.

Manning's Resignation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The resignation of Secretary Manning is the talk of the city, though it was not unexpected. His health has been steadily breaking down under the strain of the Treasury, and his friends have been urging retirement on him for months. The President has accepted his resignation, and will send the nomination of his successor to Congress the present session, though the resignation does not take effect until April 1st. Mr. Manning, it is understood, will go to Europe for a year, and try to recover the mental tone, away altogether from the atmosphere of politics. The President is very much disappointed, as it was his ambition to preserve the unity of his administration throughout his term of office, and because he placed an unbounded trust in Mr. Manning. President Pierce alone of all the presidents kept his Cabinet intact through the four years of his administration. No hint as to Mr. Manning's successor has yet escaped.

In New Brunswick.

MONCTON, Feb. 17.—The Times asserts that Mr. N. F. Landry, the independent candidate in Gloucester, has withdrawn, and that Mr. Burns, therefore, goes in by acclamation. Mr. Landry is a brother of Mr. P. A. Landry, the late member and present Ministerial candidate in Kent, which fact tends to confirm the report. At the nominations Mr. Theriault, Hon. Mr. Costigan's opponent in Victoria, announced himself as an Independent, so that the Liberals have no candidates in four of the sixteen New Brunswick constituencies, viz., Kent, Gloucester, Kings and Victoria. This has greatly disheartened the party.

New Goods. Turnbull has just received a large shipment of Scotch and English Suitings and Trouserings. If you want a cheap and stylish suit try Turnbull's.

The Newfoundland Famine.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Mr. E. H. Outerbridge, of the firm of Narvey & Outerbridge, has received a despatch from St. John's, Nfld., denying the story of the famine there.

A Big Offer for Maud S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Turf, Field and Farm says that Mr. Joseph Harker, on behalf of a gentleman of great wealth, has offered Mr. Robert Bonner $100,000 for Maud S., but Mr. Bonner refused to sell.

A Righteous Law.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 17.—The Legislature passed a bill yesterday wiping out all acts discriminating against colored people. This legalizes the marriage of whites with blacks, and gives to colored people all the privileges enjoyed by whites.

Ice Fields and Icebergs.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 17.—The steamship Indiana, arrived yesterday, reports passing through immense fields of ice and icebergs for thirty miles last Thursday; in latitude 45 deg. 40 sec., longitude 48 deg 12 sec., two icebergs, each 1,500 feet long. The field extended as far north as the eye could reach.

Strike of Telegraph Messengers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—About 100 mutual district messengers in Wall and New streets struck this morning. The boys state that they cannot stand the fines levied on them by the managers, and assert that they will not go back until the system of fining is discontinued. The managers allege that the boys do not dnow what they struck for, and that each one gives a different reason for refusing to work.

Australian Steamship Line.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17.—Mr. Clare Spreckles, the sugar king of the Pacific coast, is in Washington for the purpose of obtaining a subsidy for his new Australian steamship line. Mr. Speckles says that the Canadian Government offered him a subsidy if he will start his vessels from Victoria direct to Australia, and he wants to know what the United States Government is willing to do.

A Significant Election.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 16.—The election of Mr. A. W. Ross, Conservative, by acclamation in Lisgar, which is composed of four Metis parishes, eight English and Scotch half-breed parishes, the balance being principally Ontario settlements, is significant that the attempts made to rouse the Metis against him proved an utter failure. Michel Dumais, a near relative of Riel, supported Mr. Ross, and the Grit candidate, feeling certain of defeat by a thousand majority, retired.

Cattle for Montreal.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 17.—Messrs. Curtis & Atkinson, the well known cattle men of Henrietta, state that they have a contract with a Montreal firm to deliver on June 1st six thousand head of female cattle from yearlings up to six year old, to cost $90,000. The purchasers will have to pay a duty of $6 per head on every animal crossing into the Dominion. This will make the cattle cost them on an average $21 a head. They have bought a herd for breeding purposes, and will cross with their own fine stock.

The President and the Actor.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17.—The President, Mrs. Cleveland and Miss Cleveland occupied a box last night at the National Theatre, Washington, when Mr. Wilson Barrett played "Hamlet." The English custom adopted in London theatres when the Prince of Wales and suit attend, was imitated by Mr. Barrett sending the President, Mrs. Cleveland and Miss Cleveland handsome boquets. Special programmes were issued for the Presidential party, printed on satin and trimmed with lace. The theatre was crowded.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

OUR WOOLLEN MILLS.

MR. COX AND HIS LEADERS PROPOSE CHANGES THAT WOULD CLOSE OUR MILLS.

Importance of the Interest—Threatened Loss to Peterborough—Statistics of the Trade, and Interesting Correspondence.

The statements made by Mr. Cox to Mr. Matthews as to his proposed course in relation to our woollen factories have excited much public interest, or it would be more accurate to say, much public alarm. The declarations of Mr. Kendry, Mr. Brodie and other woollen manufacturers that such changes in the tariff would close their factories has spread the excitement from the operatives, who know the facts connected with this question, to the general community, who, not being so well acquainted with the details and bearings of the matter, are startled at the idea thrust upon them that the most important industry of our town is in danger of destruction. There are few among us who would not if our woollen factories were closed.

SUFFER LOSS

A writer under the guise of a correspondent of the Examiner makes a very feeble effort to show that Mr. Cox's platform is not threatening to our woollen mills. "A Voter," for he does not venture to sign his name, evidently knows nothing of the woollen business, nothing of Mr. Blake's want of stability and nothing of the gentlemen connected with our woollen factories, whom he coarsly abuses. These gentlemen are too well known and respected for such attacks to injure them in the eyes of the public. They have no need to buldoze or even to solicit their employees, who are well aware that if a policy were adopted that must be ruinous to the industry, and they need no inducement to protect their own interests. The reduction of duties proposed by Mr. Cox would mean ruin to the industry. What may be Mr. Blake's present tariff policy we are not aware, for it varies at least weekly. His "honor" is no sufficient safeguard even if he were to adhere to his determination "Not to disturb the present tariff to the detriment of any existing or prospective manufacturing interest," for Mr. Blake has shown that he does not understand what is detrimental to such industries.

THEIR EMPLOYMENT IS AT STAKE,

As to Sir John Macdonald's promise in 1882 that the retention of the National Policy would induce capitalists to invest it has been fully carried out, our own town sharing in the benefit, but the sneer at it shows how far from genuine is the pretended conversion of these new admirers (at election time) of the N. P.

But to return to the statements of Mr. Cox, in his dishonest system of canvassing, which seems to consist in promising protection for the business of the particular elector he is soliciting, and free trade in everything else, with the necessary changes to suit each case. The 35 or 40 per cent. profit that he attributes to the woollen manufacturer is a most dishonest exaggeration. We challenge him to point out the woollen factory making a fourth of that profit on the capital invested. Eight per cent., we learn on excellent authority, would be an exceptionally good dividend. But if 35 or 40 per cent. is now made, as Mr. Cox states, on money invested in woollen factories, so that a "substantial reduction" of the duty is called for, we would like to know how he explains in this business. If there is such an enormous profit, and room for such a substantial reduction, we would like to know what induced Mr. Cox to sacrifice his stock in the Auburn Woollen Company at a loss even worse than the paltry 22½ per cent. at which he got the creditors of the Midland to settle their claims against the Company of which he was President, and when with strange forgetfulness he though the rather dirty profit was his own, not the Company's, and so pocketed it.

Mr. Cox says that he doesn't profess to be a woollen manufacturer, and, therefore, should not be blamed for the want of success of the Auburn Mills. We think that Mr. Cox is too modest, that he did fairly well when he was at the head of that enterprise, and that the main reason of want of success was that the tariff then in operation was to prevent the ruinous competition of shoddy and other cheap foreign goods. Of course we are ready to grant Mr. Cox's claim that he would not designedly ruin our woollen mills, but we believe that his confessed ignorance of the manufacture of woollens prevents him from seeing the mischief that must infallibly result from his "substantial reduction" of the duties, or from the reduction, not stated to be substantial, that Mr. Blake avows to be his policy. The present duties on the classes of woollen goods that we are none to high to prevent the importation of shoddy goods, cheap foreign materials or surplus stocks sent here to be slaughtered in order to relieve a glut abroad. It would not require a "substantial" reduction, for a very slight reduction would expose our woollen manufacturers to this unfair competition. Even if such importations only took place occasionally at unforseen junctures such uncertainty in their operations would destroy the business of our manufacturers. A steady influx of foreign goods, low priced and cheap to the eye though really dear on account of their inferior quality, would bring about a disastrous result still more speedily. Deprived of the home market our woollen factories would be closed, capital would be withdrawn from them at a sacrifice, and the operatives would find themselves and therefore forced to leave with their families. Nor would the injury be confined to the industry itself. Landlords would find there houses left empty. storekeepers would miss regular customers with their ready money on pay day; there are few in our community who would not feel directly or indirectly the effect of the

MANUFACTURE IN PETERBOROUGH

THROWN OUT OF EMPLOYMENT

of so large an amount of money. The farmers would not be exempt from loss, for they would not only lose the profit of supplying this large body of operatives with food, but they would find a reduction in the value of their wool, a large quantity of which is used by some of our woollen mills.

When all this evil had been wrought it would be a poor consolation to be told by Mr. Cox that he did not do it wilfully, but that it was owing to his ignorance of woollen manufacturing and the conditions requisite for its success. Neither would it undo the evil if Mr. Cox could tell us that it was not his fault, for that he had been converted from his folly in wishing to deprive this industry of protection, but that he had failed to induce Messrs. Blake, Richard Cartwright, Mills, Jones, etc., to modify their ruinous policy on this point.

And amid all this devastation there would not even be any mitigation in the reflection that the purchasers of cheap woollens were obtaining any benefit. They would then have to a lower one, it is true, but they pay none now. The imported goods would be no cheaper, for the internal competition has lowered prices even below those of the days before the N. P. It would be fortunate indeed if the foreign manufacturer did not raise his price, as soon as he had closed our factories.

In the whole of our tariff there is not a duty the effect of tampering with which would be so injurious to the prosperity of Peterborough as the duties on woollen goods. Yet this is the one duty that Mr. Cox seems to select for a "SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTION,"

in his ignorance of woollen manufacturing. And it so happens that it is one of the few duties that Mr. Blake declares his intention of lowering if he obtains office.

It need only be briefly remarked that if Mr. Cox and his leaders would thus alter the tariff to the destruction of our woollen interest, there seems little reason for confidence that any other particular industry would be safe from such ruinous meddling. We believe, however, that there is one industry as to which Mr. Cox has no objection to protection. We have not heard that he has anywhere advocated the repeal or even a reduction of the DUTY ON STOVES.

But he does advocate the repeal or reduction of the duty on iron, the material of which stoves are made, though the iron not being a raw material such a step would destroy all hope of utilizing the fine and abundant iron ores of this country by manufacturing here. Either Mr. Cox knows more about manufacturing stoves than manufacturing woollens, or self interest has opened his eyes to the advantages of protection in some cases. We want to see our stove works protected—we hope to see them flourishing, but after all it is vastly more important to Peterborough that its flourishing woollen industry should not be deprived of protection.

To give an idea of the loss our community would sustain if our woollen mills were closed we will give

A FEW FIGURES:—

The number of operatives employed in our woollen factories are over 240, forming with their families the population of a fair village.

This is independent of large numbers receiving employment in making packing cases, carriage of goods and in an infinity of other ways.

The wages of our woollen mills is over $80,00 a year within the factories, and a considerable sum paid for outside work. Buildings and repairs caused last year a local expenditure of at least $4,000, and this was not out of the way.

It would be difficult to estimate the extent to which the subtraction from circulation of such an amount of money, paid in cash fortnightly, in our town would be felt. Such a sum as these wages amount to would not only benefit the operatives receiving it or those with whom they spend it, but the money permeates through various channels with very general advantage. And the caused by the withdrawal of so large a number of persons would be serious. Our town treasury would suffer no inconsiderable loss of taxes, and it must be remembered that the remaining ratepayers would have to make up the deficiency among them.

It would be too heavy a price even for the honour of having Mr. Geo. A. Cox as member to run any risk of such disastrous results from his ignorance of woollen manufacturing, and from his desire to delude the "poor man" with the false idea that cheaper clothing would be the result of his proposed "substantial reduction" of the duties on woollen goods. His argument that our public expenditure requires and compels the main enance of high duties, affords no comfort, for a customs revenue is obtained not from goods which are excluded, but from those which are imported. To obtain a customs revenue from such woollen goods as we manufacture in Peterborough, the duty would have to be lowered till so as to pay duty. And then our own factories would have to close as before. The first sufferers would be the manufacturers and operatives, but the bad effect would spread through the whole community. This matter is thus brought home to every elector.

At the meeting on Friday night in the Opera House Mr. Cox made remarks on many charges that had been brought against him in the press and elsewhere. But he took care not to refer to the account of with regard to the duties on woollen goods, though far more important than many matters to which he referred. He could not repediate his own statement, nor could he explain it away so he had to leave it alone.

The following are the views of the operatives themselves:—

THE BRODIE MILLS.

We, the employees of the Brodie Woollen Mills, having seen a letter in the Examiner insinuating that attempts have been made to buldoze us, state that no attempt of any kind has been made to force us to vote for a particular candidate.

We do say though, that we will freely vote against the candidate and party who wish to deprive us of employment by favoring foreign manufacturers and workmen, as some of us saw enough of the effects of that policy during the time of the Mackenzie Government, when nearly every woollen mill in Canada was closed. As Mr. Cox favours going back to that policy, at any rate as far as our interests are concerned, we would ask fellow mechanics and workmen to help us to keep out foreign goods that would throw us out of employment.

PLAINLY REFUTED.

The gross attack upon Messrs. Kendry and Brodie in the pages of Mr. Cox's organ is thus squarely met by them:—

SIR,—We have to correct the statements made by Mr. Cox to Mr. Matthews and others in relation to the woollen trade.

His statement that there are profits of 35 to 40 per cent. are altogether untrue. On an average the woollen mills do not make 8 per cent., and some large concerns do not make 5 per cent., owing to the keen competition in the trade.

A substantial reduction in the duties on woollens means the closing of our mills and ruin.

Even a reduction of 5 per cent. would let in foreign goods to an extent that would swamp our markets.

Indeed, the duty now on such goods is only about 5 per cent. higher than in the time of the Mackenzie Government. This 5 per cent. enables Canadian mills to run, and have a share of the market.

Either Mr. Cox is grossly ignorant of the condition of the business or he is willfully deluding the electors.

As to bull-dozing we can treat such a charge with contempt. If were willing to imitate Mr. Cox in so acting it would be quite unnecessary, for the woollen operatives know to well what would be the result of the proposed change, have already suffered once.

A. W. BRODIE,
JAS. KENDRY.

MR. COX AND THE AUBURN MILLS.

In the Opera House Mr. Cox stated that to him was due the fact that the Auburn mills was increased from three to ten sets, as he had taken stock and persuaded others to do so after Mr. Paton's death. This is incorrect. The raising to a ten set mill was done by Paton & Moir before Mr. Paton's death. Afterwards Mr. Cox was one and not the foremost one of five Peterborough gentlemen to take $25,000, the balance of stock, about $100,000, being still held in Montreal. Mr. Cox shortly afterwards deserted the ship leaving it to the guidance of Mr. J. F. Dennistoun. Mr. Cox is not particular about claiming what is due to other men.

A DANGER SIGNAL.

A very suggestive sign of the danger of sending Mr. Cox to support Mr. Blake and Sir Richard Cartwright in their tariff policy comes to us from abroad. Nearly every paper we see from the for Mr. Blake's accession to power in the hope that he will give them our markets free or our fish free. The people of Canada want a Premier who will be favorable to Canadian interests not to those of our foreign rivals.

UNITED STATES IS PRAYING

If there were no other reasons, his gross exaggerations as to our woollen industry and his threat to support a policy that would infallibly ruin it are quite sufficient grounds for a refusal to send Mr. Cox as our representative to the Parliament of Canada.

Electors should bear in mind that the ballot in this election is ABSOLUTELY SECRET. It cannot be told how any man votes.

Just received at Turnbull's, an assortment of New Patterns in Cottonades and Shirtings. Warranted fast colors, and prices the lowest in the market.

WAGES IN 1878.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I beg to deny the truth of the statemade, as I am told by Mr. John Sawers in in the Opera House last night that I was the man who said Mr. Cox would pay working men 75 cents a day. I say this is false. I have said to working men that they should not want to see a repitition 1878 when under the Blake and Makenzie govertment men were working for 75cents a day and less, what every working knows to be a fact.

Yours,
WM. LASHER.

RENTS ON THE RACE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—If Mr. Cox claims he is doing so much for the town in encouraging industries how is it that being a partner in the Dickson Co. he did not try to get the paper mills here instead of putting the rent at such a figure that they had to go elsewhere. I learn that he has raised or is raising the rents on the Dickson raceway. One tenant says he connot afford to pay $250 a year more rent, so he will be driven out.

MR. COX FORGETS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Mr. Cox stated at his meeting last night that he advised the creditors of the Midland Railway to hold their claims and not take 22½ cents in the dollar, but he quite forgot to tell the electors that he pocketed the balance amounting to upwards of $100,000 and did not account to the company, for whom he was trustee, for one dollar of it. Nor did he think it worth while to inform his audience that his own report, published shortly afterwards, showed that at the time he offered the 22½ cents, the company was solvent and then able to pay 100 cents in the dollar.

ELECTOR.

Buried Like a Dog.

ST JOHN, N. B., Feb. 17.—A story, which is almost incredible, comes from Norton, King's Country. A few days ago John Alberton' the oldest man in New Brunswick, died in the parish of Norton, where pauper farming is in vogue. He was buried on the same day in a box which had not even shavings in it for the body to lie on. There was no burial service, and, in fact the man, who was one hundred and five years old, who had served under Lord Nelson, and was present at the battle of the Nile, who served also at Waterloo, under Wellington, was buried like a dog.

A REVENUE POLICY—In order to increase our revenue we are selling 25 cent Dress Goods at 15 cents. Come and see them at Rowse's Trade Palace.

The Daily Review.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1887.

HOOTING THEIR FRIEND.

THE Globe has been claiming Mr. Dupont, the Conservative member for Bagot as a supporter of Mr. Blake. Mr. Dupont since his election has been hooted, while addressing a public meeting in Hochelaga in favour of Mr. Desjardin, the Ministerial candidate, by an organized Reform mob, thus being exposed to the same insults as Sir H. Langevin and Sir A. Caron at Three Rivers. These organized attempts of the followers of Messrs. Blake and Laurier to suppress free discussion have become so common that their dastardly treatment of Mr. Dupont would call for little comment were it not that it shows the utter dishonesty of the Globe and the Globules in claiming him as a supporter of Mr. Blake. People do not usually organize mobs to hoot their own friends with the approval of their advocates on the same platform.

A POLITICAL CHIEF.

THE Reform press is in a terrible way because some Nova Scotia Conservatives have been calling Sir Charles Tupper their political chief. Well, Sir Charles Tupper has more than once clearly proved himself to be the political chief of Nova Scotia, and it appears that we are to have another manifestation of the same fact. But there has been no choice of Sir Charles Tupper as chief of the great Liberal Conservative party of the Dominion, for there is no vacancy in that position, which is filled with thorough satisfaction by Sir John Macdonald. We do not edge out our leaders in the ungrateful and paltry manner of the Reformers in regard to Mr. Mackenzie. Even when Sir John Macdonald experienced a reverse in 1873, he was not treated with such contumely by his party, and now he is thoroughly successful. There is no vacancy in the Conservative chieftainship to fill.

TWO OF A KIND.

ONE important question that no one seems to be able to solve definitely is where Mr. Blake stands exactly in regard to the National Policy.

We must admit that it is difficult to find a solution, owing to the studious caution and [illegible] utterances of Mr. Blake, the only [illegible] possible at present being that Mr. Blake is not a thorough convert, to say the least, and that uncertainty as to a fiscal policy is almost as prejudicial in deterring capital and checking enterprise as an adverse decision.

As an aid to our readers to understanding Mr. Blake's platform, we give them in juxta position the ideas of Mr. Blake and his would-be Finance Minister:—

I can assure you there is, in my belief, a general concurrence of sentiment between us, including Sir Richard Cartwright, whom I name only because our adversaries delight to represent him as holding other views —Hon. E. Blake, at Malvern, January, 22nd, 1887.

I consider the National Policy a tremendous blunder and mistake. I believe that the people have been injured by it.—Sir Richard Cartwright, at Weston, February 11th, 1887.

There is not much uncertainty as to the hostility thus expressed by the Reform leaders, and it must be remembered that Sir Richard Cartwright, even if not thus given the rein by his chief, would have more influence in framing a Reform tariff than Mr. Blake.

REFORM PRETENCES.

PREDICTING the result of the elections and making false claims of support is a favorite amusement of the Reform press just now. The Montreal Herald (bitterly Reform at present) has tried its hand. It said on Tuesday:—

"The nominations will take place in the town of Joliette, and as the county was redeemed in the last local elections by Mr. Bazinet, the Opposition candidate, the chances of Mr. Guilbault's re-election are slim. The Liberals and National Conservatives are working in harmony, and whether Dr. Beaupre or Mr. Niven be nominated, Mr. Guilbault will be beaten."

Mr. Guilbault was at first reported to be elected by acclamation, when he was at once claimed as a "Liberal." However, the facts prove the falsehood of this claim, as the Liberals really nominated a candidate of their own stripe against Mr. Guilbault. It was, however, only to prevent the election by acclamation and there is no fear of Mr. Guilbault's defeat.

The same is the case with Mr. Gaudet. When supposed to be elected by acclamation he was at once claimed by the organs of Messrs. Blake and Laurier as their supporter, but in fact he has been subjected to factious opposition by a Liberal nominee, for the sake of postponing the result.

The claims of the Reformers that Mr. Coursol, Mr. Dupont and Mr. Gigault will oppose the Macdonald Administration are equally unfounded. As to Mr. Mara and Mr. Ross, also elected by acclamation, they are as straight Ministerialists as Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Burnham.

TRENT VALLEY NAVIGATION.

WE had not intended to devote any space to the subject of the opening because the great body of our readers are already well informed in regard to it. But of the Trent Valley Navigation, the speakers at the recent Reform meeting in the Opera House had so much to say about it that it is expedient briefly to correct their mistatements.

We would gladly have seen the work progress more rapidly, and we did not hesitate to express very plainly our disapproval of the appropriation last year not being larger. For the REVIEW is not afraid to speak out, when it seems its duty to do so, regardless of who may be offended, not being like Mr. Cox, led by the nose wherever his leaders choose to take him, while uttering vague professions of independence.

But while we and others have desired more rapid progress, there is no ground for the false charge made by Reform speakers that the Government has merely trifled with the work, or the still falser assertion that it is only pushed on the eve of elections. Since the first contract was let there has been no cessation, but there has been continuous prosecution of construction. Nor is it correct to term insignificant the work, completed in construction. Those who have visited Burleigh Buckhorn and Fenelon Falls, know that the works there are very far indeed from insignificant. Neither are they without immediate results, for in a few months they will have opened to navigation the long stretch from Lakefield to Coboconck, and from Lakefield to Port Perry.

However much we may have felt dissatisfied with the Administration for not coming up to our desire, we feel that even on this point alone, if they were to be judged solely by it, they are far more worthy of support than the Reformers. Mr. Blake's hostility is not, as Mr. Cox pretends, only expressed in an anonymous letter in the REVIEW, for it is recorded in the volumes of Hansard. The Reform leaders have persistently opposed and belittled it. We cannot call to mind more than one Reform member who has given it cordial support. The Mackenzie Administration actually handed over the Trent Works to Mr. Mowat, whose avowed object was to destroy them in order that Mr. Ferris and certain of his constituents might thereby recover some drowned lands, for which they had received compensation, but they thought it would be a good speculation to get the pay and the land too. The record of the Reformers as to the Trent Valley Canal is not such as to induce its friends to support them.

We would gladly have seen—we would still gladly see the Dominion Government add to its capital account the amount necessary for opening the whole extent of the Trent Valley Navigation. But what a howl as to extravagance would have gone up from the Reformers if such a thing had been done. Why on every platform they denounce the appropriations for aid to railways, though there was not one grant that did not receive the support of many Reform members. Such factious opposition throws obstacles in the way of improvements by the Government.

The Macdonald Administration has given two proofs of its continued interest in this important work. They have placed in charge of its construction Mr. Starke, one of the foremost of their engineering staff, and who is well known to be a strong advocate of the canal and thoroughly acquainted with all concerning it as he showed by his able report after he had surveyed it and estimated its cost. Such an officer would not have been placed in charge if the intention had been to trifle with it.

Sir John Macdonald has also recently assured several Peterborough gentlemen that the work now in hand being nearly completed, he will this year place under contract a new section between Peterborough and Lakefield. This will give continuous navigation from below Hastings to Coboconk and Port Perry, to the great benefit of an enormous tract of fertile country, and a valuable improvement even if it stood alone.

Another good augury for the T. V. C. is the return of Sir Charles Tupper to the Cabinet, for he is a warm friend of the project, and will not consent to see it neglected. Altogether, we have good reason for feeling confidence in the future of the Trent Valley Navigation with the Macdonald Administration in power.

PERSONAL CLAIMS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—With his usual characteristic self-aggrandisement and impertinent dictatorial utterances, the great Cox (there is only one in the Town of Peterborough) would have the intelligent electors of this Riding believe that they owe him the title of M. P. If these initials were intended to stand for "My Pocket" it would be far more fitting than their real sense, but it is quite well enough known that this individual is quite able to look after his own pocket without the assistance of those who at this time have such an important duty to perform to their country at large, and it behooves every voter to take a broad view of the issues at stake. Peterborough is naturally as much a manufacturing centre as it is an agricultural one, and should be well guarded against the slightest chance of a set back, which would undoubtedly follow in common with the country at large, should the reins be placed in the hands of such men as Blake, Cartwright & Co., in whom they have in Mr. Cox a blind and ardent follower. Every voter should bear well in mind who are the real founders and keepers of the only policy suited to our young and growing country and particularly the present important period in her history, and the absolute necessity of maintaining in power those who have so many real claims for the present healthy and developing condition of our Dominion and have proved beyond a doubt that they understand her welfare, and not a low themselves to be bulldozed or coerced by such absurd claims as Mr. Cox sets forth why he should represent one of the most important ridings in Ontario. We could partially excuse Mr. Cox's attempt at personal claims, had he any grounds upon which to base them, for party claims he has none to bring forth. But what really are his personal claim? Your own late articles and those of your correspondents have fully set forth those of the manufacturing interests and we would venture to say that whatever he has done in this respect he owes to the National Policy that has made it possible for such capital investments to be profitable in this country. Possibly now that he is so much interested in a "Loan Company" he would like to have the country impoverished as it was during 1873-8 so that mortgages and high interest would be the order of the day. Such a greed is evidently not beyond a man of Mr. Cox's calibre, as the history of the Midland Railway floating debt, etc., is a fair example. It is true a great many residences have been erected in his name (the euphonious Coxtown) in the town of Peterborough during the last few years, dating from the birth of the N.P., and that they are thoroughly under his control as far as rents are concerned: but has this been any advantage to those who live in them and have to pay just such rates as can be manipulated by a man like Mr. Cox? We think not, and no doubt voice the sentiments of a few voters of the town. It is well known who are the reasonable and liberal landlords of the town, and this is an important consideration for all rent payers in the town of Peterborough, if personal claims are to be rewarded and are to form a "plank" in this Riding. It is not the Town of Peterborough so much as "Geo. A." that enters into the financial calculations of that person; apropos—the exemption of taxes of the Dickson Co.'s property. Why did Mr. Cox not seek the civic chair again? Was it because he could not carry an illegal by-law, and knew that on these grounds alone he would be defeated? His hands forgot their cunning sadly in this case, and the cloven foot did make its appearance that time; and is this the kind of man to place the interests of this Riding in the hands of!! Electors, can you see any PERSONAL CLAIMS in this? Too much, we think.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

PROTECTION — Everybody believes in the Protection that Blankets, Comforters and Flannels afford. They are sold very cheap at Rowse's Trade Palace.

BUY NOW FOR NEXT WINTER!

GOUGH

MOVES INTO HIS NEW STORE ABOUT THE FIRST OF FEBRUARY NEXT.

The Store heretofore known as the Bon Marche, is being refitted and remoddeled on a Grand Scale, after the plan of a Clothing House in New York, which is the finest on the Continent, and from now until day of removal, I will sell OVERCOATS at the following MARVELLOUS REDUCTIONS:

$18.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $9.00
$12.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $8.00
$10.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $6.50
$8.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $5.75
$6.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $3.75

All our Overcoats must go before removing. Don't miss the chance. The goods are all marked in plain figures and it is an easy matter to see if we make the reduction. Or, if any person doubts the genuineness of this sale, let them bring some person along who bought an Overcoat from me one week ago, and see what I will sell one like it for now. Remember for two weeks only. Don't miss it. You cannot buy the cloth for the money.

"HELLO! BROWN,

"What are you loooking so mad about this morning?"

"Well, Jones, I will just tell you: I bought a fine new tent from Turner, and one of my friends wanted to borrow it."

"And did you lend it?"

"I guess not; I told him to go to

J. J. TURNER,

Sail, Tent and Awning Maker, Peterborough who would rent him or sell him a good tent I will never lend my tents again."

"Good morning, Jones."

"Good morning, Brown."

CARRISTON'S GIFT.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Author of "Called Back," "Dark Days," "A Family Affair," etc.

To make matters worse and more dismal, the storm still raged outside. The wind moaned through the trees, but it had again changed, and I knew from the sound on the window panes that heavy rain had succeeded snow. As the big drops of water found their way down the large old-fashioned chimney, the fire hissed and spluttered like a spiteful vixen. Everything combined to deprive me of what dog's sleep I could by sheer persistency snatch.

I think I tried every position which an ordinary man, not an acrobat, is capable of adopting with the assistance of a common wooden chair. I even lay down on the hard flags. I actually tried the table. I propped up the upper half of my body against the corner walls of the room; but found no rest. At last I gave up all idea of sleeping, and fully aroused myself. I comforted myself by saying that my misery was only temporary—that the longest night must come to an end.

My companion had by now succumbed to fatigue, or to the combined effects of fatigue and gin-and-water. His head was hanging sideways, and he slept in a most uncomfortable attitude. I chuckled as I looked at him, feeling quite sure that if such a clod was capable of dreaming at all his dreams must be worse even than mine. I filled another pipe, poked the smoldering logs into a blaze, and sat almost nose and knees over the fire, finding some amusement in speculatings upon the condition of the churl before me, and thanking the Lord I was not like unto this man. Suddenly an idea flashed across me.

I had seen this fellow before. But when or where I could not remember. His features, as I looked at them with keener interest, seemed to grow more and more familiar to me. Where could I have met him? Somewhere or other, but where! I racked my brain to associate him with some scene, some event. Although he was but an ordinary countryman, such as one sees scores of in a day's ride, only differing from his kind on account of his unpleasant face, I felt sure we were old acquaintances. When he awoke for a moment and changed his strained attitude, my feeling grew stronger and stronger. Yet puzzle and puzzle as I would, I could not call to mind a former encounter; so at last I began to think the supposed recognition was pure fancy on my part.

Having smoked out several pipes, I thought that a cigar would be a slight break to the monotony of the night's proceedings. So I drew out my case and looked at its contents. Among the weeds was one of a lighter color than the others. As I took it out I said to myself, "Why, old Brand gave me that one when I was last at his house." Curiously enough that cigar was the missing link in the chain of my memory. As I held it in my hand I knew at once why my host's ugly face seemed familiar to me.

About a fortnight before, being in town, I had spent the evening with the doctor. He was not alone, and I was introduced to a tall, pale young man named Carriston. He was a pleasant, polite young fellow, although not much in my line. At first I judged him to be a would-be poet of the fashionable miserable school; but finding that he and Brand talked so much about art I eventually decided that he was one of the doctor's many artist friends. Art is a hobby he hacks about on grandly. (Mem. Brand's own attempts at pictures are simply atrocious!)

Just before I left, Carriston, the doctor's back being turned, asked me to step into another room. There he showed me the portrait of a man. It seemed very cleverly drawn, and I presumed he wanted me to criticise it.

"I am a precious bad judge," I said.

"I am not asking you to pass an opinion," said Carriston; "I want to beg a favor of you. I am almost ashamed to beg it on so short an acquaintance."

He seemed modest and not in want of money, so I encouraged him to proceed.

"I heard you say you were going into the country," he resumed. "I want to ask you if by any chance you should meet the original of that drawing, to telegraph at once to Dr. Brand."

"Whereabouts does he live?"

"I have no idea. If chance throws him in your way please do as I ask."

"Certainly I will," I said, seeing the young man made the request in solemn earnest.

He thanked me, and then gave me a small photograph of the picture. This photograph he begged me to keep in my pocketbook, so that I might refer to it in case I met the man he wanted. I put it there, went my way, and, am sorry to say, forgot all about it. Had it not been for the strange cigar in my case bringing back Carriston's unusual request to my mind, the probabilities are that I should not have thought again of the matter. Now, by a remarkable coincidence, I was spending the night with the very man who, so far as my memory served me, must have sat for the portrait shown me at Brand's house.

"I wonder what I did with the photo," I said. I turned out my letter-case. There it was, right enough! Shading it with one hand, I carefully compared it with the sleeper.

Not a doubt about it! So far as a photograph taken from a picture can go, it was the man himself. The same ragged beard, the same coarse features, the same surly look. Young Carriston was evidently a wonderful hand at knocking off a likeness. Moreover, in case I had felt any doubt on the matter, a printed note at the bottom of the photograph said that one joint was missing from a right-hand finger. Sure enough, my friend lacked that small portion of his misbegotten frame.

This discovery threw me into an ecstasy of delight. I laughed so loudly that I almost awoke the ruffian. I guessed I was going to take a glorious revenge for all the discomforts I had suffered. No one, I felt sure, could be looking for such a fellow as this to do any good to him. I was quite happy in the thought, and for the remainder of the night gloated over the idea of putting a spoke in the wheel of one who had been within an ace of causing my death. I resolved, the moment I got back to civilization, to send the desired intelligence to Brand, and hope for the best.

CHAPTER III.

The end of that wretched night came at last. When the welcome morning broke I found that a great change had taken place out of doors. The fierce snowstorm had been the farewell of the frost. The heavy rain that followed had filled the roads with slushy and rapidly-thawing snow. I managed to extort some sort of a breakfast from my host; then, having recompensed him according to my promise, not his deserts, started, as soon as I could, on the bare back of my unfortunate steed, for Midcombe, which place, after my night's experiences, seemed gifted with merits not its own.

I was surprised upon leaving the house to find it was of larger dimensions than, from the little I saw of it during the night, I had imagined. It was altogether a better class of residence than I had supposed. My surly friend accompanied me until he had placed me on the main road, where I could make no possible mistake. He was kind enough to promise to assist any one I might send out in getting the dogcart under way. Then, with a hearty wish on my part that I might never again meet with his like, we parted.

I found my way to Midcome without much trouble. I took off my things, had a wash, and, like a sensible man for once, went to bed. But I did not forget to send a boy straight off to the nearest telegraph station. My message to Brand was a brief one. It simply said: "Tell your friend I have found his man." This duty done, I dismissed all speculation as to the result from my mind, and settled down to make up arrears of sleep.

I was surprised at the reply received that same evening from Brand: "We shall be with you as soon as we can get down tomorrow. Meet us at station." From this it was clear that my friend was wanted particularly—all the better! I turned to the time table and found that, owing to change and delays, they could not get to C——, the nearest station to Midcombe, until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. I inquired about the crippled dog-cart. It had been brought in; so I left strict instructions that a shaft of some sort was to be rigged in time for me to drive over the next day and meet the doctor and his friend.

To be continued.

We do not sound a needless alarm when we tell you that a taint of scrofula is in your blood. Inherited or acquired, it is there, and Ayer's Sarsaparilla alone will effectually eradicate it.

Philosophical Tramp

A stupid-looking tramp knocked at one of the finest residences in Austin and was received by the lady of the house.

"What do you want?"

"Please'm, give me a dime to buy a glass of bread; 'scuse me, I mean a loaf of bread."

"I haven't got any money."

"Haven't got no money? Then, madam, modest as this cottage is, I would suggest your moving into a cheaper house; you are evidently living beyond your means. Economy is wealth. Economize in the way of clothes and house rent. Cut your expenses, and then, perhaps, some day you will have a dime to spare—a dime, madam, that may be the means of preventing a hungry and thirsty fellow mortal from committing suicide; or it may be a quarter—a coin of the value of 25 cents—that will upholster the dark clouds of the horizon of his despairing soul with a silver-plated lining and fill his stomach with bock-beer. Good day, fair lady."—Texas Siftings.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Possesses the greatest possible power to heal and control affections of the throat and lungs, with absolute safety for children or adults. The experience of years has proven it to be of inestimable value as a household medicine, and for professional use. Thousands of physicians and families testify to its great worth. Jas. E. Molling, Hilliard, Ohio, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twelve years, and have found that, as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throats, it

Is Unequaled.

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran Home," Luray, Va., writes: "I advertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am sure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the happiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous, and liable to terminate in Pneumonia. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. Being still very weak and sick, she began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which restored her to vigorous health."

SOME QUEER SAYINGS.

STRANGE WAYS THEY HAVE OF DIVERTING PUBLIC ATTENTION

From the Vital Issues of the Day—Mr. Cox's Careful Handling of the N. P. — What Woollen Manufacturers Think of His Platform.

A political meeting was held in Bradburn's Opera House on Friday evening. The place was well filled. The Hon. O. Mowat, Mr. Geo. A. Cox and Mr. John Bertram were the speakers.

Mr. J. H. Stratton, M. P. P., occupied the chair.

The Hon. O. MOWAT, on rising to address the audience, was received with cheers and applause. He commenced with an allusion to his being brought down from the bench to take the leadership of his party in Ontario. He thanked the people for sending him two supporters from Peterborough. Mr. Blezard was a good man and Mr. Stratton was a good man and a good speaker. He went on to say about the same of Messrs. Lang and Cox. He claimed that Mr. Blake was more patriotic than Sir John. Sir John was actually a harm to the people. He blamed Sir John for doing things for his own political advantage which he (the speaker) would not do, nor would Mr. Blake. The hon. gentleman said nothing about his gain of political advantage by gerrymandering Victoria, York, Simcoe and other places, and "fixing" Toronto. He claimed that Mr. Blake had a better plan of letting railway contracts. The Canadian Pacific Railway was a good railway, but if the Reformers had built it it would have cost less. He did not refer to the Fort Francis locks and Georgian Bay line contracts, where Reform bungling and jobbery cost the country hundreds of thousands of dollars without getting a penny's worth of value for it. Mr. Blake, continued the speaker, would do good to the country in spite of the Conservatives. (Hear, hear, from Dr. Kincaid.) He then discussed the Boundary Award, the Streams Bill, the License Question, and claimed that because he and Sir John had had differences Sir John was a public enemy. He launched forth into the "monstrous iniquities" of the bad Conservatives, but said not a word of how when the pure minded Reformers were in power the Hon. Mr. Anglin filled his wallet with $25,000 of the people's money in printing contracts, of how the Hon. Mr. Jones did likewise, of how they bought over newspapers at public expense and did countless other things which people would not expect those high moraled persons to do. And then the people are asked again to the put these men in power. Up till now the audience had listened patiently. But now the Hon. gentleman spoke of the "cries" by which the Conservatives hoped to gain power again, and mentioning the words "National Policy" there was a burst of applause which showed plainly that it was not "cry" but a vital issue. To the surprise of everybody Mr. Mowat blandly announced that Mr. Blake was not going to change the National Polity—this is the face of the Hon. A. Jones open declaration in Nova Scotia that the National Policy must go! this is the face of Sir Richard Cartwright's denouncement of it as a "great blunder! this even in the face of Mr. Blake's own statement that it needed "revision" in many ways! Mr. Mowat went on to repeat Mr. Blake's specious argument that the N. P. must stand on account of the large revenue now needed. Over and over again has it been proved, and they know it, that the revenue tariff brings in more revenue than a protective tariff, the difference being that the former lets in the goods and taxes them while the latter shuts them out. Mr. Blake on any such thin argument as that. Concluding Mr. Mowat said that the N. P. was a dead issue any way and the Conservatives had lost their usefulness if they ever had any.

CAN'T HOODWINK THE PEOPLE

Mr. Cox commenced with the usual statement that he would not be the slavish supporter of any party. He launched out into the Canadian Pacific scheme. The road had cost a large amount of money but it did not belong to the country. He referred to his being a member of the bogus Syndicate. He wanted to know why it was called a bogus Syndicate. Were not the leading men of the country in it? was not a large deposit made to ensure the fulfilling of the contract? Then why continued he with assumed earnestness, did the Government "throw away" $35,000,000. The ability of the Syndicate could not be questioned. Mr. Cox well knows that it was not the ability of the syndicate that was called into question and when he stands up there and never touches upon the real cause of why their offer was rejected his silence on that point shows that he himself knows it was a bogus offer. The contract was drawn up by Mr. Blake and that gentleman left it discretionery upon the Government whether the Syndicate should construct the most difficult part of the road If Mr. Blake had defeated the Government on it, he could simply have turned aroupd and said to Mr. Cox and the others "you needn't construct that part of the road" and the road would not have been running to-day.

THAT IS THE REASON WHY

Mr. Cox's syndicate is called the bogus syndicate, and though Mr. Cox knows this he dare not mention it when on a public platform. Mr. Cox went on to say that the Government had lost a large amount of money by not accepting their offer. (Hear, hear, from Dr. Kincaid). Mr. Cox then came to the most important part of his address. He gave his views on the National Policy, stating, as he did before, that he held it to be the duty of the Government to afford such protection to manufacturing industries as would enable them to sell their products at a price that would give them a substantial advantage over foreign goods. And who is to be the judge? An instance as to Mr. Cox's position has occurred which will show every mechanic, merchant and workingman what it really is. Mr. Cox a few days ago said the duty on woollens was too high, and he would vote to have those duties reduced. Mr. Brodie and Mr. Kendry say that what Mr. Cox proposes to do would simply mean ruin to themselves, and the throwing out of work a large number of persons who have profitable and steady employment at the Auburn and Brodie Mills. How does Mr. Cox hope to get mechanics and workingmen to vote for him on such a flimsy platform as he has chosen to stand on? What he asks the people to do is to simply make him—a man of no experience in manufacturing, as he admitted in his speech—to simply make him the judge of whether the duty on a certain article is too low or too high. Would it not be better for the electors to trust men who have experience, and in whose hands the maintenance of our industries is safe? An when Mr. Cox comes out distinctly and says that he will vote for a measure which will tend to kill the woollen industry, to suppose that he will do so with regard to other industries? He then went on to say that the Government of Sir John Macdonald had given us the National Policy and the Canadian Pacific Railway, but had not yet given us the Trent Valley Canal. He would blame the Government for building the Canadian Pacific Railway too fast, but would blame the Government for "piling up debt" and still would condemn it for not increasing it still more by the immediate construction of the Trent Valley Canal. The rest of his speech dealt with personal matters, the temperance question and other affairs. He condemned the REVIEW for introducing personalities, when his own organ was the first to introduce them. He condemned the REVIEW for "stabbing him in the dark" by permitting an anonymous letter to appear in print. If he had been fair he would have condemned his own organ for the deadly thrust a "charitable" correspondent of that sheet tried to give Mr. Stevenson, and that letter was signed anonymously. Mr. Cox charged that the editor of the REVIEW wrote the letter which appeared in the REVIEW.

IS IT NOT FAIR

Mr. TOKER said this was not true.

Mr. Cox said such letters should not be allowed. He concluded with an appeal foi the votes of those present.

Mr. BERTRAM was less virulent in his attack on the N. P. than usuul. But he went so far as to call the National Policy a misnomer.

The meeting closed in the usual way.

Campaign Notes.

—A ward meeting for No. 1 Ward will be held at Brault's Hotel, corner of Aylmer and King streets, on Monday evening. The meeting will be addressed by both English and French speakers.

—A rousing meeting of Mr. Stevenson,s committees was held in the Parlor Roller Rink last night. About two hundred active workers from the town were there.

—Another special meeting will be held to-night. Rally! Rally!

—The Reformers are going to Ennismore in full force to-night. They should leave Mr Bertram at home if they wish to accomplish anything.

—The betting men, whose only object is to make money by backing one side or the other, are betting two to one that Mr. Stevenson will be elected. Some have bet that Mr. Stevenson will have a hundred of a majority.

—A bet was made in Cobourg a few days ago that Blackstock would defeat Blake in West Durham by 200 of a majority.

—When Mr. Bertram rose to speak last night about half the audience left the hall.

—Encouraging reports come from all parts of the Riding. Hard work by Mr. Stevenson's supporters on Monday and Tuesday will ensure his triumphant return.

A Problem.

If it takes seven men at $1 25 a day to cut one cord of wood, how many men would it take at $5 a man to place Mr. Cox at the head of the poll?

RECIPROCITY.

A Comprehensive Measure Before Congress.

The following bill was introduced in the Lower House of Congress at Washington, by Representative Butterworth, with a view to complete reciprocity to trade between the two countries:—

Whereas, controveries have arisen and are now existing between the Government of the United States and the Government of the Dominion of Canada, growing out of the construction of treaties affecting fishing interests; and

Whereas, by reason of the contiguity of the two countries and the similarities of the interests and occupation of the people thereof, it is desired by the United States to remove all existing controversies, and all causes of controversy in the future, and to promote and encourage business and intercourse between the people of both countries, and to promote harmony between the two Governments, and to enable the citizens of each to trade with the citizens of the other without restriction, and irrespective of boundaries, as fully and freely as though there was no boundary line between the two countries.

Now, therefore, be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled:

Section 1. Whenever and as soon as the Government of the said Dominion of Canada shall by act of her Parliament permit all articles of trade and commerce of whatever name of nature, whether the product of the soil or the waters of the United States or manufatured articles, live stock of all kinds and its probucts, mineral or coal, the products of the mines of the United States, to enter the ports of the said Dominion of Canada free of duty, then all articles manufactured in Canada, and all products of the soil and waters, and all minerals and coal, the product of the mines of the said Dominion of Canada, and all other articles of every name and description produced in said Dominion of Canada, shall be permitted to enter the ports of the United States free of duty, it being the intention of this act to provide for absolute reciprocity of trade between the two countries as to all articles of whatever name or nature produced in the said countries respectively.

Section 2. When it shall be certified to the President of the United States by the proper officials of the Government of the said Dominion of Canada that the said last named Government by act of Parliament has authorized the admission into the ports of the said Government of all articles of trade and commerce produced in the United States free of duty, the President shall make proclamation thereof, and shall likewise proclaim that all articles produced in the said Dominion of Canada shall be admitted into all the ports of the United States free of duty so long as the said Dominion of Canada shall admit the products of the United States as herein provided for, into her ports free of duty.

Section 3.—The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, with the approval of the President of the United States in connection with the proper officials of the Government of the said Dominion of Canada to make rules and regulations for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, and to protect the said respective Governments against the importation of foreign goods through either into the other, and the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States shall furnish to the Custom officers of the United States such rules and regulations for the purpose of guiding them in the discharge of their duties in respect of the protection of each of the said Governments against improper importation of foreign goods as herein contemplated

GEORGE STETHEM.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1887.

IT was sad to hear Mr. Mowat repeat the falsehood of the Globe as to elections by acclamation. Five members claimed by them as opponents of the Government have announced themselves as supporters of the Macdonald Administration. Even if this were not so the news columns of the Globe itself placed these gentlemen as Conservatives till on this election by acclamation it was deemed advisably to claim them.

THE reports of contributions from the United States to the Campaign fund of Mr. Blake and his friends seem to have obtained credence on both sides of the St. Lawrence. As some evidence of this there is the fact that in more than one quarter where a Grit candidate has been put up, without a hope of success, and out of merely factious opposition the deposit has been paid in United States gold coin.

In Favor of Reciprocity.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 18.—The administration programme on the fishery question is puzzling the Republican Senators. A prominent Republican Senator said today: "I believe Mr. Bayard has changed front simply for the purpose of siding with Canada to obtain a reciprocity treaty. Mr. Bayard has the record of being in favor of reciprocity, and in favor also of settling the dispute by a commission. His sudden change in favor of a measure of fierce retaliation looks to me like part of a bold game. I think the administration wants to get the Manning Bill through, so the President next summer can close the ports against the Canadians and stop the trains. Such action would raise such a howl from the commercial interests that Mr. Bayard thinks a reciprocity treaty could be secured. Secretary Manning's letter accompanying the administration measure, certainly looks in that direction."

Supporters of Sir John.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Sir John Macdonald has received the following telegrams:—

"WINNIPEG, Feb. 16, 1887.—Regarding the Globe's classification of me, I am a strong supporter of your Government. I was elected as such, in face of strong opposition from the local Grit paper. I will continue to support the Government, thinking its policy much better for this country than that of the Opposition. (Signed) "A. W. Ross."

Mr. Mara telegraphs from Kamloops, under the date of the 16th inst, that he has been elected by acclamation, and that he hopes his seat in the House of Commons may be as near as possible to Sir John.

Tennessee Vigilantes.

UNION CITY, Tenn., Feb. 19.—The Law and Order Committee last night severely whipped one woman and three negro men. Elder Gaston, a barber and preacher, one of the men whipped, was seen to-day, and said he did not know what he had done to deserve the punishment; that this morning about one o'clock, on answering a knock at his door, he was confronted by 25 masked men, who gave him a sound whipping. All of the negroes say they asked the vigilantes what they were being whipped for. One says they told him he had stolen a hog; another that they thought his job of work too remunerative.

THE AUBURN MILLS.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—A statement having appeared in the columns of the Examiner (Reform sheet) of this town to the effect that the employees of the Auburn Woollen Mills were being bulldozed into voting for one particular candidate, to such gross insinuations, base subterfuge and low mean trickery, which is and has been the chief weapons of the Reform party throughout this whole campaign, we whose names are hereto subscribed wish to give an emphatic denial. We will further add that so far as being bulldozed into supporting Mr. Stevenson is concerned, there are none of us who have forgotten the period from 1873 to 1878, and, therefore, require not the slightest admonition to enable us to stear clear of anything having a tendency to return to those never-to be forgotten days of the Mackenzie Administration.

We not only give our unanimous support to the Government candidate, but also call on all fellow mechanics throughout the country to assist us in retaining in power a Government which has proved itself so true a friend to the working classes.

Let us not be deceived by the cry of alarm shouted from one end of the country to the other by the Reform press and telling you the country is being ruined. Remember the alarm sounded in 1873 and how we suffered from its consequences. Let the result of the 22nd teach the enemies of our industries a lesson not soon to be forgotten, that to Canadians and to them alone belong the market of Canada, and any attempt to deprive us of such shall only result in disaster.

THE DIFFERENCE.

To the Editor of the Review:

SIR,—The Reform candidate, speaking on Friday night, adverted to the relative value of his and Mr. Stevenson's votes in the Dominion House, attempting to induce his hearers to believe that in voting for him they were not injuring the cause of protection in Canada, as his vote would be cast in that direction and would be of equal value with his opponents. Referring to the statement that the Reform party was opposed to our National Policy, Mr. Cox said that "he would vote with Sir John and against Mr. Blake in any case in which he believed the interests of Canadian manufacturers were in danger," and asked what more Mr. Stevenson could do.

Now, supposing that through the election of Mr. Cox and others, who, like him, are endeavouring to make harbour under Conservative canvas, Mr. Blake and his colleagues are returned to power. Aside from the patent fact that Mr. Cox's belief as to what would endanger the manufacturing interests would be moulded under Sir Richard Cartwright's eye, and would be largely influenced if not unwisely governed by the more astute minds of his leaders, there are other considerations which the people will do well to keep in view. Would Mr. Cox or others of his stamp, Reformers, dare, should Mr. Blake's Ministry introduce a bill for a readjustment of the tariff, side with the Opposition and defeat the Government? Could he as a Reformer, in justice to his Reform constituents (many of whom are in favor of free trade) by his vote help turn out Mr. Blake and place the reins in Sir John's hands? Would not Mr. Cox rather submit to "alterations" than assist the "corrupt" government of Sir John into office?

But then in another and graver distinction between the influences exerted by the two votes. If, supporting Mr. Cox, we place the government in the hands of Mr. Blake and Sir Richard (between whom there is a substantial argument on these questions — Malvern speech of E.B.) we place them in a position to make Orders in Council, we place is possession a stronghold, from which they may tear the tariff limb from limb, independently of the statements of Geo. A. Cox, men whose opposition to the fundamental principles of Canadian protection is fully expressed in the leaders words when he says "I believe the principles of Free Trade are unimpeachable."

It is for those whose interests are involved to consider the distinction between the claims of the candidates. It is for them to consider whether they prefer to entrust their prosperity to the candidate whose views will be subject to and influenced by the unfriendly opinions of Sir Richard, or to that candidate whose present views will be subject only to the influence of the father of Canadian protection, and it is for them to decide from whom they wish orders in council to issue, from the acknowledged foes or the firm friends of the N. P.

Yours, etc.,
P. A. J.

POLICE COURT.

SWEARING.

MONDAY, Feb. 21.—Wm. Lefore was charged by P. C. McGinty with having used profane language in the public streets.

The defendent pleaded that it was only "a little swear," and on his promise of future good behaviour was let off.

PERJURY.

Peter Warner was charged with having committed perjury in the Lipsett assault case. The evidence given was about the same as was given in the case in question. Warner had sworn that he saw the row and was present on the occasion. Five witnesses swore that he wasn't there. The prisoner was committed for trial.

Just received at Turnbull's, an assortment of New Patterns in Cottonades and Shirtings. Warranted fast colors, and prices the lowest in the market.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S SILENCE.

The Reasons Why the German Emperor Did Not Issue a Manifesto.

PARIS, Feb. 18—The Republique Francaise, which is supposed to be inspired from the Berlin Embassy, gives official explanation, of the Emperor William's silence. These are as follows; First, a manifesto holding the fear of war would be considered by the powers and people of Europe as an unnecessary provocation to a conflict between France and Germany; second, a pacific manifesto, giving an impression that no chance of war was contemplated in official circles, would stop the panic which now is likely to frighten the German people into insisting on legislation suitable to the Emperor and Bismarck, and would seriously endanger the chance of the septennate bill, if not certainly defeat it; and, third, the Crown Prince persuaded the Emperor that any interference by him in the elections, which an Imperial manifesto could not avoid being in some measure, would compromise the Imperial dignity.

THE FISHERY PROBLEM.

Secretary Bayard's Change of Front Viewed as Favourable to Canada.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Administration programme on the fisheries question is puzzling the Republican senators. A prominent Republican senator said to-day:—"I believe Mr. Bayard has changed front simply for the surpose of siding with Canada to obtain a reciprocity treaty. Mr. Bayard has the record of being in favour of reciprocity, and in favour also of settling the dispute by commission. His sudden change in favour of a measure of fierce retaliation looks to me like part of a bold game. I think the Administration wants to get the Manning bill through, so that the President next summer can close our ports against Canadians and stop trains. Such action would raise such a howl from commercial interests that Mr Bayard thinks a reciprocity treaty could be secured. Secretary Manning's letter accompanying the Administaration measure certainly looks in that direction.

THE COAL DUTIES.

Boston and Montreal Prices the Same—Duty Plainly Paid by Coal Men.

It has been proved before that the protective duty on coal in Canada does not affect the cost to the consumer, that the American combination of mine owners suit their prices to the incidence of competition, and meet as far as they may the Canadian product in its own territory. Proof of this is in the following, quoted from the Boston Herald of the 2nd inst.:

In the coal trade there has been no advance in the retail price here. There is still a good deal of coal coming forward, in spite of all stories to the contrary. The Reading steamers are bringing as usual, while there is also coal coming from New York. The prices of coal at retail here are still about as follows for coal delivered to the domestic consumers:—

Burning egg and furnace	$6 50 to $6 75
Lehigh egg and furnace	6 00 to 6 25
White ash stove	6 50 to 7 00
Lehigh stove	6 75 to 7 00
Franklin stove	6 00 to 9 00

On the same day the same class of coal from the same mines, delivered under the same conditions, was quoted at Montreal as follows:—

Anthracite, stove	$6 50
Anthracite, chestnut	6 25
Anthracite, egg	6 00

Practically, it will be seen, the duty does not affect the price of this commodity as between Montreal and Boston. Though the latter is nearer the centre of production, and has open communication by water the year through, its people pay the same rates for domestic coal as those of Montreal, and as Montreal would do if the duty was taken off. But for all this the Nova Scotia miners are to be punished—because they have opposed the Liberals.—Montreal Gazette.

BLAIRTON.

POLITICAL MEETING.—A meeting, called in the interest of Mr. Lang, the Reform candidate, was held here on Saturday night There was a large attendance, and each of the speakers received a good hearing. Mr. John Brown, Reeve of Belmont, was called to the chair. Mr. Lang spoke first, and was followed by Mr. Armstrong, on the Conservative side. Mr. J. B. McWilliams was the last speaker, and repeated the statements he made at the nomination in Norwood, but varied his speech by making a labored effort to show the Orangemen that Sir John Macdonald had betrayed them. That part of his speech had as little effect as the rest. A resolution was moved and carried unanimously pledging those present to support Mr. Burnham and calling on all patriotic voters to do the same. A vote of thanks was tendered to the chairman, and in acknowledging the vote he said that he would still stand by the National Policy and support the Conservatives, who introduced that policy and still upheld it. The meeting closed with cheers for the Queen, Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Burnham.

Trains Blown from the Track.

DENVER, Feb. 18.—A windstorm yesterday unroofed many buildings and caused much other damage in the city. On the Denver and Rio Grande railwaw, four miles north of Colorado Springs, every coach on the north bound Salt Lake express, consisting of two sleepers, two passenger coaches, and a baggage and mail car, were blown from the track at 3 o'clock yesterday. The mail car with its contents was burned. Fortunately the ground was level and no one was injured. A passenger train of three coaches on the Denver and South Park road was lifted from the track and hurled down to the foot of the embankment, when about two miles from the city. One passenger had his leg broken and several were badly bruised. Near Coma, on the same road, the Leadville express was blown over a bridge, and nearly all the passengers and train men severely wounded. The coaches were badly wrecked.

Jersey Mantle and Dress Cloths have been all the rage. The latest Turnbull is showing is Jersey Corsets. See them.

CARDINALS RECEIVED.

ROME, Feb. 19.—In his audience with Cardinal Gibbons, the Pope said:—"You are indeed happy. The American Catholic Church enjoys the greatest civil freedom. Her bishops have no other work than to live like shepherds, guiding and tending their flocks." In his interview with Cardinal Taschereau the Pope was quite effusive about England and her colonies.

STRIKERS THREATEN DYNAMITE.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—At a mass meeting of striking Lanark miners yesterday, it was resolved to continue the strike till the advance asked for is conceded. The secretary of the meeting, one Small, in a most violent speech, condemned the action of the police. He said that dynamite was abroad, and that before long the Scottish miners would raise such a revolution as has never been seen in Scotland. Michael Davitt has arranged to come to Scotland to conduct a meeting in the strikers behalf.

FOUNDERING OF A STEAMER.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Russian mail steamer Czaritza, from Constantinople for Alexandria, has founded off Syria. No details received.

THE BARBAVILLA MURDERS.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—In the House of Commons, last night, Mr. Tuite (Nationalist) moved an amendment to enquire into the unjust conviction in the case of the Barbavilla murders. Mr. MacDonald, in supporting the amendment, contended that the conviction was obtained by jury-packing. The amendment was negatived without a division, and the motion to report address was adopted.

EVICTIONS AND STONING.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—A number of tenants were evicted yesterday at O'Keough, near Carrick. The peasants stoned the police, and the latter charged the mob. A youth was badly injured with a rifle. The priest vainly interceded to stop the evictions. A girl defended her mother's cottage for twenty minutes.

FRANCE IN THE NEW HEBRIDES.

BRISBAN, Australia, Feb. 19.—The schooner Helena, from the New Hebrides, reports that the French were constructing their forts, increasing the number of troops, and building new barracks at Port Sandwich.

PLENTY OF FIRE ARMS.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—The Government acting on information that the people of Countries Clare and Limerick have a plentiful supply of firearms have ordered the mounting and manning of artillery in all the forts on the Shannon, some of which have not been occupied for years.

THE TRAVERSERS' FUND.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—Archbishop Walsh of Dublin has donated £10 to the Traversers' indemnity fund. In a letter accompanying the donation, he expresses his sympathy for the Traversers, who, he says, are not getting a fair trial by jury-packing.

THE BAKER OUTRAGE AT TONGA.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 19.—Tonga officials accuse many Wesleyan native students on that island of being implicated in the Baker outrage, and of plotting the murder of the king, with the object of making his nephew chief.

BLOCKING DILLWYN'S MOTION.

LONDON, February 19.—In the House of Commons last night, Mr. Gedge, Conservative, gave notice of a motion which had the effect of blocking Mr. Dillwyn's motion regarding jury packing in Ireland.

A RIOT.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—There was a riot in Zaarburg, Lorraine, last evening. A crowd of youths paraded the streets, singing "The Marseillaise" and a conflict arose, in which a constable was killed.

ELECTION CIRCULARS.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Prussian Provincial Governors have issued a circular, advising officials of the unusual importance of the coming elections for the Reichstag, and urging them to refrain from doing anything that would assist the opponents of the Government. The ministries of other German states have adopted a similar course.

A LIBERAL-UNION CLUB.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Sixty Unionist members of parliament held a meeting at London yesterday, and formed an association on the plan of the Eighty Club. The new body is called "The Liberal Union." Letters were received from Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain, approving of the object of the meeting.

MINERS' STRIKE.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The masters have offered to confer with the striking miners in Northumberland on condition that the latter resume work. Fourteen thousand men are on strike.

CONSPIRATORS EXECUTED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 19.—Two naval officers, recently arrested for conspiracy against the Government, have been executed. The prince who attempted to commit suicide, having been arrested with the other students of the military school in connection with the conspiracy, is not dead, but lies in a precarious condition at Lauren, where 750 prisoners are confined. Several serious riots occurred here yesterday, but were suppressed by the military.

AN INVENTION.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The National League Committee of Lubeck sent to Prince Bismarck a copy of a placard posted on the walls of that city by the Progressists, quoting from the pretended manifesto of the Emperor, a statement that there was no war impending. Prince Bismarck immediately telegraphed a reply, which was placarded throughout Lubeck, stating that the alleged declaration of the Emperor was an absolute invention.

PREPARATIONS CONTINUING.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Advices from Metz report that there is no cessation of the French barrack-making around Verdun and Belfort, and that the work on the fortifications at Verdun continues night and day. All commerce has been suspended at Metz, excepting in food. The inhabitants are storing their houses from cellar to garret.

A NIHILIST CIRCULAR.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—A circular issued in the name of the editor of the Will of the People — a Nihilist journal published in Russia, but whose exact place of publication is unknown—has been extensively distributed in Berlin. The circular, which is believed to have been issued from Paris, appeals to "our dear European brethren," an concludes as follows:—"Existing circumstances permit no delay. Upon the next publication of the Will of the People may depend the whole course of the revolution in Germany."

THE TRIAL.

DUBLIN, Feb. 19.—In the trial of the traversers, yesterday, witnesses were examined with reference to the reporting of the defendant's speeches. In some instances it was admitted that the notes of the speeches had been amplified from memory and from newspaper accounts. Dillon was absent; the other defendants appeared in court at intervals.

A COUNCIL OF WAR.

VIENNA, Feb. 19.—The Emperor presided yesterday at a council of war. Archdukes Albrecht and Wilhelm, Count Bylandt, Genervi Von Beck, the Prince of Croy, and Barons Salins and Popp were present.

DEATH OF A NOTED SINGER.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Signo Frederick Lablanche, the tenor, is dead, aged 72. A generation ago he sang with Mario, Grisi, Favanti and others. He was a favorite in Jenny Lind's support. During the last 20 years he has rarely appeared in public. He was the son of the famous singer Lablanche.

WHAT HIS LOAD WAS.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A German sergeant while driving a waggon into Metz refused to submit to the octroi inspection. The altercation attracted a crowd of inspectors, who forcibly removed the cover and found a waggon load of French dragoon helmets.

HORSES FOR THE ENGLISH ARMY.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Col. Goldie sailed for Halifax by the Circassian on Friday. His mission from the Home Government is creating a good deal of attention. It is stated he has been commissioned to buy 500 horses in the Dominion during the present year, and in future years to make further purchases. A question will be put to the Secretary of War in the House of Commons to-morrow with the object of ascertaining whether it would not be desirable to confine the purchases to England.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Public attention is totally absorbed in Monday's elections. The German Liberals have ninety-nine candidates in the field, and expect to elect sixty-five, their previous number, but this is rather doubtful, since some hitherto faithful districts are certainly lost, while it is unknown whether new ones can be gained in sufficient number to make good the losses. The Government has published a new anonymous pamphlet, in the easily recognized style, entitled "Bismarck and his enemies."

LONDON, Feb. 20.—On the issue of the German elections hangs the peace of Europe to-day; that is, if a majority is not elected favoring Prince Bismark's Septennate bill in the Reichstag, war is certain in April. In event of a majority of Prince Bismark's side war will be postponed. If not avoided. The prospects are that the Chancellor will carry the day and have a majority of forty-three. Such are the advices from Berlin this evening.

FIFTY-TWO MEN ENTOMBED.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—An explosion occurred in the Catch colliery, in Rhondda valley. There are 53 men entombed in the mine. Their cries can be heard at the mouth of the shaft, and it is hoped the men will be saved. The mouth of the pit is surrounded by relatives of the miners, and the scene is heartrendering. Twenty-nine persons have been rescued unhurt, eight others have been taken out injured. Sixteen yet remain in the pit. It is reported six are dead.

MADAME ALBANI.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Madame Albani has contracted to make a three months' tour of Germany, Austria and Sweden during 1888.

BURNLEY ELECTION.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Mr. Slagg (Gladstonian) was yesterday elected member of Parliament for Burnley. The vote stood: Slagg, 5,026; Thursby (Conservative) 4,481. At the last election Mr. Peter Rylands (Liberal-Unionist) was elected.

A SOCIALISTIC REBELLION.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Mr. Hyndman and others of the Socialistic party here are convinced that in case of war there will be a Socialist rebellion in Germany, and possibly one also in the iron manufacturing region of France, as a protest against the mutual slaughter of the Gallic and Teutonic Democracies.

GLADSTONE'S ADVICE.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Mr. Gladstone, addressing a crowd at the Semmain Mawr (Wales) station yesterday, urged that the Welsh demand a settlement of the Irish question, in order to secure attention for her own concerns.

Steam to Australia.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—On the authority of a gentlemen who is likely to know, a decisive step is about to be taken by the Canadian Pacific railway, with the view of establishing the Canadian Trans-Pacific line of steamships. Mr. Lucius Tuttle, the passenger and traffice manager, has made several visits to New York recently with the object of purchasing a number of steamships for the preposed service between British Columbia and Australia. My informant says that through Mr. Tuttle the purchase of three of the fastest steamers of the Cunard line is just about consummated, and the necessary papers will be signed in a few days. The steamships will go via Cape Horn to the Pacific, and will be placed on the route in the spring. It is further stated that a weekly or monthly newspaper, to be devoted exclusively to the interests of the road, and for circulation chiefly in Europe, will shortly appear.

An Unskilled Toboggan Steerer.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—A young woman named Hattie Orme met with a serious accident at a toboggan slide here last night. She insisted on guiding her toboggan, claiming she fully understood the art of steering. The sled became unmanageable and went over the chute, carrying its passenger in its fall of 30 feet to the ground. The girl struck an electric light wire, which tore a frightful gash across her face. Her right arm was fractured in three places, and the flesh was torn from the left arm exposing the bone. The girl's condition is critical.

Purchasing American Supplies.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 19.—Krans & Co., of this city, have received a letter from their New York agent, in which he states he has been approached by an accredited agent of the German Government, who came to this country to purchase corn, oats and red winter wheat in enormous quantities.

ELECTORS, REMEMBER THAT THE BALLOT IS ABSOLUTELY SECRET.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1887.

THE ELECTION.

BEFORE our next issue the polling will be nearly over and the contest decided. Probably nearly every voter has already made up his mind how he will mark his ballot, but for the benefit of those who are still honestly undecided, we will briefly summarize the issue.

Under our system of responsible government by party, the opinions of individual candidates as to questions on which they differ from their party leaders or from the general party policy are of comparatively little importance, for they cannot carry these views into effect. Indeed they may seriously thwart them by voting confidence in the party opposing such views and want of confidence in the party holding such views.

The main question under our system for the electors to consider is which party is on the whole pursuing the more beneficial policy for the constituency and for the country at large. So important is it that the management of our public affairs should be in the hands of those who thus beneficially administer them, that the candidate supporting them should obtain the suffrages of the people. The questions between the two parties have been very fully discussed, and we will only refer to them very briefly. By their tariff policy, their railway policy, their administration of equal justice to all, their efforts to bind together the Provinces and to develop the resources of the country, the Macdonald Administration has rendered great public service, and should obtain a continuance of public support. Even if some of these issues were dead, which they are not, for they are still capable of being expanded, they would yet be important as indicating the principles of the Conservative party as a whole. On the other hand the Opposition with its small sympathy for Canadian industries, its unprogressive railway policy, its sectional cries, disintegrating views, and lack of wise enterprise, has deservedly estranged from it, as we believe, the majority of the people of Canada, who cannot accept theories and reminiscense as a substitute for statesmanlike dealing with actual circumstances. A practical test and a fair one, by which to decide between the two parties is for the electors to consider under which Administration he and his immediate friends have been more prosperous, more comfortable, and less burdened. If people find that by their exertions they have been able more easily to provide for themselves, for those dependant upon them and for their future they may safely conclude that public affairs have been wisely administered. Such practical results are at least as good a criterion as columns of figures and pretentious theories. Those who reflect will not find it difficult to make a choice between a continuance of the present regime and a return to that of Mr. Blake and his friends.

There is, however, an aspect in which it is wise to consider the personal qualifications of the candidates as to their standing as party supporters. Besides looking after the interests of the country at large, which they do in connection with their party allies, our members are charged individually with the duty of looking after the particular interests of their several constituencies. A representative should therefore be energetic, enterprising and a zealous advocate of local requirements. But above all he should be one who can be trusted to act for the good of his constituents, not for his own advantage at their expense. If a candidate has been notorious for abusing previous positions of trust, by using his official influence to make money for himself and his friends, instead of acting honestly for the benefit of the body at whose head he was placed, it would evidently be unsafe to entrust him with still greater opportunities of thus showing his unscrupulous selfishness.

The electors should find little difficulty in choosing between the candidates for their suffrages, whether their individual qualification or their party alliances are considered.

ANONYMOUS CRITICISMS.

FROM the public platform Mr. Cox charged the editor of the REVIEW with writing letters appearing in our columns. What the editor of the REVIEW wishes to say, he says editorially. The letters published in our columns are genuine contributions from without. In falsely charging us with forging them, Mr. Cox is not acting honestly, but maliciously. As to the question of anonymous letters in the press it is a wide one. Is information given in the public interest by a man of good repute to be refused publication, because the writer thinks it wise not to expose himself to the vengeance of a powerful and unscrupulous opponent by giving his name? Such letters, if they seem to be actuated by private no public motives or to be untrustworthy, should be, and are, refused. Mr. Cox should be the last to object to being criticised anonymously, when the first discussion of the personal standing of the candidates in this contest was opened by Mr. Cox when he gave for publication to his organ a malicious anonymous slander, falsely accusing Mr. Stevenson of receiving rent for his costly building for the use of the Lock Factory, thus denying to Mr. Stevenson due credit for his public spirited enterprise and calling his veracity in question without cause. Mr. Cox seems to have no objection to unfounded attacks upon Mr. Stevenson, but whines at fair criticism of his own conduct in official capacities.

NEWFOUNDLAND FISHERIES.

The Speech from the Throne on the Disallowance of the Bait Act.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 18.—Owing to injuries sustained by Sir William Desvoux while skating, the Legislature was opened yesterday by commission. The Speech from the Throne, after expressing regret at the very unfavourable result of the fisheries, which, if the Government had not given prompt assistance, would haae made wide-spread destitution inevitable, and stating that the revenue is below the estimate, continues: "I had earnestly hoped to be able to inform you of her Majesty's allowance and confirmation of the bill for the preservation of our bait fisheries, passed unanimously last session by both Houses, and generally regarded as the sole available means of relieving the trade of the colony from the existing depression. It is therefore with profound regret that I announce the receipt of a telegraphic message from the Secretary of State for the Colonies conveying the intimation of the inability of her Majesty's Government to allow the bill this year, owing to the near approach of the fishing season and the fact that foreign capital had already being expended in connection with the season's operations. My Ministers, inferring from the above message that a similar bill will be permitted to take effect after the coming season, will forthwith submit another bill with the same object in view, but as the delay of a whole year, which will cause very serious loss to the colony, has been presumably occasioned out of consideration for the Imperial Government, such as I hope will have the effect of securing such concessions that the whole weight and burthen will not be borne by this small community. The discussion on the address in reply to the speech was adjourned and the Bait bill was reintroduced and read the first time. It will be read again the second time to-day and will pass unanimously.

THE WILBUR MINES DISASTER.

Details of the Occurance—Harrowing Scenes.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 18.—At the time of the terrible accident at the Wilbur Iron Mines five men were engaged in loading a car at the bottom of the pit. The unprotected part of the roof, forty feet above them suddenly gave way, and a huge mass buried the men beneath it, crushing them into a shapeless mass. A miner who was a few feet away heard the crash, saw the light extinguished and gave the alarm. The bodies were removed to their respective homes. Caron, Bogot and Benton were married men with three children each. The men were thirty years of age each. Gunn and McCormack were single. The scene at the dead of night was harrowing, as the families of the men were aroused to to receive the mangled remains of the dead. The remains will be brought to Kingston for burial. The roof was thoroughly examined last week, but the change of the weather caused it to sink and loosened the underlying scale.

NOTE THE CONTRACT.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I hope you will find space for the few remarks I wish to make on this the eve of the Dominion election.

It appears to me that in this section there is a chance of the great difference between the principles of the Conservatives and Reformers being lost sight of in the question of who do you vote for Mr. Stevenson or Mr. Cox? I think this is unfortunate, it does not require a person with a very long memory to recollect the Peterborough of 1878. Now, compare it with 1887, the prosperous condition of the town and county, the high wages, abundance of work and general prosperity that surround us. Look at the manufacturies. Take the Hamilton Foundry, also the Hamilton Agricultural Works for instance, both have required large additions to accommodate their increasing business. Look again at the fine stores and the beautiful homes that circle the town on every side. Go again into the country, look at the substantial and comfortable homes the farmers live in now, the extensive barns, and general wealth and prosperity on every side. Look again at the Railway accommodation we now have and compare all this to what it was? Why! before the C. P. R. was built it took two weeks to get a car of goods from Toronto. Now, thanks to the C. P. R. we can get it in two days or less if required and rates are lower.

Who have we to thank for all this, is there a doubt in any intelligent unbiased mind but that it was the National Policy that made not only Peterborough but the whole country what it is now. It was the Conservative Government that built the C P. R. with all its advantages. What good is to us if things are cheap if we have no work and no money to buy with. Better things to be dearer and lots of work and then we can buy what we want.

Do the voters of Peterborough want to go back to the old times before the National Policy. I guess not. We are quite satisfied with things as they are. We want no change the country is prosperous then let us stick to the party that made it prosperous and vote for the Conservative candidate no matter who he is. These are the sentiments of you humble servant

BRICKS AND MORTER.

A Country to Sell.

The following letter is written to the Toronto Standard by a gentleman who is not ashamed to sign his name:—

Editor Standard:

SIR,—There is more truth than poetry in your charge that the Grits are selling the country to the Americans for the sake of attaining power. I know that the Michigan and York State lumbermen who own large tracts of timber limits in Canada are making a big effort to defeat the Conservative Government. I was in Michigan last week, and from what I there heard I have no doubt whatever that thousands of dollars are being forwarded into Canada to defeat the Government and secure a return to free trade in lumber.

Yours truly,
C. H. CLARK.

Barrie, Feb. 14, 1887.

Utilizing the "Missing Link."

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 17.—J. B. Parkes, a substantial farmer, living near Kingston, has successfully trained a force of large monkeys to work in his hemp field and to break and prepare the hemp for market. They do the work more quickly and better than the negroes he formerly employed and at one-fourth the cost required. It took four months of patient work to train the animals. The monkeys came from a brother of Mr. Parkes, in South Africa, who has seen to animals put to similar uses thre. Mr. Parkes has sent for ten more.

BUY NOW FOR NEXT WINTER!

GOUGH

MOVES INTO HIS NEW STORE ABOUT THE FIRST OF FEBRUARY NEXT.

The Store heretofore known as the Bon Marche, is being refitted and remoddeled on a Grand Scale, after the plan of a Clothing House in New York, which is the finest on the Continent, and from now until day of removal, I will sell OVERCOATS at the following MARVELLOUS REDUCTIONS:

$18.00 OVERCOATS	FOR $9.00

The Dominion Government has called for tenders for steamships capable of maintaining a fortnightly service with the British West Indies, with a view of promoting our trade relations with the colony. A fast line of steamers will be selected and liberally subsidized.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

PROTECTION — Everybody believes in the Protection that Blankets, Comforters and Flannels afford. They are sold very cheap at Rowse's Trade Palace.

Spring Lace Curtains at Turnbull's. The designs are so new and prices so low that they are sure to be sold early in his clearing sale of Spring Goods, which has now commenced.

LEGAL.

Having resumed the practice of the profession of the law in conjunction with my duties as manager of the Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company, I shall be pleased to undertake the transaction of any ordinary law business which friends may be kind enough to entrust to me.

Nomination Day, February 15th.
Polling Day, February 22nd.

A New Candidate in the Field

HIS PLATFORM:

GENTLEMEN.—I have no desire to tamper with the votes of that noble army of our citizens who freely exercise the Franchise on behalf of their favorite polititical leaders. But in order to take a hand in the present political struggle for supremary between Grit and Tory, I have decided to come out and offer such tempting

BRIBES TO THE ELECTORS

As cannot fail to place me at the head of the polls.

I would scorn, like all other candidates for parliamentary honors, to buy up votes, or do aught that might be construed as a violation of our Election laws. My object is a far more patriotic one, namely—that of making a CLEAN SWEEP of all my Winter Clothing and Tweeds before Election day.

Nor will the secrecy of the Ballot be infringed by asking purchasers whether they will vote for LEBRUN, COX, or STEVENSON. No, not by a home rule scuttle full! But every elector is expected to attend this exciting Political-Winter-Clothing Sale, and to hurrah for LEBRUN, so as to elect him by an overwhelming majority as the Workingmen's Favourite Candidate.

SAMPLES OF THE BRIBES

SUITS, made to order - $12
Formerly sold for $15.

SUITS, made to order - $14
Formerly sold for $17.

SUITS, Ready-made for $5
And upwards.

PANTS made to order for
$3.00, $4.00, $4.50.

If the Electors will only ponder over these facts and see and handle these Bribes for themselves, I feel certain that the 22nd will be a cold day for the other candidates.

"HELLO! BROWN,

"What are you loooking so mad about this morning?"

"Well, Jones, I will just tell you: I bought a fine new tent from Turner, and one of my friends wanted to borrow it."

"And did you lend it?"

"I guess not; I told him to go to

J. J. TURNER,

Sail, Tent and Awning Maker, Peterborough who would rent him or sell him a good tent I will never lend my tents again."

"Good morning, Jones."

Distress in Texas.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19.—Miss Clara Barton, President of the Red Cross Society, who has just returned from the drought-stricken section of Texas, says that the reports sent out are for the most part true. People are not starving, but there is great and painful want, dire and sore necessity.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

IN NERVOUS DEPRESSION.

Dr F. W. Lytle, Lebanon, Ill., says: "I have personally used it with marked advantage, when overworked and the nervous system much depressed."

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Precautionary.

The corporation men have been at work during the last week in cutting a channel along the course of the Smithtown Creek along Aylmer street and across a lot on Edinburg street. Those whose cellars were recently flooded need have no fear of a re-occurrance of such circumstance this spring.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings in all the latest shades. His Clearing Sale of Spring Goods is now going on.

Good Music.

Mr. L. Seward, the organist and choirmaster of St. John's Church, is making good headway with the choir. He has now in connection with his hitherto large choir, a number of boys, who have been carefully selected from amongst those who recently took part in the children's festival. They wear surpluses, sing their parts well and add materially to the strength of the choruses.

Campaign Notes.

—The Rev. Mr. Wallace prayed in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church that in the coming contest men would moderate in what they said and did and that they might respect each others opinions.

—The excitement in town to day is at fever heat. Preparations are going on for the struggle to-morrow.

—The Reform camp decided not to hold the Ecclamore meeting on Saturday night The stumpers are going out to-night.

The Two.

At the Hastings races Simpson's Stallion Lapadist Chief won 1st place in the three minute trot and Lady B. of Peterborough 3rd place. In the free for all Morgan's Little Ned took second place and Factory Girl 3rd. Louis D. which made such a fine record here last fall, won first place.

An ice meeting will be held in Peterborough on a week from Wednesday and Thursday, the 2nd and 3rd of March.

Mr. E. Brown has sold Lady B to Mr. J. Irwin, $500 being the price paid.

St. Paul's Church.

St. Paul's Church was crowded on Sunday night on the occasion of the first of the series of Evangelistic meetings. Mr. Marsh, the Evangelist, deeply impressed his hearers by the earnestness of his discourse. There is every reason to believe that the meetings will result in much good. The second meeting will be held to-night in the School room of the Church at 8 o'clock to which the public are cordially invited. A collection to defray expenses will be taken up each evening.

WHENEVER you take your walk abroad visit Rowse's Trade Palace. Every department is teeming with novelties.

Literary and Debating Society.

The P. B. C. Literary and Debating Society held their first entertainment on Friday evening, and a very pleasant and profitable time was spent. The following programme was well rendered:—A short address and reading was given by the President. An excellent recitation by Mr. Reid, followed by a chorous by the students. A reading by Miss Ratcliffe was received with great enthusiasm. Reading by Mr. J. F. Clarke which was well rendered. Song by the Principal. "Modern Sermon" by Mr. Ruth, which brought down the house. Song entitled "Sally" by the students. Very interesting reading by Mr. M. C. Moore. The critic's report spoke very favorable for the students. An excellent programme is expected at the meeting next Friday evening.

BARGAINS extraordinary. Previous to the arrival of a large consignment of Lace Curtains now en route from Manchester we will sell the balance of our magnificent stock on hand at sacrifice prices. An early call solicited as they must be cleared. R. Fair

THE RULE OF OUR LIVES

A SERMON ON THE INSPIRATION OF THE BIBLE.

A Book Written by Chosen Men for Our Guidance—The Divine and Human Elements.

The Rev. F. H. Wallace, M.A., B. D., preached in the Charlotte Street Church on Sunday evening. He took as his text II Peter 1, 21:—"For prophecy came not in the old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

It might not be the wisest thing possible, began the preacher, to embark a whole army in one huge ship. It would be an advantage, if they got to their destination in safety, but if the ship goes down the whole are lost. Even so we should not risk our faith in Christianity upon one argument or upon one fact. Various arguments and many allusions in the Scriptures converge to one great result—the divinity of Christ and Christianity. Thus it is to argue the divinity of Christ, and then follow with the inspiration of the Bible. It is much harder to argue that the Bible is inspired, and in this way prove that Christ was divine. This latter way of argument is what believers could understand. Indeed it is next to impossible to convince an unbeliever of Christ's divinity by this way of reasoning. The question of inspiration was one for those who have faith, not for inquirers. What they had to consider now was:—

A SHORT CUT

The divine element in the Book.

The divine factor in the production of the Book.

The human element in the Book.

The human factor in the production of the Book.

The divine element in the Bible was that which God breathed into the men chosen for the purpose of writing it down. This inspiration might be likened to the inspiration of newspapers. An editor was give stated views to express. And he expressed them. He rejected the idea that God was responsible for every word and every grammatical construction—that God dictated every word in the Bible. He did not agree with the view that the prophets were merely passive instruments energised and inspired to write down given words and sentences. The early Christian did not take this view either. They looked on it as simply a rule of faith and life given to them by God. The superstitious view that the Bible should be worshiped; that every word in it was absolutely true, came to us from the Jews at Alexandria and they imbued it from Greek theology, philosophy and literature. The heroes of the Reformation took no such extreme views but those who came after them had not the same good sense. But all the way down through the ages the church had given no accurate defination of the inspiration of the Bible. To-day we find it settled down in the

REASONABLE, UNASSAILABLE VIEW,

that the Bible is written by men inspired by God and given to us as a record of His will for our guidance and instruction. Some people still go to the extreme of thinking that the prophets were not only the penmen, but the pens of God and wrote down the truths as they were dictated. They would even go so far as to make the Lord responsible for the dotting of the i's and crossing of the t's. They would hold up the Bible as exhibiting God's style of composition, rhetoric, or logic. This is a fatal view. It leaves an opening in the armour in which infidels thrust their sharp swords. When imperfections are pointed out in the Bible they have no standing ground whatever. If these people were right no individuality would be found in the Bible. But there is. Paul does not write as John does. Paul is impetuous. John moves on steadily and Luke more smoothly still. The divine truth is not of one sameness but is brightened by individuality. The prophets were like a prism. They divided the pure white light and so instead of looking at one hue we see the truth in a variety of colors. The men who wrote the Bible, he argued, were not merely passive instruments to get the ecstasy as the priestess of the Delphi Valley, but were inspired by God to do certain things and left to themselves to do them. And here was the human element: Quotations from the old Testament, accounts of journeys, and such like, were not written down at the dictation of God. If the quotations were written at God's command no mistake would be made. But there were mistakes in these quotations. Frequently the New Testament writers quoting from the Old Testament made mistakes or rather discrepancies. Thus in the Book of Numbers it is stated that "24,000 fell," whereas it is quoted in the 1st Corinthians that "23,000 fell." These men had to depend on their memory. To-day all we have to do is to turn up to the marginal notes and we find what we want. With them a large roll had to be unrolled till the right passage was reached. Consequently they depended on their memory on account of the great labor in searching out the desired quotations. Those who took such extreme views were doing much harm. Earnest inquirers starting on the premises that the Bible is absolutely perfect would surely come to disbelief. Why? Because the Bible was partly divine and partly human. And these people asked others to believe that humanity was perfect. Such pious ignorance was a hurt to the Christian people. He wished to point out in the doctrine of inspiration. Some agreed that the Bible was inspired, but they also said that Shakespeare and Homer and other great men were inspired in the same way. Not so. These men might have been inspired to grandeur of thought, but they were not inspired to write a rule to guide the lives and conduct of future generations. He compared the Bible to a magnificent building, as St. Paul's, Westminster, or St. Peter's. You might stand admiring it for hours, and you cannot believe that one man here and another there, each at a separate part of the work, could have ever erected such a marvellous pile, complete in unity and detail, unless some inspiring agent, the architect, had guided them in what they had to do. Even so it was with the Bible. The hands that constructed it were given work to do and they did it, and the Great Book stands forth the wonder of the world. The inspiration doctrine was not for those who knew not a personal God, but for them who knew the light. An old woman in one of the great English cities dept a stall on the street. While not busy in selling she used to read her Bible. A man came up to her one day while she was reading and said, "what are you reading?" "The word of God," she replid. "How do you know," he asked. She was puzzled for a moment, then she suddenly looked up and said, "How do you know the sun is in the sky?" "Why," returned he, "because it lights me and warms me." "And that is just the reason why I know this is God's word. It lights me and warms me."

INTO BEAUTIFUL COLORS

AN IMPORTANT DISTINCTION

Monthly Examination — Questions in English Literature.

THOMSON'S "SEASONS."

1. Describe the condition of English literature during the period preceding Thomson's appearance as a poet.

2. Write a note on the character of Thomson's poetry.

3. Compare Thomson and Cowper as descriptive poets.

4. Give in your own words, introducing quotations, the substance of either of the following:

a The story of Lavinia and Palemon.

b Description of the evening occupation of women.

c Description of industry and its effects.

5. Quote, with proper punctuation, either of the following:

a The 17 lines beginning—

"Her form was fresher than the morning rose."

b The 24 lines beginning—

"Oh may their eyes no miserable sight, save weeping lovers, see."

6. Quote any six single lines that you think particularly meritorious.

7. Illustrate from the "Seasons":

a Characteristics of the writers of Thomson's time.

b Characteristics peculiar to Thomson.

8. Write brief notes on the following:

a Doric reed.

b The summer suns concocted.

c Libra weighs in equal scales the year.

d Arcadian song.

e Full mouthed cry.

9. Paraphrase the following lines:

"Hence every form of cultivated life
In order set, protected, and inspired,
Into perfection wrought. Uniting all,
Society grew numerous, high, polite,
And happy. Nurse of art, the city reared
In beauteous pride her tower-encircled head;
And, stretching street on street, by thousands drew,
From twining woody haunts, or the tough yew
To bows strong-straining, her aspiring sons."

CLOUGH'S "AS SHIPS BECALMED."

10. Give, in few words, the substance of the poem.

11. "Through winds and tides one compass guides." What do you understand the "one compass" to be? If both were guided by one compass, how can the divergence be accounted for?

BRYANT'S "EVENING WIND."

12. Write a brief sketch of Bryant's life, mentioning his chief works.

13. "The conception of the poem is truly poetical." Discuss.

14. Point out the chief beauties of the poem.

EXTRACT FROM RUSKIN IN HIGH SCHOOL READER.

15. Reproduce the extract in brief outline, giving the general divisions, the leading propositions under each division, and the arguments by which they are supported.

16. State clearly the three lessons which, according to Ruskin, the arts and labors of life teach us of life's mystery.

17. Explain the dilemma in the last two paragraphs.

LONGFELLOW'S "HANGING OF THE CRANE."

18. Name the chief features of Longfellow's style. What is the principal charm of this poem?

19. To what does the poet compare the visions of the future?

20. Quote, or refer to, any passages that you think faulty, giving reasons for your opinion.

21. Write brief notes on the following:

a Hanging of the Crane.

b Rolled on its harmonious way.

c Ariadne's Crown.

d Knight-errantry.

e Sunny regions of Cathay.

22. Write a brief epitome of the poem.

23. Name other American poets.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

The Result Awaited With Great Anxiety in London.

LONDON, February 21.—The attention of the civilized world is centred on Germany to-day. Here, at least, the result of the elections is awarded with interest so great as to be almost anxiety. These elections will not only put to the test the authority of Prince Bismarck, but will show whether the Pope is a more powerful election agent in Germany than he was in Ireland. The general continental opinion foreshadows Prince Bismarck's success. The German Government has taken the most extraordinary steps to secure this in the way of breaking up meetings, arresting obnoxious politicians and confiscating literature. The probability is that a definite result regarding the septennate will not be known until one or two votes have been taken, the old party lines are so completely broken up. The European newspapers seem all eager to believe that the vote of the septennate will secure the immediate return of a pacific situation. It is difficult to see how this can be more than a pious wish. In a private letter of a most distinguished English diplomatist, now in Germany, I read this morning these words: "It is the continual improvement of the French army, and the readiness of the Chambers to vote any sums toward it which causes anxiety in Germany." This being so, the increase of the German army can hardly be regarded as a symptom of peace. Indeed, the Standard says this morning: "Does anyone believe the French Government or the French people will be in any degree discouraged by the new Reichstag accepting the military septennate. We have difficulty in believing that if a Government majority is returned the menace of the European peace will be thereby averted." During the last few days, too, there has been a growing sense of increased danger from the Eastern complications, and the conviction that these are more closely connected with the Franco-German troubles than had been supposed.—Norman.

THE WESTERN BLIZZARD.

Men Frozen to Death—Appalling Losses on the Cattle Ranges.

HURON, Dak., Feb. 19.—The storm that commenced on Thursday has not yet ceased. Waggon roads are mostly impassable. No effort will be made to clear the railroads unless the storm subsides.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 19.—The damage to telegraphic wires has made the task of collecting details of the storm in Colorado and Western Nebraska very tedious. The disturbance was the worst in the history of the region. The storm raged in the mountains and descended upon the plains. Dust and sand with snow filled the shallow cuts level full and effectually blocaded the tracks. West of McCook two men were picked up dead and another so badly frozen and exhausted that his life is despaired of. Many other fatalities are expected when reports come in. As the trains came in to-day those on board saw cattle in the draws buried to their heads in the snow, and as hardly a cow was seen elsewhere it is evident many are entirely covered. Many of those seen will perish; in fact all but those that can be dug out. The losses of cattle will be something appalling. The storm covered the entire range on the east side of the Rocky Mountains from the British line to New Mexico.

NORTH-WEST AFFAIRS.

New Competing Railway Line to Eastern Canada—Disallowance Question.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 20.—The Local Legislature will be pressed next session to pass a charter for the incorporation of the Manitoba Central railway. This road, if constructed, will connect with the Duluth and Manitoba, which will be extended from East Grand Forks parallel with the Manitoba road on the east side of the river as far as Hillsdale. About 130 miles of prairie road have to be constructed between Winnipeg and Hillsdale. From Hillsdale the Northern Pacific will be utilized to Ashland, and afterwards the Detroit, Mackinaw and Marquette road and the Michigan Central to Port Huron, where connection with the Grand Trunk will be made. By this means a competing road to Eastern Canada, available by July 1, can be secured. It is ultimately contemplated that a divergence shall be made from the Northern Pacific to connect with the Grand Trunk when extended to the Sault. There was a good of rejoicing here on Saturday over assurances that disallowance would be discontinued.

A NOVEL WILL.

His Ashes Carried to Mid-Ocean and Scattered to the Four Winds.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 19.—In his will, which was drawn up yesterday by Alderman Hartman, Ambrose Retharge, aged fifty-two, after disposing of $10,000 in real estate, directs:—"That my body be taken to St. Michael's church, and after the proper religious services are performed that it be given in charge of my family, who will convey it to Samson crematory and then have it burned to ashes, the ashes to be put in a small bottle and given in charge of the German consul in this city. This gentleman will then forward my ashes to the consul in New York, who will give them in charge of the captain of the Germau steamer Elbe, who will place them securely in his ship for the ocean voyage. When at mid-ocean I directed the captain to request one of the passengers to dress in a sea-faring suit and ascend with my ashes in his hand to the top of the topmast, and after pronouncing a last benediction to extract the contents from the bottle and cast its contents to the four winds of heaven. I direct also while this ceremony is being performed that it be witnessed by all the passengers on board. After the Elbe has completed her trip and returned again to New York I want a full statement of my death and the scattering of my ashes in mid-ocean published in the Pittsburg papers, that my friends in this city shall know my burial place." Retharge, who has not been considered eccentric, and about 25 friends were present in the alderman's office while the document was being drawn up.

CANADIAN HORSES.

Satisfaction With the Horses Already Purchased for the English Army.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. Edward Stanhope, the Secretary for War, stated that the Government had ordered the purchase of horses in Canada with the object of developing markets on which—in the case of mobilization—it would be possible to draw a portion of the large supply which would be required. The War office, at the same time, desired to encourage in every way the supply of home breeders of horses for the army. The Government experiences great difficulty in obtaining suitable horses for the cavalry and artillery in England at the stated price of £45. The horses already received from Canada turned out remarkably well, and consequently the Government has ordered a further supply.

WINTER WHEAT.

Partial Injury to the Wheat Plant by Recent Storms

CHICAGO, Feb. 20.—Injury to winter wheat by reason of the recent sleet storms and accompanying cold weather is reported from various portions of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas, but the general situation as affecting the prospects of winter wheat continues to be favourable. The corn movement is free in Ohio and Indiana, but is very light in all the other Western States. In Minnesota and Missouri there is very little corn for shipment. Many Iowa and Illinois counties are importing corn at from 35 to 40 cents a bushel. The roads are badly blocked throughout Dakota, and very little grain is moving to market.

The N. Y. Canadian Colony.

The Canadian colony in New York city appears to be flourishing apace, insomuch that a local newspaper organ has been established for its delectation. The new periodical is called La Feuille D'Erable, Organe des Canadiens a New York et aux Environs, and the first two numbers have reached this office. They are well printed and profusely illustrated. The publication is monthly, and consists of a broadsheet of eight pages, about half of which is in French and the remainder in English. The first number contains a portrait and biographical sketch of Erastus Wiman. The engraving has been fairly well done, but the likeness is not striking.—The Arcturus.

THE U. S. FUND.

It is to the interest of United States manufactures to have the Grits returned to office, and the National Policy destroyed It is to the interest of the Michigan lumbermen to have the Grits returned to office and the export duty removed from sawlogs. It is to the interest of the fishermen of New England to have the Grits returned to office and Canadian waters opened to their fishing fleets. And the people of the United States are able and willing to pay for articles they desire. They have a way on the other side of putting up very large sums of money for election purposes.—Hamilton Spectator.

Gross Inhospitality.

STAYNER, Feb.—The "Original New Orleans University Singers" gave an entertainment here on the evening of the 17 inst. Just before the arrival of the company by the noon train it was ascertained that the hotelkeepers had resolved not to admit them. On arrival they proceeded to the Cameron house, as their agent had previously made a contract with the proprietor for their board and lodging. The proprietor, however, denied them the hospitality of the house, not even permitting them to sit at the table which was served for dinner. Arrangements had meanwhile been made for their accommodation, and the singers were conveyed to private houses. The reason for this outrage upon unoffending strangers was not that they were persons of color but, as is well known, that the profits resulting from the concert were to be applied to the local charities through the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Binding in Canada.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—Judge Papineau rendered judgment on Satuoday in the case of Robert Lee vs. H. J. Beemer. This was an action taken in consequence of the transfer to the plaintiff of a judgment of the Supreme Court of New York condemning Mr. Beemer to pay $919 damages in connection with the execution of a contract. The Court held the transfer to be valid, and the judgment of the New York tribunal to be binding, and consequently pronounced against Mr. Beemer for the full amount.

A Hint from Germany.

Friction with pine oil is a favorite cure for rheumatic affections in Germany, and also for bronchial and throat affections. The aromatic, astringent fragrance of the oil, which is made from resinous portions of the fir trees, has a salutary effect in pulmonary cases.

LATEST CABLE NEWS!

INDIGO FOR AMERICA.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—A marked feature of the report concerning the Indian indigo crop this season is the large demand from America. A despatch from Calcutta says that ten thousand chests have been taken for that country.

A BAILIFF SHOT.

DUBLIN, Feb. 21.—A bailiff named Murphy has been shot and killed in Killarney.

DEATH OF A PRINCE.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The death is announced of Prince Czartoryski, who was prominent in Austria in 1863, and afterwards in Germany.

FLOODS IN AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Steamer advices to San Francisco report the loss of sixty lives by the recent floods in Brisbane, Queensland. The property loss was enormous.

ITALIAN CABINET.

ROME, Feb. 21.—Signor Depretis has submitted the following Cabinet list to the King:—Count Robilard, foreign affairs, Signor Saracco, Interior; Signor Magliani; Finance; Signor Viale, War; Signor Brin, Marine; Signor Grimaldi, Public Works.

ROYAL THANKS.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The Queen has asked Lord Dufferin, the Viceroy of India, to convey to the people her warmest thanks and deep appreciation of their loyalty to herself as manifested by their celebration in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of her accession to the throne.

WOULD BE NEUTRAL.

VIENNA, Feb. 21.—The Frenderblatt says that many of the inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine, who desire to remain neutral in the event of war between Germany and France, are applying to be made citizens of Austria.

JUDGMENT OF PARIS.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—Paris is to have a competition among its beauties after the model of that which took place long ago, and put an earlier Paris in such an embarrassing position. If decolletes costumes are allowed the resemblance will probably be very exact. The competition of beauty has been planned by artists.

AUSTRIA AND RUSSIA.

PESTH, Feb. 21.—The Pester Lloyd says:—Austria maintains her decision to regard the occupation of Bulgaria by Russia as a casus belli. Austria will not oppose the Russian forces in Bulgaria, but will choose points of attack favorable for operations.

RUSSIAN CONSPIRACY.

ODESSA, Feb. 21.—An extensive plot has been discovered for a Polish rising in the event of a Russo-Austrian or a Russo-German war. Many Imperial officers and officials are implicated. Twenty persons have been arrested.

THE GERMAN ELECTION.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Business here, to-day is almost wholly stagnant. A feeling of feverish anxiety prevails generally. The interest is mainly centred in the elections in Germany, and until the results are known no improvement in business is expected. Shippers and merchants are doing absolutely nothing.

JOURNALIST IMPRISONED.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The editor of the Tagblatt has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for printing the story that the Czar had shot Herr Williams, the military attache of the German Legation at St. Petersburg.

WELSH COLLIERY ACCIDENT.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The number of deaths caused by the recent colliery explosion in the Rhonda Valley is now thirty seven. Several of the injured is dying.

THE PRISONERS' RANSOM.

ROME, Feb. 21.—Advices from Massowah report that Rasalula demands 100,000 thalers ransom for the Italian prisoners.

ABANDONED AT SEA.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The bark "Mendota," from Bilbao for New York, was abandoned at sea on February 10th. The British steamer "Hawarden" has landed the "Mendota's crew.

TENDERS FOR CARTRIDGES.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Five European Governments have applied to English firms for tenders for the supplying of several million cartridges.

A PLOT DISCOVERED.

ODESSA, Feb. 21.—An extensive plot has been discovered for a Polish rising in the event of a Russo-German war. Many Imperial officers and officials are implicated. Twenty persons have been arrested.

THE CONSPIRACY TRIAL.

DUBLIN, Feb. 21.—The State trial is expected to last, according to the estimate of the defendants, not less than a fortnight. Over a hundred witnesses will be called for the defence. In selecting the jury last week a curious mistake was made. There were two men of the same name on the jury pannel, one an ardent Nationalist, the other a bigoted Tory. The Solicitor-General, being badly coached, objected to the Tory, but allowed the Nationalist to pass unchallenged, and that worthy is now in the jury box striving hard not to clap his hands and cheer whenever the defending counsel score a point. Under these circumstances it is not surprising to learn that opinion is divided solely on the question whether there will be a conviction or a disagreement.

DENOUNCING AN ARCHBISHOP.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mr. Edwin de Lisle, Conservative member for middle Leicestershire, spoke saying that, as a Roman Catholic Conservative, he denounced the conduct of Archbishop Croke, of Cashel, in openly encouraging the conduct of the Irish National League, and said he would like to have the archbishop tried for this conduct by a jury of English Catholics in London.

STRAINED RELATIONS.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The relations of the English and French Foreign Offices are becoming strained. The English complain of increasing coldness and hostility on the part of the French Ministry, who seek every means of indulging in vexatious conduct. Their official language displays an ill-temper which approaches indecence.

A RESISTING TENANT.

DUBLIN, Feb. 21.—The police had great difficulty in effecting an eviction on the Griffiths estate in Sligo to-day. They found the tenant in his bed chained to a large stone, which had been deeply sunk in the earth. A large crowd assembled and witnessed the work of removal with intense excitement.

The Daily Review.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1887.

THE endeavors made by the Reform press to misrepresent the members returned by acclamation as being Reformers, when they are really Conservative, is very absurd, but it is still more dishonest. The Kingston Whig among its news has the following paragraph:—"J. A. Mara, Conservative, has been elected by acclamation for Yale, Kootenay District, B. C." Yet immediately below the Whig has a table in which it states that the "Tories" carried no seat by acclamation. They have carried no less than five seats, and as to one of them the Whig acknowledges its own falsehood. All five are described by themselves as supporters of Sir John Macdonald.

NEWFOUNDLAND seems to be seriously considering the advisability of joining our Confederation. It is fitting that under the guidance of Sir John Macdonald the Dominion of Canada should be thus completed. His great work will then have attained its full development. He will have a page in history such as is accorded to few statesmen, for the consolidation of a nation is a rare event.

ONE after another the signatures appended to the alleged addresses by manufacturers in favour of Mr. Blake are shown to be "bogus." In some cases they were simply forged, in others, they were signed by book-keepers, junior partners or shareholders without the authority of the company, and in others again they are the names of men who are not manufacturers, though they are rabid Reformers.

STORIES OF THE RAIL.

Some months ago Daniel Kelly, of Port Clinton, Pa., saw that a heavy boulder had fallen on the track of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and he managed to run ahead and stop an approaching passenger train in time to avert a wreck. The other day he received a costly gold watch with the compliments of the railroad company.

Nine year-old Charley Andrews was riding with his mother from Columbus to Cincinnati. She awoke early in the morning and he was gone. An engine was sent back to recover his dead body, and the boy was found in a fence corner, without a scratch or bruise on him. He said that he wanted his mother. He had in his sleep stepped from a train running forty miles an hour.

Engineer Squires, of the Western & Atlantic Railway, says that while speeding along through Georgia the other day at forth-five miles an hour he saw a dog on the track wagging his tail at his master, who stood leaning against a wire fence snapping his fingers and calling to the dog to get off the track. Before the dog really knew what it was all about the locomotive struck him and flung him against his master with such force that he was doubled up and knocked through the fence. The man was not much hurt. The dog was killed.

Conductor Dunogan, of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway, found a four-weeks old baby on his train, and at once surmised that it had been abandoned by a pretty young girl whom he had noticed with a child in her arms, and who had left the train at Collins. She still carried what seemed to be a baby, but her actions led the conductor to question her, and to insist upon seeing the baby, which proved to be a bundle of clothes carefully wrapped in a shawl. The girl was afterward arrested for abandoning her child.

In a recent address as president of the British Institute of Civil Engineers Edward Woods stated that the locomotives of fifty years ago contained essential features of those of to-day, the great improvements wrought having been in constructive detail. The modern engine possesses at least four times as great steaming power, coupled with six-fold weight. Compared with a modern locomotive, the Planet type of 1833 to 1836 had a weight of seven and one-half tons instead of forty-five tons, a fire grate area of 7 square feet instead of 40 square feet, a heating surface of 300 square feet instead of 1,400 square feet.

A fast train on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway ran into a bald-headed eagle near Chattanooga, the other day, and threw him upon the cowcatcher, where he clung. Before the bird had time to recover from the shock of his collision with the cowcatcher, Fireman Fortune climbed along the footway to the pilot and endeavored to capture the eagle, which fought viciously for his liberty. The train was going at the rate of 45 miles an hour. The man had to hold by one hand to keep his footing, and manage the eagle with the other hand. But the bird was finally secured after he had nearly torn Fortune's overalls to shreds with his powerful talons, and was carried back over the footway fighting like a demon. He measured seven feet from tip to tip of the wings.

Engineer Ed. Drohan, of the Cincinnati Southern road, was expecting trouble in Ludlow, Ky., where he had a fight a few days ago, and induced Engineer Jim Jordan to take his run in from Lexington on the night express. Jordan's engine ran into a freight locomotive at Ludlow and he was killed. Now comes the strange part of the story. Jordan is the fourth man who has been killed on Drohan's run within a few years. In April, 1882, Dan Driscoll took his place for one trip and was killed at Lexington. Two months later Dan Angus took his run for one trip and was killed at Rogers' Gap. Two years ago Mat Combe, the first engineer to run a train over the Cincinnati Southern, and who had been in the business 30 years without an accident, took Drohan's run and was also killed. Railroad men are beginning to feel somewhat superstitious in this connection.

Lightning's Work.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—A heavy rain storm commenced early this morning, and culminated to-night in one of the severest thunder showers experienced in this vacinity for years. The rain fell in torrents. While the storm was at its height, lightning struck the large four-storey building on the docks of the American Cotton Company, which contained 6000 bales of cotton. Despite all efforts two adjoining warehouses were destroyed with 10000 bales of cotton. The fire at 11 o'clock was still burning. The loss at that hour was estimated $350,000.

Simple Remedies.

A warm woollen shawl pinned closely about the neck and chest and covering the arms, if put on when the first sound of a cough is heard and supplemented by a warm brick or soapstone at the feet, is a simple household remedy that has nipped in the bud many a severe cough and cold. Hot foot baths and hot hand baths are excellent in relieving congestion and equalizing circulation. Mild mustard drafts applied to the extremities also change the circulation. In many cases flannels wrung from hot soda water are helpful. Relief is sometimes found from drinking water as hot as can comfortably be swallowed. It draws the blood to the stomach, opens the pores and washes out the clogged sewers of the body.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

OVER WORKED Women.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00. A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, and Constipation, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

Dominion Elections.

22

Nomination Day, February 15th.
Polling Day, February 22nd.

A New Candidate in the Field

HIS PLATFORM:

GENTLEMEN.—I have no desire to tamper with the votes of that noble army of our citizens who freely exercise the Franchise on behalf of their favorite polititical leaders. But in order to take a hand in the present political struggle for supremacy between Grit and Tory, I have decided to come out and offer such tempting

BRIBES TO THE ELECTORS

As cannot fail to place me at the head of the polls.

I would scorn, like all other candidates for parliamentary honors, to buy up votes, or do aught that might be construed as a violation of our Election laws. My object is a far more patriotic one, namely—that of making a CLEAN SWEEP of all my Winter Clothing and Tweeds before Election day.

Nor will the secrecy of the Ballot be infringed by asking purchasers whether they will vote for LEBRUN, COX, or STEVENSON. No, not by a home rule scuttle full! But every elector is expected to attend this exciting Political-Winter-Clothing Sale, and to hurrah for LEBRUN, so as to elect him by an overwhelming majority as the Workingmen's Favourite Candidate.

If the Electors will only ponder over these facts and see and handle these Bribes for themselves, I feel certain that the 22nd will be a cold day for the other candidates.

CARRISTON'S GIFT.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Author of "Called Back," "Dark Days," "A Family Affair," etc.

They came as promised. It was a comfort to see friends of any description, so I gave them a hearty welcome. Carriston took hold of both my hands and shook them so warmly that I began to fear I had discovered a long-lost father of his in my friend. I had almost forgotten the young fellow's appearance, or he looked a very different man today from the one I had seen when last we met. Then he was a wan, pensive, romantic, poetical-looking sort of fellow; now he seemed full of energy, vitality and grit. Poor old Brand looked as serious as an undertaker engaged in burying his own mother.

Carriston began to question me, but Brand stopped him. "You promised I should make inquiries first," he said. Then he turned to me.

"Look here, Richard,"—when he calls me Richard I know he is fearfully in earnest—"I believe you have brought us down on a fool's errand; but let us go to some place where we can talk together for a few minutes."

I led them across the road to the Railway Inn. We entered a room, and, having for the sake of appearances ordered a little light refreshment, told the waiter to shut the door from the outside. Brand settled down with the air of a cross-examining counsel. I expected to see him pull out a New Testament and put me on my oath.

"Now, Richard," he said, "before we go further I want to know your reasons for thinking this man, about whom you telegraphed, is Carriston's man, as you call him."

"Reasons! Why of course he is the man. Carriston gave me his photograph. The likeness is indisputable—leaving the finger-joint out of the question."

Here Carriston looked at my cross-examiner triumphantly. The meaning of that look I have never to this hour understood. But I laughed because I knew old Brand had for once made a mistake, and was going to be called to account for it. Carriston was about to speak, but the doctor waved him aside.

"Now, Richard, think very carefully. You speak of the missing finger-joint. We doctors know how many people persuade themselves into all sorts of things. Tell me, did you notice the likeness before you saw the mutilated finger, or did the fact of the finger's being mutilated bring the likeness to your mind?"

"Bless the man," I said; "one would think I had no eyes. I tell you there is no doubt about this man being the original of the photo."

"Never mind—answer my question."

"Well, then, I am ashamed to confess it, but I put the photo in my pocket, and forgot all about it until I had recognized the man, and pulled out the likeness to make sure. I didn't even know there was a printed description at the foot nor that any member was wanting. Confound it, Brand! I'm not such a duffer as you think."

Brand did not retaliate. He turned to his friend and said gravely, "To me the matter is inexplicable. Take your own course, as I promised you should." Then he sat down, looking deliciously crestfallen, and wearing the discontented expression always natural to him when worsted in argument.

It was now Carriston's turn. He plied me with many questions. In fact, I gave him the whole history of my adventure. "What kind of house is it?" he asked.

"Better than a cottage—scarcely a farmhouse. A place, I should think, with a few miserable acres of bad land belonging to it. One of those wretched little holdings which are simply curses to the country."

He made lots of other inquiries, the purport of which I could not then divine. He seemed greatly impressed when I told him that the man had never for a moment left me alone. He shot a second glance of triumph at Brand, who still kept silent, and looked as if all the wind had been taken out of his sails.

"How far is the place?" asked Carriston. "Could you drive me there after dark?"

At this question the doctor returned to life. "What do you mean to do?" he asked his friend. "Let us have no nonsense. Even now I feel sure that Fenton is misled by some chance resemblance—"

'Deuce a bit, old chap," I said.

Well, whether or not, we needn't do foolish things. We must go and swear information and get a search warrant and the assistance of the police. The truth is, Richard," he continued, turning to me, "we have reason to believe, or I should say Carriston persists in fancying, that a friend of his has for some time been kept in durance by the man whom you say you recognised."

"Likely enough," I said. "He looked villain enough for anything up to murder."

"Any way," said Brand, "we must do everything according to law."

"Law! I want no law," answered Carriston. "I have found her, as I knew I should find her. I shall simply fetch her, and at once. You can come with me or stay here, as you like, doctor, but I am afraid I must trouble your friend to drive me somewhere near the place he speaks of."

Foreseeing an adventure and great fun—moreover, not removed by thoughts of revenge—I placed myself entirely at Carriston's disposal. He expressed his gratitude, and suggested that we should start at once. In a few minutes we were ready and mounted the dog cart. Brand, after grumbling loudly at the whole proceeding, finished up by following us and installing himself in the back seat. Carriston placed a parcel he carried inside the cart, and away we went.

It was now nearly dark and raining cats and dogs. I had my lamps lighted, so we got along without much difficulty. The roads were deep with mud, but by this time the snow had been pretty nearly washed away from everywhere. I don't make a mistake in a road twice, so in due course we reached the scene of my upset. Here I drew up.

"The house lies about five hundred yards up the lane," I told Carriston; "we can better get out here."

"What about the horse?" asked Brand.

"No chance of any one passing this way on such a night as this; so let us put out the lamps and tie him up somewhere."

We did so; then struggled on afoot until we saw the gleam of light which had been so welcomed by me two nights before.

It was just about as dark as pitch; but guided by the light, we went on until we stood in front of the house, where a turf bank and a dry hedge hid us from sight, although on such a night we had little fear of our presence being discovered.

"What do you mean to do now?" asked Brand in a discontented whisper. "You can't break into the house."

Carriston said nothing for a minute; then I felt him place his hand on my shoulder.

"Are there any horses; any cows about the place?" he asked.

I told him I thought that my surly friend rejoiced in the possession of a horse and a cow.

"Very well. Then we must wait. He'll come out to see them before he goes to bed," said Carriston, as decidedly as a general giving orders just before a battle.

I could not see how Brand expressed his feelings upon hearing this order from our commander. I know I shrugged my shoulders and if I said nothing I thought a deal. The present situation was all very well for a strongly-interested party like Carriston, but he could scarcely expect others to relish the prospect of waiting, it might be for hours, under that comfortless hedge. We were all wet to the skin, and although I was extremely anxious to see the end of the expedition, and find poetical justice meted out to my late host, Carriston's Fabian tactics lacked the excitement I longed for. Brand, in spite of his disapproval of the whole course of action, was better off than I was. As a doctor, he must have felt sure that, provided he could survive the exposure, he would secure two fresh patients. However, we made no protest, but waited for events to develop themselves.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for Diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Possesses the greatest possible power to heal and control affections of the throat and lungs, with absolute safety for children or adults. The experience of years has proven it to be of inestimable value as a household medicine, and for professional use. Thousands of physicians and families testify to its great worth. Jas. E. Moling, Hilliard, Ohio, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twelve years, and have found that, as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throats, it

Is Unequaled.

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran Home," Luray, Va., writes: "I advertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am sure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the happiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous, and liable to terminate in Pneumonia. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. Being still very weak and sick, she began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which restored her to vigorous health."

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

A Blank.

There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

Business.

Business thr h wn is at a standstill to-day. The merchants and the few clerks who are in the stores have nothing to do but sit and speculate on the result of the elections.

Turnbull's New Spring Carpets in Wool Union and Tapestry are beginning to move. Everyone who inspects them is delighted with the patterns and pleased with the prices.

Personal.

Mr. W. Hawley, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, has been succeeded by Mr. H. P. Vidal. Mr. Hawley takes a position in the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce.

Entertainment.

The regular fortnightly musical and literary entertainment was held in St. Luke's Church school building on Monday evening. The attendance was fairly large. A programme of unusual excellence was presented.

Curling.

The Toronto Granites will play a six rink return match here to-morrow. They will arrive by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the play will commence after dinner. There will be no skating to-night or to-morrow.

Evangelistic.

Mr. March held his second evangelistic meeting in St. Paul's Church on Monday evening. There were about two hundred present. An impressive discourse was given. Another meeting will be held to-night.

THE LATEST RETURNS show that Rowse's Trade Palace takes the lead in selling white and factory cottons and sheetings. They are selling 25 yards of cotton for $1.00. Call and get a dollars worth at Rowse's.

C. O. F.

At the last meeting of Court Peterborough No. 29. C. O. F., it was decided to observe the Anniversary of the Court, by attending Divine Service at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, on Sunday, the 27th of February, at 11 o'clock a. m. The brethren are requested to meet at the Hall at 10.15 a. m.

Election Day.

For an hour before the opening of the polls and up till the close the excitement has been at white heat. George street presents an appearance more like the home-stretch on a race course than anything else. Every available conveyance is being used for all it is worth. Both candidates are hard at work as well as whole armies of supporters.

Bishop of Peterborough.

We find the following paragraph in the London Free Press:—"The Bishop-elect of Peterborough, the Very Rev. Father Dowling, will be consecrated in St. Mary's Cathedral, Hamilton, shortly after Easter The rite of consecration will be performed by the Archbishop of Toronto, the Bishops of London, Hamilton and Kingston assisting."

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

South Ward Meeting.

A crowded ward meeting was held on Monday evening at Brault's Hotel, when the electors were ably addressed in French by Capt. Chagnon, of Montreal, and in English by Mr. Hilliard and Mr. Stevenson. The chair was efficiently filled by Mr. H. LeBrun. Cheers for Mr. Stevenson, Sir John Macdonald and the Queen were heartily given before the meeting broke up.

The Returns.

Arrangements have been made by the Liberal-Conservative Committee to get the returns by the Canadian Pacific telegraph line of the elections at the committee rooms, Parlor Roller Rink, Water street, this evening. A list of the constituencies of Ontario, and of the city constituencies throughout the Dominion, has been made out and placed in rows on the wall, so that the people may see at once how the respective places have gone.

BARGAINS extraordinary. Previous to the arrival of a large consignment of Lace Curtains now en route from Manchester we will sell the balance of our magnificent stock on hand at sacrifice prices. An early call solicited as they must be cleared. R. Fair

HASTINGS RACES.

The Places Taken by Peterborough Horses and the Time Made.

The second meeting of the Hastings Driving Association came off on Little Lake on Thursday and Friday of last week. The first day opened with favourable weather and a large crowd in attendance. The track was somewhat over a mile, and heavy, which accounts for the slowness of the time made in the three minute and open trot. The farmers' trot was the opening event of the first day, with six entries.

FARMERS' RACE.

A Gracious King.

When the king of Servia was on his recent railroad journey from Nisch to Belgrade, at one of the stopages the engine driver, Enrich Mishkolzi, was overcome by the fumes of gas escaping from the engine furnace, and would probably have succumbed had not the king noticed his condition and promptly carried him, with the help of one of his chasseurs into his private saloon carriage, where restoratives could be supplied. The king himself administered cognac to the man, and also rubbed his forehead and temples with vinegar, with the result of restoring animation. At the next station the king called for a doctor, who stated that the danger was over. On the arrival of the train at Belgrade the man was found to be still too weak to resume work. King Milan accordingly requested leave of absence for him until his health should be restored, and made him a present of 10 ducats to help him to tide over his illness.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1887.

THE ELECTIONS.

THE conflict is over, not only in our own county, but throughout the Dominion, with the exception of a few outlying constituencies.

It will be a great source of satisfaction to the Conservatives of West Peterborough and to those loyal Reformers who united with them for the good of their country that they have nobly sustained the cause of good government, unity and progress by sending to Ottawa an able and earnest supporter of Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues. They have done this like men in the face of powerful influences, desperate exertions and profuse expenditure. No stone was left unturned to defeat Mr. Stevenson, but his good cause, the zealous exertions of his friends, and in many cases their loyal self-denial in the face of tempting inducements, have secured his triumphant success.

Unfortunately we have reason to believe, though the complete returns have not yet come to hand, that the result in East Peterborough has not been so satisfactory. It appears that his constituents have been so shortsighted as to fail to see that they had a good and capable representative in Mr. John Burnham, and have been so led away by delusive and discordant cries that they have not again secured his services.

All over the Dominion the reports show that the Macdonald Administration has been sustained by the voice of the people. The sectional and disloyal cries on which Mr. Blake and his friends based their hopes of success, have failed to give them power at the price of dishonor. Secession did not avail them in Nova Scotia, and their attempts by gross mistatements to work upon the not unnatural sympathy of the French Canadians for a man with their blood in his veins who had fallen a victim to justice, has fallen far short of their expectations, as the deluded people are learning the truth and becoming wiser by reflection. The true chiefs of the French Canadians, Mr. Chapleau, Sir H. Langevin and Sir A. Caron have been re-elected as they deserved and a strong band of worthy followers has been returned to support them.

Not only has Sir John Macdonald been elected for two constituencies but every one of his colleagues has retained the confidence of the people. Not so with the leaders of the Opposition. Mr. Jones, foremost among the traitors to his country has been beaten at Halifax; Mr. M. C. Cameron the leader of the band of organized slanderers has been repudiated by his old constituents, and so it is with other men of mark in the ranks of Mr. Blake.

The country has escaped a great danger by giving to the Administration of Sir John Macdonald a good working majority. Thus it is decided that the National Policy, with its encouragement for Canadian industries, shall not be tampered with, so as to destroy its efficacy that the enterprizing, but wise policy which has pressed forward in so many ways the development of our country will not be reversed, that the rights of Canada will be firmly, though judiciously, maintained.

The 22nd of February will be long regarded as an important date in the annals of our country, and happily as a starting point for further advancement in the growth and progress of our great Dominion.

Coming.

Dr. Potts, who visits our town regularly every month, will be at the Croft House during Wednesday and Thursday of this week to receive patents suffering from chronic diseases who may wish to consult him. All are invited to call early.

THE LATEST RETURNS show that Rowse's Trade Palace takes the lead in selling white and factory cottons and sheetings. They are selling 25 yards of cotton for $1.00. Call and get a dollars worth at Rowse's.

VICTORY IS OURS!

West Peterborough Comes Back To Its Old Love.

MR. STEVENSON'S MAJORITY TWENTY-TWO.

NO. 1 WARD AGAIN COMES TO THE FRONT.

Every Ward In Town Gives the Conservative Candidate a Substantial Majority—The Celebration.

The contest in West Peterborough is over and the result is more than satisfactory. Notwithstanding that Mr. Stevenson's opponent carried with him the whole party vote, notwithstanding that powerful financial influence overawed many Conservatives, that tenants were coerced, that means were used which it is needless to mention since the aim is balked, Mr. Stevenson won the election by twenty-two of a majority.

At half past five the returns commenced to come in and by half past six it was known that the town had given Mr. Stevenson 123 of a majority.

The returns from the country commenced to come in from seven o'clock. North Monaghan and South Monaghan disappointed the expectations of those who had figured on 40 of a majority between the two places. When a minority of 10 was reported the election of the Conservative candidate was very shaky. The two lower wards of Smith came in with 92. But when Ennismore, which gave 96 at the last election and was counted upon by the Reformers to do nearly as much, only gave nine, everybody threw up their hats and shouted. The victory was sure when North Smith brought the majority up to 22.

The returns as received are as follows:—

Majority for Stevenson, 22.

When the result was known the enthusiasm knew no bounds. Mr. Stevenson was carried out of the committee room and placed in a carriage. The Fire Brigade band marched in front, the carriage being drawn by the people. Coming down George street the scene was something remarkable. The whole street was filled with a mass of people marching south. The enthusiastic cheers of the multitude all but drowned the sounds of the band. Mr. Stevenson stood in the sleigh with his friends seated around him.

The Opera House was filled within three minutes. The band played "Auld Lang Syne," a fitting selection, seeing that West Peterborough and Conservatism renewed their acquaintance.

Mr. W. H. Moore, Chairman of Mr. Stevenson's Central Committee, took the chair and called for cheers for Mr. James Stevenson, M. P. for West Peterborough, and deafening shouts followed, accompanied with a whole shower of hats tossed in the air. This was followed by cheers for Mr. Moore and several others.

MR. STEVENSON, on rising, was greeted with such demonstrations as only those who have won the hearts of the people can receive. He thanked the people for the honor conferred upon him, but if Sir John, their old chief, was sustained he did not care whether he went to Ottawa or not. He referred to his canvass during the campaign and the odds he had to fight against. In every place he went he found he had been preceded by canvassers of the most powerful kind in the respective localities. He had only one thing in his favor and that was that he was well known (Cheers). He never went into a house during the campaign that the ladies didn't know him (Laughter). He spoke of the kind treatment given to him by the Ennismore people and said that in that township he found the warmest of warm Irish hearts (cheers). Wherever he went there he was urged to stay and have dinner or tea with them, and lots of times he had been asked to stay all night. He wished to thank them publicly for this and the good vote the people there gave him. He added that the treatment he got all over the riding was of uniform hospitality. Referring to his opponent he said that all knew that Mr. Cox was the strongest man in the riding (shouts of "second best"). He did not oppose Mr Cox but Mr. Cox opposed him. He had never much heart in the contest for he was fighting against his best friend. When Sir John was here he told the old man that he was doubtful, but the reply was, "Go in, you'll beat him." (Deafening cheers.) He supposed the Old Chieftain was a kind of prophet, for he had won During the campaign he had not uttered a word against his opponent, and Mr. Cox had said nothing about him that would in the least mar their friendship. He hoped that the cordial relationship existing between them would still continue as of old. He stated that the Minister of Public Works had given him every assurance that the Trent Valley Canal contract between Peterborough and Lakefield would be let during the coming summer. This was no electioneering dodge, because the elections were now all over. (Cheers.) He hoped next summer to see thousands of men employed in and about Peterborough. (Applause.)

Mr. O'MEARA in a brief address said that he had worked in Ennismore at this election, and he showed Mr. Bertram that he didn't carry Ennismore in his pocket, as he bragged after the last election. (Laughter.) He heard that there was a big cheer at the Reform camp when the returns came from Ennismore at the last election, but he didn't think they would cheer much to-night. He guessed Shoddy Ryan and his bosom friend Mr. Stratton felt rather cheap. (Laughter and cheers.)

Mr. ELIAS THOMPSON, the old campaign war horse, was cheered to his feet. He made a speech that made the people both cheer and laugh again and again.

Mr. TED CAVANAUGH was received with loud applause and tossing up of hats. He said that though he wasn't much of a speaker he was a good worker. (Cheers.) Some people called him a turn coat, but he could tell them that he was just as good a Conservative to-day as ever he was. (Cheers.)

Mr. GEO HILLIARD, ex-M. P., said that he could now say: "Hip, hip, hurrah! Rule Britania! the country is safe." (Cheers and laughter.) He could now go home and sleep comfortably. He was glad Mr. Stevenson was elected, Mr. Stevenson deserved it and from the bottom of his heart he wished him joy at being selected by the people, not only to stand at their head municipally, but to represent them in the Dominion Parliament. (Loud applause.) He believed that Mr. Stevenson did more for this town than any one man. His 45 years as a citizen was spent in building up Peterborough, and during all that time as a business man having large and varied dealings he (the speaker) had never seen Mr. Stevenson in the Court House in any other capacity than a spectator or juryman. Anyone having large business transactions like Mr. Stevenson with the record of not having a suit at court gave a good index to his character. (Loud and continued applause.) Mr. Cox had been credited with having built up Peterborough. Mr. Cox had done nobly, everyone would admit that. But Mr. Cox in taking credit for every thing robbed the National Policy of what it deserved, and also other citizens of what they did.

Mr. KENDRY made a brief speech stating the kind of influence he had to fight against in No. 4 ward.

Mr. MCNEIL, President of the Junior Conservative Club, said that every place did well, but where would they have been if it hadn't been for Ennismore—pretty badly left.

Mr. R. W. MUNCASTER made a rattling speech, summing up Blake's policy in a manner that created much amusement. He retired amid cheers.

Mr. JOHN CARNEGIE was received with enthusiastic applause. He said that Mr. Stevenson stated that the kindest feelings existed between himself and Mr. Cox. If Mr. Stevenson had been at the meetings he (Mr. Carnegie) attended he might have seen that Mr. Cox and Mr. Bertram did not entertain the same friendship for him (the speaker.) At the meetings throughout the compaign he attended in Mr. Stevenson's behalf these two gentlemen had showed how bitter they could be when they had the last hour. He had not one word to say against Mr. Cox further than that he appealed to the electors on personal grounds rather than the representative of a stated policy. Because by fortuitous circumstances he gave more employment than others he made that a reason why those whom he employed should support him, instead of allowing each man to exercise the right of the franchise to the best of his judgment. But the wisdom of the great Policy advanced by the Liberal Conservatives in 1878 and 1882 had again been endorsed by the electorate and by West Peterborough. (Loud cheers.) Mr. Carnegie then read the returns from many of the constituencies amid much enthusiasm.

Another ovation awaited the popular member elect at the close of the meeting. The delight of friends and admirers knew no bounds. He, together with Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Moore, Mr. Stapleton, Mr. Kendry and Mr. Brodie, was escorted to a carriage while a whole army carrying brooms and torches marched up to the Post Office and back to his residence on Simcoe street. A huge bon-fire blazed on the market square.

Campaign Notes.

—There were a large number of people in from the country last night to hear of the results.

—Mr. Stevenson, writes a correspondent, is extremely popular in Ennismore. The name he goes by is "The People's Jimmy."

—No.4 did not give nearly the majority that was expected but No. 3 and No. 1 did better.

—A large amount of money changed hands on the result of the election. One man won $120 on a bet that Stevenson would get a majority in every ward.

—Mr. Drury, of the gas works, stood by his lord during the storm of excitement to defend him if necessary from the too demonstrative affection of the people.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

A. C. A.

The organization of the Northern Division of the American Canoe Association has been authorized by the Executive Committee. A meeting will shortly be held in Peterborough to choose a local committee. The Executive have empowered our Secretary to receive subscriptions, and have authorized him to replace on the list old members of the A. C. A. without exacting the payment of entrance fees. A meeting and camp of the Northern Division will be held at Stoney Lake, probably in the first two weeks of August. We learn that the canoists of Toronto, Lindsay Bobcaygeon, and other places are very enthusastic in their support of the new division of the A. C. A. and its first camp. An old member has already secured promises for twenty two flags for prizes. Toronto talks of sending such a strong contingent as to carry off all the prizes, so our local men should be prepared.

Turnbull's New Spring Carpets in Wool Union and Tapestry are beginning to move. Everyone who inspects them is delighted with the patterns and pleased with the prices.

Changed Hands.

Mr. W. J. Morrow has bought out the Town Clock grocery and has opened out a fine stock of staple and fancy groceries. This spacious and commodious place of business, situated directly opposite the Grand Central Hotel and one door north of the Arcade, has of late been artistically decorated and now presents a very handsome appearance. Mr. Morrow will be pleased to have his old friends, as well as the old patrons of the Town Clock grocery, come and see him.

The Weather.

The Rev. Mr. Clementi's self-registering thermometer recorded 2° below zero last night.

Serious Rioting.

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—Serious riots occurred in East Cambridge yesterday between a mob of street car strikers and the police A dozen officers were more or less seriously injured. Several strikers were arrested and gaoled.

The first shipment of Boys' Clothing for Spring has arrived at Turnbull's. The Styles are New and Quality the best in the market.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS.

Now that the people of Peterborough, as well as the rest of Canada, have had a surfeit of elections, it is not an unpropitious time to call attention to a method by which the ratepayers may be relieved from the necessity of going to the polls unnecessarily once a year.

By statute a School Board is empowered to adopt the system of holding the elections for school trustees at the same time and place as those for municipal Councillors, the voting then being by ballot. Many school boards have taken the necessary steps to bring this change into effect for the coming year, but the Peterborough Board of Education has not yet taken up this question. We strongly recommend them to consider this matter at their very next meeting, for a long notice is necessary, and a discussion might arise that would delay immediate action.

We are convinced that the great majority of the ratepayers will fully agree with us that such a change is advisable. Elections for one purpose and another occur often enough to make it expedient to reduce the number, if it can be done without loss of local control of our local affairs. There is no good reason why we should be called upon to go to the polls twice within a few days to elect members of different bodies for managing different but allied branches of our municipal affairs, when there cannot be the slightest objection to making one visit suffice. Loss of time, trouble, and the friction that will arise from elections would all be spared by such an arrangement.

There is another strong argument in favour of this change. Whatever may be the reason, it is notorious that unless there are exceptional circumstances the ratepayers, or at least a great portion of them, are too apt to neglect the school trustee elections. This is not as it should be. The duties performed by the Board of Education are most important for the well being of the community, so there should be a deliberate choice by the whole body of ratepayers from the best men available, and the members should feel that their responsibility to their constituents is real—that they will be held to a strict account, And besides the manner in which the board may administer educational affairs, there is another very weighty consideration. It controls the expenditure of a very large sum of money, and its powers in this respect are almost unlimited, except by the responsibility to the ratepayers. It is obvious, therefore, that the people who have to find the money by direct taxation should not slacken their constitutional control over its amount or the manner of its expenditure. On both grounds they should take fully as much interest in the school board as in the council elections.

By holding the two elections on the same day it is certain that the good result would be obtained of having a much larger vote polled for school trustees, that, in fact, almost every ratepayer would take part in the election, which is by no means the case now. This would necessarily have the double effect of interesting the ratepayers in the doings of the trustees in order that they might find grounds for a choice between the candidates, while at the same time it would make the trustees feel that they were more practically responsible, that their actions were more subject to public criticism.

We invite our Board of Education to consider this subject in good time.

AUSTRALIA.

Preparing for the World's Fair—The Political Future of Australia.

MELBOURNE, Feb. 21.—Preparations are being made for holding a World's Fair here in 1890. The proposal meets with general approbation, and the principal business men are taking up the matter heartily. Mr Verplanck Larson, of this city, is at present on his way to Europe to confer with leading manufacturers and firms and ascertain their feeling in regard to taking a part in the exhibition. There is great political unrest in this country. Its present condition is felt not to be stable, and there is much speculation as to the future of the country. Our constantly increasing debt, necessitating frequent loans, is a source of marked uneasiness While the people are still loyal to the Queen, leading statesmen think the day is not far distant when the vast territory of Australia will be divided into independent states, the whole forming a great Republican confederation, free from any interference or dictation from the Mother Country. It has within itself resources sufficient to sustain a nation, and it is not dependent even now on any country for a single article of necessity, unless a navy and a standing army are necessities, and its distance from antagonistic forces make it less in need of such expensive luxuries than European nations.

Another Broken Rail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22.—The snow-sheds along the Central Pacific Railway in the Sierras near Tamarac station, between San Francisco and the Summit, caved in last night about 10 o'clock, and a special west bound freight train ran into the wreck. Brakeman W. L. Kneeland was killed, and engineer Henry Kernand, and firemen Stewart and Brown were slightly bruised. The cause was a broken rail. The engine left the track, and ran into the snow-shed for a hundred feet. There was ten feet of snow on top of the sheds. The train was a special west bound stock train of five cars. Two carloads of sheep were killed. It is fortunate the train left the track on the side it did, for if it had left the track on the other side it would have been precipitated over a high embankment into the Yemba river. Last week a similar storm held the east and west-bound trains seventy-two hours in the sheds near Colfax.

CONSERVATIVE CONFERENCE.

Parliamentary Rules of Procedure—Subordination to the Leaders.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—A conference of the Conservative party was held to-day at the Foreign Office. It was largely attended. The Marquis of Salisbury and Mr. Goschen were cheered heartily when they entered the building.

The Premier, in his address, referred feelingly to the late Earl of Iddesleigh and the loss the Government had incurred by reason of his death. The Marquis also dwelt on the secession from the Government of Lord Randolph Churchill, which he described as a "considerable loss to the party." Mr. Goschen's acceptance of office under the present Government, Lord Salisbury said, had strengthened the Conservative party. "After marking time for a month," continued the Marquis, "we have arrived at serious business." He then said he hoped the Government would be able by reforming the rules of procedure to restore to the House of Commons its capacity for work and its reputation for courtesy; "after which," he added, "we shall be able to deal with questions of Local Government for Ireland and with other measures." (Loud cheers.) "I hope," he said, "that the present law will be sufficient to enable the authorities to cope successfully with the disorder in Ireland. In any case all the bills will be postponed until after the conclusion of the proceedings for the reform of the procedure rules and action on the estimates. The Government expects to present the budget during the first week in April." The Marquis predicted a long lease of power for the Conservatives. Several members urged that the Government introduce a local Government bill for England, Scotland and Wales, the provisions of which should be extended to Ireland.

Lord Salisbury, in his official report to the Conference, referring to Ireland, said they were told they ought to proclaim the National League. It was perfectly open to him to assent to the issue of such a proclamation, but unless the Government had a law to enforce it the proclamation would be perfectly ineffective. When the Gladstone Government proclaimed the Land League the Habeas Corpus act was suspended, and the Government had power to imprison anyone disobeying its commands. The present Government had no such power. It must act within the law of the United Kingdom, and at present there was no efficient instrument with which to deal with veiled rebellion.

Mr. Chaplin and others who are opposed to the cloture proposals threatened to revolt, but were cowed by Lord Salisbury's determination that the Ministry would resign unless the Conservative party continued solid. The vote of the conference resulted in its absolute subordination to the leaders.

RULES OF PROCEDURE.

The Speaker's Powers Enlarged—Not a Party Question.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mr. W. H. Smith, in moving the first of the procedure resolutions, appealed to the House to maintain the dignity of Parliament and to vindicate the authority of its own proceedings. The new rules, he said, would make the authority of the Speaker absolute. He believed the House had full confidence in the discretion and judgment of the speaker. In the judicial position which he occupied, he would safely guard the interests of minorities and preserve the rights of the majorities. Unless the first resolution—conferring upon the Speaker the power of cloture—was passed it would be impossible to obtain reforms. The Speaker had at present only the power of expressing an opinion as to the time a debate should terminate. What the Government now proposed was that when any member moved the cloture the speaker should be empowered to take the vote of the House. The appointment of standing committees to deal with special business, and the conferring of increased power upon the Speaker with reference to questions of adjournment, were also among the proposed reforms.

Mr. Gladstone said the matter of procedure reforms should not be treated as a party question. He doubted the wisdom of placing the subject of procedure in the van of all other business. He doubted also whether the House would get through with the procedure rules without modifying the Speaker's recent ruling, that no subject could be discussed if there was a notice on the paper of a motion relating to the same subject. (Irish Cheers.) It was idle to expect to assist the progress of business by means of merely penal restrictions. The proposal of the Government practically amounted to nothing. Mr. Smith had failed to explain the delicate and difficult functions assigned to the Speaker under the first rule. Upon what principle was the Speaker to proceed in giving or withholding his consent to cloture?

Mr. Parnell, resuming the debate, contended that the new rules proposed would not facilitate the transaction of business, but would produce irritation and exasperation, and soon the Conservatives would bitterly regret having introduced their present proposals.

Mr. Gochen said if Mr. Gladstone had been in the House during the past fortnight he would have recognized the necessity for the new rules. Although the Parnellites were disinclined to believe in the Government's fair play, he (Mr. Gochen) doubted whether they would receive equal fair play in any legislative assembly in Europe or America.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt said he could not support a proposal to put absolute power in the hands of the Speaker instead of leaving it with the majority.

ROYALTY AND AUTHORSHIP.

The Queen of Italy Receives Her Mss Marked Rejected.

ROME, Feb. 21.—It is well known that Queen Margart is an authoress. She was rallied at the recent court ball by the French Ambassador about having written a novel, which was, after long delay, to be published in London. She listened as he gallently expressed regret at the delay. Then said the Queen, "Believe me, your regret would have been greater if it had appeared." Next she went on to tell the diplomat:—"Not long ago I sent a story in manuscript to a Roman periodical under an assumed name. It was soon returned curtly marked 'rejected.' Since then I shall remain satisfied with a real crown and not strive after imaginary laurels."

A RAILWAY BLOCKADE.

Serious Blizzards in Oregon—Great Delay in Traffic.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Feb. 22.—The first through train in four days arrived over the Oregon Short Line to-day. The Northern Pacific has had no through trains from Minneapolis for the past two days, owing to the heavy snow in Montana and Dakota and other points east of Heron, although the Northern Pacific people have made herculean efforts to keep the road open. During the past month, communication has been more or less broken all the time, and trains have been frequently twenty-four and forty-eight hours behind schedule time. The trouble south of here has stopped the stage over the Sitkiyou Mountains for three and four days at a time, and now there is a complete blockade, caused by the heaviest snowstorm in years. The mail from San Francisco is therefore sent round by the Oregon Short Line. The blizzards are altogether the worst that have been had in the past four years. As fast as one train got out of the drifts another is snowed in. Advices this evening say that a warm chinook is in the vicinity of Helena, which, it is thought, will break the blockade and cause a resumption of traffic on schedule time.

NEWS NOTES.

The round table conferences are still being held for the purpose of re-uniting the Liberal party.

In the coming number of the Fortnightly Review the Marquis of Lorne has a short conciliatory paper about the Canadian fisheries.

The warrant for the extradition of Brady, the American forger, was issued by the Department of Justice on Monday afternoon.

It is considered certain that no bill for the fortification of United States ports will be passed during the present session of Congress.

It is rumored in Washington that there is a probability of an extra session of Congress to consider the extradition treaty with Great Britain.

Mr. Gladstone's ability to cut down trees has been made profitable to the Baptists at Spalding. They begged for the trunk of an oak felled by the ex-Premier, and then sold little pieces of it at their bazaar.

Sir John Lister Kaye has completed his negotiations with the Dominion Government and the Canadian Pacific railway in connection with his scheme for establishing model farms in Manitoba and the North-West Territories, and has started for England to perfect his arrangements.

At Monday's meeting of the Toronto Ministerial Association a notice of motion was given against the holding of meetings on Sunday for furthering special or industrial reforms. At the next meeting the question of discussing politics in the pulpit will be taken up.

The Jester of the House.

Mr. Labouchere has, for the present, reached a climax as jester of the House of Commons with the declaration that he considers a railroad a beautiful thing in itself. He therefore voted for the Ambleside railway bill, as calculated to improve scenery that is now among the loveliest in the world, but which a ring of hotel keepers mean to spoil if they can.

Earthquake Shock.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—An earthquake shock is reported to have been felt at Buckingham and a few other places down the lower part of Ottawa County, about 7 o'clock last evening. The shock lasted about three seconds, its direction being from north to south. No damage is reported and nothing was felt of it in the city.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

CARRISTON'S GIFT.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Author of "Called Back," "Dark Days," "A Family Affair," etc.

CHAPTER IV.

More than half an hour went by. I was growing numbed and tired, and beginning to think that we were making asses of ourselves, when I heard the rattle of a chain, and felt Carriston give my arm a warning touch. No doubt my late host had made sure that his new door-fastenings were equal to a stronger test than that to which I had subjected the former ones; so we were wise in not attempting to carry his castle by force.

The door opened and closed again. I saw the feeble glimmer of a lantern moving towards the outhouse in which my horse had been stabled. I heard a slight rustling in the hedge, and, stretching out my arm, found that Carriston had left my side. In the absense of any command from him I did not follow, but resumed the old occupation —waiting.

In a few minutes the light of the lantern reappeared; the bearer stood on the threshold of the door, while I wondered what Carriston was doing. Just as the door was opened for the boor's readmittance, a dark figure sprang upon him. I heard a fierce oath and cry of surprise; then the lantern flew out of the man's hand, and he and his assailant tumbled struggling through the narrow doorway.

"Hurrah! the door is won, anyway!" I shouted, as, followed closely by the doctor, I jumped over the hedge and rushed to the scene of the fray.

Although Carriston's well conceived attack was so vigorous and unexpected that the man went down under it; although our leader had utilized the advantage he had gained in a proper and laudable manner, by bumping that thick bullet head as violently as he could against the flags on which it lay: I doubt if, after all, he could have done his work alone. The countryman was a muscular brute, and Carriston but a stripling. However, our arrival speedily settled the question.

"Bind him!" panted Carriston; "there is cord in my pocket." He appeared to have come quite prepared for contingencies. While Carriston still embraced his prostrate foe, and Brand, to facilitate matters, knelt on his shoulders, sat on his head, or did something else useful, I drew out from the first pocket I tried a nice length of half-inch line, and had the immense satisfaction of trussing up my scowling friend in a most workmanlike manner. He must have felt those turns on his wrists for days afterwards. Yet when we were at last at liberty to rise and leave him lying helpless on his kitchen floor, I consider I exercised great self-denial in not bestowing a few kicks upon him, as he swore at us in his broadest vernacular in a way which, under the circumstances, was no doubt a great comfort to him.

We scarcely noticed the man's wife while we rendered her husband helpless. As we entered she attempted to fly out, but Brand, with a promptitude which I am glad to record, intercepted her, closed the door, turned and pocketed the key. After that the woman sat on the floor and rocked herself to and fro.

For some moments, while recovering his breath, Carriston stood and positively gazed at his prostrate foe. At last he found words:

"Where is she? Where is the key, you hound?" he thundered out, stooping over the fellow, and shaking him with a violence which did my heart good. As he received no answers save the unrecordable expressions above mentioned, we unbuttoned the wretch's pockets, and searched those greasy receptacles. Among the usual litter we did certainly find a key. Carriston snatched at it, and shouting, "Madeline! Madeline! I come!" rushed out of the room like a maniac, leaving Brand and me to keep guard over our prisoners.

I filled a pipe, lit it, and then came back to my fallen foe.

"I say, old chap," I said, stirring him gently with the toe of my boot, "this will be a lesson to you. Remember, I told you that civility costs nothing. If you had given me Christian bed accommodation instead of making me wear out my poor bones on that infernal chair, you could have jogged along in your rascality quite comfortably, so far as I am concerned."

He was very ungrateful—so much so that my desire to kick him was intensified. I should not like to swear, I did not to a slight degree yield to the temptation.

"Push a handkerchief in his mouth," cried Brand, suddenly. "A lady is coming."

With right good will I did as the doctor suggested.

Just then Carriston returned. I don't want to raise home tempests, yet I must say he was accompanied by the most beautiful creature my eyes have ever lighted upon. True, she was pale as a lily—looked thin and delicate, and her face bore traces of anxiety and suffering, but for all that she was beautiful—too beautiful for this world, I thought, as I looked at her. She was clinging in a half-frightened, half-confiding way to Carriston, and he—happy fellow!—regardless of our presence, was showering down kisses on her sweet pale face. Confound it! I grow quite romantic as I recall the sight of those lovers.

A most curious young man, that Carriston! He came to us, the lovely girl on his arm, without showing a trace of his recent excitement.

"Let us go now," he said, as calmly as if he had been taking a quiet evening drive. Then he turned to me.

"Do you think, Mr. Fenton, you could without much trouble get the dogcart up to the house?"

I said I would try to do so.

"But what about these people?" asked Brand.

Carriston gave them a contemptuous glance. "Leave them alone," he said. "They are but the tools of another—him I cannot touch. Let us go."

"Yes, yes. But why not verify your suspicions while you can?"

Just like Brand! He's always wanting to verify everything.

In searching for the key we had found some papers on our prisoner. Brand examined them, and handed to Carriston an envelope which contained what looked like banknotes.

Carriston glanced at it. "The handwriting is, of course, disguised," he said, carelessly, "but the postmark shows whence it came. It is as I always told you. You agree with me now?"

"I am afraid I must," said Brand, humbly. "But we must do something about this man," he continued.

Hereupon Carriston turned to our prisoner. "Listen, you villain," he said. "I will let you go scot-free if you breathe no word of this to your employer for the next fortnight. If he learns from you what has happened before that time, I swear you shall go to penal servitude. Which do you choose?"

I pulled out the gag, and it is needless to say which the fellow chose.

Then I went off, and recovered the horse and cart. I relighted the lamps, and with some difficulty got the dogcart up to the house. Carriston must have exactly anticipated the events of the night. The parcel he had brought with him contained a bonnet and a thick, warm cloth cloak. His beautiful friend was equipped with these; then leaving the woman of the house to untie her husband at her leisure and pleasure, away we started; the doctor sitting by me; Carriston and the lady behind.

We just managed to catch the last train from C——. Not feeling sure as to what form inquiries might take to-morrow, I thought it better to go up to town with my friends, so, as we passed through Midcombe, I stopped, paid my bill, and gave instructions for my luggage to be forwarded to me. By 6 o'clock the next morning we were all in London.

To be continued.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Possesses the greatest possible power to heal and control affections of the throat and lungs, with absolute safety for children or adults. The experience of years has proven it to be of inestimable value as a household medicine, and for professional use. Thousands of physicians and families testify to its great worth. Jas. E. Moling, Hilliard, Ohio, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twelve years, and have found that, as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throats, it

Is Unequaled.

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran Home," Luray, Va., writes: "I advertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am sure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the happiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous, and liable to terminate in Pneumonia. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. Being still very weak and sick, she began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which restored her to vigorous health."

Ministerial majority, 25.

In the following constituencies the poll has not yet been held, or the results are not yet reported:—In Ontario, Algoma and Muskoka; in Quebec, Gaspe; in Prince Edward Island, 2 seats in Prince County; in British Columbia, 5 seats, and in the N. W. Territories, 4 seats. These 14 constituencies will certainly add to the Ministerial majority.

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

The Returns Incomplete—The Reform Candidate Elected.

The returns from East Peterborough are still incomplete, but there is no doubt that Mr. Lang is elected by a considerable majority, as only Cavendish is to be reported, and for other places the majorities have been received. So far as received the returns are as follows, in some places the majorities only being given:—

Ward No. One.

The South Ward on the 22nd returned to its old good record, and gave a substantial Conservative majority.

Home from Florida.

Mr. Wm. Ross, of the Oriental, has returned home again from Florida, where he accompanied Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, who went there to recoup her failing health. The friends of Mrs. McIntyre will rejoice to know that she has improved greatly since arriving in Florida. She will remain there for some time to come.

British Extradition Treaty

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—The is little chauce of the British extradition treaty being ratified by the Senate at the present session. Considerable opposition has developed.

Gas Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 22.—An explosion of natural gas at the Black Diamond steel works, late yesterday afternoon, probably fatally burned a workman named James Kerr, and seriously injured five others.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings, in all the Latest Shades. His Prices and Styles are right.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

NEW ECCLESIASTIC BILL.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—A new Ecclesiastic Bill provides that the Bishops of Osnabruck and Limburg shall be authorized to establish a seminary for the scientific training of priests. Objections to the appointment of priests are to be admissible in cases where the persons designated are considered unsuitable from either private or political reasons. The bill has no clause compelling the state to permanently fill clerical posts, nor is the former law relating to the punishment of the clergy included in the bill. The first clauses of the May laws are abolished. Only those orders are re-admitted which devote themselves simply to religious or charitable duties.

MANY SECOND BALLOTS.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—Metz elected Antonee, anti-German; Siegen returned Stocker. A feature of the elections was an unusual number of second ballots, a fact which proves the closeness of the contests. The result in Hamburg is a triumph for the Social Democrats, two of whose candidates are returned by large majorities. In the third Hamburg division the Socialist candidate is ahead but a second ballot is necessary.

THE SPEAKER AND DILLON.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Mr. Gladstone was received in silence upon his re-appearing in the House of Commons last night. He postponed attacking the Speaker's recent ruling against Mr. Dillon, making only a side reference to his intention of discussing the subject in future with the view of effecting a modification of the ruling. After Mr. Gladstone had concluded the House became empty.

PROPOSAL BY GLADSTONIANS.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Gladstonians have decided to make a proposol in favor of the cloture by a simple majority, but will not make an amendment embodying the proposal. The Telegraph says that the report of the Irish Land Commission recommends a revision of judical rents every five years, and an extention of the Ashbourne Act by advancing the whole amount to tenants desirous of acquiring their holdings. These advantages, however, are applicable to only certain classes of lease holders.

PEACE-MAKER DILLON.

DUBLIN, Feb. 22.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has decided to remove Sir Thomas Esmonde from the office of high sheriff to Waterford for his share in the Nationalist demonstration. In the trial of the traversers, yesterday, Mr. Walker, on behalf of Mr. Dillon, urged that the latter had interested himself to prevent evictions and the crimes resulting therefrom by trying to obtain reductions in rent. There was nothing secret in his conduct, and the Government appeared to be working on parallel lines. Counsel for other traversers made similar arguments.

GERMAN ELECTIONS.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The results in seventy-one election districts are known. In 22 of these districts new elections will be necessary; in 12 of these the contest will be between Socialists and the Septennists; in five between the New German Liberals and the Septennists; in 2 between the Centreists and the Septennists; in one between the Centreists and the Democrats; in one between the Socialists and the new German Liberals, and in one between the New German Liberals and the Conservatives. Among the candidates returned are four Centreists, twenty National Liberals, three Socialists, two Imperialists, four Conservatives, one Guelph, one new German Liberal and twelve Alsatians, including Herren, Cable and Antoine. The other candidates of the Protestor party, who were renominated, have been re-elected. Herr Richter is the only new German Liberal yet re-elected.

THE SITUATION IN EUROPE.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—A leaflet recently issued by the new German Liberals stated that the question of peace or war did not depend upon whether the peace strength (of the army) to be effective was fixed for three or seven years. The Liegnizer Zeitung referred the statement to Count Von Moltke who telegraphed the following reply:—"The peace effective is certainly the same whether it be sanctioned for seven or three years. But as regards the strength the former term gives more than double the number of trained reserves as compared with the shorter period. With the army there must be permanence. It connot be remoddled every three years in conformity with the Parliamentary resolutions." The National Zeitung says that a number of French Socialists' societies have addressed a manifesto to the partisans in Germany, thus interfering with the electoral struggle, and further that some lodges of American Knights of Labor have issued a manifesto and forwarded contributions to German Socialists, a fact affording fresh evidence that the charter of social democracy is not national, if intentional.

BISMARCK'S CHANCES.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—From present calculations Bismarck will barely obtain a majority for his Septennate Bill. He has already won twenty and the remainder are almost certain to be secured from the wavering centre. It is certain that the Government will not obtain a majority sufficient to adopt the monopoly bills. Herr Windthorst has been re-elected and the Progressists are demoralized. They have met with an unexpected defeat, and have only gained one seat. The Socialists have lost seven and gained three. The total Socialist vote shows an increase of 500,000. The National Liberals have gained nearly as many seats as they have lost.

THIRTY NEW ELECTIONS REQUIRED.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—At this hour the results in one hundred and thirty-three districts are unknown. The candidates elected include seventeen Conservatives, five Imperialists, fourteen Centreists, four new German Liberals, six Socialists and fourteen Poles and Alsatians. In thirty districts new elections will be required. So far one hundred and three candidates have been definitely elected comprising sixty-six Septennists and thirty-seven opponents of the Government.

THE CLOTURE MOTION

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Right Hon. W. H. Smith's motion for cloture provides that a motion for cloture cannot be made by a member without the sanction of the Speaker having been previously obtained, and that such motions must be supported by two hundred members.

THE SEPTENNISTS' PROSPECTS.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The prospects of success of the Septennists are good. A formidable increase in the number of Socialists throughout the empire is a prominent fact. During the day all approaches to the palaces of the Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William and Prince Bismarck were barred by the police.

VOTING IN GERMANY.

BERLIN, Feb. 22.—The net result of the Berlin voting is: Socialist, 90,107, a gain of 22,000; Septennist, 69,878; new German Liberal, 65,884. The Government parties have gained 13,000 votes, and the new German Liberals have lost 5,000. Returns from the provinces show losses by the new German Liberals. Herr Richter's organ the Freisinnige Zeitung, consoles its party by declaring that the Socialists profited by radical disasters. This, however, is not exactly the case. The combined Conservatives and National Liberal supporters of the Septennate secured many seats though there is no clear prospect of their having a working majority, as the Centrists seem to have voted in undiminished numbers. Frockenbrock, Bamberger, Stauffenberg and Gen. Von Moltke are re-elected.

THE SKYE LAND TROUBLES.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Mr. Chamberlain states that he will visit the Isle of Skye during the Easter holidays to enquire personally into the land troubles.

A MAGISTRATE SUSPENDED.

DUBLIN, Feb. 22.—A magistrate named Dunne, of Clare, has been superseded for supporting the plan of campaign.

IRISH LAND COMMISSION.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Telegraph says "The report of the Irish Land Commission recommends a revision of judicial rents every five years and the extension of the Ashbourne Act by advancing the whole amount to tenants desirous of acquiring their holdings. These advantages, however, are applicable to only certain classes of lease holders."

A Would Be Murderer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—John Geltizenaner, a German painter, tried to murder his wife yesterday afternoon, by firing three shots at her. He then threw himself out of a fifth story window, and received injuries from which he died. The shooting was the outcome of family difficulties.

Death of D. Ford Jones.

KINGSTON, Feb. 22.—D. Ford Jones, of Gananoque, died suddenly on Sunday. He sat for South Leeds from 1864 until Confederation, and was returned also in 1874 and 1878. Owing to ill-health he did not again offer himself.

THE VERDICT—The People have decided that Rowse's new prints, ginghams, pillow cottons, towels and tablings, are by far the cheapest in town. Every lady should see them.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1887.

PROPHETS who base their prophecies on their desire not on probabilities are apt to find themselves exposed by the event. This is the calculation that appeared in the London Advertiser before the election:—

	Liberals	Tories
Ontario	52	40
Quebec	35	30
Nova Scotia	16	5
New Brunswick	9	6
P. E. Island	4	2
Manitoba	3	2
B. Columbia	0	6
	116	91

In no Province except Quebec did the Advertiser come even near the mark, and in the Maritime Provinces the figures are about reversed. The treasonable cry of Secession did not work.

A Terrible Confession.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—A confession horrible in its details, and revealing one of the foulest crimes of modern times was made yesterday by the colored woman, Hannah May Tubbs, who was arrested on Monday. The female fiend declares that Wakefield Gaines, whose body was found in the pond near Eddington, was murdered in her house in this city by John Wilson or Walker; that the victim's remains were dismembered by Wilson; that the brute made away with the head, legs and arms, and that she carried the trunk of the body to Eddington to throw them into Mann's pond. Jealously on the part of Gaines and Wilson regarding a pretty mulatto girl named Annie Richardson was the motive for the horrible crime. The woman Tubbs is under arrest and Wilson was captured last night. Gaines and Wilson quarrelled in the house and Gaines was knocked senseless with a chair. Wilson took the body to the cellar and went out and got a butcher's cleaver. He dismembered and beheaded the body while the woman watched the approach to the house. Wilson took the head away wrapped up in paper, and the trunk was wrapped up into a parcel for her to take to Bucks county. Wilson also disposed of the limbs.

A Mad Clergyman.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—The Rev. Charles W. Ward, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Englewood, N. J., in what seems to have been a fit of mental abberation, shot his wife early yesterday morning and fired once without effecting his little daughter. Then he turned his pistol upon himself. Part of his wife's face where the bullet struck is paralyzed and the doctors fear the wound will result in lockjaw. The clergyman's condition is serious, but much less dangerous that that of his wife. Both may recover, but the chances point the other way.

The Fisheries Question.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 23.—It is said that vessel owners here are receiving enquiries from the government enquiring as to the capacity of their boats for carrying troops across the lakes in case of necessity. This fact has revived the warlike talk here.

THE LATEST RETURNS show that Rowse's Trade Palace takes the lead in selling white and factory cottons and sheetings. They are selling 25 yards of cotton for $1.00. Call and get a dollars worth at Rowse's.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF.

History repeats itself. On the 21st June 1882, the following were the headings published in the Star recording the elections: "The Elections—The National Policy Sustained—Conservatives Victorious—Sir John Macdonald Elected in Two Constituencies." The same would fill the bill to-day exactly. —Montreal Star (Indep.)

HE WAS.

Tuesday, February 22, the date fixed for the Dominion election, is also Shrove Tuesday. Probably Sir John Macdonald in choosing this date was influenced by the knowledge that Lent begins on the following day, and is a period of mourning and humiliation.—Ottawa Free Press.

ABOUT THE REJOICING.

One of the most satisfactory things in this vale of tears is to share fully the satisfaction of one's friends on election night. On this occasion the Liberals are going to do the rejoicing—no mistake about that. —Toronto Globe.

DISASTER FOR THE TORIES.

The indications point to a disaster such as the Tory party has only once before suffered in Canada, in 1874. Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario are expected, confidently, to give a majority against the Tories, and from the Northwest Territories, Manitoba and British Columbia the Liberals expect a good delegation.—Kingston Whig, Feb. 21.

SUCCESS FOR THE LIBERALS.

The situation in Ontario shows the certainty of a Liberal majority of 20 in that Province. In the judgment of the best informed politicians the Province of Quebec may be counted upon to give the Opposition a majority of 20. Prince Edward Island will be swept by the Opposition. Nova Scotia will send two thirds of her representation to oppose the Government. New Brunswick, which the Government counted upon to increase their former majority, is going back on them badly, and the chances are good for the defeat of both the New Brunswick Ministers.—Montreal Herald, Feb. 21.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

A TAME FOX.

Like the Duke of Richmond Lord Donoraile Suffers Through His Pet.

The following extract from the London Modern Society has a special interest for Canadians recalling the fate of one of our Governors the Duke, of Richmond, who died in August 1819 in great agony from hydophobia caused by the bite of a pet fox. There was no Pasteur with a remedy for this fell disease in those days:—

Lord Donoraile, of Donoraile Court, County Cork, has met with an exceedingly unfortunate mishap. It appears that for some half-dozen years, his lordship has been in possession of a tame fox, which he domesticated as a pet, and used to take out in his walks and drives like a favourite dog. A little while ago the creature was attacked with rabies; and while accompanying his master as usual, during a drive, it made a spring towards upwards and snapped at his hand. The teeth went sharply through glove and flesh, inflicting a severe wound; and the furious animal turned next upon the coachman, and bit him also in the hand and foot. Only a few days after the brute died, and an examination of the body proved it to be a case of acute rabies. Lord Donoraile then decided to apply to M. Pasteur, for inoculation with preventive virus, and he and his coachman have repaired to Paris, where Pasteur's assistant, Dr. Grandier, is at present operating during M. Pasteur's stay at Bordighera. This shows a courageous faith in the inoculation system, for Paris is still ablaze with angry criticism of M. Pasteur's treatment, many people alleging that it kills as many cases as it cures. On the other hand, the "Pasteurians" are numerous and enthusiastic in their conviction that a real preventive measure has been discovered against hydrophobia, and this case, with an Irish peer as patient, will be watched with great interest.

SECURITIES BOOMING.

The Endorsation of the National Policy Sends Stocks up Several Points.

The result of the election has had a most marked effect on the local stock market, all bank stock, cotton shares, and general securities advancing from two to eight points. All stocks are very active, and there is a boom, for which credit must be given to the endorsation of the National Policy by the electorate. The result of the elections has begot more confidence in financial circles, which had been dull and unquiet for a week at least preceding the elections.

Among some of the advances were: Montreal 249¾ from 246¾; Richelieu up one point, Hochelaga cotton up 4 points. Canada cotton up 4 points, Montreal cotton five points, Merchants Bank up 2½ points. Several large blocks of sugar stocks which had been thrown on the market on Tuesday for sale, the holders fearing the return of the Grits, were next morning withdrawn.—Montreal Star.

The World's Greatest Faster.

WABASH, Ind., Feb. 23.—Information has been received of a change in the condition of Mary Baker, the fasting girl of Monon, White County. On the 116th day of the fast it was found that she could retain water on her stomach, and since then she has taken food in moderate quantities and is improving rapidly. Her fast is regarded by medical men as the most wonderful on record, as she is said to have neither eaten nor drunk during the long period named. The change in her condition took place when death was expected.

THE FISHERY DISPUTE.

The State Department Bill Adopted by the Representatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23.—After an animated discussion in the House to-day, the State Department Bill, authorizing the President of the United States to protect and defend the rights of American fishing vessels, American fishermen, and American trading and other vessels in certain cases passed by a vote of 252 to 1. Mr. Dougherty, of Florida, voting against it.

The following amendment, submitted by Mr. Dingley, of Maine, was accepted and attached to the bill. It provides that any vessel of foreign nationality or ownership within the meaning of the term "vessel," as defined in section three of the revised statutes, found engaged in taking fish of any kind within three marine miles of any of the marine coasts, bays, creeks or harbors of the United States or within lake or river waters of the United States, shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture and to proceedings to enforce said forfeiture, and any person employed or with such vessel found taking fish of any kind in such waters shall be liable to a fine of $50 for every such offence, and said penalty shall be a lien upon the vessel in connection with which such person is employed, to recover which penalty such vessel shall be subject to libel. That the penalties and forfeitures hereinbefore described may be remitted or mitigated by the Secretary of the Treasury when incurred without wilful disregard of the law, under such regulations and modes of ascertaining the facts as may seem to him advisable.

Briefly the bill provides that the President, by proclamation, shall prohibit vessels owned wholly or in part by a subject of Great Britain from entering ports of the United States whenever America vessels are denied the rights which they are entitled to by treaty or by the law of nations. The President can also forbid the enterance on importation by land or water into the United States of any goods, wares or merchandise or any locomotive, car or other vehicle with any goods contained therein from the Dominion of Canada.

The debate was spirited and at times acrimonious. The Democratic members of the Foreign Affairs Committee favored the State Department bill, and out of the eight members six of them made speeches.

The measure will now go the Senate, who will disagree with to it and insist on their bill. A conference will be asked on the two bills, and a measure embodying the principal features of each will probably be agreed to. That some retaliation bill will become a law at this session is a foregone conclusion. Its exact purport and its terms, at this writing, cannot of course be defined. The bill passed to-day is in accord with the views of the Administration, and as it is not a political matter a compromise will be agreed upon.

KING GEORGE OF GREECE.

How the Hellene's Lively Fancy Bridges Over 2,000.

King George was a very mild young man and, like the curate in the Bab Ballads, he has been "in mildness daily growing." Fair and slim, with gentle blue eyes, nice manners, a natural affability, a quiet, grave voice, and a disposition that was evidently and studious—he was quite a pattern young prince. On State occasion, when he stood in his blue uniform and sky-blue ribbon of the Order of the redeemer, in the midst of his swarthy-faced, hook-nosed, hawk-eyed ministers, perfects deputies, his fresh, innocent features lent almost an air of respectibility to the whole self-seeking crew.

The first night of the Ægean's blue waters pleased him vastly. He had a handsome palace, pretty villa at the Piræus, delightful gardens, plenty of money and most agreeable tutors, who taught him Greek, both ancient and modern. There is not a more entertaining creature than the well educated, enthusiastic Hellen, who believes himself to be descended in direct line from the race that probuced Homer, Socrates, Demosthenes, Pericles and Solon.

This Hellene's lively fancy easily bridges over the 2,000 year intervening between the date of Greece's decline and its nineteenth century resurrection; so that he will assure you that some general who has had a border skirmish with the Turks without running away has the very face of Leonidas, and will further allude to some minister who is temporarily holding office, and from whom he expects a small government post, as a true son of Lycurgus. But this kind of talk is refreshing as champagne, and, administered in copious draughts to a receptive young man like King George, kept him for a time in hopeful, happy excitement.—Temple Bar.

Buried in a Trance.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 23.—Cora Stickney, a young girl of this place, was supposed to have died three weeks ago and her body was placed in a vault. It was subsequently removed to her mother's house and an attempt was made to restore her to life by prayer. Dr. Palmer, a reputable physician of this city, says in speaking of the case:—"Though the body was kept in that warm room for two weeks there was no traces of decomposition. A peculiarity was that anywhere on the body of the skin might be pitted by the pressure. The place where the finger left a mark would fill up red. On the advice of two other physicians I built up a warm fire and kept the body warm. There was no change until yesterday morning, when sounds were heard in the throat of the girl, and soon afterwards it was noticed that the body was decaying rapidly. I believe that up to that time the girl had been in a trance state. When the girl was first thought to have died there was water about the heart, and when she was in the vault it froze. When the body was warmed up and signs of returning life were perceived, this water interfered with the action of the heart, and it had to stop, although it had commenced beating.

Saved from the Wreck.

If the delicate organization of women gets out of order, prompt application of remedial agents is required to save it from total wreck. In all such cases, whether to assist nature in the discharge of her functions, or to repair damages caused by disease of special organs, there is no remedy so mild, and yet so effective, as Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," prepared at the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., and administered for many years to thousands of patients with the happiest results.

HOW PRICES WERE EFFECTED.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Stock Exchange closed strong last evening under the influence of the assumed result of the German elections in favor of peace. On the Paris Bourse prices were very firm and at the close were the highest of the day. The result of the German elections was the chief cause of the improvement. The rise was assisted by large buying done by a powerful syndicate. Rumors were current of the formation of a new French Cabinet, of which General Boulanger would not be a member.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The sentence of Duval, an Anarchist, who was condemned to death, has been commuted to eight years' imprisonment.

REINFORCEMENTS.

ROME, Feb. 23.—It is stated that Count Robilant and General Viale only joined the new Italian ministry on the condition that 10,000 troops should be despatched to occupy points in the vicinity of Massowah.

HEALY'S POINT.

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—In the trial of the travessers in Dublin yesterday, Mr. Healy spoke on behalf of Mr. O'Brien. He submitted that no proof had been offered that money handed over to the traversers by tenants was rent money.

PLOT IN RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 23.—The arrests in connection with the recently discovered military plot in Russia continue at St. Petersburg and elsewhere in the interior. The object of the conspirators was to create discontent in the army and navy over the peace policy of the Government.

GERMANY AS MEDIATOR.

ROME, Feb. 23.—It is reported that in return for the Pope's recent friendship, Germany has consented to act as mediator between the Italian Government and the Vatican. The Vatican's proposal is that a part of Rome, including the Leonine city and a zone of territory extending from the Vatican to the sea by Civita Vecchia, shall become the absolute property of the Pope.

EARTHQUAKES AT NICE.

ROME, Feb. 23.—Two shocks of earthquake were felt at Nice at 6 o'clock this morning. The earth rocked, walls cracked, and in some cases frail tenements were thrown to the ground. People rushed from their houses and fell upon their knees in the streets, praying for deliverance from sudnen death. Visitors to the city have become thoroughly frightened and are leaving the place. Many persons were injured by falling debris. Much alarm was felt lest there be a recurrence of the shock. The Prince of Wales, who was in Nice a few days ago witnessing the festivals which precede the Lenton season, had taken his departure and was safe at Cannes. The shocks were also felt at Monte Carlo and Monaco, at which places they were so severe that rocks were detached from the cliffs and precipitated into the sea. The disturbances extended as far as Genoa.

HIS SUCCESSOR.

DUBLIN, Feb. 23.—Col. Hillier has been appointed High Sheriff of Waterford, in place of Sir Thos. Esmonde, who was removed by the Dublin Castle authorities for his advocacy of the Nationalists' cause.

THE KAISER'S FINE CAVALRY.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—Prince William yesterday entertained the British military attache and a party of British officers at the inspection of the Hussars at Potsdam. The visitors had hearty praise for everything they saw.

CANADA'S PROPOSALS.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir James Ferguson declined to explain the tenor of the despatch from the Canadian government suggesting a modus vivendi for a settlement of the fisheries dispute with the United States. He promised to publish the despatch when the Government deemed it expedient. He also announced that the French posts in New Hebrides would be reduced. The French government, instead of erecting new forts as has been stated, was making arrangements for the withdrawal of the garrisons already there.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Advices from Nice at noon, say that many casualties have been caused by the earthquake there this morning.

NEWSPAPER JUBILATION.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The newspapers of this city are jubilant over the result of the election in Alsace Lorraine. They say that Germany is not able to obtain the hearts of the inhabitants of the annexed provinces.

RUSSIA AND BULGARIA.

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—Diplomats here surmise that the statements of the Russian press, that Russia will abstain from action in Bulgaria until the relations between France and Germany become more clearly defined, are intended to divert the attention of the powers from Bulgaria, where startling surprises may be apprehended.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—President Grevy, or rather his master of the ceremonies, has narrowly escaped giving Germany a pretext for war. By some mishap in the invitations to the last ball at the Elysee, the military attaches of the German Embassy were quite forgotten. Count Munster at once asked what it meant, and a special envoy had to be sent to him to explain the oversight. The real danger of war in Europe consists in the immense armies that are at the disposal of the Continental powers. They have about six million men trained to arms. The cost of this is crushing, and either they must reduce their armaments or they will have to bring this armed peace to a termination by a war. They are too distrustful of each other to do the former; therefore, sooner or later a fire will be generated by this accumulation of combustible material.

THE CLOTURE.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The debate on the new procedure rules was continued in the Commons last evening. Lord Hartington advocated the limiting of individual speeches, and applying the cloture by a bare majority, but he promised to give a general support to the Government proposals. The Hon. Wm. H. Smith tried to induce the House to close the debate, but a number of Gladstonians and Parnellites insisted upon prolonging the discussion. The debate will probably terminate to-day.

ROGUS CANDIDATES.

Mr. Blake has confessed on a public platform at Bowmanville that he obtained money from his friends and paid a large portion of it as deposits in Conservative constituencies, where there was no chance of success, in order to induce Reformers to pose as bogus candidates, so as to deceive the people by making them believe these were genuine contests, instead of elections by acclamation. The law provides that a candidate shall deposit $200 to be forfeited if he does not receive a third of the votes polled. This legislation was intended to deter candidates from putting the electors to trouble and expense out of mere factiousness, and without a hope of success. Mr. Blake undertook to over-ride this law, and to inconvenience unnecessarily the people with the object of enabling his organs to make false representations as to the elections by acclamation, in order to influence those electors who like to be on the winning side. As Mr. Blake has confessed to this crooked conduct, perhaps he will now explain the reported payment of these deposits in United States gold.

The Globe performs some strange feats in its desire to minimize the Ministerial majority. It states that the Conservative and Liberal gains exactly balance each other in Ontario, yet that the Opposition is better off in Ontario than before. Three of the Quebec members whom it now calls Opposition, is classed as Ministerialists on the day of nomination, and it was then right, for they all declare themselves supporters of Sir John Macdonald. No less than 10 of the constituencies it claims as Liberal gains in Quebec and one in Ontario are represented by the very same men whom the Globe classified as Tories in 1882, because they have since differed from their old party on one point. It would be tedious to point out all its inconsistencies and contradictions.

In examining the list of defeated candidates it is certainly gratifying to find that Messrs. Jones, Vail, Anglin, and M. C. Cameron are longer to disgrace the Canadian House of Commons. They had all placed themselves outside the rank of honest men, by treason, corruption or slander. On the Conservative side there is reason to regret the want of success of Messrs. Manmaster, Blackstock and Ermatinger in Ontario, Gen. Laurier in Nova Scotia and Major Boulton in Manitoba, for they would have made useful representatives.

We have been very careful in classifying the newly elected members, not to overstate the case in favour of our friends. In fact we may have erred on the other side by understating it, a supposition in which we are confirmed by the fact that the local Reform journal in its returns the day after the election made the Ministerial majority 25, or 10 better than our own count of 25.

The result of the elections for the city of Ottawa shows how utterly unfounded was the claim of the Reformers after the Provincial elections that the Dominion capital had deserted the Conservatives. The sectional cries and tricks that had a temporary effect in December could not succeed again with those who had been once deluded.

BISMARCK VICTORIOUS.

The Majority Elected Blindly Devoted to His Policy.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—The almost total annihilation of the Liberals is attributed to Herr Richter's bitter opposition to Bismarck on every possible point, and to his venturing to pose as a military authority against Generals Von Moltke and Von Schellendorf. The second ballots will be decided early in March to enable the Reichstag to meet about the 10th of that month. Herren Stauffenberg and Rickert have both to submit to a second ballot. The elections passed off quietly everywhere, except at Salza near Nordhausen, where there was some rotting.

The Government press every where jubilantly predicts that the new house will be completely submissive to the Chancellor. The Socialist gains in Berlin are offset by losses in the provinces. This party is especially chagrined at the Imperialist success in Saxony, which has always been considered the Socialist's stronghold, but where seven seats were lost to the Imperialists. The Socialists are still hopeful that supplementary ballots will make the number of their party equal to the number in the last Reichstag.

The Tagblatt says: "If the septennate means peace, we may now go quietly to bed. Prince Bismarck has obtained a blindly devoted majority. An analysis shows that 70 per cent. of those entitled to vote went to the polls, against the 63 per cent. which was the average in the last decade, and only 52 per cent. which was the average polled in 1871."

The Novchrichten says:—"If a conclusion can be drawn from the general summary of results the prospects of the National parties are decidedly favorable. The sound sense of the German people has met the disgraceful experiments in agitation of the apostles of revolution with a resistance which was evidently not expected by the allied opposition parties. Accordingly among the latter there prevails a general disappointment. Among new German Liberals a feeling of intense dismay is plainly discerned. If the outcome of the elections is such as to leave our enemies in no doubt as to the fact that we are firmly determined to defend ourselves to the utmost for the protection of our fatherland, and are ready to make all the sacrifices which the Emperor asks of them, the maintenance of peace is perhaps secured."

Bismarck's most galling rebuff is in Alsace-Lorraine. It is known that he looked forward to the results there with the keenest anxiety to see whether the people had become more reconciled to German rule.

A VIRGINIA DUEL.

A Hard Fight With Swords for the Richest Heiress in the State.

Mrs. Henry Nevil, nee Dulaney, the richest heiress in Virginia, has taken up her residence in the aristocratic old town of Alexandria, Va., for the winter. She is often seen on the street with her husband, the handsome young Irishman who won her at the point of the sword, and the pair are much admired. Their presence here has set people to talking about the famous sword contest, in which Nevil showed himself to be the finest fencer in the South, and by which he won his bride and great wealth. It occurred some ten years ago. Miss Dulaney was then the belle of this part of Virginia. Her father, Col. Hal Dulaney, was worth $5,000,000, and the daughter was to inherit half of the amount. As she was beautiful as well as wealthy, there were many suitors for her hand. Among them the two most favoured were a young Englishman named Randolph, who was an officer in her Majesty's Household Guards, and Harry Nevil, an Irishman who had fought in the French and Austrian armies. Both were handsome, manly fellows, though not burdened with riches, and for a time their chances seemed about equal.

It soon becomes evident that they hated each other very cordially, and all tidewater Virginia awaited the result of the contest for Miss Dulaney's smiles. As both were very high tempered and familiar with the use of weapons, the lady had a hard time to keep them from venting their hatred in a bloody way. One evening the three were in the drawing-room together. The rivals addressed each other only when absolutely necessary, and then with smothered anger in their tones.

Finally Miss Dulaney got tired of that sort of thing and said laughingly:—"Why don't you go out and have a good fight, instead of snarling at each other always?"

"We will do it," they exclaimed in one breath. The lady continued the conversation in a bantering tone, not dreaming that the men were in earnest. Next day, however, she discovered that they had actually adopted her laughing suggestion.

When the rivals left the house they at once arranged the preliminaries for a duel. A meeting place was selected just off the Dulaney estate, the time fixed upon was the following morning at sunrise, and swords were chosen as weapons. At the time agreed upon they met with their seconds, and there ensued the most bloody duel that has ever taken place on Virginia soil. It was evident from the beginning that Nevil was the more expert swordsman on account of his experience in the French army. Randolph handled the sword well, too, but lacked the grace and facility of movement of his opponent. Moreover, the Englishman was very much excited. As they faced each other they exchanged glances, which meant plainly a fight to the death.

Then they set to, Randolph striking fiercely and wildly at his enemy, while the Irishman coolly took the defence, parrying his blows with ease and awaiting his chance for a thrust. It came at last, and he neatly removed a large piece of Randolph's ear. The pain seemed to madden the Englishman and he bore down on his enemy with indiscrete desperation. Nevile quietly got in another stroke, which mutilated the Englishman's nose. The rest of the fight was rough and tumble on Randolph's part, while Nevil did not lose his presence of mind. He disabled the Englishman by getting in a thrust on his sword arm. He did this merely to prevent downright murder, for he knew he could take Randolph apart piece by piece without injury to himself, and he knew, too, that Randolph would die rather than yield as long as he could hold a sword.

Miss Dulaney was sorry for Randolph's misfortune, but she smiled more than ever on Nevil, whom, it turned out, she had loved all the time. Three months afterward Randolph rose from his sick bed disfigured for life, left the country, and has not been heard from since. About the same time Nevil and Miss Dulaney were married.—Charleston News and Courier.

A VOLCANO IN HONOLULU

Becomes Suddenly Active and is Accompanied by Earthquake.

San Francisco, Feb. 23.—Advices from Honolulu give details of the eruption of the volcano Mauna Loa. The eruption began on January 16, when a volume of fire shot up from the south crater. Nothing more took place for two days. Then suddenly the whole district around the volcano was kept in tremulous motion by an almost constant succession of heavy earthquake shocks. One coolheaded observer kept a record which showed 383 shocks in 36 hours. Nothing was seen of lava until January 18th, as it found an underground passage. On that day, however, it broke into view and three great rivers of molten lava took their course to the sea. One stream reached the ocean in two days and the others were reported not far behind in their course. They wiped out plantations, houses, etc., but so far as learned caused no loss of life, as the natives and foreigners received timely warning and abandoned their places. The path of the lava is through a thickly settled region and the damage is great. The loss from the earthquake is also heavy, as many walls and buildings were shaken down. On the night of January 19, the terror of the inhabitants was great, as they feared that a tidal wave would follow the shocks. The natives and Portuguese gathered about the little church at Punalula, praying for deliverance. A second eruption broke out February 7th, and the lava had begun to flow when the steamer sailed.

Chamberlain and Gladstone.

New York, Feb. 23.—The Star's London special says: Mr. Chamberlain has handed to Mr. Gladstone a memorandum of his idea of an Irish Home Rule measure. Later on Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain met at the Devonshire Club and had a long interview on the subject of the latter's scheme. It is understood that Mr. Gladstone, without committing himself, suggested to Mr. Chamberlain that he should see Sir Wm. Harcourt, and Mr. Chamberlain soon after met Sir William and had a protracted conversation on the subject. The draft handed to Mr. Gladstone is based on the Canadian legislative system. Mr. Gladstone promised to give the scheme his careful attention. His leading supporters however, are strongly opposed to it. The Nationalist members, who have been consulted as to the chances of Irish acceptance of Mr. Chamberlain's plan, have pronounced decisively against it. The fact that Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain have renewed personal relations is regarded by many Liberals with satisfaction and they hope the new turn of affairs will lead to better results than round table conferences.

Opinions About Lockjaw.

At a recent meeting of the French Surgeons' congress a most interesting discussion on the subject of lockjaw called forth a number of differing opinions. According to M. Vasiln, of Angers, it is a purely nervous disease. In one case, under his own observation, it was due to emotional causes and was cured by chloral and morphine. Prof. Balestreri, of Genoa, concurred with M. Vasiln. Professor Thirier, of Brussels, on the other hand, believed lockjaw to be contagious and of a parasitic nature. M. Maunowry had been unable to learn from veterinarians of a single case in which the disease was communicated from one animal to another. Prof. Verneuil, of Paris, believed firmly in the contagiousness of lockjaw and thinks it can be contracted by man from the horse. He said that human beings are often attacked with lock-jaw when living near animals thus effected, and that it often follows horse bites. Wounds that have come in contact with earth and straw soiled by horses are more liable than others to be accompanied by lockjaw, and the disease is frequent among stable boys and horse dealers. M. Blanc thought the disease to be contagious and sometimes communicated through infected water.

CARRISTON'S GIFT.

BY HUGH CONWAY.

Author of "Called Back," "Dark Days," "A Family Affair," Etc.

DR. BRAND IN CONCLUSION.

When I asked Dick Fenton to relate his experiences I did not mean him to do so at such length. But there, as he has written it, and as writing is not a labor of love with him, let it go.

When Madeline Rowan found the bed, by the side of which she had thrown herself in an ecstasy of grief, untenanted, she knew in a moment that she was the victim of a deep-laid plot. Being ignorant of Carriston's true position in the world, she could conceive no reason for the elaborate scheme which had been devised to lure her so many miles from her home, and make a prisoner of her.

A prisoner she was. Not only was the door locked upon her, but a slip of paper lay on the bed. It bore these words: "No harm is meant you, and in due time you will be released. Ask no questions, make no foolish attempts at escape, and you will be well treated."

Upon reading this the girl's first thought was one of thankfulness. She saw at once that the reported accident to her lover was but an invention. The probabilities were that Carriston was alive, and in his usual health. Now that she felt certain of this, she could bear anything.

From the day on which she entered that room to that on which we rescued her Madeline was to all intents and purposes as close a prisoner in that lonely house on the hill-side as she might have been in the deepest dungeon in the world. Threats, entreaties, promises of bribes availed nothing. She was not unkindly treated—that is, suffered no absolute ill-usage. Books, materials for needlework and other little aids to while away time were supplied. But the only living creatures she saw were the woman of the house, who attended to her wants, and, on one or two occasions, the man whom Carriston asserted he had seen in his trance. She had suffered from the close confinement, but had always felt certain that sooner or later her lover would find her, and effect her deliverance. Now that she knew he was alive she could not be unhappy.

I did not choose to ask her why she had felt so certain on the above points. I wished to add no more puzzles to the one which, to tell the truth, exercised, even annoyed, me more than I care to say. But I did ask her if, during her incarceration, her jailer had ever laid his hand upon her.

She told me that some short time after her arrival a stranger had gained admittance to the house. While he was there the man had entered her room, held her arm, and threatened her with violence if she made any outcry. After hearing this I did not pursue the subject.

Carriston and Madeline were married at the earliest possible moment, and left England immediately after the ceremony. A week after their departure, by Carriston's request, I forwarded the envelope found upon our prisoner to Mr. Ralph Carriston. With it I sent a few lines stating where and under what peculiar circumstances we had become possessed of it. I never received any reply to my communication, so, wild and improbable as it seems, I am bound to believe that Charles Carriston's surmise was right—that Madeline was decoyed away and concealed, not from any ill-will towards herself, but with a view to the possible baneful effect which her mysterious disappearance might work upon her lover's strange and excitable organization; and I firmly believe that had he not in some inexplicable way been firmly convinced that she was alive and faithful to him the plot would have been a thorough success, and Charles Carriston would have spent the rest of his days in an asylum.

Both Sir Charles—he succeeded to his title shortly after his marriage—and Lady Carriston are now dead, or I should not have ventured to relate these things concerning them. They had twelve years of happiness. If measured by time the period was but a short one; but I feel sure that in it they enjoyed more true happiness than many others find in the course of a protracted life. In word, thought and deed they were as one. She died, in Rome, of fever, and her husband, without, so far as I know, any particular complaint, simply followed her.

I was always honored with their sincerest friendship, and Sir Charles left me sole trustee and guardian to his three sons; so there are now plenty of lives between Ralph Carriston and his desire. I am pleased to say that the boys, who are as dear to me as my own children, as yet show no evidence of possessing any gifts beyond Nature.

I know that my having made this story public will cause two sets of objectors to fall equally foul of me—the matter-of-fact prosaic who will say that the abduction and subsequent imprisonment of Madeline Rowan was an absurd impossibility, and the scientific man, like myself, who cannot, dare not believe that Charles Carriston, from neither memory nor imagination, could draw a face, and describe peculiarities, by which a certain man could be identified. I am far from saying there may not be a simple natural explanation of the puzzle, but I, for one, have failed to find it, so close this tale as I began it by saying I am a narrator, and nothing more.

THE END.

The First Jewish Peer.

[New York Tribune.]

The elevation of Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild to the British peerage is in many respects significant. Mr. Gladstone has the credit of creating the first Jewish peer; for though Lord Beaconsfield was a Jew by race, he was not a professor of the Hebrew faith, and, in fact, has done what was possible to efface his connection with his own people. But the Rothschilds represent Hebraism all over the world, and their family has for many years been doing the actual fighting against the venerable prejudices which for so many centuries refused to the Jews throughout Europe either social or political positions. Even in this age of toleration it has taken more than a generation to conquer inherited antipathies; but it is instructive to observe that in England the house of lords has always been behind the commons in this as in so many other points. Thus when in 1848, Baron Lionel de Rothschild was returned to the house from London, and being refused his seat the Jews' oaths of abjuration bill was introduced to remove his disabilities, the bill passed the house, but was rejected by the lords, and in 1855 and 1859 the same measures repeatedly passed the house, only to be as steadily thrown out by the upper chamber.

But it was not until 1871, after the abolition of tests, that a Jew was made master of arts at Oxford; and even when Disraeli was premier of England and in the zenith of his reputation there is reason to believe that he declined a peerage in favor of his wife, not because he did not desire the honor, but because he feared the political effect of his elevation. At a later period he accepted the distinction, though there was much grumbling among the Conservative peers, but he was not regarded as a thorough Jew.

The elevation of Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild, therefore, marks a decided advance. It must be concluded that the old prejudices have nearly disappeared. For though the special distinction of the Rothschilds is their financial position, and though this has often enabled them to control the course of powerful governments and to command at least the outward show of homage and respect from the haughtiest aristocracy, their Judaism has always been strongly marked, and they have never made any concessions in that particular.

is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Possesses the greatest possible power to heal and control affections of the throat and lungs, with absolute safety for children or adults. The experience of years has proven it to be of inestimable value as a household medicine, and for professional use. Thousands of physicians and families testify to its great worth. Jas. E. Moling, Hilliard, Ohio, writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for twelve years, and have found that, as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, or Sore Throats, it

Is Unequaled.

J. I. Miller, editor of the "Lutheran Home," Luray, Va., writes: "I advertise nothing that I do not know to be good. I was saved from the grave, I am sure, by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and have recommended it to others with the happiest results." L. J. Addison, M. D., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice in medicine, any preparation of so great value as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs; and I constantly recommend it to my patients. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is effective in relieving the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

John J. Uhlman, Brooklyn, N.S., writes: "Twelve years ago, I was afflicted with a severe bronchial trouble, pronounced by a skilful physician to be very dangerous, and liable to terminate in Pneumonia. After using one bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I found great relief, and an occasional use of it since that time has, I think, extended my life ten years at least." Mrs. V. M. Thebaud, Montreal, Canada, writes: "Last spring my daughter was attacked by membraneous croup, or diphtheria. The doctor prescribed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which cured her of the diphtheria. Being still very weak and sick, she began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which restored her to vigorous health."

Personal.

Mr. Charles James, of the Gospel Purity Association, London, Eng., will be here on the 2nd and 3rd of march. He will lecture on Social Purity. He will be accompanied by Mr. T. J. Coockson.

Coming.

Dr. Potts, who visits our town regularly every month, will be at the Croft House during Wednesday and Thursday of this week to receive patents suffering from chronic diseases who may wish to consult him. All are invited to call early.

The Financial Rink.

No. 5 rink of the Granites who played here on Wednesday was made up of prominent Toronto financiers. Mr. E. B. Osler is of the firm of Osler & Hammond, brokers; Mr. G. G. S. Bethune, of the Farmers' Loan and Savings Company; Mr. D. R. Wilkie is cashier in the Imperial Bank, and Mr. R. H. Bethune, cashier of the Dominion Bank.

South Monaghan.

In the report of the meeting in the Opera House on Tuesday evening the name of Mr. T. M. Willan, of South Monaghan, was unfortunately omitted as one of those who addressed the meeting. Mr. Willan worked hard and steady during the campaign, and it is due largely to his efforts that the majority in South Monaghan was not larger than it was. Mr. Willan exposed the misrepresentation and trickery he had to fight against.

The first shipment of Boys' Clothing for Spring has arrived at Turnbull's. The Styles are New and Quality the best in the market.

Surprise Party.

At about 8 o'clock on Monday evening about 25 members of Mr. A. T. Emmerson's Sunday School class, counting ladies and gentlemen, assembled and marched to his residence on Division street where a very enjoyable evening was spent. Vocal and instrumental music, recitations and conversation occupied the company until about 11 o'clock, when one of the members came forward with a large and elegant family Bible and presented it to Mr Emmerson on behalf of the class, as a token of respect and love with a short but very appropriate address. Mr. Emmerson was taken wholy by surprise. After a few moments silence, he replied in a few well chosen words expressive of the deep pleasure which they had given him. The meeting closed with prayer all present going away much benefitted.

The Band.

The attack of an anonymous correspondent upon the Fire Brigade Band was uncalled for and his statements about as near the truth as the signature "Neutral" which he appended to the letter. The members of the band may be, as they have a right to be, adherents or supporters of a political party, but to say that they were bound to go out and lead a party procession last December without that party informing them of the result of the election, or intimating in any way that their services were desired, is foolish. The band at that time was ready to go out when asked, and not being communicated with did not go; on Tuesday night they were again ready, were at once notified and turned out. As an organization the band has not shown a partisan spirit and should not be assailed as they have been more than once, without cause and anonymously in print.

Complimentary Supper.

The Belleville Intelligencer of a recent date says:—"Mr. R. M. Roy, for many years past a resident of Belleville, has been compelled, by the force of circumstances, to remove to Peterborough. Having recently been promoted in the service of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, this was necessary in order to be near the centre of his field of duty. During his long residence here he was foremost in yachting and dramatic circles. He promoted these interests so vigorously that he became almost indispensable when anything pertaining to them was undertaken. Belleville Lodge, No. 81, I. O. O. F., composed of many of those who had known Mr. Roy in this connection, and of which he is a Past Vice-Grand, tendered him a complimentary supper last evening in the rooms connected with the lodge. About fifty of Mr. Roy's friends sat down to the oysters and other dainties furnished by the Messrs. Dickens, and passed a very pleasant evening in song, speeches and recitations. Bro. Allan McFee, P. G., occupied the chair. The programme was informal, but a hearty good time was spent. While Mr. Roy's friends in this city regret to lose him, they are pleased that his merits have been recognized by the Company and rewarded with promotion."

WON BY EIGHTEEN.

The Return Match Between the Granites and Peterboroughs.

Six rinks from the Granite Curling Club, of Toronto, came to town on Wednesday to play a return match. The Toronto men were escorted to the Charlotte street rink, where dinner was served.

After dinner the play began, resulting in a victory for the home club by 18 shots. The ice was in prime condition. It was done up by a new method, which John Cousins holds as a secret. By a patent way of sprinkling the whole of the rinks were laid out in small squares about an inch on each side.

At the finish of the match supper was served and the Granites went home on the evening train.

The scores made are as follows:—

MARINO SENTENCED

To One Year's Confinement in the Central Prison.

Frank Marino was arraigned at the Court House at twelve o'clock to-day on the charge of having shot Joseph Murphy with intent to kill

The prisoner pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by the Judge.

The evidence was gone into and His Honor Judge Weller passed sentence upon him. He told the prisoner that it was not the custom of this country to carry knives and revolvers. He was determined to punish those who defied the law. If another such case came before him the prisoner need not look for such leniency.

Mr. Wood appeared for the Crown and Mr. O'Meara for the prisoner.

POLICE COURT.

FIGHTING.

THURSDAY, Feb. 24.—W. Smith and Adam Scott were charged by P. C. Pigeon with having fought on the public street. They pleaded not guilty. Some evidence was taken, but it was so mixed up that the Magistrate adjourned the case until to-morrow.

ASSAULT.

J. B. Lefevre, a commercial traveller, charged W. B. Smith with having committed an assault upon him. The row arose from the losing of a heavy bet by the defendant. Mr. W. A. Stratton appeared for the defendant and pleaded guilty. A fine of $5 and $2 costs was imposed.

AGGRAVATED ASSAULT.

J. Dobbin was charged by P. C. Adams with having, on February 13th, committed an aggravated assault upon Joseph Langford, by striking him with an iron poker, contrary to the statute in that behalf. The case was adjourned till Tuesday next.

CAMPBELLFORD.

A CURIOUS BIRD.—Among a number of fowl owned by Mr. W. H. Clark, who resides in the southwestern part of the village, is a small hen that has the appearance of a rooster, and might readily be mistaken for one. She has a large, double rose comb, and some fine, long drooping feathers, resembling those which make up the plumage of the cock bird, and is one of the best layers of the feathered group. She will "steal away her nest," as the saying goes, and it is no unusual thing to find twelve or fourteen eggs, all of the same size and color. This dandy little hen-rooster may be seen on Mr. Clark's premises.

CONCERT.—This event in the Music Hall on Wednesday night of last week, was patronised by a large company, and a handsome sum was realized from it. Among those who assisted were Mrs. Dunsford and Miss Rush, and Mr. Dunn, of Peterborough, whose singing was very much enjoyed and loudly encored. Mrs. Kerr and Mr. Hansen appeared twice in an instrumental duet on piano and violin. The choir of the church contributed in both parts of the programme. Miss Bogart sang "Waiting," and "The Tempest. Mr. Dunn sang "The Gay Hussar," and "Over the Rolling Wave." Mr. H. Chester recited "Fire and Butter," and "The Indian Warrior's Defence." Miss Rush sand "Marguerite," and Mrs. Kerr played a solo on the piano. Mr. John Wenman sang the "Death of Nelson," and Mr. White gave a reading "All Asleep." Mrs. Dunsford and Miss Stapleton appeared in an instrumental duet; and Mrs. Dunsford afterwards sang "Jamie" and gave an instrumental solo. Mr. Roy, of Cobourg, contributed to the concert a cabinet seance, the decapitated head, the book mystery, and the Rhodian Mystery. The concert closed with the singing of the National Anthem.—Herald

WHY IS IT THUS?

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I was greatly surprised when I read a communication in the Examiner of Wednesday's issue in reference to the Fire Brigade Band and the action of its members on the occasion of the election of Mr. James Stevenson, the Conservative candidate. The article in question is composed of silly and untruthful statements from beginning to end. It is alleged that after the December election the band could not "find" their instruments to serenade the successful candidate, Mr. J. R. Stratton. Now, the fact is that the members of the band and myself were in the practice hall for over two hours awaiting the arrival of some of the interested parties in Mr. Stratton's election with the result. But as no one came to give us the necessary information, we did not go. I think the writer of the Examiner's communication has another object in view in rushing into print, otherwise he would have been man enough to come to me for an explanation, and then, if he had any charges against the institution over which I have the honor of presiding, make them boldly like a man, and not try to injure a body of young men that have always been willing to render their services on every public occasion. The writer charges that the band is a "partizan organization, supported and paid by the general town funds." I would respectfully enquire how much this individual gives a year to the maintenance of the band? I venture the assertion that 2¼ mills is the sum total of his contribution every year—nothing more.

F. W. MILLAR,

STREET INSPECTOR.

To the Editor of the Review

SIR,—It is to be hoped that the Town Council will appoint a Street and Bridge Inspector at once, as his services will be needed very much in a short time. In appointing this officer the Council will doubtless have the interest of the town in view, and will not allow their minds to be biased by any other motive than that of benefitting the ratepayers of this town.

There are a great many applicants for this office, and among the number I notice the name of Mr. John Bird, an extensive ratepayer, an energetic, active, shrewd, practical mechanic—a man whom the ratepayers desire to fill this position. Some of our councillors say give this office to a stranger, and we will get better satisfaction. I ask the intelligent ratepayers of this town who will be most likely to protect our interest best, a stranger who has never paid anything into the town treasury, who has no property or interest in the town, a man who can pull up stakes and leave at an hour's notice, or a man whose chief object in applying for this office is to protect his own property from high taxation, a man who has helped to build up the town, and a man whom the ratepayers know to be honest, shrewd, economical and practical? Your answer gives us our own and esteemed brother townsman.

Mr. Bird is a man who will not require to have two or three deputy street and bridge inspectors under him all the time. For nimbleness and activity (important requisites for this position) he can't be beat. He has conducted his own business successfully, we trust him to do ours in the same way. The prominent business men and property owners of this town along with, I believe, a great majority of the ratepayers, are anxious that Mr. Bird should fill this position. He is the man the people want and whom the ratepayers believe will be the means of stopping a vast number of leak holes out of which our money is pouring at a wholesale rate. From $10,000 to $14,000 of our money is spent under this officer's supervision per annum. We want no drone to fill this the most important office in the town. We believe Mr. Bird will, if elected to this position, save thousands of dollars for the town treasury.

Yours, etc.

THE VERDICT—The People have decided that Rowse's new prints, ginghams, pillow cottons, towels and tablings, are by far the cheapest in town. Every lady should see them.

Purity Of Ice.

The state of health of New York has recently published a report on the purity of ice from Onondaga lake, the Erie canal at Syracuse and Cazenovia lake. That from Onondaga lake was regarded as detrimental to health. At the time the inspection of this lake was make there was a margin of from one to four feet wide of black, putrefying organic matter along the shores. The analyses of the ice from this lake showed that it contained probably from 10 to 12 per cent. of the sewage impurities dissolved in the same quantity of unfrozen water of the lake. This ice also showed the presence of bacteria in great abundance, retarded somewhat in their growth by the ice, but not destroyed by it. It is perhaps needless to say that this ice was pronouncing totally unfit for any purposes where it is liable to come in contract with food or drink. The ice from the Erie canal was also condemned, while there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a condemnation of that from Cazenovia lake. The report, valuable for what has already been mentioned, is still more so by reason of the numerous feverences to instances in which impure ice has been the cause of dysentery and other diseases. It also refutes the old idea that all ice must of necessity be pure.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1887.

THE votes in Hamilton where the Conservative candidates and the Reform candidates respectively were nearly equal at the polls, shows that the electors were divided on straight party lines. The "Ambitious City" seems to have its eyes open to the repeated trick of the Reformers in causing the nomination of a labor candidate and then voting Reform, while cajoling Conservative workingmen into supporting the labor candidate, and they can no longer be thus deluded.

AN Ottawa correspondent says that Mr. J. K. Stewart, the Reform candidate in Carleton, "concedes that he has lost his deposit." Probably, however, it will not be his loss, but will be paid by Mr. Blake, possibly in U. S. gold, from the collection he owns he made for such purposes. It should be remembered, however, that the electors of Carleton were put to unnecessary trouble, and the country at large to uncalled for expense, because Mr. Blake, in his partly jealousy of his great political rival, could not bear to see him returned by acclamation. It is a small business for the chief of a party.

Senatorial Rowdyism.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 24.—When Lieut. Governor Robinson took the chair in the Senate this morning, calling attention as he did so the decision of the Supreme Court removing the injunction against him, and reciting that he had been duly elected and qualified, he was promptly denied by chairman Smith, and was finally ordered from the Chamber. Declining to go, he was forcibly ejected by Doorkeeper Pritchard, assisted by others. The Republican Senators came to his rescue and an indiscriminate row approaching a riot ensued. Senator Johnson hit Senator McDonald, blacking his eye and skinning his nose. Other blows were exchanged. Quiet was finally restored and the Republicans returned to their seats but declined to take part in the proceedings alleging that the Senate is unlawfully conducted.

The Murderer Takes Poison.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—George Wilson, a colored youth charged in the confession of Mrs. Mary Tabbs with the murder of Wakefield Gaines, part of whose remains were found in a pond in Bucks County, took poison in his cells at the Central Police Station this morning, and it is thought he will die. The district sergeon is endeavoring to revive him. The discovery was made by the turnkey when he went to the cell to remove the prisoner's breakfast dishes.

A Costly Pair of Gloves.

HAMILTON, Feb. 24.—James Walker and Lewis Lawrence were to-day sentenced to the Central Prison for twelve months for robbing Robert Little of a pair of gloves.

AN AWFUL SURPRISE

Caused by the Earthquake Shocks in Nice and Elsewhere.

ROME, Feb. 24.—At Nice the earthquake shocks caused an awful surprise to the crowds of maskers returning home from the carnival festivals in their fancy costumes, worn and bedraggled by the night exercises, and looking dull and dreary under the glare of the early morning sunlight. The first shock created an immediate panic Women screamed in terror, and there was a wild rush in all directions for safety from what everyone thought to be an awful impending calamity. The barking of dogs and the clanging of church bells added to the momentary terror. The people first rushed to the Church of Notre Dame, and besieged the confessionals, and a dramatic scene was presented of many strong men on their knees praying. Then came the second shock and terror was depicted upon every face. The praying crowds hastened outside for safety. Troops were called out to keep order among the crowds besieging the railways throughout the city.

A SERIOUS PANIC.

NICE, Feb. 24.—Although the earthquake was much less serious in France than in Italy, the panic here has been excessive. The people are depressed by the carnival dissipations, and their imaginations have painted the event in the darkest colors. Exorbitant rates are charged for all conveyances. There is a crush of visitors who desire to leave, fearing a renewal of the shocks. Nobody dares to sleep in the house. Waggons, carriages, ship's cabins and other available conveniences have been secured at high prices, the owners camping out. The streets are filled with people carrying bedding. Visitors have deserted the hotels, and are sitting in long rows of chairs in the street. The belfry of St. Augustin's church, Nice, fell down. The Prince of Wales has gone to Monte Carlo. There are rumors of enormous damage in the mountains, caused by avalanches put in motion by the shocks. Horses became restless and refused to move.

ROME, Feb. 24.—Several slight shocks were felt in Rome, but no damage was done.

KILLED BY FALLING BUILDINGS.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Two sharp shocks of earthquake were felt in Corsica. Several persons were killed at Mentone by the collapse of the gendarmerie barracks. St. Michael's church was badly damaged, and the post office wrecked. A number of persons were wounded. An inmate of the convent of the Holy Sacrament at Nice died from the fright. The shocks affected a wide eccentric area. The first shock occurred at half-past six and the last at ten o'clock. Up to the present time accounts are vague and conflicting, but there seems to have been no damage done in the inland towns. The earthquake was felt throughout Liguria and Piedmont, but the wires are broken and news travels slowly. The people everywhere spent the night in the open air. At Leghorn the earthquake had a strong, undulatory movement, accompanied by underground rumbling, and lasted twelve seconds. At Genoa, Turin and Milan the effects were similar. The Lucca shock lasted forty seconds. At Genoa it lasted one minute, and created the greatest excitement, but so far as ascertained, no damage was caused.

CAUSE OF THE DISTURBANCE.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.— papers here call attention to the fact that several days ago there was published a statement that the annular eclipse of the sun, visible in the southern hemisphere, would be accompanied by extremely strong seismic phenomena owing to the coincident influence of the sun and moon on the earth.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED PERSONS KILLED.

ROME, Feb. 24.—The details received of the results of the earthquakes yesterday are showing effects far more serious than it was thought. The loss of life and the destruction of property was terrible. The most startling news is from the Genoese Riveria. Over 1,500 people were killed in that district. At the village of Bayard, situated at the top of a hill, a number of the inhabitants took refuge in a church when the shocks were first felt. A subsequent and greater shock demolished the church, and 300 of the people who were in it were killed. The destruction of property in the sections of Italy visited by the earthquakes was immense and widespread.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Another shock was felt at Mentone to-day. It was so severe that houses were shaken. No one was injured. Additional details concerning the damage done by yesterday's shocks show that in some cases villages built on the mountain sides toppled into the valley. Three trains have been despatched with food for the sufferers. A number of soldiers have also been sent to assist them.

Afraid of the Train.

"I have always noticed," said an old engineer on the Burlington road to me, "that whenever an accident happens to any train many people avoid riding on that particular train for some time afterward. Now, the fact is, that is probably one of the safest trains on the road for several weeks after its accident. Every switchman, station master, watchman—in fine, everybody along the line of the road—is on the lookout for that train, and you may depend upon it that every switch will be set right for it. Then, too, the same crew is likely to be running the train, and when men have been in a smash up they are always extraordinary careful for some time afterward. But just the same a good many people will wait for another train. I suppose it is a sort of superstition. Surely it is not reasonable."—Chicago News.

A Traveled Actor.

"Oh, no," said an actor who was basking in the sun on the corner of Fourth avenue and the Rialto, "I'm never afraid of accidents when travelling about the country, but I'm careful, of course."

"Yes, indeed," vouchsafed another actor, who has the number of railroad ties in the country down to a fine point; "I s'pose you keep your eyes open for trains coming in both directions."—New York Sun.

A STORM OF HAIL.

Brisbane Pelted by Hailstones as Big as Cricket Balls.

About midday the first signs were perceptible in the heavens, and until 3 o'clock in the afternoon heavy banks of clouds were rapidly rising at an unusual height in the air. Some idea as to the nature of the storm may be gathered when it is mentioned that though the hail only lasted about 30 minutes, yet hardly a house in Brisbane but what suffered more or less; while in the outlying districts the damage done to the fruit and vegetable crop was very serious. Some of the hailstones were as large as cricket balls, though the more common size was that of a hen's egg. These fell with such force that both the plate glass and galvanized roofing of many houses was cut through as though it was thin tissue. One man while closing his office door received a nasty cut on the forehead, another person narrowly escaped a serious accident with his horse and cart; he had to lie down in the cart with his head under the seat; and though escaping serious injury was badly bruised; a horse at Woolloongabba broke out of the yard and was killed; the tops of some of the 'busses were so "riddled" that bags had to be used to protect the passengers; several men were severely cut after the hail had forced its way through their hard felt hats; one man, who was driving, got struck on the side of the head and had to be carried home. Another remarkable fact is, that in one district the hail was said to be lying 12 and 18 inches deep in some parts. One result of the storm was a sudden rise in the price of glass, which by the next morning was at a very high premium. In some cases the price rose 250 per cent. in less than 24 hours.—Australian Christian World.

THE AFRICAN DANGER CIRCLE.

Col. Long's charge that Stanley's pretense of going to the relief of Emin Bey is simply a mask to the real purpose of establishing African colonies on behalf of England may or may not be true. It can make little difference with the interest and importance of the movement that Col. Long does not approve it; nor will it surprise any one if England, following her traditionary custom, should seek to profit by the energy and enterprise of one of her subjects who has the intelligent courage to connect a section of no man's land with civilization. That which will attract the admiring notice of the world is the promptness with which England goes to the rescue of Englishmen or English dependents when they call for aid, be the cost what it may.

Stanley has accepted a mission that must be attended with the greatest danger, and there is something in the cool heroism of the man that demands respect. Emin Bey is, as Mr. Stanley puts it, "environed by breadths of unknown territories, populated by savage tribes," and is in continued peril of having these tribes, whom he has greatly harrassed, circle upon and utterly annihilate him. He has with him an army of about 5,000 men equipped with Remingtons and less efficient arms, and the object of the expedition, as Stanley represents it, is to carry Emin the ammunition of which at last accounts, he was greatly in need. It is not intended to rescue Emin, for it is by no means certain that he desires to quit the country. Indeed he wrote some time ago, "I am too much needed here to quit my post. Time is wanted; but from the seed I have tried to sow doubtless good fruit will spring up."

To reach Emin Bey either of two routes may be traversed, the Zanzibar route and the Congo. The first is impracticable, because it entails a march of 1,000 miles under a torrid sun, and means the decimation of the forces, if not the defeat of the expedition. The Congo route has no such difficulties, the journey being comparatively easy by steamer, food is plentiful, and the men can be landed on the edge of the danger circle fresh, active and in good condition. The region between the great equatorial lakes, Tanganyika, Victoria Nyanza, and Albert Nyanza, is within what Stanley terms the savage circle, where are located some of the best fighting men in Africa, more than 200,000 of them.

It is at this point the great danger to the expedition will begin. The power of Mc-Wanga and Uganda, the latter the son of Stanley's old friend, Mtesa, extends over this great tract. Stanley has declined to divulge his plan of operations after he strikes the edge of the circle. It is apparent, however, that he will rely chiefly for success upon provisionary precautions and conciliatory measures. He will go well furnished with beads, cloth, wire, etc., for traffic with the various tribes according to their understood preferences, and will be methy diplomacy rather than by force, well aware of the folly of fighting when it can be avoided.

The full strength of the expedition will be 1,000 men, of whom eight besides Stanley will be Englishmen, the rest Zanzibaris. The estimated cost is $100,000. Each porter will carry 60 pounds, and the party will depend for food upon what the villages supply or the guns fetch down. Mr. Stanley says he has no fear of going up to the Stanley Falls station for his personal relations with Tipoo Fib are extremely friendly. He thinks that station was lost by bad management, entirely the result of a refusal to turn over a slave girl who had escaped from the Arabs. This was a humane course, but a very bad policy, the consequence of which was fire and desolation and the opening of a sore that was healing.

If the expedition is successful Emin Bey will be re-enforced for a long stay, if he is not disposed to come out of the circle, and Stanley will bring away with him the fifty women and children of the Cairo Arabs who are with Emin. There are also accumulations of ivory to be thought of. England will doubtless be welcome to whatever physical advantage she may gain from Stanley's hazardous pilgrimage.

Rats!

A Rondout bull pup was put in a room the other day with five big rats. He shook the life out of four in a jiffy, but when the fifth crawled slowly toward him, and actually held up its forepaws as if begging for its life, the dog couldn't be induced to touch it.—New York Sun.

FRANCE WARNED.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The Cologne Gazette warns Russia not to goad France into war. A Franco-Russian alliance, the paper says, may be very strong, but Germany also has allies, who think that instead of allowing Russia to increase her strength it is time to diminish.

CREDIT FOR SUB-PREFECTS.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The Senate, by a vote of 210 to 36, has reinserted in the budget a credit for sub-prefects, the rejection of which, by the Chamber of Deputies, was the cause of the overthrow of M. de Freycinet.

NO ANNEXATION WANTED.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The overtures for the annexation of Samoa to Hawaii have failed. The Samoans scout the idea.

BUYING HORSES.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—French and German Governmeut agents are visiting all the fairs in the north of England, and are making large purchases of horses suitable for military purposes.

THE BULGARIAN PROBLEM.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 23.—Gadban Pasha, the special agent of the Porte in Bulgaria, it is said, has informed the Grand Vizier that the only solution of the problem is in a Russian occupation of Bulgaria and a Turkish occupation of Eastern Roumelia.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The candidacy of Herr Bulach, who was defeated by Herr Siefermann, a protestor, in Alsace-Loraine by about 1,000 majority, was unopposed until he declared himself in favor of the septennate. The Socialist's failure in Alsace-Lorraine is noteworthy. Their best man Hoeckel, at Mulhouse, only polled 410 votes. The new German Liberals lost 28 seats, the Centrists, 6; the Democrats, 9, and the Guelphs, 9. The Kreuz Zeitung, the organ of the Ultra-Conservatives, says: "We are unhappy in seeing the Conservatives helping to pull chestnuts from the fire for the National Liberal." Herr Richter, in the Freisinne Zeitung, declares that the elections were carried for the Government by deception and coercion of all sorts.

OBIT.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Richard Caulfield, L L. D., editor of the Journal of the Royal Historical and Archæological Association of Ireland, is dead.

THE ALSACE ELECTION.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The Tagblatt says: "The dangerous character of the Alsace elections in mitigated only by the largeness of the Government majority. Prince Hohenlohe may consider it advisable to take precautionary measures in view of this hostile feeling." The North German Gazette says: "The results in Alsace is a proof that France is as distant as ever from recognizing loyally the Frankfort treaty."

AN ARREST.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—At Strasburg, a man has been arrested for shouting "Vive la France."

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—In the House of Commons to-night Mr. Parnell moved the exemption from closure of measures increasing the stringency of the criminal law in Ireland. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach declared emphatically that the Government declined to entertain such a proposal. Mr. Parnell contented that Mr. Smith, in asking urgency for the procedure rules, showed that the Government admitted its intention of obtaining special facilities in order to pass a Coercion Act. Hence he (Mr. Parnell) decided the fight against coercion should be commenced. The amendment was rejected by a vote of 264 to 155. Mr. Parnell moved to exempt from closure the committee on supply. The debate was then adjourned.

DISTURBANCE IN PARIS.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—A statue of Louis Blanc was unveiled here to-day in the presence of the Cabinet Ministers and many societies and deputies. The ceremony was made the occasion of a violent demonstration by the Anarchists, who were present in large numbers. After the unveiling they hissed and shouted "Long live Anarchy." Then they made a rush for the enclosure in which the statue stands. The police interposed and arrested several of those who were most prominent in the disturbance.

PURCHASING STEAMSHIPS.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Russia has just purchased several large steamships. It is reported that the vessels have been obtained for the purpose of transporting troops to Vladivostock.

DE LESSEPS INTERVIEWED.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The Standard's Paris correspondent telegraphs the substance of an interview with De Lesseps, in which the latter said he had learned with great pleasure of the formation of the Nicaragua Canal Co., and asserted that the new enterprise would greatly improve the prospects of the Panama Company. Among the rensons he gave was the fact that the Nicaragua Canal would be filled with fresh water, and would therefore be useful for the purpose of irrigating and fertilizing the country through which the Panama Canal will pass. M. De Lesseps scouted the idea that the Nicaragua Canal could be used for inter-ocean traffic as owing to the almost innumerable locks which would be necessary in its construction, the time of transit through the canal would be so prolonged that owners of vessels would do better to send them around Cape Horne. Referring to the Panama Canal, De Lesseps said the only point about which he entertained the least anxiety was the rocky ridge known as Culebra, though he was firmly convinced that his contract would be finished within the specified time, as the worst would shortly be prosecuted day and night, the Culebra being lighted with electric light. The directors, he said, expected that the amount of work performed during 1887 will be double that of 1886.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTIONS.

London, Feb. 24.—The Times' Pekin correspondent says the head of a rich Christian family at Se-Chuen has been executed despite the remonstrances of the French Minister. The situation of the Christians in the Provinces of Se-Cheun and Kwerobow is critical, the Mandarins siding with the Literats against the Christians. The correspondent thinks the Pope should send a legate to Pekin to arrange a definite modus vivendi for the protection of Christians throughout China and to avoid the continuance of the present state of affairs, which will drift into general persecution, massacre and civil war.

The Daily Review.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1887.

NEW ENGLAND VS. NEW YORK.

THERE is a new phase of the fishery dispute, which throws much light upon the main question, and certainly has a comic side. This time New England is not warring with Canada, but with New York. The fishermen of Massachusetts and Maine have been crafty enough to procure legislation restricting mackerel fishing at the very time that the fish are passing New York on their way northward to the New England coast. The New Yorkers are objecting to their being thus deprived of a profitable industry in order to afford a monopoly of it to the New Englanders They prefer to catch their own fresh mackerel rather than that they should be protected while going north, that the fishermen of Massachusetts and Maine may catch them and send them back salted to New York.

This invasion by the New England fishermen of the rights of others illustrates their greed and unfairness. If they thus attack the citizens of a neighbouring State of their own country, can we be surprised that they clamour for the right to steal Canadian fish, while refusing to allow Canadian fishermen to bring fish freely to the markets of the United States.

There seems to be only one possible way of satisfying the New England fishermen; that the authorities at Washington should procure a conference of the powers to amend the law of nations by providing that New England fishermen shall be held to own all the fish in the ocean, that they shall be free to fish any where, whether within or without foreign territorial limits, and that fishermen who hail from any other part of the world shall be prohibited from wetting a line or a net till they have purchased a license to do so from the fishermen of New England.

In the County of Hastings the Reformers played one of their common tricks. They sent a mysterious, disguised stranger at night to a number of well known Conservative electors, and he endeavored to thrust upon them money to vote for their own Conservative candidates. The Reform wire-pullers were duly instructed, and had these very men all sworn at the polling booths, in the hope of preventing them from voting. This Reform trick has now been so frequently exposed that it should not fool anyone.

IRISH LAND QUESTION.

The Report of the Royal Commissioners —The Recommendations.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The report of the Royal Commission on the Irish land question will be produced in the House of Commons this evening.

The following is a summary of the Commissioners' recommendations:—

1st.—The term for judicial rents, which is fixed by the land act at fifteen years, should be reduced to the statutory term of five years, all those whose rents were fixed five years ago to be given the right to go into Court at once for the revision of their rents. In all future judicial rents the term for which they will be fixed will be five not fifteen years.

2nd.—All householders are to be permitted to go into court to have their judicial rents fixed by the Land Commissioners. Their exclusion from the benefits of the act have been the source of bitter complaint, especially in Ulster, ever since the act was passed.

3rd.—Holders of town parks are also to be allowed to share in the benefits of the Land Act.

They were specifically excluded by the Land Act of 1860 and 1881.

4th.—As to purchase, the Commissioners are in favor of what might be called legislation simplification, rather than legislation compulsion. They would remove the legal technical difficulties which at present stand in the way of the operation of the Ashbourne Act, but they strongly deprecate compulsory expropriation of landlords or compulsory creation of peasant proprietors.

5th.—They report that intimidation in the shape of boycotting prevails extensively, but they abstain from making any recommendations on the subject.

6th.—As to the congested districts, they recommend that the excessive population on the Western seaboards should be reduced by migration or emigration. Upon this subject the commissioners have taken a good deal of very interesting evidence, some of which goes to show that the peasants in the congested districts are by no means opposed. If they are compelled to quit their native glens they would as soon go to Canada as outside of Connemara.

A RAILWAY BLOCKADE.

Serious Blizzards in Oregon—Great Delay in Traffic.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Feb. 22.—The first through train in four days arrived over the Oregon Short Line to-day. The Northern Pacific has had no through trains from Minneapolis for the past two days, owing to the heavy snow in Montana and Dakota and other points east of Heron, although the Northern Pacific people have made herculean efforts to keep the road open. During the past month, communication has been more or less broken all the time, and trains have been frequently twenty-four and forty-eight hours behind schedule time. The trouble south of here has stopped the stage over the Sitkiyou Mountains for three and four days at a time, and now there is a complete blockade, caused by the heaviest snowstorm in years. The mail from San Francisco is therefore sent round by the Oregon Short Line. The blizzards are altogether the worst that have been had in the past four years. As fast as one train got out of the drifts another is snowed in. Advices this evening say that a warm chinook is in the vicinity of Helena, which, it is thought, will break the blockade and cause a resumption of traffic on schedule time.

The New Austrian Ambassador.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 23.—The appointment of Dr. E. Schmidt von Laverna as Minister from Austria to this country, is taken to mean that the Austrian Government has been conciliated and that friendly relations again prevail in the State Department.

Knew Whereof He Spoke.

"Young man," he said in solemn tones, "don't you know that if you persist in drinking you will never get ahead in this world?"

"Won't get ahead?" repeated the young man. "Why, my dear sir, your ignorance surprises me. I'll have a head on me tomorrow morning as big as a barrel."

The Board of Railroad Commissioners, in their report upon the recent terrible railway disaster at White River Junction, Vermont, state that there were seventy-seven passengers on the ill-fated train, and exonerate the train hands from blame. They attribute the accident to the breaking of a defective rail, and condemn the use of stoves and coal-oil lamps in railway cars.

THE VERDICT—The People have decided that Rowse's new prints, ginghams, pillow cottons, towels and tablings, are by far the cheapest in town. Every lady should see them.

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with lace, loops, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

SODOM DESTROYED.

NOTES ON INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

For Sunday, Feb. 27—Text of Lesson, Gen. xix, 15-26—Golden Text, Gen. xix, 17—Critical and Practical Notes by Samuel Ives Curtiss, Ph. D., D. D.

Introduction—Lot's Hospitality.—The two angels who had accompanied the angel of Jehovah were soon at the gate of Sodom. In this place of public traffic, of justice and of gossip they found Lot. The Angel of Jehovah, who had visited his servant Abraham, does not now honor Lot with his presence or run the risk of being subjected to shameful indignities. Lot, true to the customs of the Orient, which regard the rites of hospitality as most sacred, in whose defense the host should put his life and his honor in peril if need be, induces the angels, whom he probably does not recognize as such until later, to be his guests.

The men of Sodom soon give evidence of their abominable vices. They are therefore smitten with blindness, but notwithstanding they do not desist from their attempt to enter Lot's house, although to no purpose.

The shamelessness of these men and the judgment visited on them are the prelude to the terrible tragedy which is so soon to follow, and which the angels announce to Lot. They ask him what relatives he has and bid him bring them out of the place. It appears from the narrative that there were two young men in Sodom who were betrothed to his daughters (Gen. xix, 14, Revised Version). Lot bids them leave the place, "For the Lord will destroy the city;" but this announcement was probably received with derisive laughter, as he seemed to them to be only jesting. Without concern the young men lay down to sleep and awoke only to find the words of warning too true, and no opportunity for escape.

THE LESSON.

The Impending Ruin (vs, 15, 16).—How Lot passed the night the narrative does not say. There is no account of its being spent in prayer, as a night was spent at a crisis in Jacob's history. He was faced with the grim certainty that he was about to lose his home and his earthly all. With the earliest light of morning the angels hastened Lot, bidding him take his wife and his two daughters and begone, lest notwithstanding the warning that they had come to give he should be destroyed in the iniquity of the place and its attendant punishment which was now to be visited. But he lingered as if on enchanted ground. He could not bear to leave his home and his possessions. He probably desired to take some of his wealth with him, and was undecided what to do. But while he lingered, in Gods mercy the men took him, his wife and his two daughters by the hand, and, as it were, tore them away from the city, and brought them outside.

V. 17. The angels, however, knew that notwithstanding all their warnings there was danger that Lot might delay, even if he did not return to bring some of the coveted possessions with him. We should expect to read that the two angels commanded him, but instead we read that he who must have been the Angel of Jehovah, who had come unannounced, said, "Escape for thy life; look not behind thee, neither stay in all the plain; escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed."

The plain mentioned here is more literally translated in the margin of the Revised Version of Gen. xiii, 12, the "circle." It indicates what might be called the meadow or bottom lands of the Jordan near the Dead sea, where the valley is about ten miles wide. We do not know definitely what mountain is indicated, for we do not know the original site of the cities of the plain.

Lot's Prayer (vs. 18-20).—Lot, now thoroughly alarmed, prays for more favorable terms. He addresses the Angel of Jehovah, gratefully acknowledging the favor which he has found, and that the Lord has magnified his mercy in saving his life, and asks that since Jehovah has done such great things for him he should do him the lesser favor of allowing him to flee to the little city near by. This petition he urges with passionate earnestness.

Vs. 21, 22.—Jehovah graciously accepts him. While Abraham's prayer is not to avail for the salvation of Sodom, Lot's avails for the preservation of Zoar, the little city.

God will not do anything for the destruction of the cities until Lot reaches Zoar. This was entirely in answer to Abraham's intercession, as it would seem (Gen. xix, 29). When once God had given his assurance to his servant Abraham, Lot was safe, although the answer comes in an entirely different form from what Abraham had expected.

Lot reaches Zoar at sunrise. As he left Sodom at the first gray of the morning, he had gone perhaps four or five miles.

The Destruction (vs. 23, 24).—The sun burst in its usual splendor on the cities of the plain. The night had doubtless been passed in wedding festivities and gayety by some, and in lust and debauchery by others. Many of the people rose early to pursue their wonted callings, but the cool breath of morning was as it were in a moment turned into the stifling heat of a furnace, with which the fumes of sulphur were mingled. The Scripture does not dwell on the scene. It ascribes the destruction to Jehovah. Whether this was occasioned by the play of electricity on some of the bituminous deposits, and on sulphur springs, which are found in the neighborhood, we do not know. God's hand is equally divine, whether seen in the orderly course of nature or in seemingly miraculous interference in that course. No law of force is more powerful than that almighty hand, and any theory of a "reign of law" which bars God out from his own universe does not satisfy the conditions which we find in the Bible.

Sodom, Gomorrah and, as we learn from another passage (Deut. xxix, 23) Admah and Zeboim, were destroyed in this overthrow.

The Site of the Cities.—It is still a subject of much controversy where these cities were situated. It was the popular belief, as it still is, among many that they occupied the site of the Dead sea. But there is no scriptural authority for this view, and geological researches have shown that it is impossible, and that the peculiar depression of the Dead sea, which is the lowest known natural depression below the earth's surface (1,300 f... below the level of the Mediterranean), existed for ages before the overthrow of these cities. The prevalent view since this discovery, which is favored by certain traditional landmarks, has been that the cities were situated just at the south of the Dead sea. The view which now seems to be most popular among scholars is that they were a little to the north of it. Dr. Selah Merrill thinks he has even found some ruins which mark the spot.

Lot's After Life (v. 26).—Lot escaped, but he lost not only his property, except what he could carry on his person, but also his wife. Whether from curiosity or a longing to have one last parting view of her old home, she looked behind her, thus disobeying the divine command, and became a pillar of salt, a silent preacher of the peril of disobedience and of the suddenness of the divine judgments (Luke xvii, 32).

The story of Lot's life is soon told. He withdrew from Zoar to the mountain for greater safety, only to have the stains of Sodom indelibly impressed on his memory. For Abraham's sake his life was spared, but no record of him is found among the heroes of the faith whose names have been preserved with honorable mention in the Westminster abbey of the New Testament (Hebrews, xi), although a sacred writer commends him for keeping his heart pure amid the corruptions of one of the most dissolute cities of the ancient world (II Peter ii, 7, 8).

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.

1. Those who now laugh at the warnings of God's faithful servants, unless they repent, will one day mourn and weep.
2. Sin and punishment belong together, like the two sides of the same shield.
3. If we are not willing to give up all for God in seeking His kingdom and righteousness, the time will come when we must part with this world's riches and fall of those in the next.
4. The man who is tempted to delay the subject of his soul's salvation when God has said, "Now is the accepted time," is in danger of suddenly losing his soul forever.
5. God's commands are to be implicitly obeyed. If in face of them we presume on His mercy and forbearance, we do it at our own peril.—Sunday School World.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

Over Cox & Co.'s Wires.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—To-day's noon cash quotations are as follows:—Wheat, 72¼; corn, 33¾; oats, 23¼; pork, $15.25; lard, $7.00.

Eggs.

In Montreal the demand for eggs is fair and the market was steady at yesterday's decline. Limed sold at 19c@20, and new laid at 22@24c per dozen.

Horses.

The Montreal Gazette has the following on the local horse trade:—"The horse market has continued brisk and a large business has been done, there being a good number of American buyers in town who are buying freely and making large shipments to the States. The receipts of horses by the Grand Trunk during last week were thirty-four head. There were shipped from here to the United States last week 215 horses, costing $25,215, or an average of nearly $112.63 each.

Wheat.

Millmine, Bodman & Co.'s circular says: "Although the export demand has averaged only moderate the past week, it has since the commencement of the crop year been at the rate of nearly 13,000,000 bushels per month in wheat and flour. In the early part of the season imports and farmers' deliveries in the United Kingdom exceeded their consumption, and permitted some increase of stocks, but this is now changed, and consumption is gaining on receipts and deliveries, and their prices begin to feel a little of it."

Saved from the Wreck

If the delicate organization of women gets out of order, prompt application of remedial agents is required to save it from total wreck. In all such cases, whether to assist nature in the discharge of her functions, or to repair damages caused by diseases of special organs, there is no remedy so mild, and yet so effective, as Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," prepared at the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., and administered for many years to thousands of patients with the happiest results.

An Improvement.

Mr. A. V. R. Young, of this town, brings out another invention in book-keeping, viz., an improvement on the six column journal adaptable to all kinds of mercantile business, and is kept on the double entry system. This book is a cash, day-book and journal combined, and is ruled in such a way to make posting even simpler than in single entry. To describe the merits of it would take considerable space, but those who find their book-keeping complicated and unsatisfactory by calling on Mr. Young will get full information.

Social Purity.

Mr. Geo. E. Williams has arranged for a visit to Canada from Mr. Charles James, lecturer of the Gospel Purity Association of London, England. Mr. James will be in Peterborough next Wednesday and Thursday. He will lecture to men only in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Wednesday evening on "Personal Purity." On Thursday evening he will lecture on "Christmas Evans, the Apostle of Wales," in St. Paul's Church lecture hall, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. No charge will be made for either lecture, but collections will be taken to cover expenses.

GENTLEMEN, if you require a New Suit, see the handsome stock of Scotch and Canadian Tweeds at the Golden Lion. Stylish cut and fit guaranteed. R. FAIR.

Sudden Death.

A remarkably sudden death occurred on Thursday evening. Mr. Angus McMartin, of Larkhall, Township of Harvey, paid a visit to his brother-in-law, Mr. A. P. Morgan, Peterborough, leaving for home at about three o'clock in the afternoon. He had reached Selwyn on his homeward trip when he and Mrs. McMartin stopped at the house of a friend for rest and refreshment. The deceased had just returned to the house after stabling his horses when he sank into a chair and instantly expired. Mr. McMartin was widely known and highly esteemed. At the time of his death he was in charge of the large timber limit of the Bennett & Son Company in Harvey. The deceased leaves a wife—sister of Mr. A. P. Morgan—and one child.

Gough.

The many patrons of Gough, the clothier, are here informed that he has removed from the Opera House block and has opened out in the Bon Marche stand. This place has been fitted up in magnificent style. A handsome new plate glass front has been put in, and the place has been thoroughly renovated, decorated and extended. The most important matter for purchasers to consider comes next. Gough, during the last few weeks, has weeded out winter stock by running it off at low prices, and now he presents to the public a house full of the latest styles of clothing at Gough prices. The tables stretching from the door to the rear groan with the load of new goods, fresh from the big wholesale houses. The rear of the store is fitted with two neat dressing rooms, and a large mirror affords opportunity for customers to survey what they are buying. An office has been placed in a convenient place, from which Gough himself can oversee the business carried on. A staff of accommodating clerks are in attendance upon the people as they come for bargains. Note the new stand—the old Bon Marche, George street, a few doors south of the Golden Lion.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings, in all the Latest Shades. His Prices and Styles are right

POISONED BY COUGH MIXTURE.

Great Alarm Caused and Death Almost Produced in Two Homes.

Two men in Peterborough were taken very ill on Thursday afternoon, the sickness being caused in a mysterious manner, though evidently being produced by a cough mixture of which both had partaken.

Mr. P. H. Green, photographer, who was in his gallery, was troubled by a cold, and Mr. Alex. Hammell, also a photographer, who was present, asked him to try a cough mixture which he had in his pocket. Mr. Green swallowed some of it from the bottle, and Mr. Hammell also did so twice. After a short conversation Mr. Hammell went home.

Soon after Mr. Green felt unwell, and a dizziness being succeeded by a numbness in the extremities, he went across the street to Dr. Clarke's office. Dr. Clarke gave him a restorative, and assisted him home, and, having heard the circumstances, administered an emetic, which he followed with stimulants. Dr. Fife, who had been sent for, also arrived, and Mr. Green, who had been very low and believed that he was dying, began to revive. A messenger was sent to Mr. Hammell's to get the cough mixture, but he returned without it and with the message that Mr. Hammell was also ill and wanted a physician. Dr. Fife answered the summons, but in the meantime Dr. Kincaid had been called and had treated Mr. Hammell for poisoning. Soon both the gentlemen were out of danger, though low, Mr. Green being especially depressed. This morning, however, they were quite recovered.

The cough mixture was made up a town drug store from a prescription given to Mr. Hammell by the late Dr. Norris, of Omemee. Mr. Hammell had used the same mixture for some years with good effect and without producing evil effects such as was produced on himself and Mr. Green on Thursday. The prescription had been made up several times in the same store, and the clerk says that he filled it according to directions and the same as it had been made up on the previous occasions. The mixture contained tincture of Cannabis Indica, a drug uncertain in its strength and action, and it was an overdose of that ingredient that caused the poisoning.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

POLICE COURT.

FIGHTING.

FRIDAY, Feb. 25.—W. Smith and W. Scott were charged by P. C. Pidgeon with fighting in the streets. They both pleaded not guilty. Evidence was gone into and the former was fined $5. The latter was discharged.

The Band.

The Fire Brigade Band will be at the rink this evening.

Committee Meetings.

The Street and Bridge Committee met last night. To-night the Finance, Appointments, and License committees will meet. It is probable that a Council meeting will be held on Monday evening.

Evangelistic.

Mr. Marsh, the evangelist, will hold his last meeting in St. Paul's Church this evening. Owing to the political turmoil during the last week the meetings have not been largely attended.

After "Chestnut," the Hickory.

Johnny Hardnut gets about as many whippings every day as there are school hours, and yesterday the teacher caught him at his tricks as usual.

"You naughty boy," she said, "if you do that again I'll whip you."

"Chestnut," he replied impudently.

"Hickory is better, I think," she remarked quietly, and gave him about half a cord across the back.—Washington Critic.

Serious Railway Smash.

CRESTON, Iowa, Feb. 24.—A freight train pulled by a mogul engine crushed into the way car of another train standing on the main track near Red Oak yesterday. Asleep in the way car were Frank McKay, Elmer Bright and John Martin, a stock man. The huge mogul engine crushed the way car into splinters, and badly wrecked about fifty cars. The engineer and fireman jumped in time to save their lives. McKay was badly crushed and died of his injuries. Bright and Martin will recover.

Missing Mail Bags.

GUELPH, Feb. 24.—Within the past month or so three mail bags destined to the Guelph post office have mysteriously disappeared at the Grand Trunk Railway station. The proper authorities were promptly notified of the fact. To day Detective Day, of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in the city sifting the matter. Inspector Burnham, of the Toronto postoffice, is also here. It is understood that some money was in letters in these bags. Further developments may be expected in a day or two.

Mysterious Evangelists.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 24.—Ten days ago a party of two men and a woman, representing themselves as evangelists from Canada, came here and commenced preaching upon the street corners. Several hundred colored people attended the meetings and were greatly excited. The world was to come to an end, they said, in a few years, when all outdoor worshippers, numbering 144,000, would be taken to heaven alive, while all others would go to hell. The wild talk of these white people made some of the negroes almost wild with religious excitement, and it was ascertained to-day that these people are going about among the negroes attempting to set them against the whites. It is supposed they are supported by some organization desiring the colored people and whites to disagree. They ask for no money and take none, but draw on New York for large sums at a time.

GHASTLY DISCOVERY.

A Mutilated and Decomposing Human Body Found in a Trunk.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 24.—The employees of the Baltimore & Ohio Express Company in this city made a ghastly discovery to-day, which may turn out to be another trunk horror. A wooden box, about four feet long, was received here this morning from Cincinnati. It was addressed to James Osborne, Pittsburg, Pa., and had a peculiar odour about it. A search of the city failed to find the person to whom the box was consigned, and it was then decided to open it. When the lid was broken the mutilated remains of a man in an advanced stage of decomposition were revealed. The legs and arms were severed from the trunk in order to crowd it into the box. A surgeon here gave it as his opinion that the body had been the property of a medical student, who had probably shipped it to some friend in this city. The top of the head was sawed off, and showed it to have been done by a professional hand. The authorities have telegraphed to Cincinnati to investigate the affair.

Hanlan to Row Gaudaur.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Articles were signed here to-day for a three-mile sculling match between Edward Hanlan and Jacob Gaudaur for $2500 a side and the championship of America. The race is for May 30.

The Retaliation Bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 24.—The Senate disagreed to the House substitute for its Fishery Bill and asked for a conference. Edmunds, Frye and Morgan were appointed on the part of the Senate for such conference.

Changed the Name.

TOPEKA, Ks., Feb. 24.—A bill changing the name of St. John County to Logan County passed the House to-day after a heated debate, in which ex-Gov. St. John, after whom the county was first named, was denounced by Speaker Smith and others as a hypocrite. The bill has passed the Senate and received the Governor's signature to day.

An Adjustment of Differences.

Valerie Villemer (Vassar, '87)—But auntie, all the researches of modern science convince us that evolution is the only theory to which we can attach any confidence. Admirable aunt—Well, my dear, if you won't disturb my ancestors in the Garden of Eden, I will promise not to feed peanuts to yours at the zoological garden.—Harvard Lampoon.

NEWS NOTES.

Prince Alexander, of Battenberg, is seriously ill with gastric fever.

Port Arthur was once more visited by fire on Wednesday night, a block of five buildings being destroyed before the flames were extinguished.

DUBLIN, Feb. 24.—The jury in the case of Messrs. Dillon, O'Brien, Redmond and others, on trial for their connection with the Plan of Campaign, has disagreed.

A man convicted of vagrancy in Augusta, Kentucky, is to be sold by public auction on March 5th, to the highest bidder, for a period of 75 days.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—Negotiations have been satisfactorily concluded for a renewal of the alliance between Italy, Germany and Austria, which expires next May.

It is calculated that the strength of the combined Opposition vote in the new German Reichstag will be 177 votes all told, while the Government supporters are estimated at 220.

The Jubilee Committee of the Toronto City Council has decided to ask the Council to obtain legislation sanctioning the appropriation of $10,000 towards the expenses of the celebration.

Ottawa intends to take vigorous steps to assert its claims to the new school of Practical Science proposed to be established in Eastern Ontario. The Mayor has called a special meeting of the Council to consider the matter.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—It is reported here that three officers implicated in the recently discovered military plot have been hanged at St. Petersburg. The Russian Government has strictly enjoined official secrecy respecting the conspiracy.

Mr. Dolby, who was Charles Dickens' agent during his American tour, has obtained £100 in a libel suit against London Tit-Bits, because that paper published a story which represented Dickens as saying that he had engaged Dolby for his unlimited capacity for eating and drinking.

A prominent lumber merchant of Ottawa says the Canadian duty on unsawn lumber has almost entirely stopped its export across the line by Americans, and has so much improved the prospects of Canadian lumbermen as to make their competition with Americans probable in the near future.

Much interest is taken in official circles in the attempt of Mr. McArthur, of Winnipeg, to reach the North Pole. He has been supplied by the Dominion Government with a number of scientific instruments, and Dr. Selwyn, Director of the Geological Survey, considers his route and plan of operations one of the most sensible as yet devised by Polar explorers.

A FROSTY SUNRISE.

Ah, bitter beauty! How the fair, fa'se frost
Burdens each leafless spray! The ice buds grow
Thick midst the crystal foliage of the snow,
Heaping their mockeries on hid life. Embossed
With pearly wreaths, the elms' high domes have lost
Their latticed outlines, and their full curves glow
From the upclimbing glory hid below
The level bars of sunrise vapor crossed.

So let us stand and bear right patiently
The surface comment of the world's cold breath:
Since its poor blame and undelightful praise
Reflect the light of better things to be
So spread our roots in silence underneath,
And garner sap to flow in summer days.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

THE FIRE BRIGADE BAND.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—We are sorry to trouble you again, but our "Neutral" (?) friend makes it necessary to defend ourselves, or, at least, tell the truth, something our friend, "who is shooting from behind a hedge," seems to be a stranger to, as he begins and ends with an untruth. Our leader, being a paid servant, must have permission of the band for any absence from practice, and as the 28th of December was a regular practice of the band, the leader and members remained in their room until 9.30 o'clock and had not then received any invitation to attend any party demonstration.

On the 22nd of February we were called to attend the Stevenson demonstration and responded. If this is toadyism we are ignorant of it.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Neutral is in favor of a liberal support for the band and would inform him here that the band will play in the future, as in the past, for every respectable organization willing to pay for their services.

Hoping our preceptor will be less severe in his criticism, more truthful in his reports and more liberal in his support,

I remain, yours, etc.,
BANDMAN.

Peterborough, Feb. 26, 1887.

Millions for Defence.

We stated the other day that the bills before the United States Senate provide for the expenditure of $58,000,000 for purposes of national defence. This sum has now been very largely increased by another bill, and the list of proposed appropriations is at present as follows:—

Hawley's, for coast defences	$21,000,000
Cameron's, for ten cruisers	21,000,000
Hale's, for armoured ships	15,000,000
Stanford's, for guns and mortars	40,000,000

The Chicago Herald is not at all pleased with the prospect of so great expenditure. It says:—"Here is a total of almost one hundred millions merely for war purposes. These bills have been passed and will be passed without discussion, and in some cases without division. They call for more money than the German Empire pays for its enormous war establishment. They would, if approved by the House and signed by the President, clean out the Treasury and entail an immense charge upon the country as long as the works were maintained. Where the carcase is there will be the eagles be also. The overflowing treasury will attract all the spendthrift jobbers that the country can produce. The longer its increasing and useless revenues are maintained the bigger will be the crowd of vultures in Congress."—Mail.

No Communication With Canada.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Hoar offered the following resolution, which was laid over for the present: "Resolved,—That it is the judgment of the Senate that, under the present circumstances, no negotiation should be undertaken with Great Britain in regard to the existing difficulties with her Provinces of Canada, which has for its object the reduction, change, or abolition of any of our existing duties on imports."

LATEST CABLE NEWS

MEMORIAL TO PRINCE LEOPOLD.

CANNES, Feb. 25.—The fountain of St. George, erected at the foot of the Villa Nevada by the French residents of this town in memory of the Duke of Albany, was unveiled yesterday. The Prince of Wales was present. The Duc de Charters, on behalf of the Comte de Faris, delivered an ortaion, in in which he said that the French colony was happy to offer the memorial as a pledge of sympathy to the British nation. The orator's sentiments were echoed by the Mayor of the town in a short address. The Prince of Wales returned thanks. The Prince will leave Cannes to-day.

PRUSSIA AND THE VATICAN.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—The Royal order prescribing the form of oath which Catholic bishops appointed to Sees in Prussia shall take before being confirmed by the State in their appointments ordains that each bishop shall swear to be submissive, loyal, obediant and devoted to the King of Prussia, and to inculcate in his clergy and the people of his diocese veneration and fidelity towards the King, the love of fatherland and obedience to the State's laws. The oath also binds the bishop to refuse to tolerate by any of his clergy any teachings or action opposed to the spirit of the vows taken by the bishop on making the oath, and abstain from maintaining, either within or outside the country, any relation prejudical to the security of the country. The oath concludes as follows:—"I promise to keep all this the more inviolate as I am certain that by the oath I took to the Pope and church I did not bind myself to anything that might be opposed to this oath of allegiance to the king."

THE ROUND TABLE.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Baron Herschell, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Sir George Trevelyan, Mr. Chamberlain, and Mr. Morly, have recently held many meetings with reference to the round table negotiations which had been left unfinished. It is believed the negotiations will be successful. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain dined at the Devonshire Club this evening and exchanged cordial greetings.

JACOBINI'S CONDITION.

ROME, Feb. 25.—Cardinal Jacobini's condition is hopeless. The Pope visited him this evening and afterwards extreme unction was administered to the dying man.

PARLIAMENTARY.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The House of Commons to-night, by a vote of 261 to 92, rejected Mr. Parnell's amendment exempting from closure the Committee on Supply. Mr. Sexton moved the exemption from closure of any question relating to procedure. The question was negatived by 170 to 80.

WOMEN'S POLITICAL SOCIETY.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Gladstone presided to-day over a meeting called for the purpose of forming a Woman's Liberal Federation. In her address to the assemblage, Mrs. Gladstone said she thought the women of Great Britain who were anxious to work for the Liberal cause and the progress of justice should be organized and united.

PRINCE ALEXANDER.

DARMSTADT, Feb. 25.—The following bulletin has been issued:—Prince Alexander is suffering from variololid of a rather severe form. He had fits of shivering during his recent journey preceding the fever, which, though it has been very violent, is pursuing an entirely normal course. The tension of the skin now causes the patient violent pain, although with a fall in the patient's temperature there will be no actual danger. The Prince must pass through some difficult hours in consequence of pain in the head. It is believed the Prince contracted the disease while visiting the barbour of Marseilis.

A SECOND TRIAL.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.—Mr. Dillon and his associates in the conspiracy case will be tried again in April.

AN EVICTION COMPROMISE.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.—The people of Dingle, County Kerry, were made aware of the arrival there to-day of an evicting party by the blowing of horns and the ringing of the chapel bell. A crowd of fully 2,000 persons quickly collected. Father Egan, acting on behalf of the tenants, had a long conference with the sheriff, at the conclusion of which he announced that a settlement had been arranged, under which each tenant was to pay one gale's rent, Father Egan himself paying the sheriff's costs.

BOBCAYGEON.

The Independent says that quite a fleet of punts are being turned out by the Planing Mill on the Canal. They are apparently for the timber drives, and are res plendent in red paint.

GRIST MILL.—The Grist Mill, which for the last week or so, has had some little trouble with its water, is all right again. The back water in Pigeon Lake has lowered and the Mill is gristing regularly.

KINMOUNT.

THE RAILWAY.—The Bobcaygeon Independent says:—The Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway has issued a time table, and a train runs twice daily between here and Irondale. The time table has a little map on it, showing the line of the road. It is intended to form a straight line between Orillia and Ottawa, and thus shorten the distance from tide water at Montreal to the Northwest. The operations are being pushed on with great spirit, and there is a good prospect of the line to Ottawa being completed at an early date.

Knights of Labor.

PHILADELPAIA, Feb, 25.—The wonderful progress made by the Knights of Labor in this city during 1886 is shown in the annual report just issued by John J. Cummins, the Recording and Financial Secretary of District Assembly No. 1. The report states that on Jan. 1, 1886, there were 54 local assemblies attached to District Assembly No. 1, with a membership of 6,550. During the year there were added 180 local assemblies, making the total local assemblies 234, with a membership of 61,409. Of this number 5,631 fell away, leaving the total membership 55,668. Three local assemblies lapsed during the year and 20 withdrew to connect themselves with trade districts, leaving 211 local assemblies attached to District Assembly No 1.

WAR WITH RUSSIA.

The Question Discussed by Sir Charles Dilke.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The leading article in the Fortnightly Review for March will be the third of Sir Charles Dilke's series on the present position of European politics. He will discuss the position of Russia at great length, beginning with the remark: "In the union of patriotism and religion, which the Russians present, I know of no country in Europe that can approach them, though they may be reviled by the people of the United States." Sir Charles Dilke goes exhaustively into the relations of Russia with the other powers, deprecates in the strongest terms the policy of saving expenses on the army and navy, especially the recent reduction of the English field artillery, and summarizes the article as follows:—"The conclusion to which we come is that such is the patriotism of the Russian people that certainly in the event of war Nihilism would disappear, and every Russian would support the policy of his Czar. Such is the defensive strength of Russia in Europe, such her offensive power from the Caucases towards India, that not only is war with Russia to be deprecated as a terrible calamity, but it would strain the powers of the British Empire to the utmost. At the same time I hold that even in a single-handed struggle we should ultimately win. We should be able, although only by a tremendous effort, to hold our own in the neighborhood of Candahar, prevent insurrection in India and check invasion. We could not, unassisted, save Turkey if Turkey was menaced in the war, as against the other powers. We could not save Egypt or save the Mediterranean route, but holding India, the Mauritius and the Cape, we could carry the war into the enemy's country on the Pacific, and destroy, at all events during the life of these now living, Russia's power on the Pacific, and indeed probably tear away the Pacific provinces from her enemy."

EARTHQUAKE RAVAGES.

Villages Destroyed—A Breed Famine Threatened.

ROME, Feb. 25.—The earthquake was strongly felt out at sea off Genoa. It woke sailors from their sleep.

At Turin a portion of the ceiling of the Church of Santa Teressa fell upon the worshippers, but none were killed. In many streets traffic was stopped as houses were rendered liable to fall.

At Castellaro a church collapsed, killing many persons.

ROME, Feb. 25.—The excitement caused by the earthquake is subsiding.

NICE, Feb. 25.—At Mentone 250 houses have been rendered uninhabitable. Several fires occurred, but these were speedily extinguished. Military guards were placed on duty to prevent the pillaging of wrecked houses. The field telegraph is now working in many places. A bread famine is expected, owing to the destruction of the ovens of the bakers.

GENEVA, Feb. 25.—The oscillations of the earth from north to south were felt throughout Switzerland. No loss of life is reported, but much damage has been done to property. Soldiers have been sent to the villages visited by the earthquake to assist in burying the dead. King Humbert desired to proceed to Genoa, but was disuaded therefrom.

The Italian "Soothsayer," an almanac, predicted earthquake shocks as likely to occur between the 23rd and 25th of February.

ROME, Feb. 25.—It is reported that at Bussava, a village of eight hundred inhabitants, successive shocks levelled nearly every house. One-third of the people are said to be buried in the ruins, and there is no hope of rescuing them. Not one of the 106 communes in the populous provinces of Porto Maurizio escaped injury. Villages built on terraces on the sides of the hills are almost all destroyed. The distress is great everywhere and the nights are very cold.

NICE, Feb. 25.—Some wells in this section dried up as a result of the earthquake. Others increased in volume. A jet of hot water burst from the bed of the Paillon river. Miss Chapel an American lady, was buried in the ruins of Villa Natol, but was rescued unhurt. The total number of injured there is 23. There were occasional tremors yesterday.

VIENNA, 25.—The instruments in the observatory here showed seismic action on Wednesday, which was unperceived by the general public.

LINDSAY.

A BAD HOUR.—On Saturday night at some late hour, some party or parties attempted to break into the Conservative committe rooms. They succeeded in forcing the street door. Possibly they were some Grits, anxious to come over; but should have come at a seasonable hour.

SALVATION ARMY.—On Wednesday evening there was a grand jubilee of the Army in this division in honor of the liberation of Captain Miss Smith, and others of the Army recently jailed through tyranny. The street procession was magnificent and very orderly. At the head was a sleigh containing some of the officers while hundreds of all ranks followed bearing banners, torches or instruments. The meeting in the barracks afterwards was most successful. Since Captain Bertha Smith took charge here the work of the Army has been most extensive and of a very philanthropic character. May they succeed is our hearty wish.—Warder.

OMEMEE.

HORSE KILLED.—On Tuesday evening Mr. Wm. Adams, of Emily, met with a heavy loss by having one of his valuable young horses killed in Omemee. Mr. Robt. Adams was driving and near the Bradburn House met a horse and cutter, the shaft of which struck Mr. Adams' horse in the breast and penetrated some distance. After backing up and getting the horses separated, Mr. Adams drove down King street as far as the bridge, where the horse fell. This was the first he knew of the horse's injury. He was taken to a stable where death ended its sufferings in a few minutes.—Herald

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Government has issued an urgent whip requiring the daily attendance of its supporters during the debate on the new Procedure rules.

MEETING OF THE EMPERORS.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times states that communications are passing with a view to having a meeting of the Emperors of Germany, Austria and Russia for the purpose of discussing a modus vivendi on eastern affairs.

CANADIAN CHURCH AT ROME.

ROME, Feb. 25.—The ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Canadian church and college took place at three o'clock yesterday afternoon, Cardinal Howard officiating. Among those present were Cardinals Gibbons and Tachereau, Mgrs. O'Connell, of the American College; O'Callaghan, of the English College; Campbell, of the Scotch College; Archbishop Kirby, of the Irish College; Bishop Keene, of Richmond, Va., and other church dignitaries. The Church was dedicated to St. Joseph. The spectacle was solemn and religiously beautiful.

RELIGIOUS TROUBLE.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Advices from the Tonga or Friendly Islands show that there continues to be great excitement among the natives over the trial and punishment of the men under arrest for the attack on Missionary Baker. Five more of the prisoners have been sentenced to death and thirty others are awaiting trial. The British Consul, it is said, has succeeded in averting further executions, but he declines to interfere otherwise with the cause of justice as administered by the King. The party known as the Old Wesleyans now accuse Mr. Baker of jury-packing and of personally trying the natives, and have appealed to the Governor of the Fiji Islands to send a war ship to allay the excitement fomented by Baker's conduct. The Catholic priests are appealing to Maine for protection.

BERLIN GOSSIP.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—The Boerse was weak yesterday, in symyathy with the London and Paris markets, and there was a less sanguine feeling in regard to the Russian and Bulgarian difficulty. The official press, since the elections, has maintained a singular silence on the question of war or peace. The Pester Lloyd thinks the result of the election has in no wise diminished the fear of war. It is announced that the German Government has given orders for extensive manœuvres of the German fleet in the Baltic next August. In well informed Roman Catholic circles it is said the Pope's last letter warns the Centres not to vote for the Socialist candidates in the supplementary elections and especially refers to his pastoral letter in which he described the Socialists as a source of danger to the church.

REDUCTION OF RENTS.

LONDON, Feb 25.—Mr. Gladstone has made a permanent reduction in the rents on the larger farms at Hawarden.

WORKHOUSE RIOT.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.—Another disturbance occurred at New Ross. One hundred policemen went to the workhouse there and arrested the refractory paupers; but at the Sessions court the charges of assault against the prisoners were withdrawn, and they were allowed to return to the workhouse. A Nationalist band, which celebrated the result by parading the streets, came into collision with the police. In the fight that followed the musicians' instruments were broken, and many of the men were injured.

THE SULTAN ALARMED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 25.—A Turkish Imperial decree is in preparation, calling out the entire male population of the Empire between the ages of 17 and 40 for military service. The Sultan is alarmed at the situation in the Balkans. He has at last accepted the advice of his ministers who believe a Russian occupation of Bulgaria as soon as the weather permits is fully resolved on. The refusal of the ministry to further consider M. Zankoff's proposals has been confirmed by the Sultan notwithstanding the pressure brought to bear on him by Russia. M. Zankoff's mission, therefore, has terminated like that of Gen. Kaulbars in a complete failure. The situation is much inflamed by this incident, the significance of which is made clear by the Sultan's decision to call the entire fighting Turkish population under 40 to arms.

DEFINITE RESULTS.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—The definite results which are now known leave exactly one half of the members of the new Reichstag distinctly pledged to the support of the septennate, without reckoning on the reballots. The supplementary elections have been fixed for March 2. The final result will give Bismarck a working majority, independent of the Centre members.

WITHOUT DEBATE.

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—It is expectee the Septennate bill will pass all three readings without debate.

THE COMMISSION'S DISAGREEMENT

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The report of the Irish Land Commission was not signed by Commissioner Knipe, who is an Ulster tenant farmer. The Earl of Hilltown signed the report, but he dissents from the leading paragraphs. The report according to a forecast published, suggests that the landlords be permitted to recover only two years' instead of six years' arrears of rent and estimates the fall in agricultural prices in the last two years at 18½ per cent. The report also attributes many cases of boycotting and other illegal practices to the refusal of the landlords to abate their rents. Lord Milltown dissents from the view and protests against the reduction of the term of judicial revision from fifteen to five years. Commissioner Knipe writes that he cannot be expected to understand the legal changes suggested, but he declares emphatically that there would be no illegal combinations if there were no unfair rents.

DESIROUS OF PEACE.

VIENNA, Feb. 24.—Major-General Count von Weisersheimb, Minister of war, during the debate in the Reichsrath on the extra credit, declared that the Government entertained no warlike design and cherished no ambition involving any military venture; but desired peace. Both the Emperor and the people of Austria were disposed to cultivate friendly relations with other nations and the speaker hoped the historical phrase, "Everybody is ready to do his duty to the fatherland, would hold good in Austria.

ASSISTANT MINISTERS.

More than once we have called attention to the benefit that would result from adopting in Canada the system of Parliamentary Assistant Ministers. When the head of an important department is sitting in one of the Houses his assistant in the other might give official explanations and take charge of Government measures. This would especially facilitate the introduction of more legislation in the Senate, and by thus dividing the work more evenly, would tend to shorten the duration of the session.

No additional expense would necessarily be incurred through this change, for the assistant Ministers need have no salary. Promising young members would gladly accept such positions as a means of making themselves conversant with administrative routine, and also as being likely to lead to promotion to vacancies in the Cabinet, if they gave proof of proficiency. The arrangement would also facilitate the official representation of the smaller provinces and territories.

The change would not be costly, it promises to be beneficial, and it might well be tried. The experiment might be made in the first place with one or two of the more important departments, whose official representation in both Houses would be especially advantageous.

The great discrepancy between the journalistic estimates the day after the election was striking. We will give a few specimens:—

And so with other journals which differed as widely. The first few divisions in the House of Commons will show the truth, and we believe they will give the Administration a majority of over 40.

Now that the excitement over the form reports of the defeat of Sir A. Caron in Quebec county has been set at rest, it appears that all the Cabinet Ministers who held seats in the House of Commons have received the approval and renewed confidence of the people. This is a rare occurrence and speaks strongly as to the popularity of the Administration led by Sir John Macdonald, the satisfaction given by their public policy, and the esteem in which they are held individually. This must be the more gratifying to them and their friends as giving an authoritativereply to the vile slanders with which these gentlemen have been personally assailed in the hope that they might thus be defrauded of the well deserved esteem of some of the more impulsive and credulous of their fellow countrymen. The electors have given an unmistakeable answer to these calumniators.

The Mail accuses the Globe of transferring to the Opposition column members whom it classed as Ministerialists on nomination day, in order to figure out Government defeats. The accusation is well founded. The Reform organ has done so. And the Mail has done the same thing in order that its figures might differ from those of other papers thatso it could cry out against the Conservative papers as well as the Reform press. By-the-way, if the Mail put back in the Ministerial column names of candidates whom it classed as Ministerialists on nomination day its count would agree exactly with that of the Review.

Of the fourteen Ontario Reform members of the last Parliament who will not be in the new House seven, Messrs. Somerville (Bruce), Wells, Allen, M. C. Cameron, D. M. Cameron, Glen and Harley, voted for the Rielite resolution, and three, Messrs. Fairbanks, Cockburn and Fleming, did not vote on the resolution. Of seventeen Conservative members of the old House, from Quebec, who will not be in the new, sixteen voted against the Rielite motion. Two Reformers from Nova Scotia who voted Riel have been left at home. It does seem that the ghost of Riel had something to do with the result, in Quebec principally and in other Provinces as well.

If the Canadian fisheries and Canadian accommodation given to the New England fishermen are of so little value that nothing should be given in return for them, why is it that the fishermen of Maine and Massachusetts are so anxious to intrude themselves into our territory, and so angry at being prevented, that they would gladly stir up their countrymen to go to war with us? They are making a great fuss about what they say is of little value.

At a public meeting held on Thursday night in Toronto, a society for the prevention of cruelty was started. A committee was appointed to select officers.

SYBRANT QUAKENBOSS.

A Startling Story of Indian Cruelty of the Last Century.

A Sandy Hill, N. Y., despatch says:—A stranger will not be long in this quaint village of Washington county before some accommodating citizen will recall for his entertainment the pet local reminiscence of Sybrant Quakenboss' terrible ordeal and strange experience during the French and Indian war. As there is not in the whole history of the early days of the American colonies a recorded incident of the trials and sufferings of the inhabitants possessing a more peculiar interest than this unrecorded incident so dear to Washington county. No stranger ever yet regarded his time as wasted who listened to its recital. It was told to the writer on a recent visit to Sandy Hill, and runs as follows:—

Sybrant Quackenboss was the son of one of Albany's early Dutch residents, and was born in that city. In 1750, on the day he was to marry a young lady of Albany, he was impressed into the colonial service as teamster, and was put in charge of a load of provisions, which was to be sent to Fort William Henry from Albany. Lieut. McGinnis, of the colonial army, with a number of New Hampshire militia, accompanied Sybrant as escort. While passing through the then unbroken forests at the great bend of the Hudson, near the present village of Sandy Hill, they were attacked by a band of Indians, said to be under the command of notorious and fiendish Marin. The little party of colonials, taken in ambush, was soon overpowered. Three of them were killed. The others were made prisoners. The captives were securely bound with thongs and taken to an Indian camp. The village green in Sandy Hill now occupies the site of that camp. The prisoners were seated in a row on the trunk of a fallen pine tree.

A pow-wow was held by the Indians, which resulted in the savages forming a lare circle around the unfortunate whites. A stalwart brave stepped from the circle, and, starting at the head of the row of prisoners, sank his tomahawk in their brains, one after another until none remained but Lieut. McGinnis and Sybrant Quackenboss. They sat side by side at the foot of the row. None of the nine prisoners who had fallen dead beneath the savage blow of the Indian had offered any resistance, but when he raised his tomahawk above the head of Lieut. McGinnis, the latter threw himself backward from the log, at the same time planting his feet in the stomach of the executioner, and sent him flying several feet away. Although this sudden and unexpected movement on the part of the Lieutenant disabled the red butcher, it only made his own end the more horrible, for as he lay bound upon the ground a dozen Indians sprang upon him and chopped him to pieces.

Quackenboss, who had sat a helpless and horrified witness to the butchery of his comrades, now closed his eyes to receive his death blow from the tomahawks that were held over his head by the now infuriated Indians, but before one of them fell he was knocked down from the log by something heavy falling against him, and opening his eyes he saw the hideous face of a squaw, who interposed between him and [illegible] weapons. It was a repetition of the Pocahontas episode, but lacking every element of its romance, for the squaw, besides being dirty and fiendish in appearance, had interferred in his behalf simply because she wanted him spared to become her dog, or beast of burden. After much parleying the squaw's request was granted, and Sybrant was handed over to her, a fate, as he afterward remarked, that he thought but little better than that of his comrades.

The Indians soon afterward broke camp and took to the trail. Quackenboss was laden with the burden of the band which would have fallen to the lot of the squaw whose foresight had stood her in such good need, while she walked by his side, goading him with a spear when ever he faltered, and showing him no mercy. They reached the shores of Lake Champlain, where they embarked in canoes. At the foot of the lake there was an Indian village, and there Sybrant was compelled to run the gauntlet. He was nearly killed by the clubs of the two lines of Indians, and was again placed in possession of the squaw. She doctered his wounds until he was entirely well. The Indians went to Canada where they were bound to report the possession of their prisoner to the authorities. The Governor of Canada took an interest in Quackenboss, purchased him from his Indian mistress, and took him to Montreal. He was kept in the domestic service of the governor for three years, when the latter gave him permission to send word to his parents that he was alive, but to have the message delivered was a difficult matter. It was finally decided to send an Indian to carry a letter addressed to Quackenboss' father, as near Fort Edward as he dare approach, and place it in a split stick and set the stick in a spot where parties coming from the fort would be likely to see it. This was done. The letter was found and forwarded to its address, as the son learned when he got his liberty three years later and returned to Albany. Although his affianced had long mourned him as one dead, she had remained faithful to him and the wedding ceremonies so suddenly interrupted six years before were performed amid great rejoicing. Quackenboss soon afterward removed to Washington county, where he died in 1820, aged 95 years. His grave is neglected, and a movement to erect a suitable monument to his memory, which was started a few years ago, seems to meet with little response from the people who love to tell his story.

"The Mikado" in California.

The Emma Abbott Company have announced "The Mikado" for the bill at Walla Walla (Cal.) The Union of that city, protests against it, and in support of the objection offers the following intelligent and highly interesting criticism:—"In England and the Eastern States, where Chinese and Chinese music are both scarce, an opera made up of airs from the Celestial Empire is an attractive card. But on the Pacific Coast, where Chinese music is so common that everyone is tired of its ear-piercing discords, it seems far from good taste to offer the music-lovers of Walla Walla Emma Abbott in 'Mikado,' a would-be comic opera composed of such music as one can hear any day in Chinatown, without a sweet tune in it from opening to close."—Rochester Democrat.

PENNYROYAL WAFERS.

Prescription of a physician who has had a life long experience in treating female diseases. Is used monthly with perfect success by over 10,000 ladies. Pleasant, safe, effectual. Ladies ask your druggist for Pennyroyal Wafers and take no substitute, or inclose postage for sealed particulars. Sold by all druggists, $1 per box. Address THE EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., Detroit, Mich.

Sold by JOHN McKEE, Peterborough, and druggists everywhere.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods. Without which none are genuine.

Henry Clay's Personal Magnetism.—Talking the other day to a gentleman who knew an intimate and confidential friend still living of Henry Clay, he told an anecdote illustrative of the intangible quality of magnetism so remarkably noticed of Mr. Clay's presence. Many years before the stage coaches gave way to the Pullmans, the stage pulled up one bitter cold winter's day at the old Phenix hotel, in Lexington, delayed by snow and enforcing a stop over. The passengers were cold, disappointed and furious. No one dared to speak, and a rigid and awkward silence that could have been cut with a knife prevailed around the coffee house. The barkeeper even felt the rigor of the mental climate and retired behind his glasses. Finally, when the moodiness and anger was at the height of its silent fury, a tall, dignified old gentleman entered, walked up to the glowing stove, rubbed his hands, cast a keen glance around the room upon the glowering assemblage, bent right and left in courtly courtesy, and said cheerfully:

"Morning gentlemen."

It was fire to powder. Every infuriate man in the room was on the verge of explosion.

"A cold morning, gentlemen!" remarked the courtly old man, bowing again right and left and rubbing his hands. "It's a severe day for traveling."

With this he turned and walked into the office, leaving in the room evidences that he had melted the rigor. One by one the moody passengers thawed, spoke and relieved their passion. The barkeeper came out from behind his glasses and filled 'em up with generous liquor. In five minutes all was geniality and good nature.

"Barkeeper," asked one of the strangers presently, "who was that fine, pleasant old gentleman in here a few minutes ago?"

"That," said the barkeeper, "why, that was Mr. Clay!"—Cor. Louisville Courier-Journal.

Excursion into Greenland.

News has reached Copenhagen that an American naval engineer, Mr. Paers, in company with another American and a Dane, has made an excursion during the summer into the interior of Greenland. They began the excursion from the Pakitoksfiord sixteen miles further north than the point of departure of Professor Nordenskjold when he penetrated eighty-four miles into the interior and two Laplanders in his troop went 120 miles further east, not, however, confirming the professor's theories of oases. Mr. Paers went 130 miles into the interior, not meeting with protruding mountain peaks or anything remarkable; all was one pretty even surface of ice. The journey was made for the most part on sledge, and the return voyage was made with extraordinary speed before a southeast gale. The little party were about three weeks on the ice, and were warmly welcomed back by the Greenlanders, who had feared they were lost. Mr. Paers also thoroughly examined the frozen Torsuketfiord, formerly mapped out by Stenstruppe and Hammer.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Woman Should Learn to Whistle.

If there be one thing which is modern woman regrets it is that she has never learned to whistle. Leaving out all question of being able to cheer one's self with a tune occasionally on the street or in the office, a whistle is a very handy accomplishment in signaling an elevator or a horse car. The historian's wife bought one of those nickel whistles recently to make up, if possible, for the deficiency, and used it for the first time the other day when she was engaged in her shopping. She blew it once just at the corner of Brattle street. The car was just stopping at the farther corner and showed signs of starting up immediately; in desperation she gave another shrill whistle and the car started up as if all the city government officials were pursuing it. The driver had thought it was the car starter's signal, and when this fact was explained by some kindly passers-by the historian's wife resolved that she would resort to her voice next time she wishes to stop a car.—Boston Record Historian.

Very Peculiar Names.

The other day I ran across a crowd of people who seemed to have very peculiar names. One of them was invariably addressed by his comrades as "Dogs;" another they called 'Snakes" and a third answered up very promptly when they addressed him as "Flowers." Seeking an explanation of this odd nomenclature I found that they were all dime museum people. The one they called "Dogs" was in charge, of the educated canine at that institution; "Flowers" kept the flower stand, and "Snakes" looked after the boa constrictor. I came to the conclusion that all dime museum men are freaks in one way or another.—Pioneer Press.

Proof Against Magnetism.

An artist of Geneva, it is announced, has found a method of making a compensating balance for a watch on which magnetism has absolutely no effect. A watch fitted with a balance of this kind and with a spiral of palladium submitted to the action of a very powerful electro-magnet will stop immediately but so soon as it is removed from the magnetic influence it goes on again without the regulation being in any way interfered with. An ordinary watch on the contrary when submitted to a similar test has a movement absolutely erratic when set going again. —Boston Budget.

Chinese School in San Francisco.

The Chinese public school in San Francisco has now thirty-eight pupils, although it started a year and a half ago with only six. It is under the charge of Miss Thayer, who finds the young Celestials very bright in learning English and the common branches. Her hardest task is to enforce silence; the little fellows like to chatter in Chinese about their lessons. Three of the pupils are girls, all wear the Chinese costume and all take a two weeks' holiday at the Chinese New Year. —Chicago Herald.

Baron Tennyson's son Hallam refuses to smoke clay pipes as his father does, and there is a coolness between the two in consequence.

Coasting in the City.

Sled after sled came down and skimmed past like meteors with feathery tails of snow. Men, boys, girls and children in arms were on them, and all appeared to have perfect control of their slippery steeds, avoiding the teams and sleighs with a facility born of long practice. As I stood there enjoying the scene a big, heavily loaded team hove suddenly around the corner. It was under full headway, as the horses had been urged to their utmost preparatory to starting up the steep grade. Just as the team were fairly around the corner a sled on which were a girl of fourteen and two small children was two-thirds of the way down the hill and making straight for the team. The larger girl had evidently lost control of it and the children were screaming with terror as it darted swiftly under the horses' feet. I closed my eyes to shut out the horrible scene which I felt was coming, but opened them again as a shout of relief and joy went up from the bystanders. Incredible as it may seem, the sled had passed between the horses' legs and the wheels of the wagon and the children had escaped without a scratch. The driver let off his pent up excitement by swearing at them. The crowd applauded and two policemen appearing on the scene scattered the coasters in every direction like a flock of sheep.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Woman of Corfu.

Imagine, for example, this lady clad in a voluminous gown of blue satin worked with flowers, with a white lace covering over her shoulders; an enormous headdress of white muslin girt by a vast wreath of natural pink roses and orange blossoms, with ponderous gold earrings reaching to her shoulders; necklace and bracelets of gold, and a thorough breastplate of antique goldsmith's work. She is a marvelous spectacle, and sits still with her brown eyes in a fixed stare, moving only when absolutely necessary, and then with the utmost care for her decorations.

Other ladies have towering coiffures of white and crimson; dresses of blue, scarlet or green, and silver buckles in their shoes; and they are all dotted with bits of gold. Another picturesque detail is the old Greek feminine headdress of a crimson skullcap with a gold coronal from which a thick gold tassel hangs at one side. Civilization has ousted this pretty and becoming headdress from Athens and the Greek cities. Corfu merits the more praise, therefore, for preserving it. Nothing could better harmonize with the regular features which are still a characteristic of the native Greeks. The Corfiote women, however, seem to have more in common with the southern Italians than with the Hellenes.—All the Year Round.

A Visit to Mme. Lucca.

A feuilletonist of The Vienna Allgemeine Zeitung describes his visit to Mme. Lucca, now a "pale, piquante lady." Her boudoir is filled with trophies and presents. The floor is covered with the skin of a huge polar bear, "which was intended for the czar but which some enthusiast bought for her." In a writing desk stand the photographs of the German emperor, the crown prince, the Princess of Wales and Bismarck, each wearing the signature of the donor. An album contains autographs of many of the artistic celebrities of Europe, Auber signing himself in 1869, at the age of 87, "votre amoureux Auber." She still retains in conversation the slight Viennese accent which, as she thinks, would always have prevented her from becoming a tragic actress, though it did not frighten off Dingelstedt, the late director of the Burg theatre, who often told her: "Just lose that stupid voice of yours and I'll engage you on the spot." Lucca's father, a hearty old gentleman of 86 years, lives with his distinguished daughter, whom he treats "as a baby."—Chicago Times.

Saved from the Wreck

If the delicate organization of women gets out of order, prompt application of remedial agents is required to save it from total wreck. In all such cases, whether to assist nature in the discharge of her functions, or to repair damages caused by diseases of special organs, there is no remedy so mild, and yet so effective, as Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," prepared at the World's Dispensary, at Buffalo, N. Y., and administered for many years to thousands of patients with the happiest results.

AYER'S PILLS

CURE HEADACHE.

Headaches are usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, foul stomach, or other derangements of the digestive system, and may be easily cured by the use of Ayer's Pills. Mrs. Mary A. Scott, Portland, Me., writes: "I had suffered dreadfully from Sick Headache, and thought myself incurable. Disorder of the stomach caused it. Ayer's Pills cured me entirely."

CURE BILIOUSNESS.

John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebr., writes: "I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice. I was so dangerously ill, that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor. I feel certain that I owe my recovery to your invaluable Pills."

CURE INDIGESTION.

Ayer's Pills act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, influencing healthful action, imparting strength, and eradicating disease. G. W. Mooney, Walla Walla, W. T., writes: "I have suffered from Dyspepsia and Liver troubles for years past. I found no permanent relief, until I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, which have effected a complete cure."

CURE RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism is among the most painful of the disorders arising from vitiated blood and derangement of the digestive and biliary organs. Ayer's Pills relieve and cure Rheumatism when other remedies fail. S. M. Spencer, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "I was confined to my bed, with Rheumatism, three months, but, after using a few boxes of Ayer's Pills, became a well man."

CURE GOUT.

S. Lansing, Yonkers, N. Y., writes. "Recommended to me as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me not only from that trouble, but also from Gout. If every victim of the disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be, 'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

CURE PILES.

Piles are induced by habitual constipation, debility, indigestion, or a morbid condition of the liver. A cure is best effected by the use of Ayer's Pills. John Lazarus, St. John, N. B., writes: "I was cured of the Piles by the use of Ayer's Pills. They not only cured me of that disagreeable disorder, but gave me new life and health."

Mr. Tovell. On Monday at 2 p. m., a meeting of the ministers and laity of the Peterborough District will be held in the George Street Church to be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Potts, of Toronto, and the Rev. Dr. Nelles, on the prospects and plans of the Victoria College.

METHODIST CHURCH, Charlotte Street.—At the 11 o'clock service the Rev. S. S. Nelles will preach, and in the evening the Rev. F. H. Wallace will preach on the "The Story of the English Bible."

METHODIST CHURCH, Mark street (Ashburnham)—The Rev. Mr. Wilson will conduct the services. 11 a.m., subject, "The Command to Work;" 7 p.m., subject, "The Calmer of the Storm."

ST. ANDREWS CHURCH.—The pastor will conducted the services as usual.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

THE FINAL TIE.

The Peterborough's to Play Truro at Ottawa.

On Friday Mr. McGill, Secretary of the Peterborough Curling Club, received a telegram from Capt. Streatfield, the Governor General's Secretary, summoning the Peterborough Club to play off the final tie for the Governor General's prize.

It was somewhat of a surprise to the Peterborough curlers, as they thought Winnipeg had defeated them in the wick-and-curl-in contest, having only averaged ½.

The Peterboroughs feel elated at the honor they have won. The clubs all over the Dominion have competed for the prize and the Peterboroughs, representing Ontario, and the Truros, representing Nova Scotia, are alone left to decide who will win.

The match will be played on the Governor General's rink, at Rideau Hall, on a day between March 7th and 12th. After the morning match the two competing clubs will lunch with His Excellency.

CURLING AT LINDSAY.

Peterborough Wins One Match and Lindsay the Other.

Two rinks from the Peterborough Curling Club went to Lindsay to have a friendly match with their neighbors to the north. In the forenoon the contest was about even, Peterborough coming out with only one shot to the good. The score is as follows:

LINDSAY.	PETERBOROUGH.
No. 1 Rink.
R Knowlson	C McGill
W McLennan	R S Davidson
A McDonell	T Rutherford

The Chinese Question.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Feb. 25.—The third attempt to bring Chinese into competition with white labour at Vancouver occured yesterday. Thirty Chinamen were brought from Victoria by contractors for the purpose of clearing the town site. An indignation meeting was held in the evening, after which the mob marched to where the Chinese were camped, destroyed their tents, set fire to their cabins, and in a few instances beat the Chinamen. The police arriving on the scene the proceedings were stopped, but a large majority of the Chinese left the town this morning.

A Wonderful Sleep.

On the 31st of May, 1883, Marguerite Bogenval, of Origny, France, went to sleep, and has not wakened since, nor so much as stirred a finger. She has been kept alive by the administration of milk and highly concentrated beef tea. Despite the most careful attention of those watching her, she is now emaciated to an extreme degree, and her bones are piercing her skin. She lies perfectly still and rigid, her eyes closed and her teeth set fast together. A peculiarity of the case is that in raising one eyelid and allowing the light to fall upon the eye, a shudder is noticed, followed by an immediate lowering of the eyelid, or an attempt to do so. Marguerite's respiration is perfectly normal in its regularity, and her pulse, though feeble, is not much below the ordinary rate of beats.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Queen's Coronation Bibles.

A London correspondent of the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian writes:—Among the objects, the interest in which has been revived in the light of the Queen's jubilee, may be mentioned the Bible or Bibles on which the Queen took or subscribed the oath at her coronation. I have said Bible or Bibles because, as the result of a faithful and successful investigation, Dean Goulburn, of Norwich, has established the fact that two Bibles were provided for the coronation—the one for the actural taking of the oath and the other to serve as a rest for the parchment copy of the oath, which was laid upon it to receive the Queen's signature. Of these Bibles the former, which is to be regarded as the coronation Bible proper, passed at the time into the possession of the late Dr. Sumner, Bishop of Winchester, in whose family it is regarded as an heirloom. The other coronation Bible, or Bible of the subscription, was presented by the late Bishop Stanley, of Norwich, to the Dean and Chapter of his diocesan cathedral, in whose custody it is now preserved.

EXPLORER STANLEY.

Portugal Injuring Trade With Zanzibar —The Emin Bey Expedition.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Henry M. Stanley telegraphs from Zanzibar recounting the seizure of the Sultan of Zanzibar's steamer Kiliva, and the bombardment of Tungi by the Portuguese. In the opinion of Stanley Portugal is acting in a high-handed manner, relying on the non-interference of Germany. The passiveness on the part of England, Stanley says, will be most injurious to a valuable trade. England and Germany together ought to cry "hands off" to Portugal before irreparable mischief ensues.

Stanley says, in reference to the expedition for the relief of Emin Bay, that the party has embarked on the steamer Madura. The expedition consists of nine European officers, 61 Soudanese, 13 Somalis, 620 natives of Zanzibar, 3 interpreters and Tippie Tip, the Arab trader, and 40 of his followers. Couriers have gone overland with letters to Mgendi, while others have been sent to Stanley Falls to meet native chiefs. An advance force will push on to Wadelai, the third day after arriving at Stanley Falls without the Arabs. The force of Tippu Tib will preceed by way of Kasongo and Lake Tanganyika to Stanley Falls. Stanley hopes to reach the Cape by March 9, 1888.

LISBON, Feb. 25.—The following is an official version of the trouble between the Sultan of Zanzibar and the Governor of Mozambique: Portugal has always maintained Cape Delgado on the northern limit of her province of Mozambique, her rights over the territory being recognized in the London Convention of 1817. Portugal did not occupy the northern part of the province, although maintaining her rights over it. In 1868, a conference between the King of Portugal and the Sultan of Zanzibar ended in the latter expressing a desire for the appointment of commissioners to effect an amicable settlement. The King of Portugal assented and sent the Governor of Mozambique as the Portuguese Commissioner. The Sultan declined to negotiate, asserting that he had since concluded a treaty with England and Germany, in which they recognized the territory as his. The King, convinced that no such treaty existed, and that the Sultan was merely shuffling, asserted his rights and occupied Tungi.

THE LADY DUFFERIN FUND.

The Lady Dufferin Fund, for the founding and support of hospitals and dispensaries for the native women of India, though so recently established already shows large amounts collected, a number of hospitals and dispensaries opened, or in process of building, and a deep, intelligent interest taken in the subject by the upper classes of both English and native society. From a meeting held at the Government House in Simla on the last of September it appears that a "central committee", aids and encourages "branches" established in the principal centres of India. Sir Auckland Colvin, the Finance Minister of India, Sir Lepel Griffin and Sir Charles Atchison, governors of provinces, the Rajah of Kapurthala, Mr. Moozoomdar, of Calcutta, and Lady Dufferin addressed the meeting.

Of benefactions reported, one of the most munificent was from a Hindu princess, the Maharani Surnamoye. Before this association was started she contributed one and a half lakhs of rupees for a hostel for the accommodation of women studying medicine in the medical college at Calcutta. This has been placed under the management of the Lady Dufferin Fund Association, and the Hindu princess has greatly increased her subscriptions. Another native lady has contributed the public ward to the Women's Medical School at Agra.

Munshi Newal Kishore, a Mohammedan, whose printing establishment in Lucknow is one of the largest in the world, has subscribed fifteen thousand rupees for a woman's hospital in Lucknow. Other native gentlemen and princes have given equal sums to build hospitals in other cities. This same gentleman has offered a prize of five hundred rupees for the best essay on the objects of the society. Medical works are in the course of translation into the languages of each principal province.

Medical schools for women are established in Calcutta, Lahore and Agra, and hospitals under this society, or under the patronage of European or American missionary societies, in most of the chief cities of India. The great need of the present time is competent lady physicians. Miss Dr. Bielby, who presented personally the wants of India's women to Queen Victoria, is at the head of the work in Lahore, and is overburdened with duties. Miss Dr. Fairweather, from Chicago, is the lady doctor in the Agra College. Competent graduated women doctors are welcomed from any country. If a hundred were to come to India within a year, there would be room for still more. Whatever dispensaries are established women come in such numbers as to occupy the entire time and attention of the lady physician. House visitation is almost impossible, and hundreds, to ill to walk to the hospital, and too poor to hire a conveyance, must get well or die unaided according to the nature of the disease or the strength of their constitutions. In a single month, in the dispensary in Calcutta, some seven hundred women were in attendance.

Great effort is being made to obtain bright native girls as pupils in the medical colleges. Fine prizes are offered for those who excel. The central committee of the Lady Dufferin Fund will award annually four gold medals, to be called the Queen Empress medals, to such as succeed in complying with certain conditions. So far, the pupils are mainly drawn from mission schools. The Methodist Episcopal missions of North India will this year ask for $5,000 from the home board to erect a home for their pupils sent from boarding schools and orphanages to the Agra Medical School.

To raise the great sum necessary to furnish a dispensary and hospital for a least each cival district of India, which would scarcely average one for every million of people, it is proposed to raise subscriptions by "jubilee cards," in honor of Queen Victoria's fiftieth year of reign, and so make a distinct feature of this year of commemoration the effort to help the suffering women of the Empress Queen's dominion. The rich and noble have given largely and now it is proposed to send cards of collection to recognized Mahommenan and Hindu priests through-out the country, and so gain the interest and support of the large class not rich, but well-to-do.

A Samson.

There is a man on the Carson River, below Dayton, named Angelo Cordelia, who claims to be the strongest man in the world. He is an Italian, aged 28, and stands five feet ten inches, weighing 198 pounds. His strength was born with him, for he had no athletic training. He differs from other men chiefly in the osseous structure. Although not of usual size, his spinal column is much beyond the ordinary width, and his bones and joints are made on a similarly large and generous scale. He has lifted a man 200 pounds with the middle finger of his right hand. The man stood with two feet on the floor, his arms outstretched, his hands grasped by two persons to balance his body. Cordelia then stooped and placed the third finger of his right hand under the man's foot, and with scarcely any perceptible effort raised him to the hight of four feet and deposited him on a table close at hand. Once two powerful men waylaid Cordelia with intent to thrash him, but he seized one in each hand and hammered them together until life was nearly knocked out of them.

"It may be. I know all about that. My family is the most sensitive folks you ever seed; can't stand nothing. Why, I've got a brother that goes most crazy if he sees a collector coming with a bill he can't pay."

"I can sympathize with him. What does he do usually?"

"Well, he most generally shoots the collectors."—Omaha Herald.

The Daily Review.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1887.

We see that our calculations as to the Ministerial majority exactly agree with those published on the same day by the Hamilton Spectator, which we regard as the foremost Conservative journal in Ontario, and which we have always found to be fair and trustworthy. We are glad to be thus confirmed in the accuracy of our count.

THE BAND.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Will you allow me a small space in your columns to reply once more to Neutral. Now sir, I must emphatically deny the charges made by him against the band. I challange him to produce one instance where we have refused or even hesitated to play for any political, religious, or any other organization in town, when asked to do so. We have often turned out and lost our time when wanted for only an hour or two. This has been our line of action in the past and we shall continue the same course. Perhaps it would be as well to let the public know the beginning of all this fuss with the band. Now, sir, it is just this: it all comes from not wearing uniform at the Blake demonstration. I had given orders to the band to turn out in military uniform, and we certainly should have done so had not Dr. Bell, Adjutant of the 57th Battalion, met me and given me orders not to turn out for any party demonstration any more with military uniform. Had this order been published it would have saved a great deal of talk just now, especially from "Neutral," who has great faculties for making mountains of mole hills. If "Neutral" expects to hear anymore from me he must come out under his own signature.

HAVELOCK.

METHODIST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.—The anniversary service of the Havelock Methodist Church were held on Sunday and Monday, Feb. 20th and 21st. Owing to the Rev. J. S. Clarke, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, not being able on account of pressure of other duties to preach on Sabbath as announced, the services were conducted morning and evening by the Rev. Mr. Denike, of Campbellford. He gave two excellent and appropriate sermons, but the one in the evening was especially so, as it dealt with the impossible to man being possible by faith. The morning congregation was not large, but in the evening the church was well filled, even the draw seats coming into requisition. On Monday the tea meeting was certainly a grand success. The church was again filled, even all available standing room being occupied. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Tucker from Seymour West, Rev. Mr. McArtnur, Presbyterian Minister of Havelock, and Rev. Mr. Anderson of Norwood. Suffice it to say that the Rev. gentlemen all did excellent service for the occasion. Net proceeds $62 21. This church, although only opened last May, stands with a debt of only $250, all of which is covered by good reliable subscriptions, except about $60. A subscription is now being circulated for the purpose of building a shed, and over $60 subscribed. It is to be hoped they will secure enough to build the shed, as it is much needed.

SEARCHING FOR A MURDERER.

An Italian Who Committed a Foul Deed in New York.

On Monday last Detective John Rever, of New York city, called on Chief Allen, Napanee, stating that he was in search of a murderer who had committed a foul deed in the metropolis of the United States. The fugitive was an Italian, and, after reaching Canada, had written home, the envelope containing the letter afterwards falling into the hands of the police. It was learned that he was living among some of his fellow-countrymen, and a scrutiny of the postmark, which was somewhat indistinct, led the authorities to believe that the missive was mailed at "South Conway." An examination of the postal guide showed a post office named Conway in Lennox, and the officer sought the aid of Chief Allen in ferretting out the criminal. The detective went to Conway, but found there were no Italians residing in that neighborhood. Next day he left for Lanark county, in which a number of natives of sunny Italy dwell, and on Wednesday a telegram was received by the chief from Kingston apprising him of the departure of Mr. Rever from that place and promising to keep him informed of the result of the search. It is thought the detective is now in the mines out on the K. & P. searching for his man.—Kingston News.

AN ANARCHIST'S WORKSHOP.

Discoveries Made in the Room of a German Who had Gone Raving Mad.

PITTSBURG, Feb, 26.—Last Saturday evening Peter Eckert, boarding at 128 Wylie avenue, was arrested for disorderly conduct, and committed to jail for ten days to determine whether he was insane. He has been raving mad since his imprisonment, and is now confined in a padded cell. Yesterday afternoon the landlady of his former boarding house sent word to the chief of police that she wanted Eckert's effects moved, as she had an opportunity of renting the room. Chief Blackmore, accompanied by two detectives, visited the room last evening and made some startling discoveries. The room looked like an anarchist's workshop. In one corner was a square box securely fastened to the sides of a trunk, and in the box was what the police supposed to be an infernal machine, cylindrical in shape, about eighteen inches long and four or five in diameter. Scattered about the trunk were packages of gunpowder, bullets and bullet moulds. In various parts of the room were found tools of all sorts, electric batteries, and other electric appliances. Also sixty-eight glass tubes ranging from one inch to thirty inches in length, said to be used in the manufacture of nitro glycerine. Revolvers and guns were also scattered about the apartment.

The landlady says Eckert came to board at the place three months ago, and seemed like a quiet, inoffensive German. He had plenty of money, and earned $30 a week at the Union switch and signal company. His employers speak of him as being industrious, but peculiar. Chief Blackmore is of the opinion that he is an anarchist, and has gone crazy trying to invent some instrument of destruction.

A Reform Demanded.

Still another reform urgently demanded is the equalization of the constituencies. It is positively shameful that 43,000 people in Wentworth and North Brant should have three times the representation in the Legislature that Hamilton has, and an equal representation with 120,000 people living in Toronto. A law should be passed providing a settled scheme by which representation shall be fixed, not leaving it in the power of a government to gerrymander the constituencies at will. Our own plan is that each 50,000 people should have one member of the Legislature, and that the fixing of the constituencies shall be left to a court say three judges. If any better plan can be suggested let us have it; but it is manifest that the plan should take from any government or any party the power to gain an advantage through the arranging of the constituencies. We should be told that the rule which will apply to the province should be applied to the Dominion. To that we heartly assent. There is no reason why a Conservative government should enjoy a power denied to a Reform government.—Hamilton Spectator.

How the Czar is Guarded.

Great preacutions are taken in St. Petersburg every time the Czar drives out. Before the carriage or the sledge leaves the Anitichkoff Palace the police are informed by telephone as to the direction in which the Czar contemplates driving. The ordinary police force is immediately doubled all along the way, and the special corps of scouts are stationed on each footway. These scouts are mostly private or sub-officers who have served their time. They form a brigade of several hundred men, who wear civialians' clothes and receive rather high wages. They follow the Czar as his shadow. They went with him to Skiernwice, Kremsier, Finland and to the Crimea. At Gatchino and Peterhof they form the inner circle of the guards surrounding the palace. One sees them there concealing themselves to the best of their ability behind trees, shrubs and bushes. The Czar is quite against these strict precautions, but the police assert that it is impossible to act otherwise.

Deserves Success.

Bill Nye tells of a gifted young man just out of college who felt called upon to start a paper in a booming western town. Such noble young martyrs to duty are by no means rare in this great Republic; but this particular martyr stands out in bold relief from the rest as the author of the following brilliant covey of metaphors found in his salutatory:—"Our voice will ever be heard in clarion tones putting its shoulder to the wheel of progress, and tramping on oppression with both feet." We know that it is not in mortals to command success, but really feel that this young man deserves it.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

The Work of Recovering the Dead—Sad Details Being Received.

ROME, Feb. 26.—Latest reports show that the greatest extent of the shocks was felt at Le Puy and Fremereuna.

RECOVERING THE DEAD.

Three more shocks of earthquake were felt at Forli, in the Province of Campobasso, on Friday. The bodies of six persons who were killed by the earthquake last Wednesday have been taken from the ruins in Diano-marina, and it is known that 164 are yet under the fallen buildings. Almost the entire population of Diano-marina are encamped on the sea shore. Three hundred communes were visited by the earthquake, and as yet reports of the casualties have been received from but 60.

HEARTRENDING DETAILS.

Heartrending details of the disasters caused by the earthquake continue to arrive. At Diano-Marina to-day a child of 12 years and her father were extracated from the debris, when the latter expired on the spot. The survivors at Diano-Marina say that a majority of the victims were killed by the second shock, the people having reentered their houses to procure clothing. The sum of $15,000 has been found in the ruins there. Bodies wrapped in shrouds lie in the middle of the streets. At Russana only a church steeple remains standing. The soldiers there are still searching the ruins. They have rescued twenty-seven persons, all of whom are more or less injured. The panic was renewed at Genoa to-day, on a false report that Father Densea had predicted another shock. Both there and at Savona the people refused to return to their houses. They sleep in carriages and improvised places of shelter. Signor Genal, Minister of Public Works, has visited Bogardo and attended the funeral of 230 victims of the church collapse, who were buried in a common trench in the cemetery. He also made arrangements for a temporary hospital for the injured. Slight oscillations were felt to-day at Alberga and Porto Mamiso. Relief committees are being organized, but it is impossible to supply the numerous wants. San Remo is deserted. There were 303 persons killed and 150 injured in that town.

FAMOUS EARTHQUAKES.

Strange Noises in a Mountain.

For twelve years past, at irregular intervals, the people of Center county, Pennsylvania, have been disturbed by loud and mysterious noises which came from the ground between two mountains known as the Thick Head and Sand mountains, south of Tusseyville. All of last week the noises were distinctly heard, sometimes like the distant crash of thunder, and then like the deadened crash of thunder heard in the air close by. One day last week a resident of Tusseyville was on Thick Head, when the rumbling began in the mountain opposite. At first it was deep, but low, and increased in violence until it became as the tumult of a mass of rock rolling down a mountain side. The person who heard the sound says that he had no doubt the noise was made by a subterranean slide of a great mass of rock or other substance, as it followed down the mountain from top to bottom, increasing in volume and speed as it went down, and terminated in a terrible crash at the pottom. Since that day the noises have not been heard. No one in that community can give any explanation of the phenomenon.

A Bride for Secretary Bayard.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The society gossips of Washington are greatly excited over the rumor of a wedding in high circles, which is likely to be excelled in prominence among the doings of Cupin only by the marriage of the president himself. The prospective groom, if what is said may be relied upon, is no less a personage than the secretary of state. The lady in the case is a Miss Sophie D. Markoe, who for several years has been employed as a clerk in the state department. For some time past it has been noticed that the secretary paid considerable attention to Miss Markoe, who is a very handsome women, tall, faultless in figure, a demi-blond in complexion, and altogether of rather a distingue appearance. She is probably on the shady side of 30.

Mr. Lincoln's Election Expenses.

When Lincoln ran for Congress some of the Whigs contributed a purse of $200 to pay his personal expenses in the canvass. After the election was over the successful candidate handed back $199.25. "I did not need it," he said, "I made the canvass on my own horse; my entertainment, being at the house of friends, cost me nothing, and my only outlay was 75 cents for a barrel of cider, which some farm hands insisted I should treat them to."—The Century.

A WONDERFUL CURE.

ROME, Feb. 26.—Later reports show the great extent of the earthquake shocks felt at Lepuy and Freinerenna. A lady suffering from paralysis at Grand Hotel, Monte Carlo, and who had been for a long time unable to move, jumped from her bed in a fright when she felt the shock and ran down several flights of stairs.

HE WAS RIGHT, TOO.

CANNES, Feb. 26.—The Prince of Wales, while here, stayed at a hotel some distance up the mountain. When the earthquake shocks were felt, his attendants implored him to leave the house. The Prince replied, "Since the shocks are over and the hotel is not falling, I prefer to remain where I am, in bed."

PREPARATIONS IN POLAND.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Vienna advices report incessant preparations in Poland The relations between Russia and the two other empires are so strained that official circles no longer attempt to conceal their hostility. In Poland the fort works are being rapidly armed with Gatlings and Nordenfeldt's rapid shooting shell gun's, and the rolling stock of the railways is being increased.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—The North German Gazette denies the statement made by the Paris Temps that Prince Bismarck in 1879 declared that Prince Gortschakoff should never be permitted to take the Balkan States for Russia. The Gazette asserts with emphasis that Germany has no interest in the East and will not meddle in any quarrel which may arise there. In conclusion the paper says:—"It is impossible that Prince Bismarck had ever said anything which would warrant the inference that Germany would dispute with Russia her claim to the Balkans."

SLIGHT DISTURBANCE.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The report that a revolution had broken out at Sofia arose from the fact that a trifling disturbance occurred there, resulting in the arrest of a few Russians.

RIOT AT NEW ROSS.

DUBLIN, Feb. 27.—A riot occurred at New Ross yesterday. During the disturbance a body of 100 policemen charged with batons and bayonets upon the mob, which numbered fully 500. The crowd used stones for missiles, and many persons on both sides were injured.

SOCIALIST PARADE.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The parade of Socialist to St. Paul's this afternoon attracted crowds of people, and the cathedal was crowded. The archdeacon preached from Proverbs xxii. 2: "The rich and poor meet together: the Lord is the maker of them all." When the text was announced there were shouts of "Bravo" and other exclamations of approval and some growls. Otherwise there was no demonstration. A large force of police was present. In the evening an affray occurred between the police and a body of Socialists, who were returning to their homes. The affairs was not of a serious nature.

SIX BOYS KILLED.

Seven Struck by a Train and Only One Escaped Death.

EASTON, Pa., Feb. 26.—A deplorable accident occurred this afternoon on the Lehigh Valley railway about two miles above this city, by which six boys, whose ages ranged from 12 to 15 years, were killed. The unfortunate youths were Walter Moon, Walter Heath, Willie Pearce, John Gregg, Charles Bernstein and Manning Garis, all of Easton. They had been out hunting muskrats, and were walking on the railway track on their way home. A coal train bearing down upon them the boys stepped to the opposite track, when they were struck by a fast passenger train and all were horribly mangled and killed. There were seven in the party, Harry Pearce escaping uninjured. The other six were struck by the engine and thrown either between the trains or against the side of the coal train. Harry Pearce was struck by his brother and knocked from the track uninjured. After failing he jumped to his feet, caught hold of his dead brother, shook him and said, "Get up! What are you lying here for?" He then saw his brother's horribly mangled head and burst into tears. By this time the passenger train was stopped and backed to where the bodies lay. Manning Garis was still alive, but died soon after he and his dead companions arrived here. All the bodies were placed in a small building near Easton station to await the arrival of the coroner. The skulls of all the boys were crushed and mangled, and one of the boys had one arm and both legs broken.

An inquest was held this evening, and the employees of the railroad company were exonerated from all blame. The accident occurred on a sharp curve, in a blinding storm, which prevented the engineer from seeing the train, while the roar of the freight train prevented them from hearing the other one.

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT.

A BUFFALO paper sees a parallel in the manner of choosing the Canadian and the United States executives. It points out that in the recent elections in Canada Sir John Macdonald and Mr. Blake were practically, though not formally, candidates before every constituency for the Premiership and says that "the people indirectly, by voting for members of Parliament, elected their executive as we choose our Chief Magistrate by voting for presidential electors." The Courier loses sight of a great difference in the systems. Canada has responsible government while the United States has an irresponsible system. That is, the Canadian Administration does not hold office for any definite period. The members of Parliament are elected for five years. They are the representatives of the people and no law can be passed unless a majority of the members sanction its adoption. The Premier, who is chosen by the Queen's representative, and the other members of the Cabinet, who are chosen by the Premier, must be members of Parliament, and they only hold office while they retain the the confidence of a majority of the members of the House of Commons, the representatives of the people, whom they must meet every year. So that, while general elections need not take place oftener than every five years, if at any time the Administration loses the confidence of the people or runs counter to the people's wishes, as expressed through their representatives, it must resign. On the other hand, when the presidential electors in the United States choose a President their duty is done. The President is elected for four years, chooses whom he pleases as his associates in office, and for four years is an autocratic ruler who cannot be called to account by anyone having authority to do so. He may not, if he displeases the people, be re-elected for a second term, but in the meantime he may have done much mischief. The members of the United States Cabinet are responsible only to the President, and the President does not render an account to anyone until his term expires, or never does if he does not seek re-election. In Canada, as we have pointed out, the Cabinet Ministers are each, including the Premier, members of the House, and the Cabinet is called to account [illegible] by the Parliamentary representatives.

Canadians appear to be satisfied with responsible government, as only one candidate in the recent election, we believe, favored the United States irresponsible system, and he, although he did not urge or even mention his preference on the platform, was not elected.

SECESSION.

ONE of the most satisfactory aspects of the recent election is the death blow that has been given to Secession as a party factor in Dominion politics. Mr. Blake and his old associates in office, hoped by an alliance with the clamourers for Secession to acquire strength in the House, but he made no numerical gain and morally he is greatly weakened as a party leader by such an unpatriotic course. Such a disappointment, after incurring such heavy cost will be sufficient to deter any desperate party leader in future from the suicidal policy of binding himself with the advocates of the destruction of our Dominion.

It is very certain that Canada would no more permit the secession of one of her Provinces without an appeal to arms than the United States would allow the Southerners to secede. It is, however, far more satisfactory that the people should have settled this question for themselves not by warfare, but by their votes, peacefully and constitutionally cast. A Nova Scotian majority of two to one against Secession and in favour of the unity of our Dominion makes indeed a dead issue of that unpatriotic cry.

CARDINAL JACOBINI DEAD.

His Sufferings Ended at Last—His Services to the Church.

ROME, Feb. 26.—Cardinal Jacobini died at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Like Pope Leo XIII, Lodovico Jacobini was an Italian. The date of his birth was 1830. He had earned eminence as as a diplomatist when quite a very young man. When appointed cardinal he had been for many years papal nuncio at Vienna, where he had established such cordial relations with the emperor-king, Franz-Josef I, that his majesty requested of the vatican that he be permitted to remain at his capital. As at the time there were delicate negotiations pending with Russia concerning the status of the Polish Catholics, and the Bosnian and Herzegovinian organizations had yet to be concluded, the august request was cheerfully granted. Cardinal Jacobini had long enjoyed the reputation of being one of the most brilliant and successful diplomatists in the services of Leo XIII. Although the temporal government of the Pope had been suppressed the vast comprehensiveness of the Catholic church, and its relations with governments, require the ablest diplomacy on the part of the sepreme pontiff and his advisers. The tact, patience, adroitness and general success of Leo XIII as a statesman has been marked. Without question he has profited much by the counsels of the genial and astute Jacobini.

Health of Edison.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 26.—A letter from E. P. Gilliland, business associate and personal friend of Thomas A. Edison, announces the arrival of the inventor in good health at his cottage in Fortmyer, Fla. The letter says the alarming reports about Edison's health are without foundation. Edison wil resume work in a few days.

HELPING THE HELPLESS

A NOBLE THING IN MAN—EXAMPLED BY CHRIST.

The Condition of the Widow and Orphan when Left Unprovided for and the Consequences.

On Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service in St. Paul's Church the members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, Canadian Order of Foresters, were addressed by the Rev. E. F. Torrance, pastor of the church. The text was: Job XXIX, 11, 12 and 13—"When the ear heard me it blessed me; and when the eye saw me it gave witness to me: because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me; and I caused the widow's heart to sing for joy."

To make provision for the temporal well being of one's own family, he said, was an injunction clearly laid down in the Word of God. There were some passages of scripture, no doubt, which at first sight seemed to imply that the acquisition of property was inconsistent with the Christian profession. But they were capable of an interpretation which would prove that providence was not inconsistent with the general teachings of scripture. It was true that Christ exposed the folly of laying up treasure upon earth where moth and rust corrupts and where thieves break through and steal. It was true when the young ruler went to Christ to ask how Heaven might be gained, that Christ told him to give his treasures to the poor and follow Him. But these passages illustrated the worthlessness of riches, when to gain riches was the

of men. They pointed out the folly of the undue love of wealth. Much property was the idol of that young ruler's heart, for he proved it was more to him than Heaven when he refused to do as Christ bade him. Other passages of the scriptures declared absolutely that it was man's duty to provide for the temporal well being of his family, and one was so emphatic that it declared that the man who did not was worse than an infidel. To make such provision did not mean accumulating a large fortune in order to leave it behind. Too often did we see how bad a thing it is to leave a large fortune to the care of the undisciplined. Habits of industry and thrift are a more valuable inheritance than silver and gold. When Adam was placed in the Garden he was commanded to be industrious and frugal. It was a good thing to be judiciously saving so that men might have something against a rainy day. The society to which he had been requested to preach to-day had for its main object the providing for the

TEMPORAL WELL BEING of the families of members in case of such members death.

"The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me; and I caused the widow's heart to sing with joy."

What were the claims of the widow and orphan? They were utterly helpless and should be provided for. There were cases in which men were brought to penury by the result of their own missdeeds. It might be by gross extravagance; it might be from reckless speculation, from continued idleness or other causes. Those who have a right to look to him for provision and support are left helpless. In other cases trial and misfortune defies every effort to provide for the future and the fatherless and widow are thrown on the cold world without support. It is a noble thing and help the helpless. Christ came down to help us who were helpless, and should not men help those who are left without support? "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." What were the terrible consequences of leaving the widow and orphan unprovided for? The mind of the orphan was dwarfed. It was a pitiful sight to see one of man's years still having a child's body, but more pitiful still is the sight of beholding one whose mind remained undeveloped all his life. Ignorance is the enemy of the soul. The darkness of ignorance results in inumerable ills. The wise man says that the two chief methods of intellectual culture is reading books written by great men and by personal instruction. Both of these are denied the unprovided for orphan.

THE FALLING INTO VICE

was an evil which too often beset those left unsupported and unprovided for. There seemed to be no way to advance towards usefulness in life, so thick was that path beset with dangers and allurements. Those who were left in the budding of their years were endowed with natural abilities as well as those born and cared for in the mansion. Numberless instances might be given where strays picked up had developed into the very highest types of manhood and had given the greatest good to mankind. In the case of Moses woman's kindness would prove to be more enduring than marble. Long after the pyramids were in decay would the laws given by Moses to man kind be practiced and profited by. The care of the widow and orphan was especially enjoined by God. The preacher closed with an appeal to those present to see to a more important matter still than the temporal well being of themselves and families—their spiritual well being. He urged them to seek after a new life; to accept Christ; to make the bond of union linking them to their loved ones last throughout all eternity.

A Dramatic Scene.

At the opening of the present session of Parliament, Lord Hartington took his seat as usual, on the Liberal side, and this fact caused the most dramatic scene of the evening. For Mr. Labouchere fiercely assailed him for it. Pointing at and speaking at him at a distance of only a couple of yards, says the Pall Mall Gazette, the member for Northampton declared, "I consider it most extraordinary that the noble lord should take his seat on this side of the House," and besought him, instead of supercilliously handing over Mr. Goschen to the Government, to acknowledge the responsibility of power by moving over himself. The Radicals and Parnellites, of course, vociferously cheered this "plain hint:" but the noble marquis, who was now attired in evening dress, reclined on the front Oppositian bench, right in front of the leader's "box," with head back, hat over eyes and hands in taousers' pockets, moved not a mustie as far as the spectator could perceive. The whole House strained itself to watch him closely, and the House saw—a monument of magnificent impassiveness.

A Singular Fact.

It is a singular fact that, almost without exception, the most successful literary men have always been those who did very little reading. This seems unaccountable in an age when the world is flooded with cheap and attractive publications. Some one asked a French writer what books he read. He replied, "I never read anything but my own works; when I want to read a new novel I write one!" Sublime assurance, you will say. There is something in it, nevertheless. Dickens was very much like the Frenchman. When he wanted to have a jolly good time it was his custom to lie down and laugh himself into fits.—Atlanta Constitution.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

Ladies ask your druggist for Pennyroyal Wafers and take no substitute, or inclose postage for sealed particulars. Sold by all druggists, $1 per box. Address THE EUREKA CHEMICAL CO., DETROIT, MICH.

Sold by JOHN MOKEE, Peterborough, and raggists everywhere.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, combed with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

Items of Interest Regarding the Young Men's Christian Association.

From Association Notes for March, issued by the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association, we take the following:—

NOTES.

Some kind friend unknown to us, has given us a fine copy of "Platform Echoes" by John B. Gough.

The short-hand class, under Mr. John Norton, is getting along well.

Mr. Sailsbury has made us a present of Dr. Thain Davidson's "Talks with Young Men." It is a fine book and we hope will be widely read. Mr. S. has our warm thanks.

A new Association is being formed at Stirling. A public meeting is to be held on 8th March to complete organization. We hope for it a long life and much usefulness.

Mr. E. McGaffey, the first Secretary of the Lindsay Association, is now one of our members, having come here to reside. We trust it will be for our mutual benefit.

The Provincial Committee propose to arrange for a District Conference with the Port Hope Association shortly. We would like some of our workers to go down.

The Lindsay Association intends going in for Lacrosse next summer, and want to try the muscle of our fellows. What do you think of it? They expect to run an excursion here early in the season. We must prepare a rousing reception for them.

THE KINGSTON CONVENTION.

We hoped that ten or twelve of our members would have gone to the Annual Convention at Kingston, on Feb. 3 6, but at the last moment a number were prevented from doing so. Those who did attend were Messrs. A. Cooper, John Miller, Harry Stephens and Geo. E. Williams. The Convention was a very pleasant one, and will, we are sure, be of immense benefit to our Association work throughout the provinces. It was the largest held for many years, the College delegation being especially strong. This was doubtless due, partly to the fact that Kingston is a university city, and partly to the presence of the genial Mr. L. D. Wishard, College Secretary of the International Committee. One face that was much missed was that of our Travelling Secretary, Mr. T. S. Cole, who, we are glad to hear, expects to return to Canada next October. We had present, among many other experienced workers, Mr. T. J. Wilkie, whose wide knowledge of our work added much to the smooth running and profitable nature of the Convention. The papers read and the discussions thereon were all of an exceedingly practical nature, the burden of the whole Convention being how can we use all our agencies in the furthering of the grand aim of our work. The Hon. S. H. Blake gave a stimulating, uplifting address at the public meeting on Friday evening, at which meeting the Rev. Principal Grant, and the Rev. Dyson Hogue, also spoke. The latter, in a bright manly address, went straight to the hearts of the young men present. The Consecration meeting on Sunday morning, led by Mr. McCulloch, of Toronto, and continued by Mr. Wishard, was a time of great spiritual blessing. In the afternoon, a large mass meeting of young men was conducted by Mr. Jno. J. Gartshore, of Toronto University, Mr. Unsworth, of McGill, and the secretary of our Association. At the close several young men manifested a desire to accept Christ, and we trust came into the light of the gospel. The farewell meeting on Sunday night packed the City Hall to its utmost capacity, and many were turned away for want of room. All who attended the farewell meeting when the Convention was held in Peterborough, in 1884 will have some idea what sort of meeting it was. To those who have never attended one we can not describe it. The kindness of the Kingston people in receiving the delegates into their homes, and in some cases at least, into their hearts, left nothing to be desired, and will not be soon forgotten. The citizens attended the sessions of the Convention in much larger numbers than was the case at previous Conventions. As usual, many of the city pulpits were occupied by delegates on the Sunday.

OUR "TALKS."

The talk by Mr. B. Earl on Tennyson's "Princess," which was postponed from last month on account of the evangelistic meetings, will be given on Monday evening, March 14th. A class to take up readings in Tennyson and other English classics, will be formed on the same evening, and will be conducted by Mr. Earl. We shall be glad to have the attendance of our lady friends both at the lecture and the class. No charge is made for either. We hope many of our members will take advantage of the class. We owe it to Mr. Earl, who gives his services so willingly, to have a good attendance.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Brockville and Aylmer, Que., were the youngest Associations represented at Kingston.

The International Convention will be held in May at San Francisco. The annual Secretaries' Conference will also take place on the Pacific coast. Very low fares have been secured.

Among the college students whom we count as members of our Association, who were present at the Kingston Convention, were Messrs. J. McP. Scott, Jno. J. Wright, B. A., Orr Bennet, B. A. and J. M. Knowles.

Mr. Frank Pratt, formerly assistant at Montreal, was coming to the Convention from Springfield, Mass., where he is at present engaged in Association work. He was on board the ill-fated train that met with disaster at White River, Vt., and as no word was heard from him for 24 hours, it was feared he was among the lost, On Sunday afternoon, however, our hearts were made glad to hear that he had escaped with a cut foot. There was much thanksgiving to God for sparing our brother.

YOUNG MEN'S MEETING—SATURDAY AT 3 P.M.
March 5. "Christ receiveth sinful men," Luke xv.1, Mat. ix, 10. 11. John Miller, T. B. Bonnett.
" 12. "Is the young man safe?" Arthur Tebb, Harry Cross.
" 19. What is done with the believer's sins. Isa. 43, 25. Mic. 7-19, Jer. 50. 20. Psl. 103, 12. E. R. Wood, Chas. N. Brown,
" 26. "Weighed and found wanting." Dan. v. W. G. Yelland, B. Ashton.

YOUNG MEN'S MEETING—SUNDAY AT 4 P. M.
March 6. "Where is thy brother"? Gen. iv.
" 9. W. F. Hilliard, J. H. Stephens jr.
" 13. "What profit should we have if we pray?" Job. xxi. 15. H. S. Griffin, leader.
" 27. "What I command thee, thou shalt speak." Jer. 1-7, Ex. iv-1. 10. 13. Alf. J. Johnston, E. McGaffey.
" 27. "We are his witnesses." Acts v. 32. E. Elcome, A. M. Price.

Every member is asked to attend either or both of these meetings, and to bring some unconverted young man with them if possible. It is possible if we give the matter thought and prayer.

EVANGELISTIC MEETING—SUNDAY 8.30 P. M.
March 6.—O. C. Rowse, J. D. Collins.
" 13.—D. B. Gardner, E. Elcome.
" 20.—G. M. Roger, R. A. Sanderson.
" 17.—M. Cummings, I. Richardson.

Our hall is generally filled at this meeting. The singing is as a rule, very attractive. Only short addresses are allowed.

AUBURN MISSION CHURCH—SUNDAY 7 P. M.
March 6.—Walter Anderson, Geo. Hunter
" 13.—H. Rossiter, M. Carton.
" 20.—Geo. Hunter, Adam Turner.
" 27.—J. E. Burgess, A. D. Russell.

This service is much appreciated by the Auburn people, many of whom cannot get down to town for Church service on Sunday evening.

The first shipment of Boys' Clothing for Spring has arrived at Turnbull's. The Styles are New and Quality the best in the market.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Golden Medical Discovery

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

A Chance for All

At the fancy dress carnival on Friday, March 4th, tickets will be issued to all appearing in costume, a duplicate of which will be put in a bag; both tickets will be numbered the same. At 8.30 a little girl in, presence of the judges, will draw a ticket from the bag. The number on the ticket will be announced by the judges and the party holding the duplicate will be presented with a $5 gold piece. Who will be the lucky one?

Social Purity.

The public are asked to bear in mind the lecture to be given to men only, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Wednesday night, by Mr. Chas. James, of the Gospel Purity Association, of London, England. Good music will be provided. Mr. James will sing several solos. On Thursday night, the lecture is open to everyone, ladies as well as gentlemen. It will be given in the St. Paul's Church school room, the subject being "Christmas Evans, the Apostle of Wales." Silver collection at the door on Thursday evening.

THE LATEST RETURNS show that Rowse's Trade Palace takes the lead in selling white and factory cottons and sheetings. They are selling 25 yards of cotton for $1.00. Call and get a dollars worth at Rowse's.

Strength.

Prof. Newman, of McMaster Hall, Toronto, preached in the Baptist Church, Murray street, on Sunday morning and evening. In the evening he preached from the well known text:—"For when I am weak then am I strong," II Corinthians, xii, 10. Some would define strength as physical might. Others would go higher ascribing much strength to men at the head of great armies. A higher conception still of strength was the power of a great statesman, who by mere force of intellect decided when nations should war with each other and so decided their future history. But all these were far short of the true definition of strength. The true meaning of the word—the higher interpretation of it, dealt with the spiritual power. A number of examples of strength were given which to human eyes were but instances of abject weaknesses. Christ, Paul and other Biblical characters were held up as exhibiting the meaning of the word in its highest sense.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

KNOWLEDGE.

Secular Education and Sacred Knowledge Interwoven.

The Rev. S. S. Nelles, D. D., Principal of Victoria University, Cobourg, occupied the pulpit in the George Street Methodist Church on Sunday evening. The Rev. I. Tovell, pastor, was present and took part in the service.

Dr. NELLES took his text from Hosea IV., 6:—"My people are destroyed for want of knowledge." There was not a book in the world, he said, that said so much about knowledge as the Bible. It was given for religious instructions and improvement, but it had secular knowledge interwoven with it. Religious knowledge and secular knowledge were bound up together, and they could not have one for a long time and in a wide measure without the other. There was individual salvation, family salvation and national salvation. That was a truth that men should remember. Some scientific men made a mistake and impoverished their minds by studying only one branch of knowledge, and that not connected with religion; and some pious people made the mistake of deprecating secular knowledge. The two factors, secular and sacred, must combine and co-work, and secular knowledge could not be dispensed with. The religion of the cross differed from other religions on account of its comprehensiveness, as it was intended for every faculty and possibility of man. Man was many-sided and complex, and any religion that did not adapt itself to him would not be divine. A clergyman did require religion of the heart, but the Christian religion was a religion of the head as well. It was not necessary to be a philosopher or scientist to be a Christian, for religion reached down to the lowest, even to the savage, but it did not leave them there. As soon as religion got hold of a man he ceases to be as ignorant as he was. There was nothing that would quicken the intellect like religion. In the salvation of the soul came the quickening, elevating and enlarging of every part of man's nature. Religion produces and requires schools, colleges and libraries. Attempts had been made to Christianize people without circulating the Bible and providing schools, but it failed. They could not have a pure Christianity prevailing among any people for any time without schools and colleges. They could only get the truths of religion from a book and God had bound the church to learn it. The Bible was written in two dead languages and they always needed men who could refer back, although it is not necessary for every minister to be able to read the original languages. While they lived in times of diffusion of learning, and men of knowledge and power attacked the truth, would they have no one in the church who was competent to defend religion? If in any college the cardinal principles of natural and revealed religion were not taught the education provided was defective. If they tried to Christianize a people without giving them the Bible they would paganize Christianity, and they could not have a circulation of the Scriptures without a thirst after knowledge, which should be supplied. The older he got the more he loved Martin Luther, with all his defects. As soon as he was converted he went to the Bible and, being an educated man, he translated it into the language of the people. A revival of religion and learning followed. Previous to that knowledge was not differed among the people and they were at the mercy of the educated few; and, besides, men were in bondage and new ideas were forced down. The Reformation produced liberty—mental, ecclesiastical and social freedom—and constitutional government. It was a poor system of education that gave no place to religion and had not room for the Bible in the school room. He was not saying whether the Scriptures should be read in this or that form, but a sufficiency of the Word of God should be read, and portions of it committed to memory in the schools. The one essential thing was that the Scriptures should be read, but whether from the book itself, according to selections made, or from a book of selections he would not say at this time. The diffusion of secular knowledge in its purity was favorable for a preparation for the reception of Christianity. The people were destroyed on account of lack of knowledge of laws of health and of political economy. He hoped never to hear of the Methodist vote, and it was a good thing for the ministers to let the people think for themselves on political affairs. But they should study political questions and the diffusion of knowledge was necessary. By college federation they did not propose to drop any of their principles. Their religious services at Victoria were well attended, and religious knowledge was imparted to all, whether divinity students or not. They would continue that system. They hoped to gain educational advantages. Federation would have disadvantages, but they hoped to gain by a wide range of study, association and other advantages. He believed in church colleges, and he would never consent to the church relinquishing the supreme control of their college. The evil was not in having many colleges, but in not having them well endowed. He hoped they would weaken nothing, but enlarge and strengthen some things, and go forward in wisdom and knowledge which was the strength of nations.

Curling.

Mr. McGill has telegraphed to the Truro club to name a day for the final tie match, they being given the right to name the date on account of having so far to travel. From Truro to Ottawa by rail is eight hundred and eighty three miles. From Peterborough to Ottawa is one hundred and seventy nine miles. Last year Lindsay and Halifax played the final tie.

Fire.

At about half past three o'clock this morning a terrace of three houses on Simcoe street, the property of Mr. Thos. Beavis, took fire. It originated in the west end, the cause, it is supposed, being a defective chimney. The high wind quickly fanned the flames which spread all over the building in an incredibly short time. Those occupying the houses had scarcely time to get out. The alarm given brought the firemen out. The water was taken from an Aylmer street hydrant and powerful stream were soon playing on the fire. The firemen experienced considerable trouble. The night was very cold, the wind high and the pressure of the water (80 pounds) just about as much as they could manage. The flames were subdued without much difficulty, though for a time adjacent buildings were in danger. The loss will be about $2,000 or under. There is an insurance in the London and Glasgow Company for $1,500.

THE TURN OF THE YEAR.

The days are brief, and dark, and cold,
The barren fields are brown and sere;
The world is chill, the world is old,
And speeds the flying year.

The birds and flowers are away,
Or sleep in mother earth's warm breast,
But I amid the storm must stay,
And toil and never rest!

Hush, heart unquiet and dismayed!
Soon shall the sun in strength return;
After the longest, loneliest night
The morning never fails.

What if thy year be near its end,
If failing heart and flesh be faint,
What if thy lovers, kin, and friend,
Be deaf to thy complaint;

Even as turns the faithful year
In the slow days of storm and gloom,
And spring begins her journey here
To tempt the earth to bloom.

So shall thy Sun unveil His face
And all these mists in radiance burn,
Wait but His hour, take heart of grace,
Thy year begins to turn!

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

The Objects of Bathing.

[Saturday Review.]

The object of bathing is fourfold: To produce a certain amount of nervous shock, that should be followed by reaction and an increased circulation of the blood on the surface, resulting in a more rapid change of tissues; to lower the temperature of the body; to cleanse the skin; and to produce pleasurable feelings, and, in connection with swimming, the beneficial effects of one of the best forms of physical exercise. The nervous shock and the reaction from it, following the first contact with the water, are important points, and to obtain them the plunge or the douche is preferable to any other form of bath. To wade up to the middle and stand shivering and fearful of the momentary feeling of discomfort is neither healthy nor pleasant, and timid persons who dare not plunge boldly into the water should be content with the douche bath. A large garden hose, with a high pressure of water, held at a distance of fifteen or twenty feet from the body, will give an idea of this most delightful curative and bracing agent. Sea bathing differs from out-door fresh-water bathing in the greater specific gravity of sea-water and its consequent greater buoyancy and more uniform temperature, while the pure air, sunshine, and better sanitary surroundings of seaside places contribute largely to the results. Mineral baths, as such, have no particular superiority over other baths of the same density and temperature. In addition to the greater healthiness and enjoyableness of outdoor bathing, it is probable that the simple exposure of the body to the sun and fresh air is of real benefit, and contributes to the sum total of the good results. Cramps are considered one of the great dangers of bathing, but when they are fatal it is probably the result of syncope or fainting, from failure of the heart's action. A good swimmer, in vigorous health, would hardly be wholly disabled by a cramp of only a part of his limbs.

SMITH.

HONOR ROLL.—The honor roll of S. S. No. 11, Smith, for February, 1887, is as follows:

Fourth class.—Mabel Fitzgerald, Laura Northey, Minnie Heard.

Third class.—Harry Fitzgerald, Lizzie Heard, Frank Pethick.

Second class.—Willie Allen, Mary Rosebrough, Clara Allen.

First class.—Clarence Fitzgerald, Ward Boyce, Willie O'Connell.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest, distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its riches it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anemia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

AN INSURANCE MATTER.

Councillor MCNEIL, Chairman of the Fire Water and Light Committee, addressed the council in regard to the insurance affair. They all knew of the existing dissatisfaction in regard to the insurance rates and it had been his endeavour to make diligent enquiry into the matter to see if an arrangement could be arrived at more satisfactory to the people of the town. He then read the following correspondence:—

R. M. Lean, Secretary of the Underwriters Association, Toronto:—

DEAR SIR,—As a great amount of dissatisfaction is expressed by the inhabitants of Peterborough at the high rate of insurance they are at present paying, so much so that the largest policy holders have made a demand upon the members of the Town Council to take steps whereby a better system of fire protection can be secured and by that means raise the standard we are at present paying under, namely, from C. to B.

It is with this object in view I address to you this note.

Our present appliances consist of an effectual system of water works. These works are operated by a Company, the town having rented from said Company 60 hydrants for a term of years at $50 per hydrant. This number gives ample protection to over ¾ of our town, and as the town grows and the majority of ratepayers petition for more hydrants the town is compelled to put them in, according to the requirement of the by-law. We have a Silsby fire engine, a paid engineer who devotes the whole of his time to looking after apparatus, etc., and sleeps in the station. We have 2,000 feet of reliable hose, hose tower, horses in the station to draw engine to fire, two hose reels, hook and ladder truck and 20 firemen, chief and assistant. Now, sir, the matter of placing the brigade in a more efficient state came before the Council at a meeting held last week, a scheme was spoken of (which I will mention later on) and referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee, of which I am Chairman, to ascertain from the Fire Underwriters Association if by this scheme we could get our insurance rates placed in Class B. As you will see it will be a greatly increased annual cost to the town, and I know the town will not carry it out unless they have the assurance from your association that you will change our rating from Class C to B.

PROPOSED SCHEME.

Sixty hydrants, 100 pressure, Silsby steam fire engine, paid engineer to devote the whole of his time in looking after engine and apparatus, assistant when at fires, pair of horses on the premises to draw engine to fires, new hose and ladder truck, most improved pattern, drawn by horse kept on the premises, swinging harness, etc., new hose and salvage waggon capable of carrying 800 feet of hose made after the pattern of the new Hamilton hose waggon (see Bay St. Hamilton Fire Station). Horse kept on the premises to draw it to fires, men who look after horses to sleep on the premises, two hose carts drawn by hand for reserve hose, 2,500 feet of hose, 2,100 reliable, almost new, furnish 2 rooms on the premises for 4 men, to sleep on the premises 14 volunteers at $30 per year, to be fined $1 for being absent at a fire, paid chief and assistant chief, the fire alarm to remain as at present, namely, powerful bell in centre of the town and a ward fire bell in each of the other three wards, south, west and north, direct telephone connection with fire station and pump house. There are 140 telephones throughout the town, day and night service, and for a small place like Peterborough with a population of only 8,000, the substantial buildings we possess, the admirable way in which the town is laid out, and the protection against fire with the foregoing appliances, ought, we think, to insure the reduction of our insurance rating. I might go on to show how remarkably free Peterborough has been from fires during the last few years, that, of course, is our good fortune and yours as well. Should your association deem the scheme laid down as an effectual system and one meeting the requirements to place us in Class B. The Town Council will perfect the scheme and when completed will submit it for your approval.

While it is not up to the requirements of your printed class I think all towns who are making an effort to place their system on a more effectual basis ought to be substantially assisted by your Association. As you will see this is a big jump for Peterborough. I hope you will give it your favourable consideration.

Awaiting your reply,

I remain, dear sir,

Yours faithfully,

ANDREW MCNEIL,
Chairman Fire, Water and Light Committee, Peterborough.

Andrew McNeil, Esq., Chairman Fire, Water and Light Committee:

SIR,—If the Town of Peterborough will purchase a standard chemical engine, of standard capacity, with the proposed improvements contained in your communication to me of the 9th inst., your town will be entitled to B classification. The chemical engine will be the best to use in all fires at first, especially when confined within a building. Water put into the third or fourth story of a building to put out a fire will injure all the contents in the other parts of the building, as well as the building itself. When a chemical Engine is used in such a case no damage is done to any part of the building or contents except in the flat in which the fire is. You can write to Mr. John Manghan Ex-Chairman of the Fire Water and Gas Committee of the Toronto Council as to the efficiency of the chemical engine used in this city.

Yours truly,

R. M. LEAN, Sec.

Councillor MCNEIL said that he did not wish the Council to think that he was advocating the purchase of a chemical engine. What he wanted to do was to place the whole matter before them for their consideration. If the Council did its duty it would call a meeting of the citizens to ask their opinion on what was the best course to pursue, so as to get rid of the odious high insurance rates at present charged. One way was to get the chemical engine, and get classed in B. Another was to form a mutual insurance company. He instanced several mutual companies which were now running successfully, and the citizens of such places were enjoying low rates. Concluding he moved a resolution, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Mayor be authorized to call a public meeting to discuss the matter.

The MAYOR thanked Councillor McNeil for the trouble he had taken, and hoped that the lowering of rates would be accomplished in some way or other. There was no doubt that the people were compelled to pay too high a rate for insurance.

Councillor MENZIES, while thanking Councillor McNeil for the trouble he had taken in this important matter, was strongly opposed to purchasing a chemical engine or any such thing. Before they got the waterworks these insurance men came here with the same story—the town would save in insurance rates. But instead of that the people had not only to pay water rates, but bigger insurance rates. In his own case a rate had been increased from $7.50 to $11.50. If anyone bought this chemical engine he thought it should be the insurance companies. It was to their interest to keep the property from burning. The English companies did this sort of thing. For his part he would advocate forming a mutual insurance company. That was the only way he saw of getting lower insurance rates.

Councillor MCNEIL, in reply to Councillor Douglass, stated that it would cost $20 a year to run a chemical engine.

Councillor KENDRY stated that up till the time the insurance companies raised their rates they had been losing money. The raise was made all over and if we hadn't had the water works we would have paid much higher.

Councillor MENZIES—Yes; they pooled the rates to take more money out of us.

Councillor YELLAND said they raised his insurance from $31 to $54 and besides he had to pay a heavy water rate now that he hadn't to do before. There must be some mistake somehow.

Councillor MENZIES.—An awful mistake.

Councillor CAHILL said Councillor Menzies argued like the Irishman when canvassed to buy a stove. The agent told him that it would save half his fuel. Bedad then, says he, I'll take two and save it all. (Laughter.) Councillor Menzies argued that the people having gone to a great expense to provide fire protection, the insurance companies raised the rates, that if they went to further expense in the same way the Insurance companies would give them another hoist.

Councillor MENZIES,—Exactly; another hoist. (Laughter)

Councillor HARTLEY said that the insurance rate on isolated buildings was not increased. He thought that the interests of those people living outside the business part of the town, who would have to help to pay for any further improvement of the fire department, should be consulted before any great expense be gone to.

Councillor MCNEIL pointed out that Councillors Menzies and Yelland would both have been paying higher rates than they now paid if no water works had been built. The insurance companies had nothing to do with making the rates. Over 50 companies belonged to the Underwriters' Association, and they were pledged not to break through the agreements made.

Councillor MENZIES—A pool to get money out of us?

Councillor MCNEIL—Well, what are you going to do about it?

Councillor MENZIES—Don't insure at all. Form a mutual; that's what I'm in favour of.

Councillor McNeil's motion was put and carried.

STREETS AND BRIDGES.

Councillor CAHILL read the following report:—

To the Mayor and Council:

GENTLEMEN,—Your street and Bridge Committee beg leave to report that they awarded the contract for supplying the corporation with pine plank for the current year to the Dickson Co, limited, at $9 per thousand, and the contract for supplying cedar scantling to Mr. Alfred McDonald at $8 per thousand.

Your Committee have also decided to purchase a quantity of round cedar from Mr. John O'Connor, town, if upon inspection of the inspector it is found satisfactory.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THOS. CAHILL,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

BY-LAWS.

Councillor MOORE introduced a by-law to amend by-law No. 110 relating to the rules of order, so that no member of the Council be permitted to vote for himself to be appointed to any position. The by-law was read for the first time and laid over for further consideration.

A by-law for the regulation of licenses was introduced, the amounts and conditions being made the same as they were last year. The by-law was passed.

A motion to adjourn was carried by seven to six.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

Estimated Loss of Life and Property—Burying the Dead.

ROME, Feb. 28.—The troops have been compelled to keep back at the point of the bayonet crowds of despairing men and women who were impeding the work of excavation in their efforts to find missing relatives. Bodies of victims of the disaster are terribly disfigured. The rescuers in some cases have been obliged to flee from tottering walls, although they could hear the groans of the victims buried beneath the debris. All the members of the family of the mayor of Bajardo were killed. Of another family of 22 persons, named Maistri, only a single member, half demented, is left. Half-clothed people are wandering on the sea shore exposed to inclement weather.

RECOVERING FROM THEIR FRIGHT.

NICE, Feb. 28.—This city has resumed its normal condition, the people having entirely recovered from the earthquake fright.

MORE EARTHQUAKES PREDICTED.

VIENNA, Feb. 28.—Prof. Fabb predicts that earthquake shocks will continue and be accompanied by terrific storms. He mentions March 9th and 24th, April 7th and 8th, and the middle of September and October as the dates upon which the worst shocks may be expected.

THE ESCAPE FROM CANNES.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—A letter from Cannes says a feeling of profound gratitude is general over the providential escape of the town from terrible disaster, but a deep gloom prevails, especially among business people who foresee that the Riviera will never again be a health resort. Marie Vanzant, the singer, and her mother took refuge in a garden during the excitement. They suffered extremely from cold, nervousness and insomnia.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST CONTAGION.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—M. Lockroy, Minister of Public Works, says that the sewers in the shaken districts are so damaged that the soil will become infiltrated with sewage, and be a source of contagion as soon as hot weather comes. The Government will send engineers and specialists to do everything possible to avert such disaster.

ESTIMATED LOSSES.

The damage done to property at Mentone by the earthquake is estimated at two million dollars. Comparing all accounts received from places affected by the earthquake, the estimated loss of life, as far as known, is 600. Many places, however, are still to be heard from.

THE VERDICT—The People have decided that Rowse's new prints, ginghams, pillow cottons, towels and tablings, are by far the cheapest in town. Every lady should see them.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—We believe it is the intention of our best citizens to take active steps immediately towards celebrating the Queen's Jubilee in a becoming manner by taking out a policy in the "British Empire mutual Life Insurance company," which is represented in this district by e. a. henderson, whose office is in the very heart of the business centry of this thriving bourge, easy of access and inviting, where every loyal citizen should call at the earliest moment and make application for a life policy, and thus add their quota to the pleasure it will afford Her Most Gracious Majesty to know that her loyal subjects in Peterborough and surrounding country have made such a wise provision for themselves, their families, and those in any way dependent upon them, during Her Majesty's Jubilee year. It will be more especially gratifying to our Noble Queen, to place your trust in an office of such abso. ute security as THE BRITISH EMPIRE, and thereby take no chances in the many shams continually offered to loyal subjects of this GREAT DOMINION, and any man that has ever dealt with Henderson and tried to do half decent at all, will admit freely, that there is no fairer, squarer, or more honorable man to deal with in the community, and if you know any reason that is an honest one with any real foundation, why you should not patronize him, do not go near him. If you have no reasons, why call and see him and get the full particulars in reference to the BRITISH EMPIRE, (upon which the sun never sets).

(Sgd.)

PONSONBY.

Quarantine Stations.

OTTAWA Feb. 27.—The Government has decided to establish quarantine stations in British Colombia and the Northwest at the following places:—For Alberta, south of Milk River; for Assiniboia, south of Oak Lake; for British Columbia, twelve miles from the boundary line on the Columbia River.

Two cars loaded with hogs were thrown down an embankment at Napanee station on Thursday last by a broken rail, fifty of the animals being killed and a number injured.

SLIPS OF TONGUE AND PEN.

We have had for some time upon our table waiting for notice a useful little volume, "Slips of Tongue and Pen, by J. H. Long, M.A., LL.B., Barrister and Solicitor," and we may add, Principal of Peterborough Collegiate Institute. We can recommend it to the perusal even of some who consider themselves well skilled in the use of our language. Perhaps it will do better service in maintaining the purity of "the Queen's English" than more pretentious works, for it points out many of the too common inaccuracies carelessly adopted sometimes by even fairly educated people, and it suggests the correct principles for a choice between words and phrases, even when the particular case is not mentioned.

The first chapter on "Common Errors" warns us against the incorrect use of many words, the reason for the warning being concisely given, if not obvious. Perhaps in a few cases Mr. Long may be a little too severe in classing certain expressions among "errors." For instance, in objecting to "the masses" for "the people," he is criticising the use of so great a critic as Mr. Gladstone. We can "remit money" or send it back instead of goods, but from this correct employment of the expression arises the erroneous use very properly condemned. In nearly every case, however there is positive inaccuracy, and in all good reason for avoiding the word or words to which objection is taken by our author. In a future edition we would be glad if Mr. Long would add to his list of errors the expression that an event "transpires" when all that is meant is that it happens or occurs.

The second chapter deals with certain "Grammatical Points," and warns the student against incorrect constructions frequently employed.

The "General Suggestions upon Composition" in the third chapter contain many valuable hints for those who would write clearly as well as correctly.

The next subject is "Words often confused, synonyms and opposites." The difference of meaning is clearly explained of words that are often used as if they were synonymous, and frequently with great want of accuracy. This sometimes arises through ignorance and sometimes from too great dislike of tautology, which should be avoided, if possible, but not at the cost of want of accuracy or clearness.

The chapter headed "Prefer," indicates briefly the choice that should made, for various reasons not stated, between two words or forms of expression. The last preference in the list shows the very sufficient motive for many of the others, being as follows:—"In general prefer short words and phrases to long words and phrases, and words of Anglo-Saxon, to those of non-Anglo-Saxon, origin." Attention to this good advice would prevent a very large proportion of obnoxious writing.

In the next chapter "Objectionable words and phrases" are indicated, and the list might be somewhat lengthened. An avoidance of these objectionable words would save would-be "fine writers" from many pet sins against good taste and correctness.

The "Notes on Punctuation" will be found useful by many, for it is not uncommon to hear even those who are fairly educated express their uncertainty as to punctuation.

We have to thank the author for a full index, without which such works lose very much of their usefulness.

In his next edition, which we have no doubt will be required, we venture to advise Mr. Long to add a short chapter giving a few typical specimens of slips of the tongue in pronunciation, especially the mutilation of words by slurring over or omitting the sound of letters that should be given their due value. Such warning is necessary in view of the persistent efforts of the phonetic spellers, who too often show that they mispronounce through defective education, slovenly speech or a dull ear, and then would have the world adopt a spelling in accordance with their own mispronunciation.

Though probably designed for young students, others may learn some useful lessons from this little work, even though they may consider themselves able writers. It is well that something should be done to check the corruption of our language which is so prevalent. We must admit much of the responsibility for the misuse of words and the spread of slovenly English rests upon the journalists, and as everyone reads the newspapers—some, indeed, reading little else—the faults of the writer for the daily press become familiar to everyone, and are apt to find imitators. This is in a measure unavoidable, for the journalist with the press waiting for him has little time to polish or even to correct. But many objectionable phrases both in the newspapers and out of it, have their origin in the craving after "fine writing." In a journal of some repute a political opponent was recently accused of having "feathered his nest with gold," and similar jems could easily be collected from our newspapers. Mr. Long will have done good service if he succeeds in teaching his readers that plain, simple, correct English is far to be preferred to such tasteless and false ornaments.

INGENIOUS BUT UNPATRIOTIC.

Several Reform organs are threatening an attack upon the Government during the coming session for alleged mismanagement of North-West affairs. This would only be a repetition of unsuccessful tactics on the part of the Reformers, an endeavour by them to deter settlers from the North-West and then to raise a cry against the Government for not settling the country more rapidly—a stirring up of rebellion by the allies of Mr. Blake and then a wail over the cost of suppressing it. Purvis and other friends of Mr. Blake loudly warned settlers not to come to Manitoba and the Northwest Territories, and Mr. Blake and his Parliamentary friends lamented that settlers were kept away because thus deluded. Riel and other allies of Mr. Blake claimed the whole country, and tried to enforce their claim by rebellion, murder and robbery, whereupon Mr. Blake and the section of the Reform party supporting him in Parliament spoke and voted in favor of such doings. Mr. Blake may have thought this an ingenious party move but he could carry with him only a portion of his supporters in the House of Commons, and he has met with a rebuff from the electors. We do not fear that Mr. Blake will win over the people of Canada by a repetition of these attempts to injure his country in the hope of making political capital.

A nice sort of Liberal Mr. S. H. Blake seems to be. At the recent election he went all the way to London to vote against Mr. Carling on a bogus qualification, being only a trustee, not owning the property ner paying taxes upon it, but having been dishonestly foisted into the list. A few days previously he had announced himself on a public platform as opposed to capital punishment, but as willing to have Riel hung if Sir John Macdonald was hung by his side. For his earlier record apply at our police court.

It seems that Mr. Blake was not the only one of his party who was in the business of paying the deposit to induce candidates to run. The editor of L'Electeur confesses that he sent money to several Opposition candidates to pay their deposits.

REVIEWS.

Harper's Monthly.—The frontispiece of the March number of Harper is from a charming drawing by Abbey of "The Day of Rest," showing one result of the tall box pews of olden days. Dr. Wheatley gives an interesting account of "The New York Police Department," with numerous portraits and other illustrations. "Dueling in Paris" is pleasantly treated, in a style befitting a custom so generally harmless, by Mr. Child, ably assisted by the pencil of Mr. Dupray. In "Russia of To-day," Mr. Heard shows that in the gigantic empire, commonly supposed to be swayed by the mere will of an autocrat, there are the germs of representative institutions, some surviving from dim antiquity. Mr. Charles Gayarre and Mr. C. D. Warner describe the Southern States under very different aspects. The one in "A Louisiana Sugar Plantation of the old regime," gives a lively picture of the old Spanish and French aristocracy, courtly and patriarchal. The other describing "The South revisited" shows the strange transformation that is taking place under the influences of the spread of education and still more of the establishment of manufactures, fostered by a wise protective system. Fiction is abundant, diversified and excellent in this number. Kathleen O'Meara in "Naska" takes us through thrilling scenes of Russian life. Blackmore in "Springhaven," combines peaceful rural life in England with the disturbing influences of the threatened invasion of the first Napoleon. Howells in "April Hopes," lay bare to us the ways of Boston society. Mr. Johnston, in "The Rivalries of Mr. Toby Gillam," comically depicts a scene of rural life in Georgia. The poetry is exceptionally good, and the "Easy Chair" and other editorial miscellanies are as excellent as ever.

The Canadian Methodist Magazine.—The leading article in the March number is one on Edinburgh and its memories. The numerous engravings of the picturesque old town are of special interest. Lady Brassey grows enthusiastic over the lovely scenery of the West Indies, the engravings of which are very fine; as are also those of the magnificent scenery of the Rocky Mountains, accompanying the editor's "Across the Continent." The striking paper by Dr. Clarke, Superindent of the Toronto Asylum for the Insane, on "Half-hours in a Lunatic Asylum," with specimens of "lunatic literature" will attract much attention. General Superintendent Dr. Williams contributes another admirable paper on Minor Poets of Methodism, and T. Bowman Stephenson, LL. D., one on Aspects of Social Life at the Antipodes. A number of other papers and a strongly written story, editorial notes on the fishery question, etc., make up a capital number.

Why the "Globe" Falsifies Returns.

A contributer of the Toronto Labor Reformer writes:—On Wednesday I met Deacon Cameron, and asked him what he hoped to gain by falsifying the returns, when as soon as the house met he would be found out. "Oh, no," said he, "the public will never know but we are telling the truth." Why, I said, you claim a Grit majority while the very first vote will show that the Government have 25 at least. Surely, I added, you don't intend to change the figures on the votes in the house. "You don't understand the science of politics," he replied. "We have our plans all arranged, we will keep right on claiming that a majority were elected in opposition to the Government, and then when they vote the other way we will assert that the Tories have bought them. Don't you see we'll make out a clear case of boodling.' Oh, I tell you politics is a great scientific game, but it requires brains to play it. Why, we'll begin right away to manufacture stories about the plans of the Tories to buy over the Frenchmen, and then, when they vote against us, we'll point to their votes as proof." The deacon is either a great statesman or a great fool. You can count him just as it suits your fancy.

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

THE TRAMP.

On a stone by the wayside, half naked and cold,
And soured in the struggle of life,
With his parchment envelope grown musty and old,
Sat the tramp with his crust and his knife.
And the leaves of the forest fell round him in showers,
And the sharp, stinging flurries of snow,
That had warned off the robins to sunnier bowers,
Admonished him, too, he should go.

But autumn had gone, having gather'd his sheaves,
And the glories of summer were past,
And spring, with the swallows that built in the eaves,
Had left him the weakest and last.
So he sat there alone, for the world could not heal
A disease without pain, without care;
Without hope, without sigh, too insensate to feel;
Too utterly lost for despair.

But he thought, as the night and the darkness and gloom
That gather'd around him so fast,
Hid the sky and the stars in their cloud-shrouded tomb,
Of the fair, but the far-distant past.
Around him a vision of beauty arose,
Unpainted, unpencil'd by art,—
His home, father, mother, sweet peace and repose
From the sad repertoire of the heart.

And brightly the vision came gliding along,
Through the warm golden gates of the day;
With voices of childhood and music and song,
Like echoes from lands far away.
And the glad ringing laughter of girlhood was there,
And one, 'mong the others so dear
That back o'er the gulf of his crimes and despair,
Came the sad sacred joy of a tear.

And he held, while he gazed, his crust half consumed,
In his cold shrivell'd hand, growing weak,
While a glory shone round him, that warmed and illum'd
The few frozen tears on his cheek.
In the dark silent night, thus his spirit had flown,
Like the sigh of a low passing breath;
Life's bubble had burst, and another gone down,
In the deep shoreless ocean of death!

In the bright waking morn, by the side of the way,
On the crisp frozen leaves s hed around,
The crust, and the knife, and the casket of clay,
Which the tramp left behind him were found,
And bound round his neck, as he lay there alone,
Was an image both youthful and fair,
Of a sweet laughing girl with a blue-ribbon zone
And a single white rose in her hair.

Had he loved? was she wed? was she daughter or wife?
Or sister? the world may not read
Her story nor his. They are gone with the life
That ended, "A tramp was found dead"!
"Found dead by the way," in the gloom and the cold,
The boy whom a mother had kiss'd—
The son whom a father could proudly enfold—
The brother a sister had miss'd.

"Found dead by the way," whom a maiden's first love
Had hallow'd, then worshipp'd in part;
And clothed in a light from the glory above,
To enshrine in her pure virgin heart.
"Found dead," and alone by the way where he died,
To be thrown like a dog in his lair;
Yet he peacefully sleeps, as the stone by his side,
And rich as the proud millionaire!

—D. McCaig, in the Arcturus.

Entombed Perhaps for Ages.

Parties from the Bad Lands in Dakota arrived in St. Paul., Minn., last Sunday, with five mummies, which were found by a prospector in a cavern in the side of the mountain. William Allen, while sinking a shaft near Buffalo Gap, and when 20 feet from the top, felt the earth give way beneath him, and his tools dropped out of sight. Hastily ascending, by means of a rope from the windlass, he procured a longer rope and again descended, going down about 80 feet and landing in a cavern 20 feet square.

He was horrified to see huddled in one corner the bodies of five persons—a man, a women and three children. They were shriveled to less than half the usual size of human beings, the dried up flesh giving them the appearance of mummies. The hair was still on their heads and the finger nails were perfect, but very long. On one side of the cave were some strange hieroglyphics and marks as though the inmates had tried to dig themselves out, and, failing in this, left the story of their fate.

The theory of Mr. Allan is that the family took refuge in the cave hundreds of years ago, and that a landslide from the mountains sealed the mouth, leaving the imprisoned persons to die a horrible death by starvation. It was near this place that the immense lower jaw of a mastodon was discovered and sent to the Smithsonian institution.

A Comical Church-Going Bit.

An amusing incident occurred not long since at the close of an evening meeting of one of the churches. A well-known citizen and his wife attended the service, going thither, as was their custom, in their own vehicle. When the meeting was over the husband told the wife to go out at the door, so as to be ready to go home when he came along with the horses and sleigh. She was promptly on time, and a team came up, a man held out his hand and helped her in, and drove off with her. They had not gone a great way when she said: "It seems to me that you got the horse quick." The man looked at her a moment in surprise, on hearing a strange voice, and exclaimed: "Good gracious! I have got the wrong woman." He turned the horse round and drove back to the place of meeting, where an exchange was made, and he started home once more with the right woman.—Concord Monitor.

Disadvantage of Being a Bachelor.

"Won't you join our club, Jack?"
"Couldn't think of it, my boy."
"Why not?"
"I'm not married,"
"What has that to do with it?"
"Everything in the world. I have nobody to wait up for me at night. The house in which I lodge closes at ten every night, and there are no latch-keys allowed. Wait until I'm married and can stay out as long as I please, and I'll join you."

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, and Constipation, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

AYER'S PILLS

CURE HEADACHE.

Headaches are usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, foul stomach, or other derangements of the digestive system, and may be easily cured by the use of Ayer's Pills. Mrs. Mary A. Scott, Portland, Me., writes: "I had suffered dreadfully from Sick Headache, and thought myself incurable. Disorder of the stomach caused it. Ayer's Pills cured me entirely."

CURE BILIOUSNESS.

John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebr., writes: "I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice. I was so dangerously ill, that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor. I feel certain that I owe my recovery to your invaluable Pills."

CURE INDIGESTION.

Ayer's Pills act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, influencing healthful action, imparting strength, and eradicating disease. G. W. Mooney, Walla Walla, W. T., writes: "I have suffered from Dyspepsia and Liver troubles for years past. I found no permanent relief, until I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, which have effected a complete cure."

CURE RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism is among the most painful of the disorders arising from vitiated blood and derangement of the digestive and biliary organs. Ayer's Pills relieve and cure Rheumatism when other remedies fail. S. M. Spencer, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "I was confined to my bed, with Rheumatism, three months, but, after using a few boxes of Ayer's Pills, became a well man."

CURE GOUT.

S. Lansing, Yonkers, N. Y., writes. "Recommended to me as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me not only from that trouble, but also from Gout. If every victim of the disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be, 'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

CURE PILES.

Piles are induced by habitual constipation, debility, indigestion, or a morbid condition of the liver. A cure is best effected by the use of Ayer's Pills. John Lazarus, St. John, N. B., writes: "I was cured of the Piles by the use of Ayer's Pills. They not only cured me of that disagreeable disorder, but gave me new life and health."

Sold by all Druggists.

Fixing Up.

Mr. Harry Robinson, late of Mitchell & Robinson, barbers, has recently fitted up his shop on Water street in a very handsome manner. A new walnut case ornamented with mirrors and marble has been put in by Mr. A. Clegg, together with other requisites for a first-class barber shop. The work done in the shop is as neat and stylish as the furnishings.

Improved.

Mr. Joseph Mitchel has of late added much to the brightness and convenience of his barber shop, Hunter street. A marble topped walnut case, fitted with cup cases and mirrors reaches nearly the whole length of the shop. The chairs have been newly cushioned and covered and a handsome marble topped stand has also been added. Mr. Mitchell is as fond of birds as ever. Behind a new glass partition several cages of canaries flutter and sing. Mr. A. Clegg supplied the furniture.

W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union held their regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Hall. There was a good attendance and the meeting opened with the usual devotional exercises. The chair was occupied by the President. After the Treasurer's, Secretary's and Committee's reports were read and accepted a communication was received from Miss Skinner, of Toronto, who will be here on Wednesday, March 9th, to organize a Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

It May be Remarked.

—That His Worship wants to impress people that it dosen't pay to fight.

—That Councillors Yelland and Menzies have "mutual" ideas on the insurance question.

—That Dr. Potts thinks that as the Methodist College is named after Her Majesty, and that as this is Her Majesty's jubilee year, it would be a fitting year to turn the first sod for Victoria University, Toronto.

—That he proposes to have the contract let this fall.

Personal.

A party from the Oriental Hotel, consisting of Miss Amy Beaugard, and Messrs. J. E. McIntyre and S. Morrison, left Peterborough this morning for Jacksonville, Florida, where they will join Mrs. J. E. McIntyre and then go to Cuba, etc. They will all return home after an absence of about six weeks.

Mr. Alex. Graham, well known to the travelling public and the citizens of Peterborough, has assumed the position of bookkeeper and clerk in the Oriental Hotel.

Mr. D. J. King, of Lindsay, is in town for a day or two visiting friends.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

VICTORIA COLLEGE.

A Committee Formed to Take Subscriptions in Aid of Federation.

A meeting was held in the school room of the George Street Methodist Church on Monday afternoon in the interest of the College Federation scheme. There were quite a number present. The clergy were represented by the Rev. Dr. Potts, Rev. Dr. Nelles, Rev. I. Tovell, Rev. F. H. Wallace, Rev. Mr. Wilson, Ashburnham; Rev. Mr. McFarlane, Lakefield; Rev. Mr. West, Ballyduff, and Rev. Mr. Tozeland, Warsaw. The Rev. I. Tovell acted as chairman.

The Rev. E. F. Torrence opened the meeting with prayer.

Dr. NELLES was the first speaker. The last conference, he said, had arrived at a decision as to the Federation, which they were now endeavouring to give effect to. Federation meant a group of colleges under the control of respective denominations, and in affiliation with the State University, all together making up one great centre of learning. It was somewhat akin to the University of Cambridge. Victoria College would be as it had been. It would give instruction to others besides those preparing for the ministry. Federation involved the removal of the Victoria College to Toronto—this one being the only one outside of the city of Toronto to enter the Federation. The removal involved a considerable sum of money, and as soon as the new buildings were put up the educational work would be gone on with. One thing which influenced them to go into Federation was the fact that the old buildings would soon have to be repaired, together with the growing feeling that Cobourg was not the place to establish it permanently. Victoria College being under the necessity of a new departure of some kind, it was thought best to go into this scheme. They required to provide an income of $30,000 a year to establish the Victoria College in Toronto. They now had an income of $15,000. It was proposed that the people of Toronto should subscribe the money for the new buildings.

Dr. POTTS said that at the Conference there was four schemes put forward—To establish the college permanently at Cobourg, cost $300,000; to establish it in Hamilton, cost $550,000; to establish it in Toronto as an independent university, cost, $700,000, and to establish it in Toronto in federation with others, cost $450,000. After much consideration that last named scheme had been adopted. A beautiful site had been secured in Queen's Park and rented for a term of years at $1 an acre. As to the ability of the Methodist Church to contribute the amount to establish the college he had not the slightest doubt. A photograph of the proposed building was shown. It represented the frontage at 122 feet, depth of main building 60 feet, depth of wings 92 feet, height of ridge 85 feet, and height of tower 130 feet.

After Dr. Potts' address the Rev. Mr. Wallace moved, seconded by Dr. Fife—That this meeting having listened with great pleasure to the explanations of the federation scheme presented to us by the Rev. Dr. Nelles and the Rev. Dr. Potts, express cordial approval of the enterprise in view of the great advantages it will confer both upon church and state, and that a district committee be formed consisting of the following members, viz.: Messrs. Tovell, Wallace, McFarlane, Cox, Stevenson, M.P., and Hull, whose duty it shall be to aid the educational authorities of the Church in procuring subscriptions to the building and endowment fund of Victoria College, Toronto.

The meeting then adjourned.

POLICE COURT.

BOTH FINED.

TUESDAY, March 1.—P. C. Adams charged A. Dobbin with having committed an aggravated assault upon Joseph Langford. On going into the evidence the Magistrate found him guilty and imposed a fine of $20.

A. Dobbin charged Joseph Langford with having committed an assault on him. He was also found guilty and fined $10.

Handsome Prizes.

The prizes offered for competition at the second fancy dressed skating carnival to be held in the Charlotte St Rink, on Friday evening, March 4th, are now on view in Mr. W. A. Sanderson's window. They are handsome and costly, and will no doubt be the means of a good number of competitions.

In Love with Maud S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—In regard to the offer of $100,000 for Maud S., Mr. Bonner said yesterday:—"If anybody were to offer me $200,000; or $300,000 it would be all the same. There are some things we do not part with for money, and Maud S. is one of them. Vanderbilt felt the same way about her, and I was never more surprised in my life then when he offered her to me. The $40,000 I gave him for her was no more to him than 40 cents would be to most men. The reason he sold her was because his eyesight grew dim, and he could not see his horses when he drove them. Vanderbilt knew I had some good horses, and that I took good care of them, and he wanted her placed with me, because he wanted her well cared for. It was her comfort he looked for, that is all."

Attempted Murder at Bethany.

There was an attempt at murder in Bethany last week. The Lindsay Warder's correspondent says:—We are sorry to say that the record of our village for the past week is not as creditable as formerly, nothing less than an attempt of murder having taken place on last Monday. It appears that Wm. Fisher had determined to marry a young lady of our town, and on that day demanded an affirmative reply to his proposal. The reply was not satisfactory, whereupon he drew a revolver and fired at her, the ball grazing her ear and lodging in the wall behind. The ruffian then fled, and at the time of writing, is still at large.

LATEST CABLE NEWS.

A NEW EXPLOSIVE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 28.—The experiments with a new explosive, which have been under the supervision of the Government, have been attended with great success. The explosive possesses fifteen times greater destructive power than gun powder. It does not produce any smoke.

EXHRESSIONS OF REGRET.

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—Emperor William and Prince Bismarck have sent telegrams to the Pope expressing their regret at the death of Cardinal Jacobini.

A SLIM ATTENDANCE.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 28.—The Mayor of Liverpool convened a meeting to-day to arrange for the raising of a public fund to celebrate the Queen's Jubilee. Exclusive of reporters, only four persons attended.

BELLIGERENT ATTITUDE.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Germany continues to keep up her belligerent attitude towards France, and has lately been pouring troops into Alsace-Lorraine and greatly strengthening her garrisons there. There are now 65,000 men, with 17,000 horses and 280 guns, in the annexed provinces. The correspondent of the statistical journal shows that to be one gun to 230 men, the German average being only one to 380; also that there are eleven men under arms to each square mile of territory. To carry that rate out all through the country would require 2,200,000 men in Germany, 2,250,000 in France and 23,000,000 in European Russia.

A MAN OF PEACE.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 28.—A long interview took place yesterday between the Turkish Ambassador and M. de Giers on Bulgarian matters and the General European situation. M. de Giers is stated to have expressed the opinion that the disturbed European equilibrium would soon be re-established, and probably no war would ensue for some time to come. As regards Bulgarian affairs they would not disturb the peace because the European Powers must finally admit the legitimate demands of Russia in Bulgaria. Referring to Turkish military preparation, M. de Giers declared there was no menace on any side to Turkey, but that the extraordinary outlay it incurred was out of propartion to the financial condition of that country.

LOSS OF AN EMIGRANT SHIP.

300 Persons Drowned — The Women Locked in their Bunks.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The surviving passengers and crew of the emigrant ship Kapunda, which was sunk in a collision off the coast of Brazil on Jan. 20th, when over 300 persons were drowned, have arrived Plymouth. They confirm the statement that the barque Ada Melmore, with which the Kapunda collided, had no lights visible. The single women among the Kapunda's passengers had been locked in their bunks by the matron of the ship, in accordance with the emigrant rules, and when the collision occurred they raised heartrending shrieks and frantically endeavored to beat down the doors until the vessel sank.

END OF THE SANDWICH SEIGE.

McKee Rankin's Brother a Prisoner for Five Months.

WINDSOR, Feb. 28.—Early in October last George Rankin, brother of McKee Rankin, the actor, and himself known as the writer of one or two plays and for his connection with theatrical matters, met his uncle, Thomas McKee, upon the streets at Sandwich, Ont. There had been bad blood between the two for years, and this was intensified by a disagreement over the settlement of certain family property matters, negotiations for which were then pending. The result of the meeting was a row, in the course of which Mr. McKee was "laid out." He went to Mayor M. C. Whinney and got a warrant for Rankin's arrest. Learning of this, Rankin hurried to his house, barred the door, and, when the police came with the warrant, appeared at the window armed with an axe, and read them a lesson in law, to the effect that, against process for any offence but a felony, an Englishman's house is his castle. He said he proposed to remain in the house, and the officers were perfectly welcome to stay outside, and would be treated with the utmost courtesy so long as they confined their operations to the surrounding country. So soon as any one of them attempted to enter he would be brained. This settled it, so far as the constables were concerned. It requires brains to be a cop in Sandwich, and they didn't want to blow in, or rather out, their whole capital on one little assault case. So far—nearly five month—Mr. Rankin has been practically a prisoner in his own house. He is a childless widower, and hence has been his own cook, housemaid, and valet. His friends have carried him supplies, and those who have shared his table say he is the most accomplished chef in Essex county. Of late the besiegers became weary, and their watchfulness relaxed. Taking advantage of this, Rankin aired himself in the open streets, but on Saturday constable Smith overtook him and served him with a warrant. Rankin went quietly before the Mayor, who fined him $5 and costs, or $9.50 in all, and bound him over to keep the peace. Rankin goes in a few days to Sault Ste. Marie, where he will reside permanently.

About Gerrymandering.

In West Huron the arch enemy of the "Boodlers," Mr. M. C. Cameron, has been defeated by the aid of the Gerrymander Act.—Montreal Witness.

West Huron has not been gerrymandered. The constituency is the same now as in the last Dominion election.

The townships of which it are composed are as compact as it is possible to make a constituency in Huron.

The population is rather more than the average.

Very many more than a third of all the electors in Huron are Conservatives, and the Conservatives have one of the three members. Why does the Witness grudge the Conservatives one member out of three?

Mr. Cameron, who was elected in 1882, has now been defeated in the same constituency, no doubt because the people have become convinced that he has not honestly administered the trust placed in his hand, and because they can no longer believe his word. He has established for himself the reputation of being the most untruthful public man in Canada.—Hamilton Spectator.

Horrible Crimes in a Poor House.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Feb. 27.—A horrible state of affairs has been disclosed at the Amherst court house poor house by the grand jury. The female inmates complained of treatment too appalling to be described, and abuse from Superintendent Dawson. The women were almost naked, and one was discovered in a cold room without any fire, wearing only an old calico wrapper. Vermin and filth were found in every department, the odor of which was sufficient to cause a pestilence. The county authorities furnish the superintendent with bed-clothing for the use of paupers, but the grand jury found only five blankets, and all of them were in possession of a Mulatto woman, a favorite of the superintendent. It was also discovered that nameless crimes were systematically carried on to such an extent that it was dangerous for respectable dependents to be sent there. The removal of the superintendent and his arrest were ordered immediately.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its riches it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

CARD OF THANKS.

Hugh C. Dennis, Esq., Manager for Eastern Ontario, Equitable Life Assurance Society:

DEAR SIR,—I acknowledge with great thankfulness the receipt of ten thousand dollars from the Equitable Life Assurance Society, on a policy which my late husband took out only about fourteen months ago.

I am especially grateful for the prompt payment of this sum, because the Society did not press technical objections, which I am advised might have been raised to the right of my husband to keep this contract in force after the end of the first year.

At the time the policy was taken out the expediency of it appeared doubtful to me, but I now realize how little wives and families understand the boon of life insurance.

I am indebted to your Inspector, Col R. Z. Rogers, and to you personally for the attention you have given to my claim, and to the correspondence connected with it.

Yours sincerely,
H. HAMMOND.

A WOMAN HANGED.

Execution of Mrs. Druse for the Murder of Her Husband.

HERKIMER, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Mrs. Roxiana Druse was hanged here to-day for the murder of her husband some months ago. Strenuous efforts have been made to prevent the execution taking place. Governor Hill has been beseiged with petitions and a resolution was even brought in the Legislature exempting women from the death penalty. All efforts were in vain and the hanging took place to-day. The people of the neighborhood were averse to any pardon being granted, owing chiefly to the brutality of the crime, in which Mrs. Druse and her daughter were accomplices. The daughter is now in prison. Mrs. Druse was a frail women in appearance, weighing only 100 pounds. She herself made the black silk gown in which she was hung. It was decorated with long, silk pink, red and yellow streamers, because she wanted her black dress "as gay as possible." She had her cell decorated with several mottoes, neatly printed by herself in water color, which read "Judge not, judge not, you do not know all." She threatened to haunt the man who hangs her until he dies, although she seemed scarcely to realise the terrible doom awaiting her.

Upon reaching the gallows Mrs. Druse stepped to the middle of the board platform and knelt while Dr. Powell offered up a prayer lasting about three minutes. She sobbed gently at intervals, and at the conclusion of the prayer her clergyman, Dr. Powell, grasping her hand, bade her goodbye and stepped outside the enclosure so as not to witness the hanging. Previous to this Mrs. Druse gave to Dr. Powell a bouquet of flowers which her daughter Mary had sent to her. The executioner then stepped forward and pinioned her arms and legs together; the noose was adjusted and the black cap drawn down over her face. At this point she showed signs of collapse, and pegan to scream and shriek at the top of her voice in an hysterical manner, but the drop choked off the cries in her throat, and the body of the murderess was sent flying upward about four feet, shooting forward to the right and settling back to within one foot and a half on the platform. Drs. Suitor and Key examined the pulse beats, which were almost imperceptible. After the lapse of one minute spasmodic clenching of the fingers occurred, followed by efforts to draw up the legs. The pulse also began to beat very rapidly, about 102, although very feeble. This increased at three minutes to 140, although still quite weak. The pulsations were then less rapid and continued to get slower until fifteen minutes after the drop fell, when life was pronounced extinct. When the black cap was drawn back it was found that death had resulted from asphyxia. The body was placed in a coffin and turned over to Dr. Powell, who promised to give Mrs. Druse Christian burial. The remains will probably be taken to the receiving vault of Oakhill cemetery until Dr. Powell determines its final resting place.

CHINESE IN VANCOUVER.

The City's Charter Suspended—Chinese to be Protected.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 1.—The Legislature to-day suspended the rules and passed a bill to meet the emergency of Vancouver. The bill virtually suspends the City's charter and vests all power in the Legislature. The Governor has assented to the bill. A special force has been sworn in and will proceed to Vancouver to-morrow armed with batons and revolvers. Three of the ring-leaders in the attack upon the Chinese a few days ago have already been arrested and more arrests will follow. The Chinese at the time of the attack were driven into the waters of the inlet, and some of them were nearly drowned. Those left in the city after Thursday night have since been sent out. The Government force will protect their interests and deal unsparingly with those taking part in outrages against the Chinese.

TWENTY LIVES LOST.

Fifteen Adults and Five Children Cremated on a Burning Steamer.

MOBILE, Ala., March 1.—The steamer W. H. Gardner, one of the largest boats plying on the Tom Bigbee River from Mobile, was burned this afternoon three miles below Gainesville, Sumtet County, Alabama. Captain F. S. Stone telegraphs from Epesala that the boat is a total loss, together with 464 bales of cotton. The loss of life is very large, as follows:—S. C. Blackman, Jule Rembert and two children, Mrs. W. T. Rembert and three children, T. L. Graham, G. Rutes and ten coloured persons. No details of the cause and progress of the fire have been received.

A Gigantic Enterprise.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 1.— P. D. Armour says that a company with several million dollars capital will be formed in Chicago in a few days to erect twelve very large cotton seed oil mills in the Southern States. The control of the enterprise will be held by Mr. Armour and his partners, but among the stockholders will be nearly every large manufacturer of soap in this country. All the oil made by the mills will be taken by them and used in their soap making and lard rendering business. The motive of the Armours for going into the scheme was that the American Cotton Oil Trust Company had assumed a hostile attitude towards their firm, which consumes a fifth of all the cotton seed oil in the country.

Trouble in Dakota.

WINNIPEG, March 1.—There is trouble at St. John, Dakota, between the authorities and the Canadian half-breeds, who settled there after the Riel rebellion. A number of their horses were seized for non-payment of taxes, and they have banded together to recaptured them by force. Troops have been asked for at Fort Totten.

Phenomena Explained.

CINCINNATI, March 1.—Prof. Curtis, the prominent meteorologist, gives it as his opinion that the pellets of ashes and mud which fell over this section last week eminated from the Mauna Loa Volcano on the Sandwich Islands, which is now in eruption.

WARLIKE EUROPE.

Turkish Ambassadors in Conference—Efforts to Preserve the Peace.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The Star's London special says: "All the Turkish ambassadors at the continental capitals and London had interviews with the Foreign ministers of the countries to which they are respectively accredited to-day. Their instructions were to report for the information of the Sultan any statements they might be able to elicit respecting the European situation. Rustem Pasha's interview with Lord Salisbury resulted in assurance that England is throwing her influence on the side of peace. The Prime Minister's efforts to bring about a friendly understanding between France and Germany have not met with success. From Berlin, Paris and Vienna we have reports that the pacific declarations of M. de Giers were echoed by each of the great powers. The Sultan may therefore safely reduce his armies to a peace footing if the words of the diplomats are to be taken literally."

A TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

VIENNA, March 1.—It is stated that under the terms of the renewed treaty between Austria, Italy and Germany, Italy agrees to place 200,000 troops at the disposal of Austria in the event of war with Russia, and to place the same number at the disposal of Germany in the event of war with France.

The Political Correspondence says that Spain will not go beyond armed neutrality in the event of an outbreak of hostilities.

BERLIN, March 1.—The North German Gazette draws attention to the fact that Levansol, of Paris, is publishing a French and German pocket dictionary for the use of troops, costing only 20 centimes.

The Hannoverscher Courier says: "The Alsatians must blame themselves if one result of the elections be the application to their provinces of laws of absolute dictatorship. When made to understand that another war with France will be a complete ruin of the provinces, the Alsatians will perhaps be ready to vote for German candidates.

PATIENCE DEMANDED.

The Boerge Courier contents that the real conquest of the province will be the work of a generation, and demands patience. It says that their feelings and patriotism to-day shown towards France will revert to Germany, when the justice of German rule effaces from the minds of the people the effects of two centuries of French domination.

The Nachriten says:—The situation has not yet lost its threatening character, compelling Germany to provide for every contingency. Among the warlike preparations of France during the past week may be noted the fact that 241 truck loads of planks and beams passed the frontier stations, and that immense orders have been given for steel tubes for fire arms. The rolling stock of French northern and eastern railways has been massed in large parks at various points. The work of finally clearing the glacis, and other fort works has been begun.

VIENNA, March 1.—The buiding of cavalry huts and barracks along the Carl Lading railroad has caused a panic in Galacia. A large number of people are selling their property and moving to Vienna.

THE VERDICT—The People have decided that Rowse's new prints, ginghams, pillow cottons, towels and tablings, are by far the cheapest in town. Every lady should see them.

OMINOUS SIGNS.

The Temper of the Czar of Russia Very Warlike.

The London correspondent of the Montreal Star telegraph on March 1st: Most of the foreign correspondents agree that the immediate danger of an out break of war is over, but there is a slight check to this opinion on the result of the Alsace-Lorraine election. There is also a distinct class of observers, whose view I believe is founded on very grave circumstances, who declare that the real danger comes from Russia. There are several ominous signs of the temper of the Czar. First the information comes to me from Constantinople that Russian agents have endeavored to organize a military revolt against the Bulgarian regency. The attempt has entirely failed, but will probably be renewed. A second sign is the massing of very large bodies of troops, especially Cossacks, on the Galician frontier. The third is the meeting of Russians generally at St. Petersburg, which was summoned for this month. The most serious of all is the news, which is already bruited abroad in the Polish press, that the long contemplated is about to take place. His successor would be Prince Donostchieff, who is one of the triumvirate of reactionary panslavists who have the Czar's sympathy, practically rule Russia and govern her foreign policy. The statement is even made that Russia has definitely determined on war, and is simply waiting the chance to attack some point of the Austrian frontier. This is the blackest spot in the horizon. The brightest is the propect of strong alliance between Italy and the two German powers. The Italian parties are divided as to the wisdom of such an alliance, but it is safe to say it is more probable at this moment than any period within the last two years.

SUPERCESSION OF M. DEGIERS

The Re-count in Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 1.—The re-count to-day increased Sir John Macdonald's majority by five, making it seventeen instead of twelve. In one polling sub-division on the back of four ballots were the names of as many voters, who, it is said, had their ballots marked by the returning officer. One of the voters was blind. The returning officer says he thought he was doing his duty when he wrote the names on the ballots.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its riches it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

CONTINUED EARTH TREMORS.

ROME, March 1.—Tremors continue to be felt in the Riviera, but no additional damage has been done.

MORE EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

LONDON, March 1.—Slight earthquake shocks were felt yesterday at Alassio and Albenga. The trains on the Riveria railway continue running, but at a slow speed, further landslips being feared. On February 22, eleven hours before the earth shock, two kilometers of road was destroyed between Nice and Sospel by the fall of a hill. Similar accidents happened near Istria. The earthquake was felt in several places in Austria and Bulgaria. Six severe shocks were experienced at Shumla on the morning of the 26th.

COLONIZING THE NEW HEBRIDES.

PARIS, March 1.—The French Colonization Society has decided to send twenty-five families to the New Hebrides. This will be the first contingent sent out by the Society, and is supposed to be the thin end of the wedge of an entensive colonization movement.

TAX OBJECTED TO.

PARIS, March 1.—It is stated that a majority of the Cabinet are opposed to the five franc surtax on cereals, but refuse to venture an opinion, knowing that the majority of the Deputies are protectionists.

LONDON, March 1.—A despatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company says it is stated there that Prince Bismarck intends to request President Grevy to dismiss General Boulanger from the ministry.

IRISH HOME RULE.

LONDON, March 1.—In the lobby of the House of Commons last night it was stated that Mr. Gladstone will shortly issue a manifesto to the nation, giving the details of his Home Rule policy and calling on the country to put an end to the present shameful condition of public affairs. The Liberal leaders favor simultaneous mass meetings to decide for or against Home Rule, to be held in every considerable town in England, Wales and Scotland, and this programme will probably be adopted. The Tories are preparing for a counter move, and only await a definite announcement from the Opposition to put the anti-Home Rule machinery in motion. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Chamberlain have had repeated consultations since they dined at the Devonshire club. The negotiations are making satisfactory progress, and the advocates of reunion express confidence that good results will follow in the interests of Home Rule.

PARIS, March 1.—The Government has authorized the Military bake houses to bake bread for the earthquake sufferers.

THE SECOND BALLOTS.

BERLIN, March 1.—The results of the second ballots, which will begin to-morrow, is very uncertain, as the different parties will make different combinations in different places.

REVOLT AT SILISTRIA.

LONDON, March 1.—Despatches from Sofia say that the troops of the garrison of Silistria revolted yesterday evening, and pronounced against the Regency. Troops are marching to Silistria from Rustchuck Varna and schumla to quell the mutiny.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, March 1.—In the debate on the procedure rules this evening Mr. Molloy, on behalf of Mr. Parnell, moved the amendment that cloture should not be applied till the subject under discussion had been debated. Mr W. H. Smith opposed the motion, saying that the Government would propose an amendment of a similar nature. Mr. Parnell complained that the Irish were unfairly treated, and attributed the Government's action to the influence of Mr. Goschen. Mr. Healy objected to confiding in a Speaker in whose election the Parnellites had no voice. Mr. Gladstone supported Mr. Molloy's amendment. The amendment was rejected by 241 to 186. The announcement of the vote was received with loud cheers.

FISHERY DIFFICULTY.

LONDON, March 1.—The Colonial Secretary's despatch on the bait-fishing in Newfoundland is published. It says the difficulties exist because of a departure from a policy long adhered to. The French Government received no intimation of the alteration of the practice for the current year, and the Imperial Government could not, therefore, disregard the French representation that the proposed restriction would inflict a grave loss on the French fishermen, therefore the law passed by the Newfoundland Legislature was disallowed. The despatch suggests that a remedy for the existing difficulty might be found in some other direction.

THE PLAN PROCLAIMED.

DUBLIN, March 1.—The Executive has authorized all local magistrates to proclaim every Plan of Campaign meeting, and to demand the assistance of military and police without awaiting sanction from headquarters.

SHERIFF TO BE REMOVED.

DUBLIN, March 1.—David Sheehy, M. P., for South Galway, will be removed from the office of sheriff of Limerick for presiding at a Plan of Campaign meeting.

COERCION IN ALSACE.

BERLIN, March 1.—A despatch from Strasburg announces that the Government has issued an order for the dissolution of the union of the Alsatian choral societies, it being suspected that the union assisted the objects of the French league of patriots. The measures forbidding French military men to stay in Alsace except on a special permit, it is said, will be applied to civilians and that societies whose rules forbid the admission of Germans, to membership of societies, which, as a matter of common knowledge, excluded Germans, will be dissolved. Press correspondents and others it is claimed, have been acting as electoral agents, inciting the malcontents and doing the work of spies.

The reported death of Cardinal Jacobini on Saturday was premature. He then sank into a state of coma, which lasted until noon on Monday, when he expired.

The Daily Review.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2, 1887.

POOR CANADA.

As public journalists we feel it our duty to record an emphatic protest against the manner in which the Mail treats the fishery question in its leading article of Tuesday. The tenor of the whole article is that Canada has no choice but to submit to any conditions that the United States may please to impose. A country that had been completely prostrated by an armed enemy might be craven enough to yield such abject submission to its conqueror, but for a country whose people have any manhood to assume such a cowardly position at an early stage of negotiations is something new in history.

We believe that the people of Canada have no wish to be unneighborly with the great state on our southern border, and that they are quite willing to come to any reasonable arrangement. Neither, we are sure, does Canada wish to insult the Government and people of the United States by assuming, as the Mail does, that they are a nation of dishonest bullies, who would invade our territory and "seize our fish without saying by your leave," because they are the stronger. We will not do them the injustice of accusing them of such dishonesty. But even if the Mail were right in its estimate of their morals, that would be no sufficient reason for Canada to admit or to feel that it is altogether helpless. If as the Mail says "the old law of the top dog is bound to prevail," it cannot do so till the other becomes the under dog. Canada may be the pipkin and the United States the pot, but past experience does not warrant the assumption that in case of a collision Canada would "inevitably be crushed." On reading the astounding expressions in the Mail one cannot help feeling that the writer's true place is beside Mr. Ingalls in the United States Senate.

It is begging the question to argue that because the people of the United States want our fish and do not like our territorial laws they are warranted in fixing the terms on which they may use our fisheries, or decide upon what changes we should made in our statutes. They have all the rights given to them by treaties, and if they resent the enforcement of these treaties by retaliatory legislation we have a perfect right to retort as may seem to us expedient.

The fact is that the United States deliberately revived the operation of the old treaty by availing themselves of their right to terminate the later arrangement suspending it. They do not seem to have counted the cost, and now they wish to retain the privileges granted to them by us, while withdrawing the compensating advantages given by them to us. There is a position to which we obviously cannot accede. There is no doubt force in the argument that some of the stipulations of an old treaty may have become out of date and unsuitable. But the remedy for this is that the countries interested should bargain for the mutual concessions desired, should negotiate fairly for provisions acceptable to both, not that one country should say it does not like the treaty and will no longer be bound by it in certain particulars. That is simply the pirate's version of international law.

The measure recommended by the Mail is no more acceptable than its cowardly and unpatriotic advice. A customs union, which it advocates, is quite inadmissible on account of the injury it could not fail to inflict upon our country. The objections to it are so numerous that we will briefly state only a few of them. Most of our young industries would be crushed out by their longer established and wealthier rivals across the line, for the very object of the proposal is that United States manufacturers may be able to flood our markets with their surplus goods. We would be driven to raise a revenue by direct taxation or heavy excise duties, if we open our ports to British goods on the same terms as to American goods. If we admitted British goods free how could the United States prevent them from crossing the border without difficulty and friction that must cause endless disputes? If we taxed goods from the British Islands while giving free admission to goods from the United States we would be adopting a system repudiated by all powers in their intercourse with friendly nations, and that would be still more incongruous with a mother country. It is obvious that a customs union would be little short of virtual annexation, to which it must inevitably lead if maintained. Canada is not ready for such a step and we doubt if it ever will be.

When the United States denied us reciprocity their people and some Canadians of the stamp of the writer of the Mail article thought that Canada would suffer so severely from the restriction of intercourse that it would be ready to make any concession. The event showed that the denial of reciprocity was decidedly beneficial to Canada, that it hastened our progress and fostered our self-dependence. It was from our neighbors that came cries of being injured. If the United States, in its pique at not being granted free use of our property, chooses still further to restrict its intercourse with us, it will be found that we can stand it just as well and just as long they can. When they are tired of sulking Canada will be ready and willing to negotiate for a mutually satisfactory solution of the fishery question. As to reciprocity, we have a standing offer in our statute books waiting their acceptance, and the list of articles might possibly be lengthened by mutual agreement, though by no means to the extent of a customs union.

Canada is not only willing but anxious for a friendly and satisfactory arrangement of these questions, but such an arrangement is impeded, rather than facilitated, by nervous or cranky Canadians expressing their readiness to lie down for our neighbors to wipe their boots on us.

THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Referring to the opening of the Ontario Legislature the Globe of March 1st says:—

"The numerical weakness of the Opposition is to be regretted, for every government is the better for close watching and forceful criticism."

Whether the Globe's expression of regret is sincere or not it states a truism, and a truth that is especially applicable to the Ontario Legislature with the present Government.

Where there are parties there are different opinions as to the best method of administering affairs. Each party has views on questions of policy different from those of the party to which it is opposed. The opinions of either party carried to extreme would frequently be injurious to the country, and where the Opposition is strong numerically and in ability, while the will of the majority must prevail, it will most probably be judiciously tempered.

A strong Opposition, as the Globe remarks, it is wise to have in order to check carelessness in legislation or expenditure, and to prevent or expose maladministration or a misappropriation or corrupt expenditure of funds. The knowledge that a strong Opposition is always alert, and will examine every appropriation and look into every account, large or small, cannot fail to have a tendency to make the Administration more careful and to secure better government and a better return for the Provincial funds expended.

That the Opposition in the present Ontario Legislature is not stronger is indeed a matter for regret. It is true that the Opposition has an able leader, and a leader who devotes his energies to his work, and that he has several able assistants. Yet the record of the Mowat Government has been such that, while it does remain in office, it is clearly in the interests of the people that it should be faced by a strong Opposition, in numbers as well as in ability. The manner in which it has dealt with the finances of the Province, rolling up deficits, drawing on the surplus until it has almost disappeared, disposing of timber and lands to meet current requirements, and withal pursuing a policy that, if carried out, will burden the Province with debt, not only requires criticism but checking, else, if it does not lead to disaster, it will certainly lead to what will not be cordially welcomed, direct taxation.

Other transactions of the Mowat Government, such as their dealings with timber limits, using the money voted for colonization roads for an election fund, and the stories which documents withheld and papers brought down in a mutilated condition would tell, call for the overthrow of the Government, and, failing that, a powerful Opposition. No doubt the Conservatives in the House, led by Mr. Meredith, will do good work for those who elected them and for the Province generally, but it would be greatly to the advantage of the people if their hands could be materially strengthened.

THE RETALIATORY BILL.

The Disagreement Between the Senate and House of Representatives.

Washington, March 1.—Regarding the retaliatory bill, the irreconcilable point of difference between the managers on the part of the two houses, as stated by the Senate Conference Committee, is said to be the insistence, on the part of the house managers, to add to the scope of the Senate bill a further provision that in case of injurious treatment to an American vessel in British North American waters, it shall be within the competence of the President to stop intercourse absolutely, no only by water but by land, thus cutting off the continuous movement of trains from the British provinces to any part of the United States to the British Dominion. The Senate managers decline to go to that extent. They claim that the things which the President was authorized to do by the Senate bill were not in derogation of any treaty right, or of the peaceful intercourse of nations, and were not done in a spirit of belligerency, but as a matter of counter vailing business relations. The House conferees prepared a long report on the matter, in which they regret that a disagreement has occurred, and say that they offered to insert a compromise clause, exempting goods and wares covered by the treaty of 1871. This was not accepted, and the House conferees claim that no proposition that included cars and rolling stock in operation would be acceptable to the Senate and conferees. The House conferees held that an act of exclusion, to be successful, should be effective and unmistakable in its extent and results. Mr. Rice, of Massachusetts, does not join in this report. It is believed that no request will be made by the House for a further conference, and any overtures in that direction must come from the Senate.

PORT HOPE.

The Bus Again.—On Monday afternoon there occurred another of the accidents that are becoming so sadly frequent in connection with Port Hope's favorite winter pastime,—coasting. The eldest son of Arthur Graham, of Canton, about fifteen years of age, who is attending the High School here, was with a number of boys bussing on North street, when the bus ran into Messrs. Buckle & Son's horse moving along Brown street. The boys were scattered by the collision but only young Graham received severe injuries. He was trampled on by the horse and received ugly gashes in his head, one being in close proximity to his eye. He walked to a surgery where a number of stitche closed the gaping wounds.—Times.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods. Without which none are genuine.

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

RELIGIOUS SCENES IN CHINA.

A Picturesque Church Beggar—Carrying Out a Dreadful Vow.

"Church-begging" is very common in China. The temples advertise their wants by posting on walls in the neighborhood square pieces of yelow paper, whereon is the exact Chinese equivalent of the scriptural, "Ask and ye shall receive," together with the name and location of the temple where prayers are always answered.

But there are also more personal forms of begging. The writer of an article in the Youth's Companion had seen in Pekin a Buddhist priest whose cheeks had been pierced, and the teeth knocked out so that an iron rod, as large as one's middle finger, could be passed through, to project an inch or two beyond either cheek. An iron half-circle was hinged to each end of this, and passed around the back of the priest head. Attached to the half-circle was an iron chain, which was so long as to drag on the ground several feet behind him.

His business was to go from house to house, beating a small drum, asking for help to repair a temple. Sympathy would be wasted on him. He was a "professional church debt-lifter," who had monthly wages and commission on his collections—and the rod and chain were his stock in trade.

There is another way, still more peculiar. A priest stands in a small box-like structure placed in front of a temple, through the boards of which spikes have been driven, so that the imprisoned priest can move no part of his body, except his right arm, without being pricked by a spike. With his right hand he rings a bell to draw attention to his pitiable condition. Charitable persons give so much for the privilege of drawing a spike.

The highest priced spikes are those which point at the vital parts of the body. The priest is supposed to stand in his kennel day and night until all the spikes have been bought and drawn, but no one believes that he really does so.

A single incident will show how much hardship and self-inflicted suffering some of these heathens will undergo to fulfill a religious vow. One intolerably hot and dusty afternoon in 1871 the writer was resting at a way side tea house to the southwest of Pekin, and saw approaching a man and a woman. The man would first take one long step, then bring his other foot up and measure his whole length in the road.

Having knocked his head three times on the ground, he rose, took another step, and again prostrated himself. The woman was his wife, and was waiting upon him. In answer to questions, he said that he had made a vow that if Buddha would restore to health his son, who was desperately sick, he would make a pilgrimage to Wu-tai-shan and home again, a step and a prostration all the way.

Not more than three miles could be made in a day. He had travelled about 600 of the 2,000 miles of his double journey, and would be two years longer in completing his vow. As he was 70 years old, and almost worn out, it was easy to see that he would not live to fulfill it. A callous lump as large as an egg projected from his forehead, raised by his knocking his head upon the dusty road. Yet this man was shocked and angry at a suggestion that he should abandon his useless pilgrimage, and passed out of sight, measuring the road with his infirm body.

MR. GRENFELL'S ROMANCE.

A Famous Missionary Who Married one of Africa's Dusky Daughters.

Probably no missionary in the world has been so prominently before the public in the last two years as the Rev. George Grenfell, of the Baptist Congo mission. His name will always be associated with the exploration of most of the Congo tributaries that are now known. He has not only seen more of the Congo basin than any other man, but he is also a careful observer, a good route surveyor, and fairly well skilled in the use of geographical instruments.

The geographical societies of England, France and Germany have sought for and published contributions from him, and there is no doubt that, next to Livingstone and Krapf, he deservedly ranks among the foremost of Africa's missionary travellers.

Perhaps few of the thousands who have read the reports of his interesting journeys are aware that Mr. Grenfell, who is a thorough Englishman, is the husband of a native of Africa. His wife is a colored woman, originally a heathen, whose tribe has for many years inhabited the Atlantic coast, a little north of the Congo. He is, perhaps, the only white missionary in Africa who has married a native.

This strange marriage is said to have come about in this way: Few missionaries in Africa have had Grenfell's large and varied experience, though he is still in the prime of life. Before we heard of him on the Congo at all he told us much about the Cameroons country, which the Germans have since annexed. Grenfell is one of the few men who seem to be perfectly adapted for such a life as he is leading. He loves his wild surroundings, he loves the explorer's toilsome life, he seems to endure the climate as well as a native, and his heart is thoroughly enlisted in the work of Christian missions. While geographers have been reading and writing about the new regions and tribes he has revealed to the world, he has looked upon the new countries chiefly as fields for missionary enterprises.

Grenfell made up his mind long ago that he was destined to live and die in Africa. He decided it is said after long reflection, that it would greatly impair his usefulness if he took a wife from among the fair daughters of his native land. He had good reason to doubt that he would be lucky enough to find a white woman who could endure as well as he the climate of the torrid zone. He had not the slightest desire to marry anybody whose life or health would be sacrificed if he took her to Africa, or for whom he might have to sacrifice his work by going back to England with her. He therefore decided when he married to wed a native of the country.

In the course of time Grenfell met his fate at the mission station and trading post of Kabinda, on the coast not far north of the mouth of the Congo. He saw among the mission converts a bright young woman who had received a fair education in the mission school of Kabinda. She was a comely girl. She had been instructed for years in the arts of housewifery by the mission ladies, dressed in the garb of her civilized sisters, was neat and industrious and a devout Christain. She was in her changed condition, one of the best products of missionary labor. Grenfell believed she would make him a good helpmeet in his future arduous work as a pioneer missionary. In due time they were married, and from that day to this, Grenfell's friends say he has had no reason to regret the very unusual choice he made.

It can be said on the authority of Henry M. Stanley that the two babies who have been born to Mr. and Mrs Grenfell are "beautiful little children." The home of the Grenfells is on Stanley Pool, but until the past year they have not been there much of the time. Mrs. Grenfell and one of the children accompanied the missionary on some of the adventurous journeys in which he has explored over three thousand miles of the Congo. She sat unperturbed and very comfortable behind the wire screne that warded off the showers of arrows which were launched at the little steamer Peace by the hostile natives of the Mobangi river.

A writer, who evidently had not heard of Mr. Grenfell's little romance, recently mentioned as proof of the fact that white ladies can retain their health and vigor on the Congo, that the missionary, Grenfell, was accompanied on his long journeys by his excellent wife.—New York Sun.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

Golden Medical Discovery.

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-Joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS—Anti Bilious and Cathartic. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

C. Stapleton's Coming Sales.

SATURDAY, March 5.—General sale of horses, cattle, cutters, furniture, &c., on market square at 10 a. m.

TUESDAY, March, 8.—Unreserved credit sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. James McCall, on his premises, east half of lot 16, in the 14th con. of the township of Cavan, about two miles east of Mount Pleasant. Sale at 12.30.

WEDNESDAY, March 9.—Bona fide sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. Peter Moffatt, on the premises known as the "McNabb farm," near the Auburn woollen mills, Douro. Sale at 12.30.

FRIDAY, March 11.—Giving up farming. Unreserved sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. John Neish, on his premises, lot 20, in the 7th con. of the township of Otonabee, about one mile north of Allendale. Sale at 12.30. No reserve.

TUESDAY, March 15.—Giving up farming. Sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. Thomas Sheehean, on his premises, lot 3, in the 3rd con. of Douro, about one mile west of Indian River P. O. Sale at 12.30.

THURSDAY, March 17.—Extensive and important sale of farm stock, implements, &c., of Mr. Jermiah Coughlin, on the premises, lot 6, in the 7th con. of Douro. Sale at 12.30.

A LARGE MAJORITY of the citizens of Peterborough and vicinity say they can buy dress goods, mantlings and silks cheaper at Rowse's Trade Palace than any other store in town.

Collegiate Institute.

The average attendance at the Collegiate Institute during the month of February was 168.

The Band.

The Fire Bregade Band will be in attendance at the Charlotte Street rink this evening. The rink was flooded last night and the ice is in good condition.

Better Than a Fine.

An assault case was brought before the Court this morning, but through good advice given by the Magistrate the participants were induced to shake hands and say no more about it. They went off apparently good friends.

Personal.

Messrs. Chas. James and J. T. Cookson, of the Gospel Purity Association, London, England, will arrive in town by the C. P. R. train this evening, and will be the guests of Mr. Geo. E. Williams.

Messrs. J. B. McWilliams, Geo. W. Hall and R. Weir are at Brockville attending the annual meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario East.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings, in all the Latest Shades. His Prices and Styles are right.

Social Purity Lecture.

Mr. Chas. James will lecture to men only this evening at 8 o'clock, in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, on "Personal Purity." He will also sing several solos. No charge for admission. Collection to cover expenses. To-morrow evening Mr. James will speak on "Christmas Evans, the Apostle of Wales," in St. Paul's Church School Room.

Curling.

The Lindsay juniors played the Peterborough juniors at the Charlotte street rink on Tuesday evening with the following result:—

PETERBOROUGH	LINDSAY
B. Boucher,	T. McBurney,
G. Boucher,	E. Gregory,
V. Halliday,	J. McDonnel,
W. Hamilton, skip, 13	H. Graham, skip, 20

Lindsay wins by 7.

The Races.

Everything is in readiness for the races to-morrow and Friday. The track has been made on the Little Lake opposite Mr. Harry Winch's residence. It is a fine half mile course. It is fifty feet wide at the narrowest point and on the homestretch ten horses can have lots of room to swing themselves. Mr. T. Hewson marked out the course. In addition to nearly all the local flyers a number are expected from outside places.

Turnbull's New Spring Carpets in Wool Union and Tapestry are beginning to move. Everyone who inspects them is delighted with the patterns and pleased with the prices.

The Protestant Home.

The lady managers of the Peterborough Protestant Home thankfully acknowledge the following donations for February:—From a friend, $1 worth bread tickets; ladies of St. Paul's Church, basket of cakes; Mrs. George Burnham, quarter of mutton; Mrs. McGill, apples; Mrs. Vernon, mottoes; Misses Brown and Turner, pictures; Mrs. Weller, two jars preserves; Mr. Greenbow, hymn books; Mrs. Alexander Dawson, $1 worth of bread tickets; Mr. Quirk, tobacco for old man.

Resigned.

Owing to other business engagements Mr. Alex. Elliott has found it necessary to resign his position as agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway in Peterborough. He will be succeeded by Mr. Thos. Boddy, of Union Station Toronto, and as soon as the accounts are audited the new agent will take charge. Mr. Elliott's many friends will be pleased to know that he will not leave Peterborough, having entered partnership with Mr. M. Tierney. The wholesale and retail grocery business will hereafter be carried on by the firm, Elliott & Tierney.

A Singular Resolution.

Before the Port Hope municipal officers were appointed for the current year the following motion was passed by the Town Council:—"Moved by Coun. Long, seconded by Coun. Pedlow, that it shall be an instruction to all committees to report to this Council from time to time on the conduct of the officers of the town, whose duty comes within the cognizance of the different standing committees and on the preformance of their duties by such officers. And especially report at once on any case of drunkenness or the inability on the part of any of the respective officers; and further that the said committees do order that no officer or men in the employment of this Council, shall frequent any hotel (except the Chief Constable while in the discharge of his duty,) or absent himself from his duties during the hours of labor."

Lindsay Visiting.

A three-rink curling match is going on this afternoon between Lindsay and Peterborough. The following are the names of the players:—

LINDSAY.	PETERBOROUGH.
No. 1 Rink.
J. Williamson	R. Hall
J. Oliver	W. VanEvery
J. G. Edwards	T. E. Bradburn
J. W. Wallace, skip.	R. P. Boucher, skip.

At 2.30 o'clock Peterborough was six ahead.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

THEIR LAST HOPE.

The situation was desperate and he (Sir John Macdonald) has made a desperate fight, and has saved himself. It remains to be seen, however, whether he will not be obliged to change his policy on the fisheries question, whether his majority is large enough to be depended upon, whether after all the most he has gained is not the semblance of, rather than actual power.—Boston Traveller.

NO ROOM FOR FREE TRADE.

The people of a country do not care to be told that they do not understand their own business, and that a policy which they have tried and twice endorsed is a blunder and a crime. If the Liberal party will not adopt the National Policy well and good—let it be so understood; if they intend to bow to the will of the people it should be made clear that there is no room in the party councils for those who prefer to theorize in an opposite direction.—Montreal Herald (Reform)

BUT NOT FOR CANADA.

So the Macdonald Government in Canada gets through by a scratch. So much the worse for the United States. But our time is coming.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A POLITICAL BAROMETER.

The stock market is a sure barometer. When the return of Sir John Macdonald to power was made known Canadian bank stocks immediately took a considerable jump up.—Hamilton Spectator.

RELIED ON SCANDAL.

The Dominion elections are over, and as our readers all know the result is that the Government is sustained; not with its old majority, but with one which is large enough for all practical purposes, being sustained in all provinces but two. With the mere party struggle Labor Reformers are not specially interested, but there is one feature of the result which is full of interest to us. The Reform or Grit party went into the struggle utterly destitute of a policy, and relying altogether on the effect of scandals against their opponents. The verdict of the people may be taken as a notice that Canada has no use for a party which does not even pretend to have a policy. This is at least encouraging to Labor Reformers as it amounts to an intimation that when men have a policy they will sooner or later get the public ear.—Toronto Labor Reformer.

REVIEWS.

ST. NICHOLAS.—The March number of St. Nicholas will be as welcome as any of its predecessors to its young readers. The frontispiece is from a drawing by Birch of Jacqueline of Holland bravely facing her father's lions as, described, with the rest of her eventful history, by E. S. Brooks in his series of "Historic Girls." The stories of "Jenny's Boarding House" and "Juan and Juanita" are both continued with fresh interest in their widely different styles. The adventures of "Paul and Nicolai in Alaska" are well told and convey welcome knowledge of a little known region. There is "More About Gas Wells," but not too much. The new dog story will delight many a boy, while the girls will perhaps prefer the account of the talking bird. The sailor lad's tobogganing without snow in Madeira is described in a lively manner. Among other contributions are scenes from the boyhood of Aldrich and also of Washington, a fairy tale of lady's slippers, Tommy's talk with a peacock feather, the story of a land turtle, an account of commercial travellers, and many others, including verses, jungles, puzzles and a profusion of illustrations. Not only will it delight the young folks, but their elders, having taken it up, will not lay it down in a hurry.

We May Expect

—Another era of flooded cellars.

—Terry and the snow ploughs to have a rest.

—A public meeting to discuss the insurance question.

—A mutual company.

—The Trent Valley Canal to reach Peterborough next summer.

—Excursions to Stoney Lake resorts by water when it is built.

—A snow shoe club next winter.

—When, probably, there'll be no snow to tramp on.

—The carnival to be a big success.

—Curlers to never tire of "the roarin' game."

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

The Daily Review.
THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1887.

THE Montreal Herald contends that a majority made up of the votes of the Ministers themselves should not be allowed to maintain the Government in office. The London Advertiser urges that that the votes of the members from British Colombia, who represent "a few thousand electors on the Pacific coast," should also not be counted sufficient for that purpose. Having thus disfranchised nineteen constituencies, and by counting a few Conservatives as Reformers, these organs have the Government defeated and a new election ordered before the House meets. By the way, if the Herald's view is the correct one Mr. Mowat should have resigned in 1884, and Mr. Joly should not have held office, as his majority consisted of the Speaker's vote.

The Biggest Gun in the World.

The first three proof rounds of the powerful new gun supplied by the Elswick works for her Majesty's barbette ship Heubow were fired on Feb. 10th at the butts at Woolwich arsenal, the result so far going to show that this is the finest specimen of artillery yet produced in this or any other country. Among the "Woolwich Infants" it is like the famous Queen Elizabeth's bronze gun in Dover Castle among the old carronades. In length it is 524 in., or nearly 44 ft. The inner tube is of solid steel throughout, strengthened by jackets of comparatively thin steel hoops. The length of the bore is 487½ in. or about thirty calibres, and the rifling, which consists of numbers of small shallow grooves, extends for 397 2 inches, or about 33 ft. The diameter of the bore is 17¼ in. The diameter of the powder chamber is a trifle over 21 inches, and its capacity 28,610 cubic inches. The twist of the rifling commences with 120 calibres, and increases to one in 56 calibres. The gun is mounted on a fine cast-steel truck, which weighs 95 tons, and on the proof grounds yesterday it ran up the incline from 30 to 70 feet.

The first round was fired with 600 pounds of Westphalian powder, and a cylindrical projectile weighing 1,800 pounds. The velocity attained was 1,635 feet per second, giving an energy to the projectile of about 35,340 foot tons for the penetration of armor. The second round was with a shot of like weight and 700 pounds of the same powder, being the largest charge as yet fired in England. The velocity attained was 1,843 feet per second, the energy acquired being about 43,100 foot tons. The third round was with a similar projectile of 1,800, pounds, and a powder charge of 800 pounds.

The velocity attained was 2,007 feet per second, and the energy rose to some 50,000 foot tons. The pressure of the gases within the chamber of the gun at the time of the powder discharge were nine tons with the 600 pound charge, twelve tons with 700 pounds, and 15 tons with the 800 pound charges. Recoil of the gun in the last round was controlled by the hydraulic buffers within four feet six inches. The inner tube of the gun was in perfect condition at the termination of the days firing. It is expected that when the next date of proof firing is determined, powder charges of 850 pounds, 900 pounds, 925 pounds and 950 pounds will be used with projectiles of 1,800 pounds weight. In the latter case an energy on the projectiles of 52,700 foot tons may be expected to be developed, capable of penetrating armor of more than three feet in thickness.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE SILISTRIA RISING.

"Some One Has Blundered"—Another Outbreak Hourly Expected.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The Star's London special says:—Latest reports from Sofia say that the rising of the garrison at Silistria was a blunder. The original intention was to cause a simultaneous revolt of the Russian party all over the two states. The premature action of the Silistrian troops has defeated the scheme and will enable the regency to crush any further attempts made in detail. There is considerable agitation at Sofia. An outbreak is hourly expected. A high military authority states that if the outbreak of hostilities can be delayed until the end of April or the beginning of May, Russia will have fully 1,000,000 troops on the German and Austrian frontiers, besides about 600,000 men in Asia, upwards of a quarter of a million in Asia Minor, and the remainder in Central Asia.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The First Session of the Sixth Provincial Parliament.

TUESDAY, March 1.—The Legislature met at 3 o'clock, after a two week's adjournment made to allow members to take part in the Dominion elections.

PETITIONS.

A number of petitions were presented, among them one from the Toronto City Council praying that married women having property qualification be given a right to vote at municipal elections.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. MOWAT moved the adjournment, as the House was thin, owing to members being delayed by the snow storm.

Mr. MEREDITH did not oppose the motion. He remarked that there had been a contest and some of the absent members might be looking after the dead and wounded.

The House adjourned.

THE FISHERIES DISPUTE.

Senate Retaliation Bill Passed by the House.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The House this morning resumed consideration of the conference report on the Fisheries Retaliation Bill. After a long and somewhat exciting debate the House, by 142 to 115, agreed to recede from its amendments to the Senate Bill, and a motion to reconsider was tabled. The House then adopted the Senate bill exactly as it came from the Senate.

A motion by Mr. Dingley, of Maine, to suspend the rules and pass a bill to protect the vessel fisheries of the United States and to provide for the taking of testimony relatives to injuries inflicted by British authorities on citizens of the United States engaged in the fisheries, and to amend the Shipping Act of June 19, 1886, was lost.

All efforts to get together the conferees on the Fortifications Appropriations bill have failed, and it is believed there is no hope for the bill. Should a meeting be secured to-morrow a disagreement is considered certain.

A BULL CLIQUE IN WHEAT.

Thirty Million Bushels Purchased—Prices Predicted.

Certain speculators of wheat in this city have been on the wrong side of the market for many months past and have consequently been heavy losers. They have lived on hope deferred, a somewhat unsatisfactory diet, and one that reduces the system and the pocket rather speedily. Of late they have been more cheerful and expect better things of Dame Fortune. It is claimed that there are four great commission houses, holding between twenty and thirty million bushels of wheat These are Field, Linley & Co., Geo. C Walker & Co., Maurice Rosenfield. & Co., and Irwin, Green & Co. The two former houses represent one syndicate, and the two latter another. The principals of Field, Linley & Co. and Geo. C. Walker & Co. send their orders from New York, and have been buyers of wheat on an enormous scale for three months. The principals of Irwin, Green & Co and M. Rosenfield & Co. send their orders from Cincinnati. The latter have a standing order in Chicago to buy one million bushels at each one cent decline. Last Wednesday one million bushels were purchased at 77⅞c., the lowest point touched. This was all that saved the wheat market from a panic The Montreal speculators, at least those who are sanguine, look for a bull movement. But it is always the unexpected that happens, and they have been mistaken so often before.—Montreal Star.

A Munificent Bequest.

BOSTON, March 2.—The President and Fellows of Harvard College have recently come into possession of a munificent bequest of $230,000 and upward, which is applicable only for purposes of special astronomical investigation at such an elevation as to be free, so far as practicable, from the impediments to accurate observations which occur in Observatories now existing. Owing to atmospheric influences, it is deemed by the Faculty that a location in the Southern Hemisphere would be preferable for various reasons. The southern stars, invisable in Europe and the United States, have been less observed than the northern star, and by the aid of a southern station investigations undertaken at Cambridge can be extended upon a uniform system to all parts of the sky.

Condoning his Offence.

NEWARK, N. J., March 2.—James McDonald, a printer who deserted his wife in Toronto, Ont., was arrested here, yesterday, living with another wife. He was allowed to choose between returning with wife No. 1, or being tried for bigamy. He paid wife No. 2 one hundred dollars, and left with his first wife for Canada.

An Aged Rector's Death.

GODERICH, Ont., March 2.—The venerable Archdeacon Elwood, rector of Goderich, after a few day's illness, died at the rectory last night, in his 77th year. He had been rector of Goderich for some thirty-eight years. His loss will cast a gloom over the whole diocese.

LATEST CABLE NEWS!

THE CLOTURE.

LONDON, March 2.—In the House of Commons, last night, Mr. Parnell moved an amendment the effect of which would be to prevent the application of the cloture. Directly after the moving of the amendment Mr. Smith objedted to such a concession to obstruction. The smendment was negatived. Mr. Smith gave notice to-day that the Government would move an amendment to the effect that any member may move to apply the cloture and unless it shall appear to the speaker that the motion is an abuse of the rules of the House or an infringement of the rights of the minority, the question shall be put. Forthwith Mr. Parnell, on the ground that members were not given sufficient time to consider the new proposal moved the introduction of the amendment be postponed until Friday. Sir W. V. Harcourt supported the motion, but it was rejected by 243 to 110.

EXCITED BOURSES.

LONDON, March 2.—Continental bourses remain excited, reflecting the uncertainty of the military situation and the disquieting nature of the news from the east. An additional vote of £1,125,000 asked for the British navy, and a forced war loan levied by the Ameer of Afghanistan, have added to the general uneasiness.

THE ALLIANCE DISCREDITED.

LONDON, March 2.—Telegrams from Rome, notwithstanding the positive statement that the triple alliance had been renewed, discredit the report and declare that nothing will be done until the new ministry is chosen.

PROCLAMATION OF SIEGE.

BUCHAREST, March 2.—Private advices from Silistria say that several thousand troops, with the officers who assisted in deposing Prince Alexander, are concerned in the revolt there. A similar revolt is feared at Widdin. A state of siege has been proclaimed at all Bulgarian towns on the Danube.

THE GERMAN ELECTIONS.

BERLIN, March 2.—The second ballots for members of the Richstag in districts which the candidates failed to receive majorities in the first election took place to-day. The contest in each district is between the two candidates who received highest number of of votes on the original polling. Lubeck and Waldonburg both elected National Liberals.

OFFICIAL DENIAL.

ROME, March 2.—The report that Italy had undertaken to supply 200,000 men for the Austro-Anglo-Italian event of war between that power and Russia, and a similar contingent to Germany in case of war with France, it officially denied. A close alliance, however, based on extensive territorial compensation to Italy in return for material aid in case of war, is advised by Lord Salisbury and favored by the King, and probabilities point to some such convention being entered into between the three powers.

LORD SALISBURY DENOUNCED.

PARIS, March 2.—The French press continue to attack the English policy in Egypt and the East. Lord Salisbary is denounced as being chiefly responsible for the critical state of affairs on the Continent. It is declared that England is the only nation in Europe that will profit by war, and that it is her settled policy to provoke international complications and remain neutral in order to reap the benefits.

DEFENSIVE MEASURES.

PESTH, March 2.—The Budget Committee of the Austrian Delegation to day passed the Budget bill. Count Kalnoky said the country was nowhere directly threatened, but the general European situation caused apprehension. The Bulgarian question had become secondary in importance. The measures proposed, he said, were of a purely defensive character.

PAUPER EMIGRATION.

LONDON, March 2.—In a few days a motion will be introduced in the House of Commons urging the relaxation of the local Government Board's emigration rules to permit agencies of established reputation to conduct the emigration of pauper children to Canada and other colonies, subject to certain regulations and provisions for their future oversight.

NEW BULGARIAN LOAN.

LONDON, March 2.—The Bulgarian Government has contracted a loan of 20,000,000 francs in England.

BULGARIAN REFUGEES ARRESTED.

LONDON, March 2.—The Servian Government has caused the arrest of refugees from Bulgaria.

MORE SHOCKS.

ROME, March 2.—Slight shocks of earthquake was felt yesterday, at Sportono and Coriale. The Genoese have contributed $20,000 in three days for the relief of sufferers.

QUEEN OF SPAIN ATTACKED.

MADRID, March 2.—While the Queen of Spain was out driving to-day a missile was thrown at her carriage by a man in the street, who immediately disappeared. The Queen was not hurt.

REVOLT SUPPRESSED.

VIENNA, March 5.—The Tegblatt states that the revolt of a portion of the troops at Silistria, Bulgaria, has been suppressed.

AN ATTACK EXPECTED.

ROME, March 2.—The Tribune puplishes a despatch from Massowah saying: "It is expected that Basaloula will attack Arafoli. The Abyssinians have evacuated Kerr."

THE KILLED AND INJURED.

ROME, March 2.—The official list of the Italian earthquake victims places the dead at 646, and the injured at 452. Twenty thousand persons are homeless. The material losses are estimated at $10,000,000.

FRENCH RELIEF.

PARIS, March 2.—In the Chamber of Deputies, yesterday, Premier Goblet proposed a credit of 1,000,000 francs for the relief of the earthquake sufferers.

THE QUEEN AND KAISER.

BERLIN, March 2.—The Emperor William is to go to Wiesbaden directly after Easter for three weeks, and while there he will have an interview with the Queen. It is expected that the Emperor will pass a day at Darmstadt during her Majesty's stay there, and it is possible that he may be present at the formal betrothal of his grandson, Prince Henry, to the Princess Irene of Hesse.

MAN-OF-WAR WANTED.

LONDON, March 2.—Advices from Zanzibar say the natives of the Province of Mozambique, taking advantage of the absence of the Portuguese squadron and troops at Tungi, have risen and devastated the trading stations and destroyed many British houses. The town of Mozambique is now threatened. The British consul has telegraphed for a man-of-war to protect the lives and property of British subjects.

THE SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, March 2.—The Socialist disturbances on Sunday at St. Paul's cathedral and elsewhere would certainly have been serious had not Sir Charles Warren, Commissioner of Police, taken elaborate precautions. The West End, whither it was supposed the mob might attempt a journey, was strongly garrisoned and streets like Pall Mall were lined with police from end to end. The newspaper accounts of what actually took place, says the Home Secretary, were much exaggerated. Still the trawling in St. Paul's was a nuisance which those gentry will not be allowed to repeat.

GLADSTONE CRITICIZED.

LONDON, March 2.—A column of banter on Mr. Gladstone's Nineteenth Century study of Poseidon appears in the Daily News. This article is signed Andrew Lang in every line, is mostly civil in phrase, but in substance is a denial of Mr. Gladstone's competence as a scholar to handle the subject he discusses. He goes to Homer for evidence concerning Poseidon's true character; but Mr. Lang thinks Homer is no authority on the subject, which must be referred to traditions antecedent to Homer. Mythologists, he observes irreverently, will read Mr. Gladstone with curiosity, but not accept his conclusions or acquiesce in his method.

THEIR EXCUSE.

BERLIN, March 2.—The North German Gazette says the people of Alsace-Lorraine elected protestors to the Reichstag, because they feared the French would retaliate in the event of war between Germany and France if annexation candidats were returned.

A RIOT AT LUGRAN.

DUBLIN, March 2.—At Lurgan to-day the police were stoned by riotous mobs and several were injured. The police fired but did no harm.

THE LIBERATOR'S HOME.

DUBLIN, March 2.—A movement is on foot to raise by voluntary contribution a sum sufficient to relieve Mr. Daniel O'Connell, of Derrynane Abby, County Kerry, of immediate and pressing calls upon him caused by hard times. The object of the movement is to save for his descendants the historic home and relics of the great O'Connell, which will pass under the auctioneer's hammer through no fault of the present owner, if the comparatively small sum required be not forthcoming.

PROTECT OF IRISH BISHOPS.

DUBLIN, March 2.—Several Irish Bishops have written to the Pope disapproving of Archbishops Croke's and Walsh's attitude on the "Plan of Campaign"

ENCOUNTER WITH THE POLICE.

DUBLIN, March 2.—A mob at Balgannis attacked a force of police last evening and rescued some prisoners they had in charge. The mob stoned the police and partially wrecked their barracks. The police fired a number of shots, but without hitting anyone. Several police were seriously injured.

CHINESE THEORY OF MEDICINE.

According to Kwong Shan, a Chinese doctor in St. Louis, by the Celestial theory of medicine, which partakes much of the nature of their theology and philosophy, man is closely associated with and influenced by the external world. For instance, there are five planets, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Venus and Mecury, viscara—stomach, liver, heart, lungs and kidneys; that there are five elements in man, earth, wood, fire, metal, and water, corresponding with five colors, yellow, green, red, white and black, and these are related to the five tastes—sweet, sour, bitter, pungent, and salt. The combination of the blood and the breath, they hold, constitute life, and the withdrawal of one of these means death. With all this fanciful theory there is also woven into the system, in a manner utterly inexplicable, the belief in the androgynous nature of all things, that everything is part male and part female. Such a thing as experimenting in medicine is unknown. Dissecting they hold to be inhuman, and vivisection they denounce in unmeasured terms. With this view of these things it is impossible that the Chinese should have any surgery beyond perhaps taking off a smashed limb or cutting out a bullet. They have a sort of anæsthette, not so strong as chloroform, but it is seldom used.

The heart is the centre of thought, the brain being, in the Chinese physiology, but an inferior part of the man. There is no chemistry required in a Chinese doctor. Pretty near everything that comes to hand is medical in its nature, and the Chinese pharmacopœia is as extensive as their dictionary would be if they had one, for no word will express more than one idea.

The father of Chinese medicine was Shun Nong, and he lived about 8,000 years ago, being a sort of Emperor or Prince, or demigod. Shun Nong was not made like an ordinary mortal. He was transparent, and could see right through himself. Whenever anything went wrong with him he just looked into himself to see what was the matter, and then took his medicine and marked how the dose got to the spot.

The "Chinook" In Montana.

HELENA, Mont., March 2.—The "chinook," which commenced on Saturday continues with unabated force throughout the territory, and has carried off a great part of the snow, except in the mountains. Cattle are again feeding and resting.

Frozen to Death.

WATERTOWN, Dokota, March 2.—Mrs. Edmonston and her son, living six miles from Henry, left that town on Friday with a horse and sleigh. They were found on Sunday frozen to death ten rods from the home of a neighbor.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its riches it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

The Daily Review.

THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1887.

A PREPOSTEROUS CLAIM.

THE journals supporting Mr. Blake display astonishing effrontery in owning the nature of their success in reducing the Ministerial majority at the recent general elections, and also in their apparent satisfaction at the means by which they have made this gain.

They cannot dispute that we have held our own in the Dominion, apart from the Province of Quebec. Leaving out of consideration the smallest Province, Prince Edward Island, with its dissatisfaction as to its means of communication with the main land, the Ministry has nowhere lost support, except in Quebec through the agitation as to the execution of Riel. There would have been a Conservative gain in Ontario but for the countervailing Reform gain of four constituencies similarly influenced. This feeling in favor of Riel is by no means general among the French Canadians. That many of them were not led away by false cries is abundantly proved by the fact that all three of the French Cabinet Ministers were re-elected, and that French members who were opposed to the agitation received enormous majorities. So, too, in Peterborough, the French Canadian electors, having been thoroughly enlightened by the eloquent exposure of the Rouge tactics by the Hon. Mr. Chapleau and other speakers in their own language, remained steadfast to their old political alliances. But altogether there were a sufficient number deluded to effect the result in many constituencies.

In the Province of Quebec a large majority of the newly elected members are Conservatives. But, say the Reformers, many of them are Nationalists, that is Rielites, and must therefore be counted among the Opposition. In short, the friends of Mr. Blake attribute their present success, which they exaggerate, and the greater success which they anticipate, to the cry for vengeance for the execution of a criminal and to attempts at revenge by Conservatives who believe in the policy of the Macdonald Administration except as to punishing crime.

On this ground, and this ground alone, Mr. Blake's organs are classing these acknowledged Conservatives as Liberals. They are clearly not justified by the facts in so doing, but even if we allow for the sake of argument their claim to the fullest extent, they are still far from showing that Mr. Blake has succeeded in his plot. They are making claims without any foundation, but even allowing them to the absurd extent of supposing that every French Canadian member, except the Cabinet Ministers of that race, may vote to substitute Mr. Blake for Sir John Macdonald, they would still only be about equal. But what sane man can suppose that every French Canadian member would vote to overthrow the present Administration? Some of them would certainly remain true under the most unfavourable circumstances, and would decline to range themselves under the banner of Mr. Laurier. But if such a thing were possible as a solid vote of the French Canadian representation to punish Sir John Macdonald and his colleagues for allowing equal justice to be administered in accordance with the decision of our courts of law, a preposterous supposition on the face of it and one that would be insulting to our French fellow citizens if seriously advanced, can it be imagined for an instant that Mr. Mackenzie and other loyal, law-abiding Reformers would stultify themselves by combining to further such a plot, falsifying their past record and preferring disgracefully gained power to the maintenance of law and justice, the very foundations of every civilized community? Assuredly if such a situation could exist, the loyal members of the Reform party would vote as they did before, when Mr. Blake was willing to traffic his honour for office, and they refused to follow his lead in such a degraded and unpatriotic course.

But though the success of Mr. Blake and his friends is out of the question, they show by their abused claims how gladly they would welcome such a position. Everywhere else they have been repulsed in their desperate attack upon the Administration. In every Province but the smallest they have found that a majority of the people are in favour of the Conservative policy and oppose the Reform cries. Yet they are fiercely clamouring for office, because, though the Reform party is in an acknowledged minority in Parliament, they hope against hope and without reason that a section of the Conservative party may prove false to their political convictions and may form a coalition with them on the sole ground that justice must not be done to a criminal if his friends have influenced enough to resent his punishment at the polls.

It is an absurd claim, but none the less it shows the abject degradation of Mr. Blake and that section of the Reform party which supported him in this matter.

THE Globe has a strong editorial in favour of manhood suffrage. It should endeavour to convert Mr. Mowat, who with his supporters repeatedly voted downresolutions, with that object, moved by Mr. Meredith and supported by the Conservative members of the Provincial Legislature.

WE do not wish to appear too boastful, but we have just received the distinction of some scurrilous abuse from the Ottawa Free Press.

Ladies, when you require Corsets, try a pair of the New Jersey make, to be had at Turnbull's.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

MORE TO FOLLOW.

Mr. Therein, who defeated Mr. Dugas, the Ministerialist candidate in Montcalm, has given in his adherence to the Government. The political attitude of the Nationalists will soon become apparent.—Montreal Witness (Reform.)

A POINTER.

An independent Liberal organ, the Montreal Witness, is authority for the statement that Mr. Therein, Nationalist Conservative members for Montcalm, has given in his adhesion to the Government. This disposes of the Globe's majority of one. It is also a pointer as to the intentions of most or all of the Nationalist Conservatives.—Toronto World (Indep.)

CAVALRY HORSES.

Again has the purchase of artillery horses for the British service, been ordered to be made in Canada. The limit price, £45 each, is an obsticle to these animals being procured in England; and as a previous trial of Canadian horses was satisfactory, resort is had to this country for a further supply.—Monetary Times.

SORRY FOR THE VICTORY.

The victory which Sir John Macdonald has won in the Dominion election should warn Congress of the necessity of protecting by legislation American fishing interests. His success in the Maritime Provinces is to be attributed to his aggressive campaign against the Yankee fleet. Another season of predatory warfare may be looked for.—New York Tribune.

THE FRANCHISE ACTS.

It will be remembered that the Globe claimed that Mowat's frandchise was more liberal than Sir John's. Now, the Globe accounts, in part, for the Tory victory in Hamilton by saying that "the revising barrister left off the list hundreds of wage earners" who, under the Dominion franchise, were entitled to vote. In face of the fact that more votes were cast at the Dominion than at the local elections, these stories, when judiciously mingled, partake somewhat of the nature of campaign bounce. Oh, Deacon! Deacon!! how much thou owest to thine early pious training. We tremble to think of what kind of a man thou wouldst have been but for that, and to what depths of moral depravity thou mightest have sunk.—Toronto Labor Reformer.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

Mr. Blake, the Liberal leader, and his allies have received a notable lesson which will probably serve to show them that in trying to make political capital out of such issues as the North-West rebellion and the secession programme of a few political schemers in Nova Scotia they are playing with fire.—Brooklyn Eagle.

WHAT IT WOULD COST US.

Setting aside all consideration for Britain for the moment, let us inquire what should be the effect on Canada of unrestricted trade with the States. Where should we get our revenue? At present it is largely derived from duties on British and Continental goods, which being cheaper than the American and paying the same imports have the preference in our markets. If we levied no more dues on British than on American goods we should lose revenue and our own manufactures would suffer. If we levied high duties on British goods and the American came in free and the revenue would be lost. The Americans have greatly improved in manufacturing of late years and will doubtless go on improving, so that our revenue would be continually deminishing. And what would become of our infant manufactures, of which the Mail has hitherto been an ardent champion? Would raw cotton be carried to the St. John River or the St Lawrence to be manufactured into cloth if there were no tariff barrier to the cloth made in the Southern and Central States? Would not the coal measures of the Republic have enormous advantages in the contest for our markets over the Saskatchewan or Nova Scotian, and is it not coal that controls manufactures in the present day? And what shall we say of the inter-provincial trade which we now enjoy? We have paid a hundred millions of dollars to open up the Northwest Territory, and the old province have expected to be remunerated by becoming its manufacturers and merchants. To whom would these advantages go under the project of the Mail and the Globe? Unquestionably very largely to St. Paul, to Chicago and eastern cities of the States. And what of the wholesale trade of Toronto and Montreal when New York commercial travellers could offer the bulk of the manufactured goods required in every town and village in Ontario at the prices current in the greatest market in America? The wealthy merchants would move to New York, the rest would be ruined, their warehouses would be untenanted, the great banks which live by their business would be removed to New York and would be succeeded by shaving shops run by New York capitalists, such as do the banking and exchance business of western American towns. A few of the larger manufacturers might survive and even increase their business by shipping to the States, but the smaller concerns would be extinguished by American competition. Toronto would become, instead of the great and flourishing entrepot of trade and manufacturing centre it is now, with prospects of indefinate expansion, a way station on the Grand Trunk with a state government and a university like New Haven or Albany to save it from utter extinction. The very journals which are now foolishly agitating this scheme would lose at least half their advertising revenue, and altogether lose their present status. Montreal would suffer in as great measure as Toronto; New York, the only northern port open all the year, would take its shipping, and its commerce would follow when "trade" no longer "followed the flag."—Toronto World.

Canadian Horses for England.

HLIFAAX, N. S., March 2.—Among the passengers by the Allan steamer Circassian this morning, was Colonel Goldie, British quartermaster general on this garrison. He is accompanied by a veterinary surgeon and will immediately go through Canada to purchase three hundred horses for the British cavalry. Colonel Goldie is commissioned to secure from Canada an annual supply of remounts for the army.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d99

KNIGHTS OF LABOUR.

Considered in Rome—The American Bishops Favourable.

ROME, March 1.—The correspondent here of the Associated Press is authorized to state that the American bishops take a favourable view of the organization known in America as the Knights of Labour. Cardinal Gibbons has placed before the Vatican a formal statement as to the nature of the organization and the attitude the Church should adopt towards it. The Cardinal says in this that he considers that any condemnation of the Knights of Labour would be not only useless but highly inopportune, and that it might alienate the sympathy of the American labouring classes from the Church and might hamper the mission of the Church to the laboring poor. In addition to the above positions recommended by the statement of Cardinal Gibbons, the primate treats the alarmist theories respecting the Knights of Labor as puerile, and says nearly one-third of the men belonging to the organization are Roman Catholics. Respecting the charge that the association is a secret order, the Cardinal says it is not a secret society in the sense condemned by the Church, and is consequently exempt from canonical censure. In Canada the case is different. Cardinal Gibbons further says he considers the organization of the Knights of Labor in the United States not only harmless, but that it will possibly be beneficial in assisting in the eventual settlement of the great question of the proper relations between labor and capital.

BATTLE WITH A MOOSE.

A Hunter Goes Down an Embankment 150 Feet Deep.

Messrs. G. B. Moore, J. A. Angus and J. F. Inglee killed near the Schyan river, near Pembroke, three or four days ago, the largest moose ever seen in the Upper Ottawa district. Mr. Moore is the local agent for Messrs. Bronson & Co.'s lumber firm at Schyan, about forty miles from Pembroke, and Mr. Angus is the bookkeeper. The Ottawa Journal says:—Some of the men at the shanties having reported that an enormous moose had been seen in the woods near Black River, Moore and Angus started out to find him. They got on his trail and followed him. The snow in the woods was very deep, with a crust on the surface, and the moose had difficulty in getting along fast, cutting and bruising his legs. Moore and Angus eventually overtook him on a high hill, and near the edge of the steepest side he stopped and showed fight. Angus fired and the ball striking on the bone near the eye glanced off without having much effect except to render the huge beast desperate. He charged the assailants. Moore's gun missed fire, and the beast reached him. Moore had an axe, but before he could do any damage with it the beast knocked it out of his hand. Both men had to dodge round trees, the deep snow helping them, getting in an occasional blow with clubs, and things were looking serious when another factor appeared on the scene, Mr. F. J. Inglee, jobber for Bronson & Co., who had been tracking the moose for two days, came up, and getting a broadside chance at the moose, put a bullet into him, and on Inglee turning to run he tripped on his snowshoes and fell over the steep brow of the hill and down the almost perpendicular decent of 150 feet or so the snow alone saved him from severe bruises. The moose stood at the brink of the precipice shaking for a moment, and then dropped dead in his tracks. Inglee's shot had passed through his lungs. Brought to Schyan, the dressed carcass was found to weigh 900 pounds. The skin weighed 113. The residents of the district agree that it was the largest animal they had known to be killed there.

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CONDOLENCE.—Your correspondent feels confident he is acting in the interests of the people of this township at large when he tenders to the bereaved family of the late Mr. McMartyn the fullest sympathy of the people of Harvey. The deceased who resided in our midst for a number of years, had gained for himself the entire respect and esteem of a people who placed implicit confidence in him as a man of sterling character and true merits. Mr. McMartyn had become more directly related to us as a people since the beginning of the New Year, his step-son, Mr. Reid, being elected a member of our Council. Again do we offer our heatfelt sympathy to the family, and beg to express our deep sorrow in losing a friend of such ability to plan and such capacity to carry out. We submit to the Divine will.

UNCHANGEABLE.—Although Mr. Burnham was not elected as representative of East Peterborough in the Commons it was not the fault of the Harvey people, as will be noticed Mr. Burnham obtained a majority of twenty-five in this township. This proves that the electors of this district are as firm and immovable as the stone ridges which girt the soil they cultivate.

MISSIONARY MEETING.—A missionary meeting was held in the Presbyterian Church on Monday evening. The Rev. Mr McEwan, of Lakefield, was present and addressed the meeting. The collection amounted to over $40.

CARNIVAL.—The preparations for the carnival are progressing. The management have made such arrangements for music that there will be no disappointment in that regard. Everything points to this carnival being the most successful ever held here.

The first shipment of Boys' Clothing for Spring has arrived at Turnbull's. The Styles are New and Quality the best in the market.

NEWS NOTES.

It is not probable that Emperor William will open the Reichstag in person.

Hon. J. J. C. Abbott was elected Mayor of Montreal on Tuesday by 1,785 majority.

Senator Nelson has been appointed to succeed Mr. Cornwall as Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia.

An organization for the exclusive of Irish-American politicians from municipal offices has been formed in Lowell, Mass.

Germany, doubting Alsatian loyalty, has issued an order suppressing all societies which refuse German membership.

The twenty-eighth annual session of the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario East was opened on Tuesday in Brockville.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the cure of colds, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. It affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

The name of Mr. H. C. Raikes, the English Postmaster-General, is spoken of in connection with the Governorship of New Zealand.

An explosion occurred on Tuesday in Beaubrun collieries, at St. Etienue, France and it is reported several hundered miners were killed.

If a well be poisoned, woe to those who drink thereat. It is worse to poison the fountain of life, for one's self and for posterity. Often by carelessness, or misfortune, or inheritance, this has been done. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood, and restores health.

The United States Postmaster-General has issued regulations for extending the postal service with Manitoba and the North-West Territories, which came into operation on Tuesday.

The Young Men's Prohibition Club, Toronto, has passed a resolution to the effect that the best means of educating public sentiment up to prohibition would be by the formation of a third party.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for Harrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, and Constipation, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

AYER'S PILLS

CURE HEADACHE.

Headaches are usually induced by costiveness, indigestion, foul stomach, or other derangements of the digestive system, and may be easily cured by the use of Ayer's Pills. Mrs. Mary A. Scott, Portland, Me., writes: "I had suffered dreadfully from Sick Headache, and thought myself incurable. Disorder of the stomach caused it. Ayer's Pills cured me entirely."

CURE BILIOUSNESS.

John C. Pattison, Lowell, Nebr., writes: "I was attacked with Bilious Fever, which was followed by Jaundice. I was so dangerously ill, that my friends despaired of my recovery. I commenced taking Ayer's Cathartic Pills, and soon regained my customary strength and vigor. I feel certain that I owe my recovery to your invaluable Pills."

CURE INDIGESTION.

Ayer's Pills act directly on the digestive and assimilative organs, influencing healthful action, imparting strength, and eradicating disease. G. W. Mooney, Walla Walla, W. T., writes: "I have suffered from Dyspepsia and Liver troubles for years past. I found no permanent relief, until I commenced taking Ayer's Pills, which have effected a complete cure."

CURE RHEUMATISM.

Rheumatism is among the most painful of the disorders arising from vitiated blood and derangement of the digestive and biliary organs. Ayer's Pills relieve and cure Rheumatism when other remedies fail. S. M. Spencer, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "I was confined to my bed, with Rheumatism, three months, but, after using a few boxes of Ayer's Pills, became a well man."

CURE GOUT.

S. Lansing, Yonkers, N. Y., writes: "Recommended to me as a cure for chronic Costiveness, Ayer's Pills have relieved me not only from that trouble, but also from Gout. If every victim of the disease would heed only three words of mine, I could banish Gout from the land. Those words would be, 'Try Ayer's Pills.'"

CURE PILES.

Piles are induced by habitual constipation, debility, indigestion, or a morbid condition of the liver. A cure is best effected by the use of Ayer's Pills. John Lazarus, St. John, N. B., writes: "I was cured of the Piles by the use of Ayer's Pills. They not only cured me of that disagreeable disorder, but gave me new life and health."

Sold by all Druggists.

A Warning.

The following circular has been sent to many of the farmers of this county, the address being enclosed on a separate slip of paper:—

DEAR SIR,—Your name and address was given me by my confidential agent, who said he thought you were a man in a position to handle my goods in safety, so I concluded to write to you. If I have made a mistake do me no harm and let matters drop. My motto is never harm a man who is willing to prove himself a friend. My business is not altogether legitimate, but the "Green Articles" I deal in are safe and profitable to handle. The sizes are 1's, 2's, 5's, 10's. Do you understand? I cannot be plainer until I know you mean business, and if you conclude to answer this letter I will send you full particulars and terms, and I will endeavor to satisfy you in every point; that if you are my friend I will prove a true and lasting one to you. Remember, I want simply to convince you that I am just as I say; a friend to a friend. When you write be sure to send me your name and post office address, as I might lose the one I now have before hearing from you again, and then not know where to write. Trusting that you will take no offence from the above, I remain,

Yours in confidence,

P. S.—Be sure to return this letter, then I can place confidence in you. Don't fail to return this.

Those who may have received this circular are warned to have nothing to do with the dishonest men who sent it. Though they are pretending to assist in swindling the public, it is even more probable that they would delude their dupes, take their money and laugh at them.

Social Purity.

The Young Men's Christian Association Hall was filled on Wednesday evening by young men who listened with great interest to a straightforward stirring lecture on "Personal Purity" by Mr. Charles James, lecturer of the Gospel Purity Association of London, England. Dr. Fife, who occupied the chair, in introducing the lecturer, adverted to the great need of young men observing the aspotolic injunction "Keep thyself pure." Mr. James, who is a young Welshman, gifted with considerable eloquence, and a pleasing voice, in opening said that the delicacy that prevented the important subject of social purity from being frequently dealt with was a false delicacy. Boys and young men are destroying themselves in thousands through ignorance. The terrible effects making the victims diseased, and in very many cases sending them to the insane asylum and into a premature grave, were dwelt upon. Young men were urged not to "defile the temple of God," their body, and warned that "if any man shall defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy." Much ... ence was made to the relationship between the sexes, and a powerful appeal was made to the honor and chivalry of young men, to treat every individual of the opposite sex with the same respect that he wished his own sister treated with. Mr. James strongly denounced that portion of the medical profession who put forth the plea that vice was a necessity. The lecture made such an impression that we can confidently say that everyone present went away with the resolve to be a purer man in the future. Many at the close expressed the desire to have Mr. James return and give one or two more lectures. The Association will probably arrange for this after Mr. James visits Toronto and Hamilton. A lecture on "Christmas Evans, the Apostle of Wales," will be given in St. Paul's school room to-night at 8 o'clock, to which all are invited. Mr. James has considerable ability as a vocalist and will sing some solos.

Obit.

We recently noticed the death of Mr. Richard O'Hanlon, which occurred at Erie, Pennsylvania, and we now find in an Iowa City, Iowa, paper a notice of the death of his brother, Mr. James O'Hanlon, who was also formerly a resident of Peterborough. The paper referred to says:—"The funeral of the late James O'Hanlon, Saturday afternoon, was attended by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The deceased was one of the old settlers, having resided here many years, and his circle of acquaintances was a wide one. Mr. O'Hanlon was born in Upper Canada, Jan. 14th, 1827. He was married to Miss Julia O'Brien and came to Erie, Pa. He was a first class stone mason, and had a high reputation in this direction. He put up the stone work for the bridge over the Iowa, at Iowa City, and was engaged important work of the kind all through the West. For some time past he has been in ill health. His last job was at Bethsada, Nebraska, The Republican of which place says: 'James O'Hanlon, foreman of the bridge builders who are constructing the bridge under the Grand Island railroad, was taken ill with pneumonia about two weeks ago, and has had quite a serious time of it. His life has several times been despaired of, but we are glad to learn that he was somewhat better Thursday. His wife has been notified at their home in Iowa City, but she, too, is quite sick, and other members of the family, ailing. Mr. O'Hanlon is in good hands, at the residence of E. L. Rosenberger, and we hope he may soon be up and well again. Later.—Only a few hours after the above was written, Mr. O'Hanlon breathed his last, at five o'clock yesterday (Friday) morning. The improvement of Thursday was only temporary and delusive. He was aged sixty years and has occupied positions of responsibility and profit for many years. His remains were taken to his home in Iowa yesterday afternoon by his son Wm. O'Hanlon and Paymaster Jos. J. Connell of the bridge contractors.' Mr. O'Hanlon was a man of most generous impulses, and always was a leading man in public movements. He leaves a wife and nine children."

A Recount.

Mr. Cox has applied to have have a recount of the ballots cast at the election in West Peterborough on Feb. 22nd. The recount will be commenced before his Honor Judge Weller on Friday afternoon.

Dangerously Ill.

On Wednesday evening Dr. O'Sullivan was called to visit a patient at the residence of Mr. Crough, Ennismore. At about eight o'clock, before he had left Mr. Crough's house, Dr. O'Sullivan fell in a fit of apoplexy. Dr. Bingham was called and from four o clock this morning till noon has been in attendance, but up till that hour full consciousness was not restored. His recovery is uncertain.

Ladies will do well to remember that Turnbull is showing piles of New Dress Goods and Trimmings, in all the Latest Shades. His Prices and Styles are right

The Grand Carnival.

The second grand carnival under the auspices of the Peterborough Fire Brigade will take place in the Charlotte street rink to-morrow (Friday) evening. From the arrangements made thus far, it will doubtless be a most enjoyable affair in every respect. A fine programme of instrumental music will be rendered by the band, a $5.00 gold piece will be drawn for by all those who appear in costume, the decorations will be superb and the firemen undivided in their endeavors to make everbody comfortable. Don't miss this carnival, as it will be the best of the season.

Newfoundland and Canada.

OTTAWA, March 2.—Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who has just returned from New Brunswick, says that Canada's fishery policy will remain unchanged. Regarding Newfoundland, he thought it not unlikely that the Provinces would enter Confederation. He understood that the delegation now on its way to England were charged with the duty of laying the present confederation sentiment in Newfoundland before the imperial authorities.

CHRISTMAS EVANS.

A Welshman Tells of the Land of Bards —its People.

On Thursday evening Mr. Charles James, a ruddy, vigorous young Welshman, gave a lecture in St. Paul's Church school room on "Christmas Evans." On being introduced he sang two verses of a hymn in a very pleasing baritone and then he proceeded with what he had to say.

He said that he came not merely to speak as a Welshman, but to tell the people of the Welsh, and especially of Christmas Evans, its greatest man, and one of the greatest men the world ever knew. It was a natural thing to be patriotic—to be proud of one's own land. And hence it was that patriots were always loved. For when men loved their country and its people the people loved them in return. If he had chosen the title of this lecture he would eave called it "Christmas Evans and his contemporaries" for there were other great preachers linked so closely with Christmas Evans that it was not possible to do justice without mentioning them. These were the men who changed wild Wales into a Paradise of Christianity. The national characteristics of the Welsh people helped them in their work. The Welsh were a religious people. From times unknown it had been the land of bards. The songs and poetry of these men inspired the people. They were held spell bound by the chanted rhapsody of the bards. Among such people religion was welcome; Christianity took hold without difficulty and grew as a plant in good soil. Thus before the time of Christmas Evans Wales was a land of theologians. All classes discussed religious topics in a learned manner. Immense annual gatherings were held in different parts of the principality called "Association Meetings." On these great occasions it was an ordinary thing to see 20,000 and 25,000 people present. These great congregations were addressed by the greatest preachers of the day. The preaching was not the dry fact academic sort. Inspired with Divine fire the preachers poured forth a mysterious music. The people caught the flame and broke into ejaculations, "Glory be to God," "Praise Him," "Glory." The hearts of the multitude were chained. He mentioned several of the great preachers of the time, Jones, Davis, Elias and others, and gave graphic descriptions of their power. He then proceeded with a short biography of the great preacher, the subject of his discourse, tracing his career from the farm hand till the time of his call as a preacher, in a concise manner. The careers of Davis and Evans we peculiarly parallel. They were both converted at the same meeting, aspired to preacher at the same time, preached their first sermons in the same week, both committed "borrowed" sermons to memory, and both afterwards joined the Baptist Church. It was in an unexpect d moment that Christmas Evans became great. Thousands upon thousands of people had gathered at a great association meeting. Two celebrated preachers were to speak, but no one was willing to precede them to make the preliminary address. The pastor of the district was in a state of great excitement. He went to one and to another but none would undertake it. Finally some one recognized Christmas Evans and remarked that he had been preaching with great power and success through the country. The pastor went up to the tall, bony young man, uncouth in his dress and looks, and to the surprise of those around Evans at once consented. He rose above the vast concourse of people, and addressed himself to them. He chose a grand text. Soon the audience grew intent. Closer and closer the great gathering drew near him. The hedges did not keep them back. As he proceeded with his dramatic representation of the people's weaknesses the throng became excited. They were dazzled with the brilliancy of his language and the beauty of his imagery. They hung upon his words. They broke out into exclamations of praise. Shouts of "Glory!" "Hallelujah!" rolled over the multitude. As he swept along with words of living fire the vast throng was moved as never had been before. From that time he was one of the most foremost preachers in the land.

The lecturer followed the great preacher through various parts of the country, where Evans went to preach the Word, relating incidents as he went along, until he came to the event occurring on July 19th, 1838, which plunged the whole country in gloom—the death of Christmas Evans. Nearly every pulpit throughout the Principality was draped in black, and all felt that a great man had fallen.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Geo. E. Williams, seconded by Mr. Bannell Sawyer, and carried unanimously. The Rev. Mr. Torrance added his thanks in presenting the lecturer with the thanks of the audience.

KITCHEN GARDEN.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Would you kindly afford space for the following extracts from a letter of Miss Mary Scott, of Ottawa, in connection with the Kitchen Garden, as many friends of the W. C. T. U. are not acquainted with its meaning. Miss Scott is a live worker and we trust her hints and suggestions will reach the noble hearts and principles of our town girls. Several of them have been called upon and we are pleased to say that the advance of refinement and culture is fully appreciated by them.

To bring this branch of work more clearly before us Miss Skinner, of Toronto, has kindly consented to remain over from one train to another on Wednesday, March 9th, and will address the ladies from 4 until 5 p. m in the Baptist Church. Let her efforts be assisted by a full house. Ladies, show your colors!

The following are the extracts:—

"26 ALBERT ST., OTTAWA,
Jan. 27th, 1887.

"MY DEAR MISS SANDERSON,—Your letter received by this morning's mail, and in answer I would say that I am delighted if there is any prospect of a kitchen garden opening in Peterborough, as I am especially interested in that branch of work. Although Miss Pearson, of Brantford, is Superintendent of that department, of course it come under my work too, because some of the Y. W. C. T. U's. are conducting kitchen gardens very successfully. To my mind this is the most interesting of all the branches, because it is such a work of prevention. It teaches the children how to become good housekeepers and makes home bright and happy, thus forming a counter attraction to the saloon, against which we are fighting all along the line.

"I will tell you how they are taught. The first thing is to get a class of 20 children. In Ottawa we have 63 children in all. Of course you will have to send for a teacher, and Miss Pearson, of Brantford, or perhaps one of our young ladies might go. This teacher would first train a normal class of young ladies, which could be done in about two weeks, having lessons every day. Then the young ladies could teach the children. Every movement is made to music on the piano. They always sing while the work is going on and every song explains how the work is done. The children just love it and so do the teachers. Of course it requires a good deal of patience, but what branch of temperance work does not? I am very anxious to see a Y. W. C. T. U. started in Peterborough and I understand you have a good many young ladies who might go into the work. Would it not be well to have one organized, and let them take up the work as the Brantford Y. W. C. T. U. did?

I will gladly give you any assistance in my power, as my heart is in the young women's work. I see how much good it is doing those who enter it from the right spirit; how they are being developed into earnest Christian women, with broader sympathies than any mere denominationalism can do. I want all the young women in the Province in this work, and, do you know, I hardly ever see a nice, fresh young face but I want it for our work.

In Ottawa, if I do say it, we have the cream of "society" in the union. Now, I must not tire you out, and believe me, with love and hope that the Master may bless your efforts,

I remain,
Ever yours sincerely,
MARY SCOTT.

When the House Will Meet.

OTTAWA, March 3.—Parliament will meet for the despatch of business on Wednesday, April 13th.

Turnbull is now Agent for the Domestic Paper Patterns of New York. The Best and Simplest ever shown.

THE MAJORITY ONE MORE.

Mr. Dawson, Conservative, Elected in Algoma.

WINNIPEG, March 3.—The election for the House of Commons for Algoma was held today and created a good deal of excitement in the city. Both sides worked hard and a large vote was polled. All the returns are in with the exception of Manitoulin Island, which will not materially alter the result. Mr. Dawson, Conservative, so far as heard, has a majority of 131. Port Arthur gave Mr. Dawson 103 majority, and Rat Portage, where Mr. Burk expected a large majority, went Conservative by five majority.

THE KNIGHTS AND THE CHURCH.

The Pope Said to Favor the Aspirations of Modern Labor.

ROME, March 3.—It is said on authority that there is no likelihood that the Holy See will take any other than the most favorable view of the attitude of Cardinal Gibbons and the American bishops towards the Knights of Labor. The statements drawn up by the Papal Ablegate, the letters of certain American Catholics statesmen to the Pope and the personal opinion of Cardinal Manning, all support Cardinal Gibbons. The Pope himself, it is said, favors the aspirations of modern labor.

DOUBTFUL CLAIMS.

In his very manly public address at Boston, the Hon D. Wells, after plainly showing that there were two sides to the fishery question, his countrymen on some points being grossly in the wrong, concluded as follows:—

"But what I do assert is that, as I have said before, there are two sides to this question; and that, by resorting to threats and wrong, a greatly superior force to compel acquiescence of the other party to make concessions, is not a method of settlement worthy of the times in which we live, or of the enlightened Christian people we claim to be. And does not a refusal or unwillingness to submit this difficulty to the arbitration of fair-minded men, on its face argue that we are not quite so smart as other people, or that our claims are not defensible?"

HORSES FOR THE ARMY.

A British Commissioner in Halifax—The Horses He Purposes to Purchase.

HALIFAX, March 3.—Colonel James Goldie, who is stationed here as Quartermaster-General and purchasing agent for the Imperial War Department, is a distinguished cavalry officer who has seen thirty years of service in India, and has taken part in all the great battles of the Indian munity, including the capture of Delhi, the relief of Lucknow, the battle of Cawnpore and the capture of Lucknow. He is accompanied by a veterinary surgeon, and will immediately make a tour of Canada and purchase three hundred horses for cavalry and artillery purposes. He will also make arrangements for securing an annual supply of horses from Canada for the British Army. In case of war breaking out in the coming summer there would be a demand for one thousand horses from Canada for the army. The Star correspondent was informed that the kinds of animals required are bay, brown, black or chestnuts, with a few gray riding horses for light, medium and heavy cavalry, horses between four and seven years old, from 15 hands 2 inches to 16 hands high, not less that eight inches below the knee, or less than seventy-two inches girth, and between 950 and 1150 pounds, geldings preferred. For artillery or engeneer riding or draught purposes, the animals must be between 1100 and 1250 pounds for riding, and between 1200 and 1400 pounds for draught. For the latter, long, low, active animals are preferred. Provided they are the right shape, make and action, with sufficient breed, they may be in the rough state and straight from the plow or the farm yard. The average price of suitable horses in England is about $200. The War Office have a maximum price and that price is for horses delivered in England, so that prices paid in Canada will be for the animals, less the cost of transport to England. The market will be permanent, and almost unlimited. Commenting on this new era for Canada a London paper says:—"It rests with Canadian breeders themselves to say whether the export trade of Canada shall assume the an importance equalling, it may be exceeding that of the Canadian cattle trade with the mother country. If they only show themselves ready to meet the necessities of the case the European demand is in time almost certain to outstrip the supply. We say European demand advisedly, for no only is the mother country in urgent need of army remounts but Germany, France, Russia and other European powers are rapidly falling into a like position, as their recent prohibition of the export of horses clearly shows. The opportunities of the trade are indeed larger than may be generally imagined.—Montreal Star.

Wild Excitement in Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 3.—The announcement from Washington that the House had passed the Edmunds bill caused great excitement and rejoicing among vessel-owners and fishermen here. The Board of trade to-day adopted resolutions thanking both branches of Congress for them "prompt recognition of the unjust aggression upon our fisheries, and the unanimous sentiment that responded to the appeal for their protection," and conveying to the President the board's appreciation of his responsibility in the matter, and expressing its full faith in his firmness and judgment to administer the powers given him, so as to give every citizen assurance of protection. Bonfires were lighted to-night and general rejoicing indulged it when it became known that the President had signed the Retaliatory bill. Guns were fired and fireworks were displayed, while bands of music paraded the streets. On a line suspended from the Grand Army hall were effigies marked "Spy" and "Sir John Macdonald." Everybody appeared as if wild with excitement, and the like has not been seen here for years.

The duty collected by the Dominion Custom authorities in January amounted to $1,495,736, the value of the goods entered for consumption being $6,785,741.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH

AMERICAN PRODUCTS.

LONDON, March 3.—An important resolution affecting American products was adopted by the Central Chamber of Agriculture to-day. The resolution affirmed the wisdom of the bounty on wheat-growing, the bounty to be payed out of a fund raisded by the taxation of foreign manufactured goods entering the country from places where duties are imposed on home products. An ifluential section of the governing class is undoubtedly at the back of this movement.

THE AMEER THREATENED.

LONDON, March 3.—A telegram from Lahore confirms the reports that the Ameer of Afghanistan is raising a new army. The son of the fanatic Dervish, Mushk Ialum, backed by the Tarsks, Indors, Utaks, Jokees, Kakars and other tribes, has proclaimed himself ruler of Afghanistan, and has sent the Ameer a defiant letter, threatening to attack him without delay.

A VICE-CONSUL CARRIED OFF.

LONDON, March 3.—Savages have captured and carried away with them the British vice-consul at Rio Del Rey, in the Cameroons country. A gunboat has been sent to rescue him.

MME. NILSSON'S ESCAPE.

PARIS, March 3.—Mme. Christine Nilsson, who with Count Miranda and his daughter is staying at the Continental hotel here, is still much upset by the fright she received during the earthquake at Mentone. She says she believes that she will never be able to spend another night in Riviera. She saved her jewelbox and got away in a cab at a cost of $100.

DIANO MARINO'S DEAD.

LONDON, March 3.—At Diano Marino 142 bodies had been recovered up to last evening. Work is difficult and the stench is horrible. Sanitary precautions are being taken. An official estimate in the Province of Porto Maurizio, from the frontier to Diano, counts about seven hundred as dead and five hundred wounded. But in the Province of Genoa there have been far less casualities.

GRAND TRUNK DIVIDEND.

LONDON, March 3.—The statement of the Grand Trunk Railway Company for the past half year shows an available balance of £183'500. A dividend will be payed on the guaranteed four per cent stook at the rate of eight per cent. per annum for the half year, making a full dividend of four per cent. for the whole year. The Chicago and Grand Trunk statement shows that after meeting the net revenue charges there is a deficit of $37,600 for the year.

CRITICAL SITUATION.

LONDON, March 3.—Telegrams from Bulgaria state the Silistria garrison occupies a defile before the city and prevents the passage of the garrisons from Rutchuk and Shumla, who were sent to attack the revoiters. The opposing forces confront each other, but as yet no conflict has taken place. Another insurrectionary movement is reported near Tatar-Bazardjik, in Eastern Roumelia. Roumania is massing troops along her frontier, as a precautionary measure. Turkish troops are being concentrated along the Roumelian frontier.

ACTION OF LOYAL TROOPS.

SOFIA, March 3.—The loyal troops of the Shumla garrison have suppressed the revolt at Silistria. The engagement was brief and almost bloodless. The insurgents occupy the citadel at Rustchuk, and are shelling the loyalists in the barracks.

A FEMALE INCENDIARY.

LONDON, March 3.—A womon has been arrested at Motiers, Switzerland, on a charge of setting fire to buildings. She confessed that she was the author of numerous fires in the canton of Neuchatel during the past few years. She says that when she was 18 years of age she strangled her husband because she was tired of him.

NO INTERCOURSE.

PARIS, March 3.—General Boulanger has decreed that in future no officer in the army should be allowed to have in his service any foreigner of either sex. The decree is due to the fact that the governess of Gen Davouse's children has been discovered to be the wife of a Prussian officer quartered at Neuf Brisach.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

PARIS, March 4.—A steamer has passed through the Suez canal in 15 hgurs by the aid of the electric light.

A DRAWINGROOM.

LONDON, March 3.—The first of the Queen's jubilee drawing-rooms was held today at Buckingham palace. Her Majesty is in the enjoyment of fine health and spirits, and took an hour's drive before the time appointed for the event. The attendance at the drawing-room was greater than at any preceding affair of the the kind during the long reign of the Queen, and the number of debutantes was unprecedented. The weather was fine. The crowds congregated in the parks and roadways around the palace numbered many thousands, and Court officials say that the reception was the most brilliant they ever attended.

FORCING THE GOVERNMENT.

LONDON, March 3.—The Conservative movement, with the object of forcing the Government to deal with Ireland immediately, is assuming a critical phase. A number of Liberal Unionists have joined the Conservatives in this movement. About 130 Government supporters have intimated to the whips their willingness to assist in finishing the closure debate and curtailing the discussions of the supply bills by protracted sittings continuing all night if necessary. The Cabinet council fixed for yesterday was postponed by Lord Salisbury in order to enable him to have separate consultations with the ministers, and try to reconcile the differences on the extent to which coercion shall be carried in Ireland. It is probable that Lord Salisbury will be forced to call a conference of the whole party, and try to maintain unity.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other Kind.

FIRE INSURANCE.

THERE could hardly be a subject of greater public or private importance than insurance against fire. The town Council has done well, at the instance of Councillor McNeil, in calling attention to this matter, and the Mayor is acting in accordance with the duties of his office in resolving to call a public meeting to consider it.

The immediate cause of the present discussion is the very general feeling that we are paying too high a rate for insurance. Some careless thinkers are complaining that the rate is higher now than it was before we had waterworks, though we were told that their construction would give us cheaper insurance; but this view is not warranted; for the increase is not local, being general throughout the country, in pursuance of the policy adopted by the Fire Underwriters' Association, which claims that the old rates were found unremunerative. In fact if the rates had not been generally raised we would now be paying only about two thirds of the amount demanded under the present tariff.

The difficulty is that our town is placed in a lower class than we think is our due. The placing of Peterborough in class B, instead of class C, would remove the objection which at present is felt, for this change would reduce the cost of insurance very considerably. How is this relief, or something equivalent to it, to be obtained?

One suggestion is made by the authorities of the Underwriters' Association, that our town should make certain improvements in our fire department, including, as the most important item, the purchase of a standard chemical engine. We are told that the necessary expenditure to cause us to rank in class B would reach yearly only a tenth part of the saving of insurance that would result. These calculations should be carefully verified, and if they are substantiated they are well worthy of consideration as affording a remedy.

Another proposal is that a local mutual insurance company should be formed. Here again the most careful calculation should be made as to whether such a plan would be on a safe and sound footing at a rate low enough to be satisfactory. But there is one point in this view that should receive full consideration. The very essence of insurance is that claims will be certainly paid, and this depends upon averages. Now it is possible, as we know from the experience of others, that a devastating fire might cause the destruction of the greater portion of the buildings in our town. In this case we would all be receiving and all paying for the loss; it would simply be for each of us to transfer our money from one pocket to the other, and there would be no aid in rebuilding, if such a catastrophe should arise before a sufficient fund had been accumulated, which would take many years. For this reason well managed insurance companies, even though they have their risks distributed through many different localities, refuse to grant more than a certain number of policies in each block, declining to put all their eggs into one basket. It would, therefore, be unsafe to rely upon such a company as is proposed, unless there is a considerable revenue from isolated buildings or those not subject to a general conflagration, so that the law of averages may hold good. If this precaution can be taken the plan deserves consideration.

The matter is one of great importance, and the solution is almost wholly a question of figures. The advocates, therefore, of either of these plans, or of any other, should be prepared to lay before the public meeting that is to be held in the Town Council Chamber, on Thursday evening, March 10th, the fullest information on this point. Much good can hardly fail to result from a practical discussion of the matter from a business point of view without prejudice or vague declamation.

MR. EVANTUREL in seconding the address to the Lieutenant-Governor in the Provincial Legislature, gave as his reason for turning his coat that he did not like the views of a newspaper which is constantly assailing the Conservative party.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

The Debate on the Address in Reply to the Speech from the Throne—The Address Adopted After a Short Discussion.

WEDNESDAY, March 2.—Mr. Hardy laid on the table several returns and a Committee to strike the standing committees was appointed.

THE ADDRESS.

Mr. GUTHRIE moved the adoption of the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He complimented Lieutenant-Governor Robinson and welcomed the appointment of Sir Alexander Campbell as his successor. He referred in loyal terms to the Queen's Jubilee, and passing to political topics he again raised the cry of Provincial rights. He believed the exhibit made at the Colonial Exhibition would benefit Canada, and admitted that the display was partly owing to the National Policy. He thought that the new legislative buildings were being built too slowly, and he approved of University Confederation. He congratulated the Speaker and the Government on the result of the election.

Mr. EVANTUREL seconded the address. He referred to the good feeling existing between the two races in 1841 and regretted that an attack should have been made on the elements composing Confederation. He heartily concurred in the reference to the Queen's jubilee. He referred the Factory Act and touched on Ontario's good system of education. He defended at length the French schools in Eastern Ontario from attacks made by a correspondent of the Mail. He had a high personal regard for Mr. Meredith, but claimed that he could not support him on account of the Mail's course. The French Canadians were loyal to the Crown, and he referred to historical occasions to prove it. He believed that in Canada English, Irish, French and German could unite to build up a mighty nation.

Mr. MEREDITH congratulated the House on the accession to its debating talent. He pointed out that while Mr. Evanturel fastened on the Conservative party the language of journalists and correspondents he overlooked the attacks made upon the French-Canadians by the leaders of the Reform party. Unless they could get out of this country the idea of English, Irish, Scotch, French and German, and get into their minds the idea of building up one great nation in Canada, the people of this country would never attain to the high destiny which belonged to them. Members on the other side of the House taunted the Opposition with being in a minority, but he (Mr. Meredith) would tell them that the Ministerialists did not sit in a majority because their policy was approved of, but because a certain Church had chosen to fulminate its powers against the Conservative party. He repudiated sectional cries. He referred to the jubilee and to Canadian loyalty. The address did not fairly state the position of the Boundary Question, and all such differences should be discussed and settled without bitterness. He taunted the Government on its course with regard to the Factory Act in asking the Dominion Government to question its validity. Something ought to be done to assist mining industries. In regard to education the public opinion was that public schools did not receive enough assistance in comparison with higher schools, and that too much attention was given to superficial studies. He trusted that there would not be centralization in connection with the Land Titles Act. All would support the proposition to instruct the young as to the dangerous qualities of alcohol. On the Provincial Government rested the duty, to a large extent, of enforcing the Scott Act, and a vigorous and honest effort should be made in that direction. He could see no more dangerous thing than a law on the statute book violated with impunity. The proposed enquiry into the prison labor question was proper. The Conservative party had not raised a "No Popery" cry, as had been charged. They took the position of equal rights for all, a principle that should always be acted on in this Province.

Mr. MOWAT congratulated the mover and seconder of the address. He was pleased with the loyal sentiments expressed and concurred in what had been said regarding the Lieutenant-Governor and his successor. He took some time in arguing that the Conservative party was responsible for everything said by the Mail. He went over the ground on the Provincial rights questions, and defended his course in regard to the Factory Act.

The address was then adopted.

Mr. Mowat moved that the address be engrossed and presented to the Lieutenant-Governor by the whole House, as this would probably be the last address presented to His Honor by the House.

The motion was carried and the House adjourned at 8.15 p.m.

MR. BOWELL'S majority in North Hastings was 1,048, the vote being 1,735 for Mr. Bowell and 687 for Dr. Sutton. In only three divisions did Dr. Sutton poll a majority, two being in Madoc village, where he lives, and that was the only municipality in which he received a majority. In two divisions every ballot cast was marked for Mr. Bowell, in one division in Marmora (Wiley's school house) Dr. Sutton only received one vote, and in a number of divisions he only received a few votes, as at McCoy's, Madoc township, where the vote was 111 to 11, and at White Lake, Huntingdon, where it was 122 to 12. Dr. Sutton loses his deposit, or rather the Reform party loses it, as they supplied the money. Well done, North Hastings!

WHEN we see the New England manufacturers rejoicing in the very idea of the benefits they would derive from a trade policy advocated by Mr Blake, Mr. Mowat, the Mail, the Globe and others, we would do well to consider whether their advice would not be less beneficial for Canada than that of Sir John Macdonald and the other Conservative leaders. Even the Globe is beginning to waver about this question as it did about the N. P.

On motion of Mr. Dunlop, seconded by Mr. McIntosh, John J. Bennett was awarded the contract for supplying stone for 4 culverts. The Council adjourned to the call of the Reeve.

Butchers' Meat and Headaches.

[Popular Science Monthly.]

The prescription of a diet largely vegetarian has long been known to be good for persons subject to attacks of headache. Alexander Haig relates, in The Practitioner, a case that came under his treatment which indicates to him that this disease and its attendant phenomena are largely the result of a poison circulating in the blood, which poison is a product of the digestion of certain foods, especially butchers' meat, and that a cure is best effected by cutting off entirely the noxious food and aiding the elimination of the poison by the kidneys. The patient was a chronic sufferer from headache, and the afflictions that usually accompany it. He was a hard student, and was most troubled in winter. On the adoption of a strict vegetarian diet the attacks, which had been severe, ceased at once, and for six months of the cold half of the year there were only one or two slight ones, although they had been recurring weekly. A less strict diet was subsequently allowed, and gave practical immunity, provided butchers' meat was avoided. It was also found that two or three tumblers of hot water taken every night at bedtime gave increased immunity and enabled the patient to take even a little butchers' meat occasionally without fear of an attack. The disease was evidently caused by impure blood, and that by imperfection in the digestive process. The connection with butchers' meat was indicated directly by the facts in the case.

Alleged Signs of Rain and Snow.

On a very cloudy morning the writer met an elderly acquaintance and saluted him with the remark: "It is going to storm, but I don't know whether it will be rain or snow." "Why, rain," was the ready reply, "and I will tell you how I know. If there is a bank in the west, south of the sun when it sets, look out for snow; if there is a bank north of the sun look out for rain. This is a certain sign for storms in winter. Last evening at sunset there was a bank in the north, so we are going to have some rain to-day." And sure enough it did. If the storm cloud extends both north and south of the sun the heaviest part will indicate the kind of storm to follow. Eighteen years ago there lived in this vicinity an aged man named Amos Peterson, who had quite a local reputation as a weather prophet and the above weather sign he learned by long and careful observations of the changes in the weather.—Salem Standard.

Steel Steamers for the Nile.

New steel steamers for pleasure travel have been introduced on the Nile. They are built somewhat on the plan of American river steamers, with upper, main and lower decks. The second class accommodation, which is a new feature on the Nile steamers, is on the lower deck. Each steamer is constructed to carry thirty-two saloon passengers only and thirty second class.—Frank Leslie's.

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse, but of the blood. Deprived of its riches it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anemia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from thin, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

Town Clock Grocery Changed Hands

W. J. MORROW,

Late of the Firm of Morrow, Tierney & Co.

Has pleasure in announcing that he has purchased the business known as the "TOWN CLOCK GROCERY," and will carry on a First-class Grocery and Provision Trade in the same premises, next the Arcade, Opera House Block.

The stock having been bought at a very low figure, customers may rely on buying their goods at correspondingly LOW PRICES.

I am determined to keep a large and well assorted stock of FRESH FAMILY GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS, including everything usually found in a completly equipped Grocery establishment; and invite all my old friends and the public generally to give me a call, and inspect my stock. Telephone connection.

Farmers, Housekeepers and all others attending the market, will find the "TOWN CLOCK GROCERY" a convenient store to do their shopping while marketing. Goods delivered to all parts of the Town and Ashburnham, free of charge. d47w9

A Temperance Revival.

The White Brothers, temperance workers, musicians and speakers, accompanied by Mr. W. W. Buchanan, of Hamilton, will commence a temperance revival in Peterborough on March 26th, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and Peterborough Council, R. T. of T. The workers will remain for a week, and the meetings will be held in the churches. It is also probable that the Hamilton Helpers, another band of temperance workers, will be here for a week, beginning on March 17th, and in that case the revival will continue for two weeks.

The first shipment of Boys' Clothing for Spring has arrived at Turnbull's. The Styles are New and Quality the best in the market.

Opera House.

On Monday evening we have cheap and interesting amusement offered to us in the shape of the Harry Lindlay Co. consisting of 15 persons. The genial comedian appears here for the first time in one of his greatest negro impersonations, taken from "Brudder Gardner's Lime Kiln Club," and for which the Detroit Free Press has given him the right. The Company has just terminated a three weeks engagement at Belleville. As an extra inducement in Belleville, to offset the election crisis, they gave away a valuable Short Horn Cow and Sewing Machine, and completely demoralized the election excitement, playing against free Conservative concerts to 1,600 people. They will present a cow here to the holder of the lucky number. Every person purchasing tickets during the week obtains a number and on Saturday all the numbers are placed in a globe and drawn for.

WINTER RACES.

Successful Meeting on the Little Lake —The Winners.

The first winter races under the auspices of the Peterborough Driving Club were held on the Little Lake commencing on Thursday afternoon.

The weather was glorious and the attendance large. The track was the best ever marked on ice here. Warming by the sun on Wednesday cleared it of every speck of snow. The scores of rigs drawn by sharp shod roadsters which went around before the races commenced broke in the track.

On the grand stand, erected opposite Crescent street, there were A. A. Adams, Port Hope, Jackson Reid, Lindsay, and Martin Connors, Peterborough, these acting as judges. Mr. Nixon, of Port Hope, was timer. The crowd entertained itself between heats by warming up at the booth or taking a dash at the "Saratoga sport." man. Ginger ale and other inspiring beverages were run off in quick order at the first place and "blanks" were drawn about as quickly by the gullible at the other.

The way the heats were brought on gave great satisfaction to the people who had no fur coats on. The judges showed that they knew exactly how to conduct things. As soon as one heat was over those in the other race were ordered up without delay.

The events of the afternoon were the three minute trot and the running race. In the first named the following entries were made:—

The heats in this race were all the same. The prize was easy prey for Sleepy Dan. No matter what kind of a start there was he was sure to come in an easy winner every time. Bessie K. trotted very nicely, and Lady B. showed a pretty gait in this, her first Peterborough race. The other three were out of the race altogether. Once Lulu started off handsomely, trotting in neat trim, but she acted so ugly that even Bob Reid could not keep her down. The race resulted as follows:—

Sleepy Dan	1	1	1
Bessie K	2	2	2
Lady B	3	3	3

Time 3.02; 2.56; 2.56.

Purse $50.—1st, $25; 2nd, $15; 3rd, 10.

In the running race there were only three in the field.

Maggie Roach, owned by A. Elliott, Peterborough.

Lucy, owned by Dr. Lane, Roseheath.

Albert L., owned by C. A. Lean Grafton

The first heat induced the people to believe that there would be a fight for first place. All went off together and when half way around the track they were still in a bunch. Albert L. came out finally and won by a few lengths. The next time Maggie Roach had it her own way owing to the chestnut having bolted from the track. He was quite a distance behind when Maggie Roach bolted letting Albert L. in again an easy winner. The third heat also was won by the chestnut. The result was as follows:

Albert L.	1	1	1
Maggie Roach	3	3	3

Time, 1.08; 1.12; 1.08.

Purse, $50.—1st, 25; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $10.

Fire Insurance.

A public meeting to discuss the fire insurance question will be held in the Council Chamber on Thursday evening next. As this is a very important matter there will no doubt be a large attendance of property owners. The whole subject will be discussed, and the ratepayers are expected to express their approval or disapproval of proposed additions to the fire appliances, including the chemical engine. The advisability of forming a mutual insurance company will also be brought up.

What is a "Chestnut!"

A chestnut is a second-hand, oft-told story. So, when people read of great clearing sales they smile and say "chestnut;" but the sale at W.W. Johnston & Co.'s is a re-mark-able chestnut, for it is a genuine clearing out sale, no false pretence about it. All the goods being re-marked down to very low prices, which satisfies the customers and causes them to remark "there is no chestnut about Johnston & Co.'s sale" All are invited to call in and share the profits.

Declaration of War.

The Salvation Army in its war against sin, drink and the devil will open fire on the town of Hastings on Thursday, March 10th. Adjutant Bolton, of Peterborough, assisted by Capt. Williamson and several other officers will lead the first engagement. The first shot will be fired at 7.30 p. m. on Main street and at 8 p. m. another battle will be fought in the hall. The wounded will be looked after and the dying brought to the physician. The proclamation which has been issued from the headquarters concludes with "God Save the Town."

Slightly Improved.

Dr. O'Sullivan still lies in a critical condition at the residence of Mr. Crough, Ennismore. Physicians have been in constant attendance and he has improved some what. Consciousness has been partially restored. Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan has come from Toronto to be with his brother, and Mr. Flanagan with other relatives of Mrs. O'Sullivan also arrived in response to the alarming news sent them. Yesterday there seemed to be little prospect of recovery but the improvement that has since taken place gives some hope, as all will be glad to learn.

Hurt.

At the last heat of the runing race on the Little Lake on Thursday afternoon, Maggie Roach, in bolting from the track, ran into a cutter, upset and smashed it and threw her rider. The person in the cutter was cut on the forehead but not seriously.

Hymeneal.

On Thursday evening Mr. Joseph Crowe, and Miss M. O. Cottingham, Omemee, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at St. John's Church, the Rev. J. W. R. Beck officiating. The bride was supported by Miss S. Baker, while Mr. D. Crowe, Pembroke, Ont., supported the groom. After the service the many friends of the happy couple, repaired to the residence of Mr. John Richardson where a very pleasant time was spent until midnight, when they dispersed to their various homes well pleased with their night's enjoyment. The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents, including as follows:—

BELGIUM'S DANGER.

BRUSSELS, March 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies yesterday the War Minister insisted upon the necessity of fortifying the line of Meuze, in order to arrest the progress of an enemy and repel invasion. He said that with only a single entrenched camp at Antwerp the country was exposed to the danger of being overrun at any time The Premier declared that to his certain knowledge the Government's plans for fortification are approved by the guarantee powers.

PREPARING FOR THE STRUGGLE.

VIENNA, March 3.—All the principal garrisons throughout the country have begun practising with repeating rifles. All the troops in Vienna have been supplied with the new rifles. The officers throughout the monarchy have been ordered to be ready to march at any time within twenty-four hours. The Sunday Observance Act has been suspended to allow work on army contracts to be hurried.

A SCANDAL.

LONDON, March 3.—The Standard says the proceedings of Parliament are becoming a public scandal. If no Government or party can be found able to cure the malady with which the House is afflicted the difficulty will have to be solved from outside.

IRISH JURIES CRITICISED.

DUBLIN, March 3.—At the Clara assizes, yesterday, Judge O'Brien, commenting upon the action of the jury in acquitting a prisoner who was without the shadow of defence, said that it was useless to try cases before such juries, and Mr. Murphy, on behalf of the Crown, said he would postpone the principal cases until the next assizes.

LOOKING TO WAR.

BOMBAY, March 3.—News from Afghanistan received through native sources shows that the ameer is making strenuous efforts to raise a new army. All the boys between the ages of 10 to 18 are being drilled for military service, and those who have reached the age of 18 years are being enrolled in the army. The Ameer has issued a circular to his subjects bidding them prepare for a holy war. It is believed he contemplates making war against Russia.

A New Steamer.

YARMOUTH, N. S., March 2.—A cablegram announces that the steel steamer Yarmouth, for the Yarmouth Steamship Company, was launched yesterday at Dumbarton, Scotland. She will run between Boston and Yarmouth.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

In the House of Commons on Monday, Sir James Fergusson stated the Imperial Government is giving the fishery question the earnest attention the subject requires.

WHAT SORT OF A MAN?

It is a lucky thing that Mr. Samuel H. Blake is a Christain and a very earnest one. Speaking at a public meeting he said in substance:—"I am a member of the Howard association, which seeks to do away with capital punishment; but I would willingly forego my membership in that association for forty-eight hours if I could see Sir John A. Macdonald dangling at the end of a rope." Now if he was not a very earnest Christain, what sort of a man would this sanguinary Samuel be? If the elections have taught Mr. Edward Blake anything it ought to have taught him the wisdom of hereafter leaving this foolish brother Sam at home.—Oshawa Vindicator.

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 1887.

THE LATE DR. J. O'SULLIVAN.

We have to chronicle, with extreme regret, the lamented death of Dr. John O'Sullivan, who died on Friday a little after eleven o'clock at night, after a very brief illness. As we have already stated, he was taken ill on Wednesday evening, while paying a professional visit to Mr. Crough in Ennismore. He had gone into the yard to see to his horse and was there stricken down. Being found almost unconscious he was taken into the house, where Mrs. O'Sullivan was, as she had accompanied him in his visit. In spite of all the resources of science and the most unremitting attention, professional and otherwise, he succumbed to the attack.

He partially recovered consciousness and the use of his faculties at times. Dr. Sullivan, of Kingston, being an old professor and warm personal friend of Dr. O'Sullivan, hastened to him and remained till nearly the end.

Dr. O'Sullivan was born in 1842 in the township of Seymour, County Northumberland, Ontario, being the son of Michael O'Sullivan and Mary Hennessy. He studied at Victoria College, Cobourg. Determining to adopt the profession of medicine he went to Queen's College, Kingston, where he studied with such assiduity that, with the aid of his great abilities, he graduated with the highest credit in 1868, being the best student of the year, and was subsequently appointed House Surgeon for the General Hospital. He then came to Peterborough where his practice rapidly grew, his many patients having well founded confidence in his skill and unwearied attention, his professional reputation being far more than local. From 1874 to 1879 Dr. O'Sullivan, who was always a consistent Conservative, though ever expressing his political views with much moderation, represented the East Riding of Peterborough in the Provincial Legislature, where he won the esteem of the members on both sides of the House. His professional demands upon his time and energies lead him to decline the nomination which was proffered to him at the next general election. An earnest and devout member of his church, Dr. O'Sullivan was always foremost among the laymen attending St. Peter's to support by purse and personal exertions the temporal interests of the congregation. Though born in Canada he never forgot that his ancestors came from Ireland, and he had the warmest feeling of sympathy for everything that concerned the welfare of the Irish people. He was President of the Peterborough Branch of the Land League from its formation to the time of his death.

Dr. O'Sullivan in 1870 married Margaret Louisa, eldest daughter of Mr. Michael Flanagan, City Clerk of Kingston. He leaves her a widow with an only daughter to lament their grievous loss, in which they have heartfelt sympathy.

Dr. O'Sullivan will be sadly missed in Peterborough both professionally and as a member of our community generally. His numerous friends will mourn him sincerely, and many who were less blessed with this world's goods will remember with gratitude his open hand and unostentatious charity.

Numerous letters and messages of condolence have been received, among others from Archbishop Lynch.

The funeral will take place from the family residence on Monday morning, March 7th, at 10 o'clock.

THE FISHERIES.

The Full Text of the Retaliatory Bill Passed by Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The following is the full text of the Edmunds bill, which has passed Congress and been signed by the President:—

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that, whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that American fishing vessels or American fishermen visiting, or being in the waters, or at any ports or places of the British Dominions of North America are then or lately have been, denied or abridged in the enjoyment of any rights secured to them by treaty or law, or are or lately have been unjustly vexed or harassed in the enjoyment of such rights or subjected to unreasonable restrictions, regulation, or requirements in respect of such rights, or otherwise unjustly vexed or harassed in said waters, ports or places; or whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any such fishing vessels or fishermen having a permit under the laws of the United States to touch and trade at any port or ports, place or places in the British Dominions of North America, are or then lately have been denied the privilege of entering such port or ports, place or places, in the same manner and under the same regulations as may exist therein applicable to trading vessels of the most favored nations, or shall be unjustly vexed or harassed in respect thereof, or otherwise unjustly vexed or harassed in said waters, ports or places, or shall be prevented from purchasing such supplies as may there lawfully be sold to trading vessels of the most favored nations; or whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that any other vessels of the United States, their masters or crews, so arriving at or being in such British ports or places of the British dominions of North America are or then lately have been denied any of the privileges therein accorded to the vessels, their masters or crews, of the most favored nations, or unjustly vexed or harassed in respect of the same, or otherwise unjustly vexed or harassed in said waters, ports or places; then, and in either of all of such cases, it shall be lawful and it shall be the duty of the President of the United States, in his discretion, by proclamation to that effect, to deny vessels, their masters and crews, of the British dominions of North America, any entrance into the waters, ports or places of or within the United States, with such exceptions in regard to vessels in distress, stress of weather or needing supplies, as to the President shall seem proper, whether such vessels shall have come directly from said dominions on such destined voyage, or by way of some port or place in such destined voyage, elsewhere; and to deny entry into any port or place of the United States of fresh fish or salt fish, or any other product of said dominions, or other goods coming from said dominions to the United States. The President may in his discretion apply such proclamation to any part or to all of the foregoing named subjects, and may revoke, qualify, limit and renew such proclamation from time to time as he may deem necessary to the full and just execution of the purposes of this act. Every violation of any such proclamation, or any part thereof, is hereby declared illegal, and all vessels and goods so coming or being within the waters, ports or places of the United States contrary to such proclamation shall be forfeited to the United States; and such forfeiture shall be enforced and proceeded upon in the same manner and with the same effect as in the case of vessels or goods whose importation or coming to or being in the waters or ports of the United States contrary to law may now be enforced and proceeded upon. Every person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, or such proclamation of the President made in pursuance thereof, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the Court.

EXTENSIVE SMUGGLING.

Revealed in a Curious Manner by Floods at Morrisburg.

OTTAWA, March 4.—Floods are reported from Morrisburg on the St. Lawrence, whereby a jam of ice has caused the river to overflow the low lying banks, and have curiously revealed an extensive system of smuggling to the Customs Department. The jam of the ice was in the shape of ice bridges over the channels between Croil Island and the Canadian and American shores. It has now been ascertained that the ice bridges had been formed by smugglers, who thus easily convey contraband goods, mostly coal oil, from the States into Canada. The ice jam is plainly artificial, as the smugglers seem to have cut a number of blocks along the shore, and towed them out into the channels, so as to form a solid construction when frozen together. Major Anderson, Engineer of the Marine Department, has been despatched to the scene; a report has been sent to headquarters and efforts made to prosecute the offenders. The loss to Morrisburg by the floods are set down at $7,500.

They Were Advertised.

There was a man once on a time who thought him wondrous wise,
He swore by all the fabled god's he'd never advertise;
But the goods were advertised ere long, and thereby hangs the tale—
The ad was set in nonpareil, and headed "Sheriff's Sale."

—Salem Gazette.

FROM CORK TO CATHAY

ALL CLASSES CREEDS AND CHARACTERS MEET

To Honor the Firemen—A Gay Gathering—Handsome People and Artistic Dresses.

The second fancy dress carnival held in the Charlotte Street rink was a decided success. From eight o'clock till after ten the ice was covered with a motley throng of masked men, maids and matrons, lads and lasses, representing characters from history, imagination and characters unheard of before. Round over the crisp, clear ice the mass of gay colored dresses airily floated beneath profuse decorations, electric light and the eager eyes of a gallery filled with spectators.

The firemen's committee (all fine looking fellows, of course) were dressed in their handsome uniform, which made them look business like and handsomer still. During the whole evening they performed the duties allotted to them in a highly satisfactory manner, everything passing off as if made to order.

The music by the Fire Brigade Band contributed largely to make the carnival what it was—the best of the season.

The costumes worn were in the main interesting. Some were really rich, many were very pretty and some were commonplace. But on the whole the display of dresses was equal to those at any carnival given in Peterborough with one or two exceptions.

The names of those who appeared in fancy dress are as follows:—

The five dollar gold piece, which was given away to the lucky one whose duplicate corresponded with the number drawn under the inspection of the Judges, came into the possession of Master Geo. Miller, of the REVIEW book-bindery.

The Judges, Dr. and Mrs. Boucher, and Mr. and Mrs. Machlin, came to their decision at shortly after nine o'clock. Dr. Boucher announced the following to be the prize winners:—

BEST DRESSED LADY IN COSTUME.—Miss M. Allen, as Squire's Daughter. Prize, card receiver.

BEST DRESSED GENTLEMAN IN COSTUME.—Jas. Hannah, as Charles II. A gold ring.

BEST DRESSED LADY IN COMIC COSTUME.—Miss A. Errett, as High Art Embroidery. Prize, a pickle cruet.

BEST DRESSED GENTLEMAN IN COMIC COSTUME.—W. Logan, as Italian Organ Grinder. Prize, a gold scarf pin.

BEST DRESSED GIRL IN COSTUME.—Annie Sherwood, as Kate Greenaway. Prize, a napkin ring.

BEST DRESSED BOY IN COSTUME.—E. Roper, as Butterfly. Prize, a silver cup.

The races were brought on, the skaters for the time subsiding into the shade of the trees which fringed the rink. Mr. C. A. Lawford won the backwards race and a pair of cuff buttons. Master Sawers won the boys race by only a few inches. A silk handkerchief was his reward.

The fancy skating contest evinced much interest. Messrs. R. J. Hartly, brother of Mr. Edge Hartly, and Mr. Jas. Hanna, entered to compete for the medal. It was no easy matter to judge between the two for both did the movements with much ease and gracefulness. Finally, however, the medal was awarded to Mr. Hartly.

After this contest the ice was given up to the skaters for the evening, and good use was made of it.

The success of the two carnivals gives pleasure no doubt to the firemen, but none the less to their friends. Both carnivals were well managed, well attended, and well,—they added to the Brigade's funds by about $100.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

A Twenty Minute Sitting—Petitions Presented—Committees Appointed and a Bill Introduced.

THURSDAY, March 3.—Several petitions were presented and the report of the Committee to strike the Standing Committees was adopted. Mr. Stratton is on the Committee on Printing, Standing Orders and Municipal Committee, and Mr. Blezard is on the Committee on Printing, Privileges and Elections, Railways and Private Bills.

THE REVISED STATUTES.

Mr. MOWAT introduced a bill respecting the Revised Statutes.

RETURNS.

Mr. MEREDITH called the attention of the Commissioner of Crown Lands to the fact several returns ordered last session had not been brought down.

Hon. Mr. PARDEE promised to have the returns brought down at once.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

Mr. MEREDITH asked when the public accounts will be brought down.

Hon. Mr. ROSS (Huron) replied that the accounts will be brought down on Friday or at the latest on Monday.

The House adjourned at 3 55 o'clock.

An American Knight.

CHICAGO, March 4.—The fact was announced yesterday that George M. Pullman had been knighted by King Humbert of Italy. The knighting was a surprise to him. He met King Humbert while he was abroad, and had some acquaintance with him.

LONDON, March 4.—Lord Ashbourne has completed a land bill extending the powers of purchase and substituting the five years of judicial leases for leases of fifteen years. The bill will likely be introduced in the House of Lords next week.

THE UPRISING AT MOZAMBIQUE.

LONDON, March 4.—Mamaral, a petty native chief, is at the head of the uprising on the Mozambique Mainland against Portuguese authority. The insurgents are looting stores. It is not thought that there is any danger to life or property on the Island of Mozambique. A British crusier has arrived at the Capital to protect English subjects and interests.

THE COLONIAL CONFERENCE.

LONDON, March 4.—The colonial conference will meet on April 4th.

CONTINUED TREMORS.

ROME, March 4.—Continued tremors were felt throughout the Riveria to-day. One person was excavated alive yesterday from the ruins at Diano-Marina, and a whole family was rescued from a cellar in Laggia. They had all been immured since the first shocks occurred. Engineers report that only a few houses are safe in Oneglia, and it will be necessary to build huts for the accommodation of 7,000 persons rendered homeless by the earthquake.

THE WELSH CHURCH.

LONDON, March 4.—Mr. Gladstone writes to the editor of the Baptist as follows: "I consider that there is no opportunity yet for the disestablishment of the Welsh Church. No great political matter can be dealt with till the Irish difficulty is settled. An attempt by me to force the postponement of the Irish question would only increase the confusion and pressure. The reason why the Irish question is so troublesome, obtrusive and provoking is because it involves the social order of that country, and it is the nature of local questions to push their claims for precedence over others."

NORWOOD.

THE CARNIVAL.—Carnivals are not nearly so popular in this section as they were some years ago. The one held here on Monday evening was largely attended, but the number in costume was exceedingly small. Mr. E. Hartley, of Peterborough, gave an exhibition of fancy skating which was well worth the price of admission itself. The ice was in splendid condition and the rink beautifully decoroted and illuminated.

A CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS.—A young son of Mr. Clarihue's, of this village, while tobogganing on Saturday, had the misfortune to break one of his legs. It appears there were two others on the toboggan besides himself and that he in some manner fell off, the toboggan with its heavy load passing over one of his legs, breaking it at the thigh. He was removed to his home on Ridge St., and under skilful medical treatment is doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. Mat. Sierra, of this place, while skidding logs in a shanty north of this village the other day, had a leg broken. A log rolled down and crushed him with the above result. He was removed to this village and is slowly recovering.

Master Walter Bailey, of this village, met with a probably fatal accident on Saturday evening. He attempted to pass in front of a rig being driven rapidly up Colborn St., when he was struck with the end of one of the shafts in his face. Several of his teeth were knocked out and the shaft went down his throat a considerable distance, inflicting a very severe wound. He was removed home and medical aid summoned. His lower lip was almost completely cut in two. How he escaped instant death is a surprise to every one.—Register.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

SATURDAY, MARCH 5, 1887.

DECLINED WITH THANKS.

THE Hon. David Wells, addressing an audience at Boston, made light of the fishery dispute as compared with what he considered the more important question of reciprocity. As he said:—

"Take down the trade barriers between the two countries, remove the artificial restrictions, and how many wheels, and spindles, and looms, and forges, and oars, and sails, and hammers would at once flash into activity. In the increased domestic markets that our fishermen would gain for their products they would be more than compensated for any concessions they might make to their competitors."

It was the spindles, looms, forges, &c., of New England to which Mr. Wells referred as being thus brought into activity. Very good for the United States, but how would it suit Canada? Their activity, caused, as Mr. Wells hopes, by supplying Canadian consumers, would simply mean an equivalent loss of activity in Canadian factories. Would we like to see looms and forges stimulated into activity in New England, that the Auburn mills, and Brodie's looms, the Hamiltons', and the Bridge Works foundries might stand idle for want of the work thus taken from them by foreign competitors? If the access to our markets would thus benefit the foreign manufacturer, it could only be by displacing the Canadian manufacture. So too Mr. Wells sees the advantage that their fishermen (and he might add farmers) would gain from the increased domestic market, but would not this be at the cost of Canadian fishermen, farmers, &c., who would find their domestic markets decreased in exact proportion?

Mr. Wells' argument proves most forcibly the benefit that the New England manufacturers, operatives, and producers of food would derive from reciprocity in manufactured articles, but it is quite as conclusive as to the injury that would result to the same classes in Canada.

Such reciprocity we must respectfully decline with thanks.

A WIDE DIFFERENCE.

The Montreal Herald thinks that if the Conservatives denounce Mr. Blake for a disgraceful act in allying himself with the Rielites, such an alliance must be disgraceful on the part of the Conservatives. There is a wide difference. Mr. Blake disgraces himself by an alliance for his political ends with those whose sole point of agreement with him is an attempt to avenge upon the constitutional authorities the execution of a criminal condemned by the courts. The Conservative Rielites would disgrace themselves if they adhered to Mr. Blake, though they do not agree with his policy, after they have expressed their views as to Riel, for that would be to vote against their consciences upon these other points in order to obtain revenge by such perfidy. But a continued alliance between the Administration and the Conservative Rielites would have no disgrace attached to it, since they agree upon all questions but one. We can see no excuse for Mr. Blake making such a bargain with political opponents, but we are willing to make very great allowances for the Conservative Rielites who were led astray by non unnatural compassion for an unfortunate, if criminal, man who had their own blood in his veins. We feel convinced that they will not prove renegades to all their political convictions, because they feel hurt as to this matter.

THE RETALLIATION BILL.

THE news that the Retalliation Bill has been signed by President Cleveland has caused frantic rejoicing among the pirates of Gloucester, but they should not be in too great a hurry with their bonfires. The measure is only permissive, not compulsory, and the President may not be so ready to give effect to attempts to modify treaties by legislation and proclamation.

Even if the United States does resolve upon restricting intercourse with us because we will not give assistance to those who are trying to steal our property, our people will feel far less inconvenience than will result to our neighbours. It may be a good joke to the New England fishermen to have the ports of the two countries mutually closed, but there are larger and more important interests in the United States that may be expected to look upon such interruption of commerce with less favour.

There seems to be very much of the nature of an electioneering device in these proceedings, and we are far from having lost hope of a satisfactory and reasonable arrangement, worthy of the two countries.

THE London Advertiser of Thursday said:—

"We don't well see how it is possible that Sir John's Government can remain in office longer than the Opposition chooses to let them."

As Sir John Macdonald's Government is still in office, it is plain that the Advertiser doesn't see well.

La Minerve republishes extracts from La Patrie, the Rielite organ, denouncing Sir Donald Smith, Messrs. Desjardin, Girouard, and Dupond, as Ministerialists who should be strongly opposed at the polls. This shows the dishonesty of reckoning these gentlemen with the Opposition.

A JUBILEE NOTE.

The St. Jame's Gazette says that there are three members of the British House of Commons who had seats in it when the Queen ascended the throne. The oldest is the Right Hon. Charles Pelham Villiers, M. P. for the Southern Division of Wolverhampton, who reached the age of eighty-five a few weeks ago. The "father" of the House, Mr. Christopher Talbot, however (member for Mid-Glamorganshire), took his seat in 1830, five years before Mr. Villiers; while Mr. Gladstone, the third of the trio, entered Parliament in 1832 as member for Newark. The first two have never had to change their seats (except for the slight local changes made necessary by the Franchise Act), but Mr. Gladstone has changed his four times. When the "Diary of Royal Movements" was published it was pointed out in the preface that Her Majesty had "witnessed the funeral of every Premier who has sat under her except Mr Gladstone." That was before Lord Salisbury's appointment.

PRESERVING OUR FISH.

THE Newfoundland correspondent of the Montreal Gazette writes as follows in regard to the fishery question, his remarks being doubly interesting to us in Canada, from our kindly feeling for our neighbor and from circumstances in the Dominion being somewhat similar. Their bait fish should be preserved for it is necessary not only to catch but to feed the fish of commercial value, which otherwise would be as scarce upon our coast as upon those of New England:—

"We consider that we are constitutionally entitled to exercise control over our inshore fisheries as much as over our territory, and to adopt such measures as we consider necessary to conserve our most valuable possessions. We believe that this measure is necessary to enable us to preserve our bait fishes from destruction, the heavy drafts on which, for the supply of bait to French and Americans, threaten their extermination. These fishes are the food of the cod, and if lessened seriously in numbers or destroyed, the cod will disappear to seek food in other quarters. Further, we consider that in the unfair competition with the bounty-fed fishermen of France we are not bound to supply them with the means of underselling and ruining us in foreign markets. There are no treaty obligations compelling us to supply bait to the French or Americans to the ruin of our own people. We believe our claims to be just and incontrovertible, and we appeal with confidence to the Parliament and people of Great Britain."

AN EVERLASTING FAVOR.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Allow me to intimate to the Council of this town that they will confer an everlasting favor on the people of Peterborough if they will publish the assessment roll each year, and bring to the light of day a matter of vital importance, which has been hitherto hid away from the ratepayers. There are few who would not willingly pay 10 or 15 cents for a publication of this kind, which would more than pay for the cost of printing.

Let this be done and the chances are that we will have a fair, honest and equitable assessment system in this good town of ours.

Yours, etc.,
TAXPAYER.

CAMPBELLFORD.

COLLISION.—A Reform possession on Thursday night, Feb. 24th, met a Conservative procession which had a banner, with mottoes and illuminated. One man tried to thrust his torch through the banner, and a melee followed. A large crowd collected, some blows were struck, but nothing serious resulted. The processions again formed and moved on.

NEW RACEWAY.—A gang of men under the superintentendence of Mr. H. McCormick, is now at work constructing a pier 80 feet long at Messrs. Gilmour & Co.'s saw mills at Crow Bay. Mr. Chas. Loutitt, the manager of the mills, informs us that the raceway will be 80 feet long, 40 feet wide, and the water 10 feet deep. It will furnish a great head of water from a never-ceasing stream, and contrary to the principle of such works, the less the quantity of water to a certain depth, the greater will be the power. The enlargement of the pier is being made to admit of still larger operations when the season opens.—Herald.

FIERY MAUNA LOA.

Immense Flow of Lava from the Volcano —A Dazzling Spectacle.

A San Francisco despatch, dated February 24, says:—The steamer Australia, which arrived this morning from Honolulu, brings full particulars of the great lava flow from the Mauna Loa. The sight is described as magnificent beyond description. A column of fire was first observed from the summit of the crater on the night of January 16th. The fire died down before midnight, but great volcanic disturbances followed in quick succession up to the night of the 18th, when fire and lava again burst forth from the mountain side. The length of the flow is estimated at twenty miles. This distance the lava accomplished in two days, spreading as it descended, reaching the sea on the evening of January 20. The stream of lava continued to flow without interruption till the 29th, when a river of fire burst forth, following the line of the lava flow. When the fires flamed out the heavy earthquakes ceased, although slight tremors were felt at intervals thereafter.

Major Benson, U. S. A., visited the coast where the flow of lava entered the sea. He thus discribes the scence witnessed by him after nightfall on Jan. 29:—"With the increased darkness point after point of fire developed along the entire course of the flo w, until the culmination was reached at 2.30 a. m., when liquid fire belched forth from the crater far above to the height of 150 feet."

Major Benson travelled to the head of the flow on the 31st. He describes it as follows:—"In the centre of great masses of rough, black lava was a crater of about 125 feet in circumference, around which a circle of living fire was formed at intervals. About 30 yards below the centre, molten lava poured forth in streams from fissures in the mountain tide. Numerous other smaller craters also emmitted smaller streams of lava. At times the entire group of craters shot forth huge tongues of fire simultaneously, followed by immence streams of lava. These demonstrations continued at intervals for some time."

The Rev. S. E. Bishop, well known in the scientific world, visited the scene Feb. 1, after the rush of fire was over. He writes as follows: "The north-west side of the flow presents a straight solid embankment, forty feet high and in some places one and a half miles wide. The flow overreaches the original coast line from 200 to 500 feet, making thirty acres of new land. One can perhaps partially imagine how that tide of fire and rocks nearly a mile wide rolled for a week over the shore into the deep and convulsive ocean. I have no powers of imagination to conceive the awful splendour of the downward charge of that mile-broad deluge of fire. Nor the horror of the tornado crash and roar with which that vast wall of rolling rock and cinder pressed forward over the land, piling up on the plain and crushing into the sea. I saw but the dead and dying remains, dreadful, dark and silent."

Mr. Bishop states that the present flow is much greater in quantity, than that of 1868 being twice the length of the latter and of greater depth. He also calls attention to an interesting volcanic fact observed in steaming around the south point of Hawaii. This was a remarkable surface layer of yellow ochre or similar matter many feet in depth. He believes this to be a layer of yellow ashes distributed from eruptions, probably thousands of years ago. Referring to this discovery he states:

"We are thus enabled to determine the remarkable and important fact that at a recent period, although prehistoric, there was an explosive eruption of yellow cinder which covered at least a hundred square miles with yellow ashes several feet in thickness."

He concludes:—"I hereby file my caveat for this discovery in case no one has a recorded patent of prior date."

Judge D. H. Hitchcock writes under date of February 3, from Hilo:—"We are experiencing alight shocks almost every day or night. A very heavy fall of volcanic smoke hides Manua Loa from here. If there were no further volcanic action there the smoke would all be blown to sea by the strong winds which have been blowing the past week. As it is, I feel as though the end of the flow was not yet."

Poverty and Distress.

That poverty which produces the greatest distress is not of the purse but of the blood. Deprived of its richest it becomes scant and watery, a condition termed anæmia in medical writings. Given this condition, and scrofulous swellings and sores, general and nervous debility, loss of flesh and appetite, weak lungs, throat disease, spitting of blood and consumption, are among the common results. If you are a sufferer from this, poor blood employ Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which enriches the blood and cures these grave affections. Is more nutritive than cod liver oil, and is harmless in any condition of the system, yet powerful to cure. By Druggists.

All are invited to call in and share the profits.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The members of the Association hold their monthly social meeting on Monday evening next. The Rev. Mr. Tovell will give them a "popular talk." Coffee and cake will be served, and a good musical programme has been prepared.

An Association will be formed in Stirling next week. Mr. Geo. E. Williams goes down to represent the Provincial Committee.

Young men in town, and strangers will receive a hearty welcome at the Young Men's Meeting on Saturday evening at 8, and Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Opera House.

On Monday evening we have cheap and interesting amusement offered to us in the shape of the Harry Lindlay Co. consisting of 15 persons. The genial comedian appears here for the first time in one of his greatest negro impersonations, taken from "Brudder Gardner's Lime Kiln Club," and for which the Detroit Free Press has given him the right. The Company has just terminated a three weeks engagement at Belleville. As an extra inducement in Belleville, to offset the election crisis, they gave away a valuable Short Horn Cow and Sewing Machine, and completely demoralized the election excitement, playing against free Conservative concerts to 1,600 people. They will present a cow here to the holder of the lucky number. Every person purchasing tickets during the week obtains a number and on Saturday all the numbers are placed in a globe and drawn for.

Ladies, when you require Corsets, try a pair of the New Jersey make, to be had at Turnbull's.

WINTER RACES.

Good Races on the Second Day—Sleepy Dan the Dark Horse.

Notwithstanding that Mercury retired within itself and a cold wind blew two thousand people assembled on the Little Lake on Friday afternoon to see the two trotting races.

The 2.45 trot was to have been commenced at 2 o'clock, but it was nearer three before the field got away in the first heat. In the meanwhile the sports gathered around the booth with astonishing eagerness. Hot coffee and ginger ale were never known to be so popular. Except when called away to see a heat the crowd wedged up in front of the counter so compactly that it was hard to dislodge them.

The first event was finally called—the 2.45 trot. The entries were:—

Harry Winch's (Peterborough) "Sleepy Dan."
M. Lawson's (Brighton) "Bessick."
J. Croft's (Cobourg) "Ben Morrel."
M. Dwyer's (Toronto) "Royal Jim."
J. J. Daly's (Peterborough) "Fanny B."

Sleepy Dan won this race in the same style as he captured the prize in the three minute contest. It was 1 1 1 with him and easy at that. The other horses followed in a procession, occasionally having a brush for places. The result was as follows:—

Sleepy Dan	1 1 1
Bessie K	2 2 2
Royal Jim	3 3 3

Time, 2.36, 2.52, 2.53.

Purse $80—1st, $50; 2nd, $20; 3rd, $10.

There was considerable speculation on this race. The field was taken against Sleepy Dan and backers of the field lost. Speaking of speculation, it was interesting to watch "Canada Jack" rope in the crowd. Apart from betting on the races he had the whole business to himself. He was the centre of attraction. All afternoon he kept on singing with cheerful monotony. "There you go," "67 a blank," "Double her up Boys," "46 a blank," and so on; and the crowd bought blanks or "one for one" without a murmur.

The free for all brought out a field of five horses:—

Beatty's (Cobourg) Tariff Jr., Morgan's (Peterborough) Little Ned, Lundy's (Peterborough) Factory Girl, Dwyer's (Toronto) Royal Jim, Power's (Canifton) Laura C.

The race was between Little Ned and Tariff. The latter won the two first heats and Little Ned the third, all closely contested. There was only a few inches difference in the first heat.

The finishing heat is being trotted this afternoon.

Brought Home for Burial.

The remains of the late Isabella Valancy Crawford, the poetess, were brought from Toronto to Peterborough on Friday. The funeral took place on the arrival of the noon train, the body being interred in the Little Lake Cemetery.

The Recount.

The recount in the West Peterborough election for the House of Commons opened at the Court House on Friday afternoon before His Honor Judge Weller. Mr. Moore appeared for Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Dumble for Mr. Cox. The ballots cast out side of the town were examined, but very little change resulted.

Cheesemakers.

The organization meeting of the Peterborough Cheesemakers Association was held in the old Music Hall on Thursday, following officers were elected:—

President—W. Crebbin.
Vice President—Samuel Spence.
Sec. Treas.—David Pilkie.

After discussion on important points in the manufacture of cheese the meeting adjourned till March 26th.

The Linking Line.

Mr. John Hendrie, late of the firm of McDermid & Hendrie, who constructed the Peterborough section of the Ontario and Quebec Railway, has been awarded the contract to build the line connecting the Midland Division with the Grand Junction branch at the lower part of the town. It is understood that operations will be commenced immediately, and according to Mr. Hendrie's reputation as a contractor, the line no doubt will be speedily built.

The Churches.

The following is a list of services in the several churches to-morrow:—

St. Peter's Cathedral.—At St. Peter's Cathedral, Roman Catholic, there will be three masses celebrated, the first at 7 a. m. the second at 8 a. m., and the third at 10.30 a. m. Vespers at 7 p. m.

St. Luke's.—The regular services at St. Luke's Church will be conducted as follows: Holy Communion at 8 a.m., morning prayer Litany and sermon at 11 a. m., evensong at 7 p. m.

St. John's Church.—The regular services will be conducted as follows:—Holy Communion at 8.30 a.m.; Morning Prayer, Litany and sermon at 11 a.m.; Evening Prayer and sermon at 7 p. m.

St. Paul's.—The Rev. Mr. Torrance will conduct the day's services.

Baptist Church, Murray Street.—The pulpit will be occupied by the pastor.

Methodist Church, Charlotte Street.—The pulpit of this church will be occupied both morning and evening by a former pastor, the Rev. T. Manning, B. A., now of Oshawa. The sermons will be specially in the interest of the Sunday School.

Methodist Church, Mark street (Ashburnham)—The Rev. Mr. Wilson will conduct the services. 11 a.m., subject, "God's Love," 7 p. m., subject, "The Demoniac."

St. Andrews Church.—The pastor will conducted the services as usual.

Charleston Shaken.

ABRAHAM AND ISAAC.

DR. CURTISS' NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson X of the International Series for Sunday, March 6—Lesson Text, Genesis xxii, 1-14; Golden Text, Genesis xxii, 8.

We now come to the greatest trial of Abraham's life. It was fitting that the father of the people of redemption should pass through it, both for the effect on himself and on his posterity, national as well as spiritual.

Although a hundred years old, through God's miraculous power he had become the happy father of the long promised son. At God's command his other son, Ishmael, had been dismissed with his mother, for Isaac was to be his only heir. On the life of Isaac, for whom he had waited so long, God's covenant and every promise that he had made depended.

THE LESSON.

The Testing of Abraham (v. 1)—After the events described in the preceding chapter God proved (Revised Version) Abraham, or put him to the final test. So far as God was concerned this was unnecessary, for he knew all about his servant. But Abraham was to stand before his people and those of every age as an example of faith (Rom. iv, 12, 16); therefore God puts him to the test. God did not tempt him as we commonly understand this word. We associate with temptation the idea of sin. The New Testament distinctly declares that it is impossible that God should tempt any one (James i, 13). He simply proves his chosen servants (compare Matt. iv, 1) as men prove machinery which is to do an important work and is liable to be subjected to a great strain.

V. 2. This verse contains a climax. Each word in the divine command must have gone to Abraham's heart like a dagger, piercing deeper and deeper. God says (v. 1), "Abraham"—name which was given him as a prophecy that he should be a father of many nations—"take thy son;" and that he may not mistake which, or think of Ishmael, he adds, "thine only son," through whom alone all the promises that have been made are possible, "whom thou lovest," dear as the apple of his eye, "Isaac" (laughter)—a name associated with such happy memories before and after his birth.

The mountain alluded to here in the land of Moriah is supposed by many to be Mount Moriah, the site of Solomon's temple (II Chron. iii, 1), which throughout every subsequent period of Israelitish history has been the most sacred spot on all the earth. This is a question that we cannot definitely decide, and which is of minor importance; and yet, as we shall see later on, Mount Moriah seems to be indicated.

The command does not appear to have excited the surprise and horror in the mind of Abraham that we should expect. Perhaps the reason of this is in the fact that human sacrifices were common among the people of Canaan, as we learn from the Scriptures (II Kings xvi, 3; Ps. cvi, 38), as well as from other sources. Abraham, therefore, was not likely to be shocked because he was called upon to offer up his son.

Abraham's Implicit Obedience (v. 3)—As soon as he receives the command he prepares to obey. He who had pleaded for the preservation of Sodom on account of Lot makes no plea for his son. Taking an ass, and a couple of servants as attendants, he goes in the direction that God had indicated.

Vs. 4, 5. On the third day he sees the place afar off. He then bids the young men to remain with the ass while he and his son go and worship and return. Evidently he still hopes that this will be the case, and utters the language of his heart when he speaks of returning to them with Isaac.

Vs. 6-8. We have in these verses the affecting details of the final journey of father and son. The wood is carried by Isaac, while Abraham takes the fire with which he is to light the sacrifice and the knife with which he is to slay it. Doubtless this part of the journey was a silent one. Abraham's heart must have been too full for utterance. Isaac, with Oriental deference, does not speak to his father until he asks the question regarding the sacrifice: "Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for the burnt offering?" Abraham replies, "God will provide himself the lamb for the burnt offering, my son." He could not utter the awful truth to his son; but we are not to suppose that there is an evasion here on his part any more than when he tells the servant that he will return with Isaac. He still hopes that he will not be called on to slay his son.

Vs. 9-10. He does not falter, however, in his obedience. Arriving at the place he builds the altar—probably something after the model described in Exodus xx, 24-25—arranges the wood, binds his son Isaac, and lays him on the altar, on the wood. Only after all these preparations are made, perhaps with the hope that deliverance may yet come, does he at last take the knife to slay his son. According to the decription given of the sacrifices in the Mosaic ritual it was customary to slay the victim first and then put him on the altar (Lev. 1).

A Complete Sacrefice (vs. 11-12)—The moment Abraham took the knife to slay his son, the sacrifice was complete. God did not desire the life of Isaac. He thus clearly shows that he does not demand human sacrifices (Micah vi, 7-8). But Abraham had as truly surrendered his son to God as though he had plunged the knife into his heart (Heb. xi, 17-19).

It is the angel of Jehovah that calls to him from heaven and bids him not to do anything to the lad. The angel is represented as saying that now he knows that Abraham fears God because he had not withheld his son, his only son from him. This language, however, is accommodated to Abraham's understanding. We have learned that God knows all things but Abraham perhaps did not clearly know it. We thus have God represented as condescending to the imperfect knowledge of his servant here as well as in other places, and as gaining knowledge as if he were a man (Gen. xi, 5; xviii, 21). The truth that God knows all things was indeed partially apprehended at that time (Gen. xvi, 13, Revised Version), but it was not clearly revealed until afterward (Ps. cxxxix.).

V. 13. As Abraham has said to Isaac, God did provide himself a sacrifice. At the very moment that the angel of Jehovah had finished speaking, Abraham saw a ram behind him caught by his horns in the thicket. He took him therefore and offered him in place of his son.

The Lord will Provide (v. 14)—Abraham, after this joyful experience, gives the place a name—Jehovah-jireh (the Lord will provide, Revised Version, margin). The writer adds: "As it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be provided (Revised Version); or if we regard the well known meaning of the imperfect we may translate the passage: "In the mount of Jehovah it is wont to be provided." What mount then is intended and is so especially pointed out as the mountain of Jehovah, unless it be Moriah, which perhaps signifies "appearance of Jehovah."

Meaning of this Sacrifice—What then is the significance of this transaction?

1. The whole history of Abraham shows the miraculous origin of the Hebrew nation, and this sacrifice of Isaac indicated how completely they belonged to God. Isaac was born through a miracle, and his life which was on the point of being taken in sacrifice was given back to him. Thus Israel in the person of Isaac was specially consecrated to the service of God.

2. There are certain personages in the Old Testament whom the church, following the example of the New, has made typical of Christ. Here is one of the chief, and it presents to us the wonderful love of God in the gift of His only and well beloved Son to die for us.

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.

1. God never tempts men; He proves His chosen servants.
2. Abraham obeys God's command promptly and exactly.
3. The way of implicit obedience to God is the way of safety and blessing—"The Lord will provide."
4. God abhors human sacrifices, but he demands the complete surrender of our bodies and souls to him for time and eternity.
5. Since Christ has given himself for us, we ought to give ourselves for him.—Sunday School World.

MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1887.

THE COUNTY GAOL.

The Reports of the Official Inspectors to the Government.

From the annual report of the Inspector of Prisons we take the following in regard to the Peterborough common gaol:—

	1884.	1885.	1886.
Prisoners committed during the year	148	120	106
Greatest number confined at any one time	25	19	28
Number of re-committals	48	29	24
Total cost of maintaining gaol	$2,580 98	$2,519.58	$2,860.49

A copy of the report made by me to the the Government upon this gaol is annexed:—

"The Peterborough gaol was inspected by me on the 27th May. It then contained nine prisoners—eight males, one female. Four of the males had been committed as insane, two as vagrants, and two more were waiting trial on charges of forgery and burglary respectively. The female prisoner had been committed as a vagrant.

"The gaol and premises were in excellent order. The cells and corridors have in the greater part been repainted, and the sanitary condition of the gaol seems to be excellent.

"The books were well kept, and there was a general indication of thorough attention to their work on the part of the gaoler and turnkey."

The second inspection was made by Mr. Mann, who reported to me as under:—

"As instructed by you I visited the Peterborough gaol on the 3rd of September. On that day there were eleven male prisoners confined in the gaol for the following offences, viz, larceny, one; bigamy, one; breach of the peace, one; vagrancy, one; want of sureties, one; insanity, five.

"I examined the books, which are properly kept, also the gaol building, which was quite satisfactory. The gaol is about to be connected with the town water supply system, and the gaoler's quarters, which at present are inconvenient, are to be reconstructed. When completed, these improvements will be of great benefit to the gaol premises."

Armed Incendiaries.

LIMERICK, March 4.—A sensation has been caused here by the perpetration of very extensive incendiarism last night in the country surrounding the city. A large number of houses occupied by tenants, and hay and out buildings were burned. As the victims were in all cases persons who had paid their rents, the outrages are set down as political, and great excitement prevails. The aggregate of the property destroyed is very large. It was ascertained to-day that the fires were caused by armed incendiaries, who escaped. The district was ablaze all night.

Dutch Immigrants.

WINNIPEG, March 5.—A large party of Dutch immigrants arrived from the east this morning.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

What Two Convicts Who Escaped From the Kingston Penitentiary Did.

The telegraphic reports recently contained an account of a murderous assault upon Detectives Hulligan and Hoehn, of Cleveland, at Ravenna, Ohio, by four masked men, from the effects of which Detective Hulligan has since died. The officers had in custody a prisoner named McMunn, and while the train was passing Ravenna the men boarded it, drew revolvers, and made a desperate attack upon the officials, rescuing McMunn and escaping themselves. Rewards aggregating $16,000 were offered for the capture of the murderers, but till Thursday they were unable to get a clue. Pat Hanley, Charles Morgan and Matthew Kennedy, alias C. Munn are now supposed to be the guilty parties. McMunn is well known in all the prisons throughout the United States and Canada. About two years ago he and "Billy" Callaghan, one of his companions, were in jail in Windsor, the former under a sentence of 14 years to Kingston penitentiary, for robbery. Callaghan killed jailor Leech and escaped. "Blinky" Morgan was a fellow convict with McMunn at Kingston. They planned to escape, and did so, crossing the line and going to Cleveland. The police have no fear that they are in Canada, for their sentences to Kingston prison are still unserved. The Leader says that about a year ago Morgan, accompanied by the wife of the notorious Charles Lowrey, another Kingston penitentiary bird who was then serving ten years in the Philadelphia penitentiary, went to Detroit, and lived on Congress street. About this time McMunn, who is better known by the name of Kennedy, began making periodical visits to Detroit, stopping at a house on Eighteenth street Early last spring a bold burglary was committed upon the post office at Hart, Mich., near Grand Rapids, a large sum of money and a quantity of postage stamps being stolen. Morgan was at once arrested for the crime and placed in the jail at Grand Rapids. McMunn was arrested also, but he told such a plausible story that he was released. Morgan was not known by the Grand Rapids authorities as a professional criminal, and they sent his photograph to the Detroit police. It was immediately recognized, and the post office inspector and jailer at Grand Rapids were warned of the desperate character of their prisoner. A close watch was kept upon Mrs. Lowery, who was still in Detroit, and when she left the city the Grand Rapids officials were cautioned to beware of her. The woman, as was expected, went to Grand Rapids, and, in spite of the warnings twice given, the United States officials melted under her tears and allowed her to visit Morgan in the jail. She was permitted to furnish him with a change of clothing, and in some unexplained manner the prisoner came into possession of a set of false keys. One morning the Grand Rapids jailer found Morgan's cell empty, and the escaped prisoner had not been heard from until the clues in the Ravenna murder began to point in his direction. The story is told that when Morgan was being pursued for the Hart burglary he fled to a swamp. In running he fell down and lost his revolver or there would probably have been bloodshed when he was overtaken. When found Morgan had buried himself up to the chin in the mud and water of the swamp. The detectives in Detroit are of the opinion that Callaghan was also mixed up in the rescue at Ravenna. Hanley is known to be a member of the Morgan and Kennedy gang. The Cleveland police were evidently on Morgan's trial for some time before evidence had been accumulated to warrant the issuing of the new circular. While the country about Ravenna was being searched, the patrol wagon was hastily called out one bright afternoon and a descent made upon the house occupied by Mrs. Lowery, on Hamilton street. Only two inoffensive young men were caught, however, and after satisfying themselves on this point, the detectives liberated them, and declared that the raid had nothing whatever to do with the Ravenna case.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE.

A Mexican Invasion at Nogales, Arizona —A Sharp Conflict.

SAN FRANCISCO, March, 4.—A special from Nogales, Arizona, says:—"Last night Deputy Sheriff Speed saw Lieut. Guitlereg, with four armed soldiers, crossing a bridge over a small dry creek into the United States. He immediately called on Henry Littlepage and Dr. Pino to go with him and see why the armed party should enter the United States. On arriving in front of the American Custom house the Mexican lieutenant stopped in front of Littlepage, and covering him with a revolver demanded the release of a Mexican named Rican, whom they supposed the United States authorities were holding as a prisoner. Littlepage said, "I have no prisoners," and immediately snatched the six-shooter out of the lieutenant's hand, and placed him under arrest. The Americans then started for the main street of the town. The Lieutenant called on some other Mexican soldiers concealed in the dry bed of creek to release him. They immediately confronted the Americans, and one of them covered Littlepage with a rifle and demanded the release of the lieutenant. Sheriff Speed commanded Littlepage to fire upon the soldier, and immediately fired himself at the soldier who had Littlepage covered. The soldier fired at Littlepage, but the latter knocked his gun aside and at the same time drawing his revolver fired at the Mexican.

Firing then became general, the Mexicans retreating across the international line into Mexico, the Americans following and shooting until their weapons were empty. At this time the American population was aroused, and every man who could procure weapons armed himself, expecting an attack every moment from the Mexican soldiers, who had been ordered out by Col. Arvisen, their commander, and stationed on the railroad platform in front of the Mexican Customhouse. News was brought that one of the Mexican soldiers was mortally wounded.

It is stated that the cause of armed men being sent into the United States was to compel an American women who had been living with Col. Arvisen as his mistress to return to him, and that upon being discovered by the officers the Mexicans made a bold bluff to cover up the intentions Acting U.S. Consul Groseclose this morning made a demand upon the Mexican authorities for Lieut. Guitereg. More trouble is looked for to-night, as it is expected that Col. Arvisen will seek revenge.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

A Woman Suffrage Bill Introduced—Mr. Fraser Doubtful About Giving Information on the New Buildings.

FRIDAY, March 4.—Several petitions were presented.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Mr. WATERS introduced a bill to enable married women to vote at elections for members of municipal councils, which was read the first time.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

Mr. CREIGHTON moved for a return of copies of all advertisements inviting tenders for the erection of the proposed Legislative and Departmental buildings, or any portion of the work connected therewith, copies of specifications in which tenders were invited, copies of all tenders received, whether in accordance with specifications or otherwise; and copies of all contracts which have been let for any portion of the said works or materials to be furnished in connection therewith.

Hon. Mr. FRASER suggested that the mover should confine his motion to the advertisements for the past year.

Mr. CREIGHTON said he preferred that it should cover all the advertisements.

Hon. Mr. FRASER said in that case he would ask that the matter stand till he could make enquiries.

The motion was allowed to stand.

The House adjourned at 2.30 p.m. in order to wait on the Lieut.-Governor and present the Address in reply to the Speech form the Throne.

CHASED BY MEXICAN ROBBERS.

Finding Refuge From Guerillas in the House of Their Chief.

"I obtain leave of absence to visit some friends in Monterey," said General Doubleday to a New York Mail and Express reporter, telling of adventures in Mexico after the Mexican war. "When the visit ended I started back to Saltillo with a Mr. Miller of New Orleans. It was dangerous traveling, and we were liable to be attacked by prowling bands of guerillas at any time, but my leave had expired and I could not wait any longer. I was riding a swift horse, was well armed, and so was my companion. Nothing occurred until one morning when we were several miles to the right of a small town, Santa Maria, forty miles from Saltillo. We were pushing forward at a moderate gait and continually on the lookout for robbers. I had a large pair of field glasses and surveyed the surface of the surrounding country. I saw a body of Mexican lancers a mile or so distant. They were coming toward us, and our only alternatives were to give fight or retreat. We chose the latter as the lancers were considerable in numbers. I concluded to make a dash for Santa Maria. I happened to know the alcaide and he invited me several times to partake of his hospitality. He was a dandified kind of a man and put on a great deal of style. My hope was to reach his house and claim his protection, and, if he refused to give it, to demand it with a pistol at his head. The lancers soon saw us and dashed forward at full speed. They were not near as far to the right of Santa Maria as Miller and I, so that all they had to do was to cut us off if possible. We made a bee line riding at full speed. The robbers saw their chance of cutting us off, and took advantage of it. Fortunately Miller and I rode swift horses, and managed to reach the town a few yards ahead of our pursuers. We galloped right up to the alcaide's house, followed by the lancers. I rapped at the gateway in the wall where horses and riders pass through, and the gate opened. Miller and I rode in, leaving our would-be slayers some 50 yards from the house. They came no farther. I told the alcaide that I had come to pay him that visit, and would remain until 6 o'clock the next morning. I also took pains to inform him what route I intended to take for Saltillo. Well, I departed that afternoon at three o'clock, and by a different route to the one I had given the alcaide. The strange part of this adventure was explained some months afterward. The alcaide, although governor of the town, was the chief of a band of robbers, and that very band which chased Miller and myself. The robbers were delighted to see us ride into Santa Maria, for they thought they had us then, sure. But when they saw us boldly ride to the house of their chief and be admitted they were struck with astonishment. They did not understand it and imagined that we were in collusion or connected some way with the alcaide. The alcaide was arrested by United States troops soon afterward and his connection with the robbers thoroughly exposed."

Hanlan Begins Business.

TORONTO, March 5.—Hanlan returned home from Boston yesterday. He will begin active training on Monday, proposing to walk between fifteen or twenty miles daily for the next six weeks. He will draft articles for his race with Beach on Monday or Tuesday and will forward them to London Sportsman for approval. He does not know whether he will row any more than one single scull race before leaving for Australia.

Knights of Labor Headquarters.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—The Press says that the magnificence of the Knights of Labor's new headquarters on North Broad street is exciting wide comment among members of the organization. Delegations from a distance who visited the new establishment express astonishment at its elegance and grandeur.

Montreal's Mayor.

MONTREAL, March 5.—Hon. J. J. C. Abbott, mayor elect, has resigned his position of attorney of the C. P. R. for the purpose of removing a connection which his opponents say interferes with his independence and also to devote more time to his public duties.

Father Beckx Dead.

ROME, March 4.—Father Beckx, General of the Jesuits, is dead.

Handsome Mantle Cloths in Silk and Velvet Brocades, with new trimmings to match, at Turnbull's.

Suit Over the Dead Jumbo.

ST. THOMAS, March 5.—It is rumored on good authority that Barnum, Bailey & Hutchinson have instituted an action against the Grand Trunk railway for killing Jumbo in this city on the 1st September, 1885, for a large amount.

Another Added to the Majority.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C. March 5.—Donald Chisholm was to-day elected member of the House of Commons from New Westminster district by 250 majority over Mr. Trapp, Independent. He succeeds Mr. Homer, Ministeralist, who is now deceased.

United States Navy.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The officials of the Navy Department say that the failure of the General Deficiency bill will seriously embarrass work on the three cruisers, Atlanta, Boston and Chicago. It is estimated that the completion of the Boston and Chicago will be delayed from 15 months to two years.

Death of a Noted Woman.

SOUTH BEND, Ind, March 5.—Mother Angelia, one of the most widely known women in this country, died very suddenly yesterday, at St. Mary's Academy, and educational institution for females, which she founded in 1850 at Notre Dame. Mother Angelia was a neice of Thomas Ewing, Secretary of State under President Harrison, and cousin of Jas. G. Blaine.

An Incendiary Foiled.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 5.—The superintendent of the Jersey City ferries of the Pennsylvania railway this morning discovered new evidence of a fiendish attempt to burn the company's ferry houses and depot. A piece of cotton wadding was found tacked near the woodwork of the ferry house where it was concealed from view. An attempt had been made to light cotton and the edges were partially singed. The villians were foiled because of some unexplained cause.

A Close Vote.

MONTREAL, March 5.—The recount in Joliette took place yesterday before Mr. F. J. Bisaillon representing Mr. E. Guilbault and Mr. Champagne the defeated candidate, Mr. Neven. The contest was a very close one, as appears by the result:—

Mr. Guilbault, Conservative	1,532
Mr. Neven, Opposition	1,532

The judge having made his report accordingly the returning officer registered his casting vote for Mr. Guilbault, who is declared elected by one of a majority, instead of three, which he had before.

Marshall Pigott's Murder.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., March 5.—It has been generally understood that Havelock Smith, charged with the murder of Marshall Pighot, who had been tried twice, the jury disagreeing both times, would not be tried again for the same offence, and the Times printed a special last night, giving a statement from the attorney-general that the department cannot say at present whether the crown will be prepared to go on at the coming assizes or not. The general belief of the crown officials here is that the prisoner will not be tried a third time, but will be released on bail.

A Walkerton Sensation.

WALKERTON, March 5.—The town was startled last night by the report that Mr. James G. Cooper, treasurer of the County of Bruce, had left the country and his whereabouts could not be discovered. To-day this report appears to be confirmed. Mr. Cooper has always been regarded as an efficient officer. His books are being audited, and the impression prevails that their shortage will not be very large. The immediate cause of his disappearance has not been ascertained. He was colonel of the 32nd battalion and a magistrate of the county.

A Natural Mistake.

Amateur Arctic Explorer—Well, well; the books are all wrong. I thought these people dressed in sealskins.

Native—Oh, no! Ordinary fur is good enough for us.

"Great St. Arctic! Where did you learn English?"

"English! We all talk English."

"Well, I don't see how these former explorers could lie so. Say, my friend, the North Pole is right about here somewhere, and I want to get up a party of natives to help me find it."

"You are wrong in your geography, young feller. This is Dakota."—Omaha World.

A Woman Cuts Her Throat.

FARMERSVILLE, Ont., March 5.—Maria Tackaberry, daughter of Richard Tackaberry, living near Elbe Mills, committed suicide this morning by cutting her throat with a razor. For the last year or two she has had occasional sick spells, and at times was out of her mind. This morning she got up as usual, assisted in geting the breakfast, and while the rest of the family were eating it they heard a noise upstairs as if something had fallen. Upon going up they found her lying on the floor dying, with her throat cut from ear to ear. Coroner Thayes says it is not necessary to hold an inquest, as there were no doubts of insanity.

Inter-State Commerce Bill.

NEW YORK, March 5.—The passenger agents and railroad managers, who have been discussing the provisions of the Inter-State Commerce Bill, have arrived at an understanding. There will be practically no change in emigrant rates and no change of percentage allowed to the steamship companies. Regarding milage rates, there will be no discrimination except as to ministers. Theatrical companies and shows of all kinds will be obliged to pay full rates. Excursions will remain about the same, except as to long journeys. The most important change will be as to second class rates, which will be made uniform throughout. This will result in a marked increase of rates over some routes.

Turnbull is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new patterns. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH

THE NEW EXPLOSIVE.

BRUSSELS, March 4.—General Brialmont who has recently been experimenting here with the new explosive, melinite, has advised the Roumanian Government to suspend labour on the defensive works around Bucharest, as it will be necessary to devise some new plans to withstand the new explosive.

A HEAVY VOTE.

BERLIN, March 4.—Altogether there have been cast 1'429,034 more votes than at the last general election. The increase are: Conservatives, 333,441; Imperialists, 305,-508 Nationalist Liberals, 661,125; Democratic, 13,481; Centre, 24,870; Polish, 9438, Socialist, 224,192; Protester, 82,083. There is a decrease in the New German Liberal vote of 447,702. The Vosaische Zeitung, the Boersen Courier and the Post, in their comments on the Emperor's speech, say that the vague reference to foreign relations is now likely to calm the public mind.

RECONCILIATION RUMOR.

LONDON, March 5.—It is understood an agreement has been arrived at between Gladstone and Chamberlain on the Irish question. The basis of agreement is a modified scheme of Home Rule Federation, with Ulster dealt with on a different footing from the rest of the country.

HICKS-BEACH RESIGNS.

LONDON, March 5.—It is officially announced that Right Hon. Sir Michael Hick-Beach has resigned the office of chief secretary for Ireland and that the Right Hon Arthur J. Balfour, secretary of state for Scotland, has been appointed to succeed him. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach is suffering from cataract and his resignation was due to that cause. He will proceed to Berlin for the purpose of undergoing treatment by a celebrated occulist there.

ARBITARY KING OSCAR.

STOCKHOLM, March 5.—King Oscar has dissolved the Reichstag for refusing to vote the estimates asked by the Government.

RUSSIA AND AUSTRIA.

LONDON, March 5.—The Spectator says that war between Austria and Russia is not far off. Without some entirely new event such as may entirely upset all calculations, or some entirely new combinations due to Bismarck's immense audacity, we can only acknowledge sorrowfully that war approaches fast.

REBELS SHOT.

RUSTCHUK, March 6.—Nine officers and civilians concerned in the recent revolt were shot this morning. The soldiers will be tried to-morrow.

ARREST OF SPIES.

BERLIN, March 5.—Letters from St. Petersburg say the police have closed a printing office there and arrested the proprietor, a German; that arrests have been made at the barracks of the Octrol guard for some unknown cause; that the movements of troops toward the Galician frontier are continuous, and that three Austrian spies have been arrested at Kreff.

RIZA BEY'S MISSION.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 6.—The Journal de St. Petersbourg says it is not confident that the mission of Riza Bey to Sofia will be successful, although it approves of the Porte's desire to contribute to a pacific solution of the Bulgarian crisis.

THE STRUGGLE AHEAD.

DUBLIN, March 6.—Mr. Sheehy, speaking at Mullough, County Clare, to-day expressed the wish that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach would continue in office until, like Mr. Foster, he experienced more knawing remorse than his predecessors had. Ireland, he said, had special cause for unity in the face of the coercion, cold steel and rottenness of the Government.

THH POPE'S POSITION.

ROME, March 5.—The Pope, in the course of an address to the Sacred college in reply to its congratulations upon the 9th anniversary of his coronation, said, that with Rome and without temporal power the Pope would never be free and independent. A despatch was handed to the Pope from the Emperor William expressing cordial thanks for the support of the Pope in the German elections.

THE GERMAN CENTRE.

BERLIN, March 5.—The leaders of the Centre party of the Reichstag have intimated to the Vatican their desire to accede to the Pope's wishes in the coming discussion on the Ecclesiastical bill.

POLICEMAN STABBED.

PARIS, March 5.—A policeman was stabbed and almost killed by a mob of loafers yesterday because he stopped an al fresco dance by river washerwoman Six arrests were made.

EARTHQUAKE IN GREECE.

ATHENS, March 5.—A series of rather violent earthquakes occured in the western part of the city yesterday, but no damage resulted. The habitants, however, were terrified and are flying from the district.

NEW CRIMINAL BILL.

LONDON, March 5.—Lord Hartington approves the main provisions of the government bill to amend the criminal law a Ireland, a draft of which has been submitted to him. The bill provides that a special jury list, to be drawn from classes that are not liable to intimidation, should be framed for a trial of special offences. It is reported that as soon as a parliamentary vacancy occurs, Sir George O. Trevelyan will stand as the Gladstonian candidate.

ALARMING RUMORS.

BERLIN, March 6.—The alarming rumors concerning the health of the Emperor-traceable to the French press—are re-echoed here. The Emperor yesterday heard the usual official reports, took carriage exercise in the afternoon and was present at a musical soiree in the evening. He is taken increased precautions against fatigue, and conserving his strength for the purpose of attending the celebration of his 90th birthday.

STATE OF SIEGE.

LONDON, March 6.—A state of siege has been proclaimed in Sofia.

REBELS SENTENCED.

RUSTCHUCK, March 6.—Nine of the Rustchuck rebels have been sentenced to death. The consuls of the various powers at Rustchuck have urged the postponement of the carrying out of the sentence. Others who took part in the insurrection have been sentenced to prison. Captain Ballman, charged with being one of the leaders of the insurrection, and who claimed to be a Russian sebject, has sought German protection. Order prevailed everywhere in Bulgaria yesterday.

MONDAY, MARCH 7, 1887.

THE FRANCHISE.

It is generally found that new laws, especially those of wide scope, are not perfect, and when they are put into operation the defects are discovered. This has been the case with the laws regarding the franchise, both Provincial and Dominion, upon which were based the voters' lists used in the elections in December and February.

In the Ontario Act, by which the franchise was lowered after a reduction of the qualifications had been proposed in the Dominion Parliament, a new principle, tersely stated as "one man, one vote," was introduced. Apart from the question of whether that principle is a correct one or not, its application according to the directions in the law worked an injustice in many instances. It led to the unrighteous result that a man might own property even in several constituencies, reside in one, and yet have a vote in none. For instance, suppose a man living in Peterborough owned property in both Peterborough and Ashburnham, and moved across the river after the revision of the assessment rolls, and before the election was held, he could not vote in Peterborough because he was not at the time of the election a resident of West Peterborough, and he could not vote in Ashburnham because he was not a resident of the East Riding when the assessment roll was revised. Though an owner of property in both Ridings he could not vote in either. The law also operates against a tenant, income voter or wage-earner moving from one constituency to another. There is another injustice in the position of an income voter, and an owner of property also, as compared with a wage-earner. It was shown in the revisions of the voters' lists last year. An income voter who applied to have his name put on the list, only succeeded by being placed on the assessment roll and being made liable for municipal taxes, and an owner, who had, after the assessment was made, erected a house, could only secure a vote by having the house added to the assessment and paying more taxes, yet a wage earner could apply and have his name added without adding to his liability for taxes. Thus a business or professional man could not secure a vote without paying taxes while a wage earner could. In some cases a professional man would have to pay double taxes. To illustrate this, suppose a man was assessed for income in Ashburnham and moved to Peterborough. He lost his vote in Ashburnham and could only secure the privilege of voting in Peterborough by making himself liable for and paying income tax here also.

In the one man one vote idea the Legislature appeared to act on the principle that the right to vote belonged to the man as a citizen, and yet it refused, or the Reform majority refused, to carry the idea to its logical conclusion and adopt manhood suffrage, the result being a mongrel law with many difficulties. A franchise based on one principle throughout would be more satisfactory, and it is to be hoped that the Ontario Government will recede from the position it has held to so tenaciously and grant manhood suffrage, with proper safeguards.

The Dominion franchise law extended the franchise widely. It was introduced in conformity with the Conservative idea of a united Canada, making the franchise uniform throughout the Dominion and giving votes to persons excluded by the Provincial laws. The assertion that suspicion of the fairness of the assessors was the only reason why this law was passed is not true. There have been cases where assessors did not act impartially. It is also true that a dominant party in a Legislature had used the power of enfranchisement, as well as the power of changing the boundaries of constituencies, in a manner intended to benefit itself and injure its opponents, and this would be another strong argument in favor of the Dominion using its power of saying what qualification was necessary to constitute a voter for Dominion purposes.

The Dominion law, however, could also be amended with advantage. It is surely not too much to expect that the difficulty regarding voters moving from one constituency to another might be overcome. The Dominion law, it is true, is not so bad in this respect as the Ontario law, for under it a property owner does not lose his vote by changing his residence. But it is as unjust—aye, more so—in regard to the tenants, income votors and wage earners, because by the Dominion law a tenant is required to be a resident for a year previous to making his application to be put on the list, while under the Provincial law it is only necessary that he should be a resident at the time of the final revision of the assessment roll, usually about midsummer. The method of getting on the list should also be modified. A person that is not on the list, and applies to be put on, first has to make a declaration before a Justice of the Peace or a Commissioner and then has to appear in Court to give evidence. This sometimes causes considerable trouble, as in some districts persons authorized to take such declarations are not easily accessable.

A great deal of trouble would also be avoided if assessors were instructed to enter on the list wage earners who earned $300, or if (perhaps better still) the Dominion qualification for a wage earner was lowered to $250, making it the same as the Provincial, for then the names should appear on the roll. The Provincial authorities appear to have made the $50 difference on purpose to cause annoyance, and a remedy is needed.

There can be no doubt that a system of manhood suffrage would be better then the present one of fancy franchises. The present law practically gives manhood suffrage while holding to the old idea of property qualification, and the only difference is that the present system causes needless trouble and annoyance. If the other Provinces were as far advanced in their ideas in regard to the franchise as Ontario is there would be no difficult in securing manhood suffrage. The Conservatives of this Province favor the most liberal franchise that could be asked, and it may be that it will ere long be secured for the whole Dominion. In the meantime, if the Legislatures will go no further, they should carefully reconsider the present laws.

A BRAIN PUZZLER.

In nearly two columns of election returns in Friday's Globe from 31 constituencies the only case in which an explanatory note is appended is that of North Simcoe. We reproduce the wonderful calculation as a brain puzzler for our readers:—

"The total vote was 4,336." In 1882 the total vote was 3,272, an increase of 1,139 in four years and the enlarged franchise. In 182 McCarthy had 250 majority over Drury, and although Mr. Anglin was defeated by 329 there has been a Liberal gain on the increased electorate."

How a Conservative majority increased by 79 can be a Reform gain, is a thing that nobody but a Globe writer fresh from figuring up Mr. Blake's majority in the House of Commons can be expected to see. No mathematician could make it out.

If the Globe means, what it does not say, that the majority is not quite so large now in proportion to the vote cast as it was in 1882, it can maintain that point. But it would be a very childish point to make, and as a similar percentage of the gross vote would only call for a majority of 335 and a fraction, instead of 329 as it was, the quibbling about such a trifle is puerile. So is the whining about pap and liquor. The simple fact is that neither the old voters nor the new voters of North Simcoe wanted Mr. Anglin any more than the people of his own Province did.

The London Advertiser says:—

"Mr. Meredith made it a grievance in the Ontario House that the Legislature was dissolved before the full term had expired. Inasmuch as the Dominion House was dissolved in like manner, it would seem to be in order for Mr. Meredith to rise in his indignation and turn his withering tongue on Sir John."

Sir John dissolved the Dominion Parliament because the electorate had been greatly enlarged, a reason which is held under our constitutional system to make an appeal to the people advisable, though not compulsory, and he made this appeal as soon as the new lists were completed. Mr. Mowat was evidently not actuated by any such constitutional motive in dissolving the Provincial Legislature, for he purposely held the new election before many of the voters' lists were ready, thus disfranchising the new electors for five years. He acted for personal and party advantage, without any regard for the convenience of the people. There is considerable difference between the two cases.

SOME LIVELY SCENES

In the British House of Commons—Strong Language Used.

London, March 4.—In the House of Commons last night Mr. Dillon, commenting on the vote of $150,000 for the Irish police, said he was informed that the costs of the Woodford evictions amounted to $6,500, while the total amount in dispute between the landlord and the tenants was only $12,500. No amount of expenditure would ever suppress the "Plan of Campaign" or public meetings. He warned the Government that the meetings would continue to be held in defiance of them, and if bloodshed should follow, the shame and the crime would be on the head of the Government.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach contended that the expenditures for the Irish police were necessary to maintain order. While agitators like Mr. Dillon and his friends incited the people to resist the law, the police expenditures were necessarily greater. The "plan of campaign," for which Mr. Dillon was largely responsible, was a mere organized system of robbery. (Cheers.)

Mr. Dillon appealed to the Chair, asking if the expression was justifiable.

The Chairman replied that the expression did not impute robbery to the member.

Sir Michael, continuing, said that certain members of a Dublin jury recently refused to believe Mr. Dillon's own statement, admitting that he was concerned in the "plan of campaign." The Crown was now told that convictions could never be secured. The Government intended to ask Parliament for such changes of the law as would make it possible to obtain convictions. (Conservative cheers, and cries from the Irish benches of "rightly or wrongly.") He protested against the doctrine of resistance to the law preached by Mr. Dillon, namely, that if the law was not altered as he (Mr. Dillon) and his associates chose to dictate, they would not obey it. Mr. Dillon's speech to-night afforded additional proof of the absolute necessity of giving further powers to the Government if law and order were to be restored in Ireland. (Conservative cheers.)

Mr. J. O'Connor protested that the police had used excessive violence at meetings in Cork, where they had used their batons on the Parnellites.

The Chief Secretary for Ireland said that the meeting alluded to had been called to intimidate the jury, and the Parnellities ought not to be surprised if something worse than batoning occured.

The latter phrase caused an angry scene, in which several Parnellities accused the Chief Secretary of threatening an honorable member. This the Chief Secretary denied. The chair called upon Mr. Healy to withdraw objectionable language. Several members expressed their disapproval of the chief Secretary's expression, which Mr. Healy, speaking later, said could only mean that the Government intended to substitute firearms for batons. At a late hour the vote asked for the Irish police was agreed to by 246 to 121.

NOT A SECRET SOCIETY.

The Papal Abiegate to America Reports Concerning the Knights.

New York, March 4.—The Herald's Rome special gives the full text of the report to the Pope by Mgr. Stranieri, the papal abiegate who lately visited America. The report is in harmony with the views expressed by the American Archbishops to the Pope concerning the Knights of Labor. It holds that that organization, which, it says, is composed of about a million workingmen, half of whom are Catholics, is not a secret society, and has no political or religious bias, but its object is simply to protect labor from injustice by employers. The report speaks of Henry George as "over enthusiastic," and considers his views impracticable, but does not condemn them or blame him for the immoderate views of some of his followers. It severely blames Dr. McGlynn, however, for departing from the usual custom of the clergy, and for insolence to the Archbishop. It concludes by saying that owing to the excitement of the McGlynn matter, to avoid further complications, the Archbishop is organizing with Major John Kelley, commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great, a Catholic society, guided by the doctrines of the church, to prevent dangerous doctrines from gaining a further foothold, and from doing harm to the well being and morality of society.

Likely to be Settled.

Pictou, N. S., March 4.—Negotiations are going on between the colliery managers and representatives of the miners, by which their differences will be adjudged by arbitration, and it is believed the striking miners will return to work in a few days. The strike has already extended over one month, and has been mutually disastrous.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

NEWS NOTES.

Prince Alexander is suffering from acute inflamation of the eye.

Mr. Scrath's majority of twelve in Winnipeg is reduced to eight by the re-count.

President Grevy is to send an envoy to Berlin to congratulate Emperor William on the 90th anniversary of his birth.

The re-count in Maskinonge has resulted adversely to Mr. Desaulniers, giving Mr. Coulombe, Ministerialist, the seat by a majority of six.

Several Berlin papers, commenting on Emperor William's speech, say a vague reference to foreign relations is not likely to calm the public mind.

The Vienna papers consider Emperor William's speech as reassuring, but are of opinion that the danger of war proceeds more from Russia than from Germany or France.

Bradstreet's reports a total of 211 failures throught the country during the past week, against 190 for the week previous. Eighteen of the number were in Canada, nine less than the preceding week.

Mr. Lemcke, a publisher of New York, is in Ottawa to interview the Minister of Agriculture respecting immigration from Germany, Canada, he says, offering superior advantages to the United States.

It is reported that a conspiracy has been discovered to depreciate Canadian Pacific securities, in which a number of prominent Canadians are implicated, and that some startling arrests are about to be made.

SNOWY COATS IN THE NORTH.

A Lecture on the Prevailing Color of Animal Life in the Arctic Regions.

Wherever all the world around is remarkably uniform in color and appearance, all the animals, birds and insects alike necessarily disguise themselves in its prevailing tint to escape observation. It does not matter in the least, says the Cornhill Magazine, whether they are predatory or defenceless, the hunters or the hunted; if they are to escape destruction or starvation, as the case may be, they must assume the hue of all the rest of nature about them. In the Arctic snows, for example, all animals, without exception, must needs be snow white. The polar bear, if he were brown or black, would immediately be observed among the unvaried icefield by his expected prey, and could never get a chance of approaching his quarry unperceived at close quarters. On the other hand the arctic hare must equally be dressed in a snow-white coat or the arctic fox would too readily discover him and pounce down upon him off-hand; while, conversely, the fox himself, if red or brown, could never creep upon the unwary hare without previous detection, which would defeat his purpose. For this reason the ptarmigan and the willow grouse become as white in winter as the vast snowfields under which they burrow; the ermine changes his dusky summer coat for the expensive wintry suit beloved of British Themis; the snow-bunting acquires his milk-white plumage, and even the weasel assimilates himself more or less in hue to the unvarying garb of arctic nature. To be out of the fashion is there quite literally to be out of the world; no half-measure will suit the stern decree of polar biology; strick compliance with the law of winter change is absolutely necessary to success in the struggle for existence.

Now, how has this curious uniformity of dress in arctic animals be brought about? Why simply by that unyielding principle of nature which condemns the less adapted forever to extinction and exalts the better adapted to the high places of her hierarchy in their stead. The ptarmigan and the snow-bunting that look most like the snow have for ages been least likely to attract the unfavorable attention of the Arctic fox or prowling ermine, the fox or ermine that came most silently and most unperceived across the shifting drifts has been most likely to steal unawares upon the heedless flocks of ptarmigan and snow-bunting. In the one case protective coloring preserves the animal from himself being devoured; in the other case it enables him the more easily to devour others.

THE LAST SLAVE SALE.

John Reynold's of Virginia Tells an Interesting Little Story.

"I remember very well the sale of the last negro in this country by auction," said John Reynolds, ex-ad registrar of Ohio county, W. Va., last week. "There was a public sale of the effects of an estate of a man named Higgs, near Wheeling, and among the effects was a good 'field hand,' a powerful well-built negro man. Thomas McCohn, one of the oldest citizens and magistrates in the state, was the auctioneer. The attendance was large, as the sale of negroes was rather a novelty. Some of the wealthiest and most influential farmers of the county, as well as merchants and business men of Wheeling, were there. The negro was started at $500 and went up to $800, where he was knocked down to John Goshorn, a merchant of Wheeling, and a large land holder in the county. The negro was well known, and as he was taken along the National road toward Wheeling hundreds came out to see him and bid him good-by. I had not seen such a sight since the day that old 'Hickory' Jackson made his last journey from Washington to Wheeling to take the boat home to Tennessee. The negro was set to work on a farm near Wheeling, but lived only a few months. There was never another negro sold in the country, for within a short time the war broke out and nearly all the slave holders hustled across the line to get out of the union. Mrs. Lydia Cruger was the last of the slave holders. She kept a dozen or fifteen till the proclamation of President Lincoln liberated them. Mrs. Cruger's farm lies four miles east of Wheeling, on the National road, and is at present owned and cultivated by Major Loring. She died along in the last of the sixties at the age of 103 years. Her first husband, Colonel Sheppard, and her last husband, Colonel Moses Cruger, were both gentlemen of national fame. The mansion of Mrs. Cruger was the stopping place of Henry Clay, James K. Polk, Andrew Jackson, John C. Calhoun and scores of others of national prominence from 1820 to 1860. Henry Clay was wont to send his colored body servant one day ahead of him to call on Mrs. Cruger to notify her of his approach and ask the courtesy of hospitality for one night. The occasion of Mr. Clay's visit was always signalized by a reception to the aristocracy of the country and not a few of the older residents of Wheeling recall with feelings of pleasure of the Clay visits to the Cruger mansion. So great was Mrs Cruger's admiration of the Kentucky statesman that she had a monument erected in the most prominent corner of the grounds. This corner happened to front on the National road, Clay's own most imperishible monument, and it is pointed out to-day as the enduring relic of the lady's regard for the great Whig apostle. Mrs Cruger, as a slave-holder, was a model. Of the dozen or fifteen slaves held by Mrs Cruger, not one of them could complain of his or her condition of involuntary servitude. They did not work, as the old lady persisted in managing her estate herself despite the tokens of senility that forced themselves on her heirs. She had not for many years sold a slave, but frequently bought them. She was often heard to remark that she had seen the rise and fall of the slave system in this country, and she herself was perhaps the only slave holder who stood by and saw the liberation of her slaves without regret."—Washington Reporter.

SMITH.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COUNCIL MEETINGS.—On Monday, 17th of January, the Council of Smith met and organized. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Township officers were appointed as follows: John Black and Andrew Young, Auditors; Richard Waram, Assessor and Collector. The following payments were ordered:—

REVIEW Printing Co.	$59 19
J B Fowler, support of T Holton	10 00
R McConkey, refund of statute labor Tax	10 00

The council then adjourned until January 31st. On that day the Council met pursuant to adjournment, all the members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A memorial to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, asking to have the correct boundary established between the Town of Peterborough and the Township of Smith passed its several readings and was signed and sealed. A by-law to appoint township officers for the year 1887 was also passed. The sum of $250 was granted to improve the road from the 14th concession line of Smith to Buckhorn bridge on condition that the Government of Ontario grant an equal sum, and the Reeve and Clerk were authorized to prepare and sign a memorial to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council praying that such grant be made. The Council then adjourned to the 28th of February. On February 28th the Council again met pursuant to adjournment. A by-law dividing the township of Smith into road and pound divisions and appointing overseers of highways, pound keepers and fence viewers passed its several readings. The auditors were allowed to read their report. On motion the report was adopted and the Clerk instructed to have 150 copies printed for distribution. The Council then adjourned until Monday, the 28th March.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Golden Medical Discovery.

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

For Torpid Liver, Biliousness, or "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, it is an unequalled remedy. Sold by druggists.

DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS — Anti Bilious and Cathartic. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

Church Notes.

The Rev. Mr. Bone, missionary among the sailors along the Welland Canal, preached in the George street Methodist church in the morning and in St. Paul's church in the evening.

In several churches the lamented death of Dr. O'Sullivan was remembered in the prayers offered up, and divine aid was asked for the bereaved.

The Rev. Mr Manning, formerly of Peterborough, now of Oshawa, preached in the Charlotte street Methodist church on Sunday morning and evening. The sermons were in behalf of the Sunday School.

A Fortunate Discovery.

On Sunday afternoon there came very near being a blaze of a more or less destructive nature at the C. P. R. Hotel. In a bedroom on the third storey a boarder had hung up some clothing directly behind and in close proximity to the stove pipe. There was a hot fire in the stove at the time, and the clothing became ignited, and falling to the floor set the carpet and a portion of the wall on fire. A cry of fire from some of the employees of the house quickly brought the boarders to the scene, and with a few pails of water the blaze was quickly extinguished.

Opera House.

Harry Lindley's Company, comprising fifteen people, arrived to-day and will appear this evening in a new romantic drama entitled "Over the Hills to the Poor House." This is an adaptation of Carleton's celebrated poem, or rather two poems, and therein has been stored the sayings of "Brudder Gardner" of Lime Kiln Club fame. Mr. Lindley's rendition of an American darkey is pronounced by the Detroit Free Press "the nearest to nature of them all." During the week numbers will be given with every ticket entitling holker to a chance for a valuable Short Horn cow and a sewing machine, given on Saturday evening. This company remains only one week.

THE FUNERAL.

A Large Attendance of Citizens—The Last Rites.

A large number of citizens followed the remains of the late Dr. O'Sullivan, from the family residence, George street, to St. Peter's Cathedral to-day.

At half-past ten o'clock the Cathedral was filled to the doors. The inside of the building was draped in black. The coffin was carried to the foot of the altar rail and there remained while the funeral ceremonies were conducted. Solemn Requiem High Mass was celebrated. The Rev. Father Conway was the celebrant, Father O'Connel, of Douro, Deacon; Father Rudkins, of Peterborough, Sub-Deacon; Father O'Brien, Master of Ceremonies. Father Kielty, of Ennismore, and Father Casey, of Campbellford, assisted at the sanctuary. Father Fayol, French Priest, Peterborough, sang the solos in the Dies Irae and the Libera.

At the close the Rev. Father Conway said that it was not customary in their church to preach funeral sermons, death itself speaking louder than lips of mortal could. It was a solemn warning to all. Neither age nor strength was a guarantee against the hand of death. In their church they believed in the utility of prayer in procuring repose for the soul of the departed, and the sacrifice of the mass was particularly effacacious, in the doctrine which the church called the Communion of Saints. He thought it due to the Christian people who filled the cathedral to-day that he should tell why the people of the Church of Rome believed in a middle state, and that the prayers of the faithful were of benefit to the souls of the departed, for there was no doctrine of their church more misrepresented than that pertaining to purgatory. The church simply told them that such a place existed, and that the souls going there would be benefitted by prayer, but as to duration of time of the souls stay, and the suffering while there, that was left to theological speculative opinion. They were taught of the existence of guilt, of temporal punishment and eternal punishment. The guilt and eternal punishment might be forgiven, but the temporal punishment had to be atoned for. He cited the case of David to prove this. He went on to argue that prayers for the repose of the souls had been a practice from the earliest times, that it was at the time of the apostles and that Christ did not condemn it. It was no innovation, then, in their church, and in praying for the soul of him who lay before them they were but doing what was done from the earliest times. He did not wish to offend those of other denominations here to-day. Far be it from him to say one word of offence to any one. Let them answer to the Almighty for themselves and he would answer for himself. Yet he thought it better to clear up any misunderstanding that might exist. He then paid a tribute to the departed recounting his generous acts, his whole hearted conduct, his Christain life, and especially his ever charitable disposition. Not only the bereaved family had suffered a great loss, but the church here and the whole community had sustanied one too. The loss in the churchwas second only to that of their late lamented Bishop. Dr. O'Sullivan did not allow narrow minded bigotry to step in and mar his good works. To all alike he was the same. To the rich and to the poor he was alike ready to render his services. In life he remembered the poor, and so he did in death. About the last words he spoke was to remind his poor disconsolate wife of a promise he gave the Bishop to give a certain sum of money to build a home for the poor and sick of Peterborough and to instruct her to see that the promise was fulfilled. He closed by saying that the deceased had left a legacy, and that was his wife and child. He knew it would not be necessary to ask the people to do all in their power to smooth their path by extension of the sympathy which the bereaved now needed.

The service being over the funeral proceeded to the Roman Catholic cemetery. The pallbearers were: Dr. Halliday, Dr. Bingham, Thos. Kelly, N. T. LePlante, Dr. Kincaid, Dr. Burnham, B. Morrow, John Hackett, Thos. Cahill and John Moloney.

ONE HUNDRED MEN KILLED

By a Fire Damp Explosion in a Belgian Coal Mine.

BRUSSELS, March 5.—An explosion of fire damp occurred to day in a colliery at Quaregnon, four miles from Mons. The explosion shattered the roofs and galleries so that many of them fell. One hundred and forty miners are entombed, but it is not yet known whether they are killed. On account of the blockade of the passage the work of rescue is slow and difficult.

LATER.—One hundred of the men who were in the mine at the time of the explosion were killed.

SWINDLING LEGACY HUNTERS.

Two Worthies Arrested in New York Doing a Profitable Business.

NEW YORK, March 5.—George Fredrick Parker and F. S. Wethrell, president and secretary of "The British and American Claim Agency," were arrested here yesterday charged with gigantic swindling operations. The prisoners, who are Englishmen, opened an office in a down town building advertising extensively that the concern was prepared to investigate and collect the claims of next of kin or heirs to fortune, and the concern realized from $100 to $400 a day in fees. The books of the concern contained more than 30,000 names of next of kin alphabetically arranged who paid fees of from $10 to $25 each during the past winter. It was all clear profit to the agency except the necessary running expenses of the office. A confederate named James A. Hales, it is said, has an office in London from which he wrote to the agency here making a favorable report on claims sent to him. One of the circulars of the agency was printed on heavy blue paper with the British coat of arms and heading to Bank of England and Paymaster General Court of Chancery, which was an application to him to furnish information regarding estates. Another type document that out "President" would sail for Europe on April 16th in the interest of clients, and that he would take charge of a few more good claims, charging $24.75 for searchers fees, if no collection were made the money to be returned. Parker said he was 46 years old and lived in Elizabeth, N. J. The police say he served a term for for forgery. Wetherell is said to be an Australian ticket of leave man. They have confederates on the other side named A. C. Wilkinson and E. G. Ridout, whom the London police will be requested to look after.

HENRY WARD BEECHER DYING.

The Great Brooklyn Preacher Stricken With Apoplexy.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher was stricken to-day with an attack of apoplexy from which the physicians declare he cannot rallyet. The news did not get abroad until late in the afternoon, and then it spread like wildfire. The house in Hicks street was besieged to-night by friends and members of his congregation, and bulletins were posted from time to time on the doorpost stating his condition. Mr. Beecher was in a drowsy condition all evening from which it was difficult to arouse him. He answered questions in a husky voice with "yes" or "no," and twice he asked for water. At other times he remained quiet. He seemed to recognize those about him, but there was nothing to indicate that he realized his critical condition. Mrs. Beecher watched at his bedside all day, and was perfectly calm and collected in her demeanour. His children were at once summoned to his bedside, and his son, Herbert F. Beecher, who is in San Francisco, was telegraphed to come home at once.

ALL HOPE GIVEN UP.

About 10 o'clock this morning Dr. Hammond arrived at the house, and an hour later the following bulletin was posted;—"Prof. W. Hellmuth, of New York, in consultation fully confirms the opinion of the physicians. Mr. Beecher is gradually failing. He may, however, live for some days." That all hope was given up was plainly indicated by this bulletin and the remark of Dr. Talmage as he passed out, "It is very serious."

THE END DRAWING NEAR.

At eleven o'clock p. m. Mr. Beecher's condition was reported unchanged save for the gradual sinking towards the inevitable end. General Horatio King left the house at that hour and expressed the opinion that Mr. Beecher would die during the night.

Napoleon the Great

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvelous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1887.

NO LONGER PARALYSED.

Whatever opinions may be entertained as to the course the leaders of the opposition might have taken had power been transferred to their hands, there can be no doubt as to what the course of the present government will be. They will act upon the same broad general lines of police in fiscal and commercial matters, that have characterized their administration for some years past. All parties feel that in these respects the course of the Government is assured. And of all things, men who are engaged in business require assurance and certainty. Doubt paralyzes trade and enterprise. Men will never risk their money when there is a doubt as to the course of legislation. That such doubts existed, even amongst those whose political sympathies were with the opposition, is certain. The assurances of the leaders were everywhere taken with large reservation. They were judged not so much by what they would say under the exigencies of the moment as by the principles to which, as a party, they have long been committed. It was shrewdly judged that they would endeavor to carry out those principles as soon as circumstances admitted of it; and the judgment no doubt is right. The election was simply the expressed voice of the great business community of all parts of the Dominion saying, let things in the main go as they are. Not that this implies approval of mismanagement, or abuses or corruption; far from it. These things are not looked upon as a part of the policy of the government, but as excrescences that may be cut off, and ought to be.—Monetary Times.

Alleged Bribery at Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 7.—The second case of bribery brought against the Conservatives was discussed at the Police Court to-day. A leading witness said that, while drunk, he may have made a statement criminating a citizen, but it was untrue. He had not received any money from any one for his vote. He and a friend had been "pulling the leg" of a Reformer for drinks, and to get them said anything.

Public Schools, for January	7 00
Collegiate Institute, for February	153 00
Public Schools, for February	8 00

From J. Stirling applying for $100 increase of salary on account of better qualification.—Committee on Appointments.

From The Toronto Chemical Company setting forth the merits of cedar oil for use in boilers.—Received,

From Miss Nicholls applying for increase of salary on account of increased work—Committee on Appointments,

From Miss Aldrige regarding her November application and stating she would withdraw her application on condition that the Board would increase her salary or assign her the next favourable vacancy—Committee on Appointments.

From Mr. Rowan applying for increase of salary on account of increased work—Committee on Appointments.

From Miss Keele applying for an increase of salary on account of better qualification. Committee on Appointments.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented:—

REVIEW Printing and Publishing Co.	$ 5 20 00
Times Printing Co.	3 00 00
Canada Presbyterian	3 00 00

The accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

FINANCE.

Mr. KENDRY read the following report:—

To the Board of Education of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your Finance Committeee beg leave to submit the detailed statement of receipts and expenditures of the Board for the past year, showing that on account of the unexpectedly larger demand by the Educational Department for increased accomodation, philosphical apparatus, and library. In order to maintain our present standing as a Collegiate Institute the accounts show a balance of $1,482.74, $839.96 being proportion of High Scoool, and $642.-98 being proportion for Public Schools.

All of which is respectively sumbitted.

JAS. KENDRY,
Chairman.

Mr. RUTHERFORD wanted to know what was the cause of all this extra expenditure.

The CHAIRMAN explained that, as the report stated, it was owing to demands made by the department for increased accomodations. The Department threatened to cut off the annual grant if these improvements were not made.

The report was adopted.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLES.

The Public School Inspector reported stating that fair progress had been made during the past term, and that in his opinion the mode of conducting the examinations conduced to a steadier rate of progress, as the teacher of each room is made accountable for the standing of the pupils. He presented a summary of the work done at the examinations. He reported that the several schools were now doing good work, particularly the South Ward School. He recommended the covering with linen or cotton of books lately purchased by the Board. He invited attention to the unfitness of the basement room in the small central building. The report was received.

THE SQUABBLE ENDED.

Mr. RUTHERFORD moved that the Board take up unfinished business and that this notice of motion, regarding the public school appointments, be passed.

Mr. DUMBLE thought it a shame for the Board to pass such a motion. The appointments were fairly made and it would be humiliating for those teachers now to be taken from their positions.

THE CHAIRMAN asked Mr. Dumble to explain the affair for the benefit of the new members.

Mr. DUMBLE said that the Committee on Appointments made certain appointments and the members on that committee never said a word against them till it was brought before the Board. Then some busybodys who thought they knew more than the Committee commenced to find fault. He did not think they were using the Committee right. "Give your Committee work to do, gentlemen," he concluded appealing to the chair, "trust them with your work and stand by them."

Mr. RUTHERFORD charged Mr. Dumble with keeping back information in regard to some of the teachers. It was owing to this that nothing had been said at the time the appointments passed the Committee. After some of the members got more light they wanted the matter put right.

Mr. KENDRY spoke sarcastically as to Mr. Dumble's wish that "right" should be done by the Committee. He asked the Board if Mr. Dumble and Mr. Errett did "right" when they "bolted" from the Board time after time in order to balk the business of the Board.

Mr. DENNE also appeared displeased that Mr. Dumble should presume to talk about doing right by the Committee. It was the fault of Messrs. Dumble and Errett that this business was not done three months ago.

Mr. Dumble weathered through this storm and wore a bland smile during its progress.

Mr. RUTHERFORD pressed his motion.

Mr. DUMBLE moved in amendment that it be referred to Committee on Appointments.

Mr. RUTHERFORD consented to this if the Board would resolve itself into a Committee on Appointments.

Mr. DUBLE—Let us have a straight vote on it. I'll withdraw my amendment.

The straight vote was taken and Mr. Rutherford's motion was lost.

YEAS—Messrs. Denne, Wrighton, A. Rutherford, T. Rutherford and Kendry.

NAYS—Messrs. Errett, McWilliams, Wier, Sproule, Stratton and Dumble.

ASHBURNHAM'S PAY.

Mr. DENNE moved, seconded by Mr. McWILLIAMS—That the Municipality of the the Village of Ashburnham be charged for their scholars to the High School at the same rate as County pupils.

Mr. DENNE remarked that all that Ashburnham offered last year was a paltry $100. Eighteen pupils attended from Asnburnham, which, at $20 a year, would be $360.

Mr. STRATTON moved to confer with the Reeve of the village in regard to the matter. He asked if the Board would not be satisfied with $150.

Mr. ERRETT—It's worth $200.

Mr. DENNE—It's worth $300, and then they are getting their children educated cheaper than we are ours.

Mr. Denne's motion passed.

MR. DUMBLE FACETIOUS.

Mr. DUMBLE paid a bantering compliment to Mr. Rutherford in regard to the latter's recent tour. He would move that Mr. Rutherford give a twenty minutes talk on what he saw. But before doing so he was going to present a money by-law and before presenting it he wanted to know how much money was wanted. If Mr. Kendry wanted his north ward school all he had to do was to ask for ten thousand dollars and it would be got. It was decided to ask for twelve thousand dollars to meet current expenses.

Mr. RUTHERFORD thanked Mr. Dumble for his remarks and then proceeded to descant on the merits of Milwaukee schools. He was impressed particularly with the kindergarten work. He explained how lessons in "generosity," "order," etc., were taught. He then came to a seasonable topic—the increase in teacher's salaries. There the teachers were not raised from room to room but were given higher pay instead. The rate of pay was from $400 to $700. The head master got $1,500. Of course these were large schools. The writing of the children were particularly good.

Mr. DUMBLE—Did yo hear the reading.

Mr. RUTHERFORD—No, I did not.

Mr. DUMBLE—What about ventilation?

Mr. RUTHERFORD—No ventilation at all. I said to the gentleman who was conducting me through, "What about ventillation," "Oh," says he, "When the architect was designing this building he forgot all about that."

NORTH WARD SCHOOL.

Mr. KENDRY moved, seconded by Mr. RUTHERFORD,—That Mr. Denne's name be added to the Property Committee, and that the said committee be instructed to select a site for a school in No. 4 Ward, and report to this Board.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

The Algoma Election.

WINNIPEG, March 7.—A despatch received here to-day from Mr. Marks, of Port Artnur, says:—"Mr. Dawson reports to-day from Algoma Mills that all Manitoulin, except three stations, is heard from, and will likely give him 50 majority in the whole island. This makes his minority in the eastern division less than 90. His present majority in the western division is 154. Fort Frances, which is likely to go 24 against him, is to be heard from. It is probable his western majority will be 130, and Mr. Dawson is therefore almost absolutely certain of 40 or 50 majority over the whole district."

Burned in Effigy.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 7.—On Sunday morning the effigy of Captain Quigley, of the Canadian cruiser "Terror," was found suspended on Independent Hall, at East Gloucester, with the British flag attached, the union down. The city marshal cut it down.

MR. BEECHER DEAD.

The Great Preacher Expires After a Short Illness—Sketch of His Life.

By C. P. R. Telegraph.

BROOKLYN, March 8.—The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher died at half-past eight o'clock this morning.

A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY.

Henry Ward Beecher, one of the most famous divines in America, was born at Litchfield, Connecticut, on June 24th, 1813, and is consequently nearly 74 years of age. He studied in the public Latin schools at Boston, graduated at Amherst college, Mass., 1834, and studied theology under his father, Rev. Lyman Beecher, at the Lane Seminary, near Cincinnati, Ohio. He first settled as a Presbyterian minister at Lawrenceburg, In., 1837, removed in 1839, to Indianapolis, and was pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church at Brooklyn, New York, in 1847, and has continued to be pastor of that church up to the present time. That church edifice has seating capacity for nearly 3,000 persons and the church membership is over 2,000. During his whole career he mingled to a greater extent than almost any other preacher and pastor of his denomination in matters not directly professional. For nearly a year during his theoloolcal course he edited the Cincinnati Journal, a religious weekly. In Indianapolis he was editor of the Farmer and Gardener. In Brooklyn he was soon known as an earnest opponent of slavery and an advocate of temperance, peace and other reforms, even early became prominent as a platform orator and lecturer. He was a strong Republican until 1883, when after Mr. Blaine's nomination for the Presidency by the Chicago convention, he joined, if indeed he did not inaugurate, the "Mug wump" movement, which helped so much in electing Mr. Cleveland. He was always a whole-souled politican and delivered many political sermons in Plymouth church, which were widely quoted by the party to which he belonged. In 1878 he caused a considerable sensation by preaching his celebrated "bread and water for the workingman" sermon. He delivered several series of lectures, visiting Montreal on each tour, the last occasion being in the early part of last year, when he addressed two very large audiences in the Queen's Hall. He twice visited Europe, and in 1662 addressed large audiences in the principal cities of Great Britain on the civil war then raging in the United States. In the summer of 1874 Mr. Theodore Tilton, formerly his associate, and afterwards his successor in the editorship of the New York Independent, charged him with criminality with Mrs. Tilton. A committee of the Plymouth congregation reported that the charge was without foundation, but meanwhile Mr. Tilton commenced a suit against Mr. Beecher, laying his damages at $100,000. The trial was protracted for more than six months and attracted widespread attention. At its close the jury, after being locked up for more than a week, failed to agree upon a verdict, nine being for Mr. Beecher's acquittal and three for his conviction. In 1878 Mr. Beecher announced that he did not believe in the eternity of punishment, believing that all punishments are cautionary and remedial, and that no greater cruelty could be imagined than the continuance of suffering eternally after all hope of reformation is gone. He was understood to hold both to the annihilation of the miserable and the restoration of all others. In 1882 he formally withdrew from the association of Congregational churches on account of this change of belief. From the date of the establishment of the Independent he was a constant contributor to its columns, and from 1861 to 1863 was its chief editor. In 1870 he became editor in chief of the Christian Union, a position which he held for about ten years. In 1871 Henry W. Sage, one of his parishioners, founded a lectureship of preaching, known as the "Lyman Beecher Lectureship," in Yale College Divinity School, and the first three annual courses were delivered by Mr. Beecher. The pastor of Plymouth has been a busy worker in the field of literature, and was the author of many books on religious and social topics.

OUR WEALTHY MEN.

Much has been said in newspapers of men who have made large fortunes in comparatively a few years in various business industries. Many of these articles are written by correspondents of prominent newspapers, and copied into others of lesser note. Correspondents generally are seldom men of business qualifications and wrongfully picture these men and their business as a thing of accident; this is not the case with those we have met. We find that where men have made large fortunes by their own business talent and industry they chose with sagacity and forethought such business as would lead to success when handled with business judgment. No man has been brought before the public as an example of success, both in wealth and magnitude of his business (outside of stock and railroad men), more prominently than Dr. G. G. Green, of Woodbury, N. J. He is at the head of many large business industries, and yet comparatively a young man. When the fact that Augustal Flower, for dyspepsia and liver complaint, and Boschee's German Syrup, for coughs and lung troubles, has grown to a wonderful sale in all parts of the world, it proves that it was not an accident or spontaneous strike at wealth. His medicines are recognized as valuable and established remedies and the business has grown gradually and permanently during the last eighteen years on account not alone of Dr. Green's abilities as a business man or his "good luck," but on the actual merits of the two preparations.—Copied from N. Y. Weekly Sun, of Dec. 22, 1886.

If a well be poisoned, woe to those who drink thereat. It is worse to poison the fountain of life, for one's self and for posterity. Often by carelessness, or misfortune, or inheritance, this has been done. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood, and restores health.

MR. BRIGHT'S ATTITUDE.

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. John Bright refuses to assist in the negotiations of the Unionist-Radicals with the Gladstonians, and has protested against severing connection with the Hartington Unionists. He continues opposed to any scheme for an Irish legislature.

Turnbull is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new patterns. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

SYMPATHY FOR HICKS-BEACH.

LONDON, March 7.—The entire London press sympathizes with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, and express the hope that he will eventually be able to resume his place in political life. The Daily News says:—"He will receive the sympathy of all parties. It is impossible not to be struck with his heroic fortitude in struggling against an insidious malady while filling a toilsome and thankless office." The Daily News asserts its unbelief that Lord Salisbury possesses the nerve to practise what he preaches.

RETRENCHMENT IN EGYPT.

PARIS, March 7.—The Temps announces that England has made a 10 per cent. reduction in the salaries of her agents in the Egyptian service, and has decided to abolish certain offices, many of which are held by Frenchmen.

THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

LONDON, March 7.—The Queen will lay the foundation stone of the Imperial Institute during the coming summer.

RUSSIAN INTRIGUE AGAIN.

VIENNA, March 7.—The Tagblatt says the Bulgarian Government has obtained documentary proof that the Russian minister at Bucharest was at the head of the Bulgarian conspiracy.

ANXIETY IN BERLIN.

BERLIN, March 7.—Much anxiety is felt as to whether or not Russia will allow the execution of the Bulgarian conspirators to pass unnoticed.

THE GERMANY ARMY BILL.

BERLIN, March 7.—The Reichstag has commenced the first reading of the Army bill. The house and gallaries are all crowded. Prince Bismarck is expected, but has not yet arrived. The session will be short. Tax reform has been definitely postponed till next session. The deficit will be covered by a loan. The Reichstag closed the general discussion on the army bill after an hour, Prince Bismarck not appearing. Herr Bronsart and Herr Bennigser, Conservatives, akvocated its unanimous acceptance. The Centralist, Herr Reichensperger, reserved his decision, which shows that he and some dozen of his party will accept the septennate.

RELEASED CROFTERS.

EDINBURGH, March. 6.—The Skye Crofters MacMillan and Macdonald, who were convicted of riot over the evictions and resistance to the law in that island, were made the receipients of a demonstration to celebrate their release from gaol. Many thousand Scotchmen took part in the parade. The prisoners were discharged early in the day and furnished with free passes home and advised to depart immediately, but their friends and sympathizers in great numbers awaited them at the prison gates with Highland pipers. The released "martyrs," as they were considered—were taken to a large hotel near by, the crowd swelled at every minute. Here a fine breakfast was spread, speeches made and the prison fare forgotten.

SURRENDER REFUSED.

LONDON, March 7.—The German Consul at Rustchuk has refused to surrender Capt. Boliman, one of the insurgents whose surrender was demanded by the Bulgarian Government.

LORD LONSDALE SUED.

LONDON, March 7.—Lord Lonsdale has been sued by Cornelia Clarke for failure to carry out a contract with her as a member of Violet Cameron's troupe.

ARRESTED FOR INCENDIARISM.

DUBLIN, March 7.—A cattle drover, named Mullins, has been arrested at Cork for firing a number of dwellings and barns.

THE NEW CHIEF SECRETARY.

DUBLIN, March 7.—The Right Honorable Arthur J. Balfour, the new Chief Secretary for Ireland, has arrived here.

THE ROUND TABLE.

LONDON, March 7.—The Daily News says the round table conference has agreed to the main principle of Mr. Gladstone's Irish bill and also upon several minor points.

DEATH OF AN M.P.

LONDON, March 7.—Mr. Thomas Watson, Liberal and Home Ruler, M.P. for Ilkeston, divison of Desbyshire, is dead.

EPIDEMIC OF HATRED.

BERLIN, March 7.—The Kreuse Zeitung says: "Letters from St. Petersburg state that the general hatred of Germany and the popularity of France are becoming a sort of violent epidemic in Russia."

WAR PARTY STRENGTHENED.

BERLIN, March 7.—The North German Gazette says: "The results of the Alsace elections have strengthened the war party in France. If war should break out the French provinces would be mainly responsible, and Germany, being bound to take this fact into account, would not repeat the liberality extended to Alsace-Lorraine after the war of 1870."

RUSSIA WARNED.

BERLIN, March 7.—The Kolnesche Zeitung even German patience towards its neighbors has limits, and says: "If Russia compells Germany to take account of the Franco-Russian agreement let her beware lest she may herself have to consider hostile Germany."

IRISH CRIMES BILL.

LONDON, March 7.—Mr Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, has caused the circulation of a report among the Conservatives to the effect that he is ready to introduce an Irish Crimes bill on Monday if Sir Michael Hicks-Beach fails to do so.

DENOUNCING THE GOVERNMENT.

DUBLIN, March 7.—The Dublin municipal council has adopted a resolution to appeal to the free people of the world to prevent the British Government from carrying out its "threats of outrage against the Irish people." Lord Mayor Sullivan spoke during the meeting at which the resolution was adopted, and all violently denounced the Government.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

DISQUALIFIED CANDIDATES.

There has been much discussion as to the probable action of Returning Officers and Judges presiding at recounts, who are said to have been considering the propriety of rejecting candidates because Deputy-Returning Officers had vitiated ballots through some irregularity, and returning the candidate s who really received only a minority of votes. The case of Mr. Holton in Chateauguay has attracted especial attention, because he was undoubtedly the choice of a large majority of the constituency, which would thus be deprived of its rights as much as himself, if a technicality should be allowed to reverse their decision.

If this is the law, or even if the statute is not clear against it, an amendment should be enacted without delay. It is certainly necessary that Deputy-Returning Officers and other election officials should do their duty as laid down by the law. But the penalty for breach of duty should fall upon the offender. It is not a fitting remedy that the sufferer should be either the innocent candidate or the constituency. Of course if there is good ground for suspicion of fraudulent conduct to effect the election on the part of the erring official, this should be considered, but in the cases to which we refer nothing of the kind is alleged.

There are also other elections that appear to be in doubt for cause, that come under another category. These are that the candidate at the head of the poll was either not qualified to run, or had omitted to comply with some requirement of the law. In such cases we cannot say that the candidate has any claim to consideration. If he is disqualified, or if he fails to qualify himself, he is wrongfully a candidate and has no ground of complaint. It may be hard upon the constituency, but the country has made certain laws by its chosen representatives and one constituency cannot be allowed to repeal them or there would be chaos.

There is no contradiction in the two positions. An illegal candidate is the same as no candidate at all. A legitimate candidate, who has himself complied with the law, and has received the votes of a majority of the electors polling, should not be kept out of his seat by a technical error not effecting the result. This is common sense and it should be the law.

AGAINST MANHOOD SUFFRAGE.

Some of the journals supporting Mr. Blake are advancing a claim for him that he is in favor of manhood suffrage. This is not correct by his own showing. Mr. Blake distinctly declares that he prefers that the Dominion electorate should be that of the Provinces. As to our own Province of Ontario he thus ranges himself on the side of Mr. Mowat, who has obstinately refused to assent to the proposal of Mr. Meredith and the other Conservative members of the Legislature to adopt manhood suffrage, and who insists upon restricting the right to vote. Mr. Blake has never even aided the Conservatives in bringing about this reform by advocating manhood suffrage for Ontario, though his opinion might be expected to have considerable weight with Mr. Mowat. It is thus evident by his own words and conduct that Mr. Blake is an opponent of manhood suffrage. It is true that Mr. Blake has said that he would prefer manhood suffrage for the Dominion rather than have the policy of the Macdonald Administration of one wide franchise for the whole of Canada. But this is only stating in another form what everybody already knows to be the fact, that he would consent to anything if he were placed in office at Ottawa, and could supplant his political rival.

MINISTERS APPRECIATED.

There is one aspect of the recent election that has hardly received the attention it deserves. No less than 13 Cabinet Ministers with portfolios appealed to the people to elect them to the popular House, and they were everyone chosen by the electors to represent them, a fact that is altogether without precedent. No less unprecedented was the enormous vote they received, the majorities of these 13 Ministers averaging the large number of 505. In Quebec, where, owing to a rancorous agitation and unscrupulous appeals to prejudice, we were told the Conservatives would be signally routed, the Ministers did even better than throughout the Dominion, the members of the Cabinet from that Province obtaining average majorities of 513. Even in Nova Scotia, where we were threatened that the Secession cry would make a clean sweep, the majorities of the Ministers averaged 452.

Never before was such signal proof given that the policy of a Ministry was thoroughly acceptable to a country or that its people confided so implicitly in their chosen leaders.

EGOTISM PUNISHED.

In the constituency of Missisquoi we have a good reason presented for exacting a deposit of $200 to be forfeited if the candidate does not obtain a third of the votes polled, so as to discourage fictitious and vexatious canditatures. Mr. Gilmour chose to run as a second Conservative in rivalry with Mr. Baker, whose defeat he thus caused, Mr. Cleyes being elected by a majority considerable less than the number of votes diverted by Mr. Gilmour. Thus Missisquoi will have for its member a representative of the minority, a gentleman who will vote against the policy which the majority of the people favour and consider necessary for the welfare of themselves and their country. Thus the county of Missisquoi and in a measure the whole of Canada is misrepresented and wronged through the overweening egotism of Mr. Gilmour. We are heartily glad that he has to pay the penalty for his mischievous selfishness.

When Mr. Guilbault, member for Joliette, was reported to be be elected by acclamation Reform papers called him a Reformer. It turns out, however, that he was opposed by a Reformer and that the vote was a tie. The casting vote was in Mr. Guilbault's favour, and now he is sneered at by a Reform paper as "the member for returning officer." His vote in the House will be as large as any other and will count in Sir John's favor. Other claims of the Reform press will be shown to be as hollow when the House meets, if not before.

The Dominion revenue during February was $309,879 greater than the expenditure, showing a surplus of that amount for the month. This accounts for the year up to the end of February show a deficit of $387,394, but the indications are that there will be a surplus at the end of the year.

LOST IN THE CATACOMBS.

The Terrible Wanderings of a Bewildered Man in Underground Passages.

Most people have heard of the catacombs of Paris, but few have visited them or are aware of their vast extent. They were, says London Society, originally stone quarries, the material used in building the cathedral of Notre Dame, the Hotel Cluny, the older portion of the Tuileries, and many other of the Public edifices of Paris having been derived from this source. So extensive were their ramifications that of Paris within the walls more than a tenth part is said to have been honey combed in this manner. It was not until within the last one hundred years that the quarries have served the purpose or received the name of catacombs.

Many Parisian churches and cemeteries have transferred the remains of their dead to the keeping of the catacombs. They are now under the care of a regular corps of workmen who attend to the arrangement of the bones, keep the galleries in order, and are constantly on the watch against subsidences of earth, which would otherwise be of frequent occurrence. The galleries have been carefully surveyed and their course compared with that of the superjacent thoroughfares. Indicating tablets are put up at frequent intervals, so that a skilled person can at any moment name the street, and even the number of the house, which is above his head. Without such knowledge, or a competent guide, however, woe betide the ill-fated wretch who should venture to explore these grim recesses. Beneath the Rue de l'Abbe de l'Eppee, just outside the Ossuaire, or catacomb proper, is seen a tomb in the angle of a wall, to which a terrible tradition attaches. Here lies Philibert Aspairt, formerly porter of the military hospital at Val de Grace. The hospital lies above a portion of the catacombs, and from it descends one of the seventy staircases of which we have spoken. In an evil hour the ill-fated porter took it into his head to make a voyage of discovery in the catacombs. On November 3rd, 1793, he descended the winding stairs. Lantern in hand, he entered that awful labyrinth and he never came back. How long he lived or how he died, how long his feebie lantern kept alight or for how many days he may have wandered in the darkness ere death put an end to his sufferings, are among the secrets of the catacombs. For eleven years his fate was not even known; but on April 30,1804, some workman, exploring in the course of their duty some of the less used passages, came upon a human skeleton. Flesh and clothing had alike crumbled into dust, but the buttons of the coat remained, and by these and the bunch of keys that lay beside the corpe, it was identified beyond doubt as that of the unfortunate Philibert Aspairt.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d90

A Necessary Course.

As this is the third time the people have endorsed the National Policy, we trust that ample protection to native industry has become an established political principle in Canada and that protectionists will not again be called upon to take up arms in its defence, and we shall watch with more than ordinary interest the criticisms of the Government's tariff resolutions, which may be indulged in by Opposition members of Parliament. Before those most nearly interested—the manufacturers and the workingmen—can feel that their interests are equally safe in the hands of either party, and that protection has ceased to be a political dividing line, it will be necessary for such old time antagonists as Mr. Paterson, Mr. Mills and Sir R. Cartwright to publicly announce a cessation of hostilities, and solemnly aver that the National Policy, in its integrity, shall not suffer dismemberment at their hands should they ever grasp the reins of power. We can easily imagine Sir Richard quoting:

"O, woe is me,
To have seen what I have seen, see what I see."

But unless we mistake the signs of the times he will have to adopt such a course as suggested or be repudiated as not voicing the sentiments of the Reform party.—Canadian Manufacturer.

A Woman's Awful End.

Toronto, March 5.—A middle aged woman, supposed to be Mary Tracy, of Montreal, deliberately suided at the Union station about 4 o'clock yesterday morning. She went to the station late Thursday night and stated that she wished to go to London by the morning train. She locked herself in a waiting room, and as she conducted herself in a peculiar manner Detective Spence kept watch upon her movements. During his absence, however, for a few moments, a freight train came in, and the woman jumped through the window of the waiting room and flung herself in front of the train. Three cars passed over her, cutting off her legs and otherwise mangling her body. She died in a few minutes and her body was removed to the morgue. In her pocket a letter of recommendation was found, signed by Mrs. Neil Shannon, 804 palace street, Montreal. She had evidently been a domestic servant.

Nast and Congressman Phelps.

Thomas Nast, who lives here, has submitted to an interview respecting the character of his work. On speaking of the uniformity and symmetry of the artist's work Mr. Nast gave an anecdote respecting his caricature of Congressman William Walter Phelps. He said he had been introducing Mr. Phelps in a great many cartoons, and always represented him as wearing a full beard. He considered it a successful portrait, as he was not aware that Phelps had applied the razor freely to his face. One morning Mr. Nast received in his mail a letter in a feminine hand. The letter read:

"I suppose in caricaturing Mr. Phelps you are anxious that he should be recognized. Now as you drew him in your last cartoon no one would recognise him, because he wears no beard and his expression is entirely different. I inclose you a recent photograph of your subject, and hope you will study it to your advantage."

Mr. Nast said he recognised that the point made by his unknown correspondent was a good one, and he at once began to think how he could make his whiskered Phelps appear rationally without a beard. Suddenly an inspiration suggested that he should make the change in the picture as Mr. Phelps had made it—namely, by the use of the razor. So he quickly made the sketch, which is said to be a better likeness of Mr. Phelps than any other executed by Keppler, Gillam for Nast. Reference is made to the cartoon in which Mr. Phelps is seated in a barber's chair, while Ben Butler, in the guise of a barber, wields the razor, with which he has just made the last pass over his victim's face. This gave a clean shaven man to Mr. Nast's collection, and in the next cartoon Mr. Phelps appeared as his own beardless and banged self.—Cor. New York Mail and Express.

A Debutante Comes to Grief.

She was what we call a bud—a debutante—a girl in her first season of such amusements. She was slim, gentle, demure and very, very sweet. Her costume was white and simple. She was a picture of fragile beauty as she shyly entered the ballroom, crossed the floor on the arm of her doting papa and sank down into a seat. Quick as a flash she was on her feet again, with rage sparkling out from her bright eyes and a blush of fury reddening her cheeks. She strode out into the dressing room and madly tore from the puffed tournoure of her gown an embellishment of flowers.

"What on earth is the matter?" asked a friend.

"Matter enough!" she pettishly sobbed. "I ordered the most fragrant kind of roses, so that when I sat on them and crushed them their fragrance would arise. Do you see? But my stupid maid got the vilest smelling orchids to be had for love or money—because they were rare no doubt—and when I sat down and smashed them flat, just as I'd calculated, no perfume arose—not a bit, but instead an odor that fairly made my hair curl. That's what ails me." Clara Belle in Pioneer Press.

The Russian and His Vodka.

No one deems it possible, I suppose, yet such is the fact, that the absolute government of Russia is introducing among the peasants prohibition with a vengeance. The tax on vodka—a milder kind of whisky—is so high that the peasant cannot afford to drink it but on such gala occasions as when a "bourgeois" allows himself a bottle of champagne; and, of course, on such an occasion, the Russian moujik deems it a sacred duty to get drunk. And so he gets beastly drunk four or five times a year, and goes without liquor all the rest of the year, though the most eminent Russian scientists and physicians consider it quite necessary for a Russian underfed workman in this rigorous climate to drink his small glass of vodka once a day before dinner. As to tobacco, and even cigars, they are considered by the government quite unnecessary luxuries for the poor people, and so they are entirely deprived of them.—Chicago Times.

He Was a Methodist.

Each member of the legislature is supplied by the state with stationery and $100 worth of stamps. One of Bedford county's members last week applied to the resident clerk for his "rations," and upon being furnished with paper, envelopes, etc., said:

"Now I will take my stamps, if you please."

"All right, sir," answered the clerk; "what denomination?"

"Ah! er-um," stammered the statesman; "why, I'm a Methodist."

But he got his stamps allee samee, and they were not all of the same denomination.—Bedford Gazette.

It is stated that Emperor William, of Germany, "recently made a joke for the first time in his life." The last health bulletin from Berlin said the emperor was very weak. The condition of those who heard the joke is not given; but they are, no doubt, quite as much prostrated as the emperor.—Norristown Herald.

Undoubtedly Reliable.

The Washington Republican says: "A pair of strong, big lungs will often win a reputation for statesmanship in spite of serious cerebral deficiencies." This observation is undoubtedly reliable, for it was taken by the artist on the spot.—New York World.

Settled at Last.

William Conners, of Springfield, Ills., has paid in blackmail $3,200 to a man who knew that when Conners was a boy he stole a dozen eggs. Conners has finally quit the payments, confessed his faults and paid for the eggs.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Marrying an Old Man.

"Would you marry an old man for his money?" asked Mildred. "Well, I declare," exclaimed Laura, with a startled air, "you surely don't suppose anything else would induce me to marry him?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the cure of colds, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. It affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

MINDEN.

FIRE.—A very disastrous fire took place on Monday morning last about 4 o'clock on lot 4, con. A, Anson, owned by Mr, Robert Grigor, his entire barns and stables with their contents were completely destroyed, including 13 head of cattle, 2 fat pigs, all his hay, straw, grain and implements. Mr. Grigor's loss is very severe as he had only $50 insurance upon the contents. There was also some insurance upon the buildings the exact amount of which we have not learned The cause of the fire is wrapped in mystery and the destructive element had almost completed its work before either Mr. Grigor or his neighbours were aware of it's existence, those who did arrive upon the scene were utterly powerless to render effective assistance and the flames licked up everything, leaving only a black mark and a few charred remains. Mr. Grigor has the sympathy of the neighbourhood in his loss.—Echo.

THE WORK OF CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The Congress which ended its existence at noon yesterday has afforded a striking illustration of the constant increase in the volume of national legislation. More bills were introduced in both Houses, more committee reports were made, more bills passed, more became law, and more were vetoed than ever before. The forty-ninth Congress commenced its sessions on the fourth day of December, 1885, and was in session until the fifth of August, when it adjourned until December 6th, and continued in session until its close yesterday, covering a total period of ten months and twenty-six days. There were introduced in the House during this time 11,258 bills and 263 joint resolutions, on which over 5,000 reports were made, being several thousand more bills and over a thousand more reports than were made in the forty-eighth congress, which had in its turn beaten the record. In the Senate there were introduced 3,557 bills and 118 joint resolutions, on which 1,988 written reports were made, being upwards of 500 more bills and over 400 reports than in the record-breaking 48th congress. The number of laws enacted was approximately 1,391, of which 1,053 originated in the House and 338 in the Senate. There were 132 bills vetoed by the president, or 21 more instances of the exercise of the presidential prerogative of the veto than had occurred from the foundation of the government down to the present congress. Of the vetoed bills 93 originated in the House and 39 in the Senate; but one private bill, that granting a pension to Joseph Romiser, and one public bill, namely, that for the erection of government buildings, succeeded in passing both houses over the president's veto. The death roll of the congress was an extraordinary one, comprising the unprecedented number of 13 names in the House and Senate.

OVER WORKED Women

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

SICK HEADACHE, Bilious Headache, and Constipation, promptly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. 25c. a vial, by druggists.

Forewarned

of danger by the condition of your blood, as shown in pimples, blotches, boils, or discolorations of the skin; or by a feeling of languor, induced, perhaps, by inactivity of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, you should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will renew and invigorate your blood, and cause the vital organs to properly perform their functions. If you suffer from

Rheumatism,

or Neuralgia, a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will relieve and cure you. Alice Kendall, 218 Tremont st., Boston, Mass., writes: "I have been troubled with Neuralgia, pain in the side, and weakness, and have found greater relief from Ayer's Sarsaparilla than from any other remedy." J. C. Tolman, 336 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "In no other remedy have I ever found such a happy relief from Rheumatism as in

Forearmed

with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, there need be no fear of Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Catarrh, Liver troubles, or any of the diseases arising from Scrofulous taints in the blood. Geo. Garwood, Big Springs, Ohio, writes: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been used in my family for a number of years. I was a constant sufferer from

Dyspepsia,

but Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a permanent cure. Seven years ago my wife was troubled with Goitre: two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured her, and she has never had any return of the disease. I regard this preparation as the best medicine in use for the blood." B. Barnard Wair, 75 Adams st., Lynn, Mass., writes: "For many years I suffered terribly from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Scrofula. Almost hopeless, I took Ayer's Sar-

BEWARE

OF WORTHLESS IMITATIONS

As there are many inferior goods, corded with jute, hemp, etc., offered and sold as Coraline by some unprincipled merchants trading on the reputation of our genuine Coraline, we warn the ladies against such imposition by drawing their attention to the necessity of seeing that the name

'CROMPTON CORSET CO.'

is stamped on inner side of all Coraline goods, Without which none are genuine.

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

I. O. O. F.

The Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows have arranged to hold a social entertainment in their hall on Tuesday evening next. An attractive programme has been provided.

Off for Ottawa.

The Peterborough curlers leave town tonight for Ottawa where they will play the blue noses for the Governor-General's trophy. Both blubs are to dine with His Excellency.

Legal.

We learn that Mr. E. H. D. Hall has taken into partnership Mr. Louis M. Hayes, a barrister of some years experience, who comes highly recommended by Judge Dartnell, Mr. F. D. Barwick and and others. Mr. Hayes has just returned from Beaverton where he was acting as Returning Officer for North Ontario. The new firm will no doubt receive a good share of the legal business of the town and county.

A Lecture.

The Rev. Mr. Bone delivered a lecture in the Baptist Church, Murray Street, on Monday evening on the work done by the Upper Canada Tract Society. The attendance was very small. The lecture was very interesting. The lecturer gave a summary of the meetings held, tracts distributed and other information. He dealt specially on the work being done among the sailors on the Welland Canal. Mr. Robt. Kingan occupied the chair.

Turf Notes.

The President of the Peterborough Driving Club says that there will be a substantial surplus from the recent ice races. This amount will be held by the Treasurer and go towards getting up a first-class meeting next winter.

Mr. Wm. Clancy has purchased "Royal Jim," the price paid being near $1,000. Mr. Clancy's "Lulu C." was swapped and big "boot" was given, making the price of the horse as above mentioned.

Harry Winch says that "Sleepy Dan" wasn't in good condition to trot at the recent races. Sleepy Dan's backers should take note of this.

The time made was very good, the track being 121 feet longer than the mile.

Miss Mahoney has just returned after two weeks absence in the wholesale millinery markets where she has been picking up all the latest novelties and styles. Ladies will find everything new in Millinery at Turnbull's.

Harry Lindley.

Bradburn's Opera House was well filled last evening to see Harry Lindley open a week's engagement. The play was "Over the Hills to the Poor House," and was well rendered in every respect; Harry, himself, taking the house occasionally by his witty sayings and comical actions in the role of George Washington II—"the child born with the hatchet of truth in his hand." The support was excellent throughout, particularly on the part of the ladies, Miss Laura Booth, the leading actress of the company, taking the part of Carrie Wilson very effectually. At the conclusion of the play the audience was treated to a guitar duet, accompanied with song, by Mr. and Miss Stevenson, a feature of the performance which was highly appreciated.

A Compellable Witness.

A case which came before the Divisional Court on Saturday, in which it was decided that an hotel keeper was a compellable witness in a case against himself, is thus reported in the Toronto papers:—"REGINA vs. FEE.—Judgement delivered, holding that the Divesional Court had jurisdiction to review the dicision of a single judge in court in a criminal matter and reversed the order of Proudfoot J., quashing a conviction under the Canada Temperance Act, and holding that the defendent was a compelable witness on behalf of the Crown, even to the extent of criminating himself. Reg. v. Halpin, 12 O. R. 330, decision of Galt, J., was overruled. Delamere for the Crown. A. H. Marsh for the defendant."

Honored With Two Clasps.

The following letter has been received by Mr. Sidney Blade, one of the Nile voyageurs, from Col. F. C. Denston. The Kerbecan clasp is given to Mr. Blade because he was present at the battle of Kerbecan. Otherwise the letter explains itself.

TORONTO, March 4th 1887.

DEAR BLADE.—Your application for the Kerbecan clasp has been granted and two new clasps for "the Nile" and "Kerbecan" are being forwarded to me for you. But the Military Secretary requires your old clasps and a receipt from you for the two new clasps. So please send me your old clasps for the Nile and sign the enclosed receipt for the new clasps and return to me, and let me know if I shall send them to you in Registered letter addressed to Peterborough.

Yours very truly,
FRED C. DENSION

Murder at Rogers' Pass.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 7.—In a bar-room fight at Rogers' Pass, in the Selkirks, a man named William Sands was stabbed to death with a dirk by an Italian named Cursio. The murderer has not yet been captured.

Napoleon the Great

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using r. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvelous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful.

REVIEWS.

EDUCATIONAL MONTHLY. — The March number of the Canada Educational Monthly opens with an article on "The Teaching of Reading," by J. A. McLellan, LL.D., director of the teachers' institutes in Ontario. The article is vigorous denunciation of certain new theories of teaching reading. Prof. Goodwin, of Queen's College, contributes an article on "A school of Science for Eastern Ontario Located at Kingston," which will be read with much attention. An excellent article on "Science teaching in Schools," by D. F. H. Wilkins, B. Sc., Science Master in Prescott High School, and another on "A Neglected Work in our Educational System" are worthy of the high reputation of Canadian teachers and of the Monthly, which is the foremost educational and literary magazine in Canada. The Monthly supplies its readers with articles, original and selected, of the highest literary merit, and also furnishes many pages replete with matter most useful to teachers in the class-room. The happy union of these two features makes this magazine unique.

WHEAT IN INDIA.

IN a recent number of the Allahabad Pioneer Mail we find the following particulars form the preliminary Government report on the Indian wheat crop for this year. This is a matter on continually augmenting importance to the wheat growers on this side of the Atlantic, who have to compete with this cheaply raised Indian wheat and the great bulk of which goes to England:—

In the Punjab the area placed under wheat is estimated at 6,857,000 acres or 2 per cent. below the area of last year. The October rains, which to a great extent regulate the earlier sowings, were confined to the districts near the hills, but during the last week of December a fair amount of rain fell generally throughout the Province and may perhaps result in an expansion of the area sown. The prospects of the crop at present are on the whole favourable, though more rain is reported to be needed in the Ambala, Ferozepore, Sialkot and Peshawar Districts.

In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the prospects up to the 30th November were very fair and the sowings were coming up excellently, except in places were it had rained immediately after the seeds had been put down. Later reports show that the fields are being irrigated and they confirm the promise of a good crop. The area sown at the end of November was estimated in December to be about 4 per cent. in excess of last year's area (5,240,300 acres).

The prospects of the wheat crop in the Central Provinces at the end of December were very promising, especially in the Northern Districts, but some damage may have been caused by recent cloudy weather. In four districts an increase in the area under wheat is expected owing to the favourable rainfall before the sowings began. In Chanda garden also more land has been taken up for the cold owing by the failure of the kharif.

In the Bombay Presidency the season at the end of November was reported to be very favourable for wheat and at that date the area sown was estimated to be, if anything, larger than the average in all parts of the Presidency. In the early part of December there was some heavy rain in the Deccan and parts of the Karnatak, but no actual damage to sowings were reported. Later information shows that at the end of December the young crops were coming up well and that prospects were good.

In Berar the area under wheat in the latter part of December was above the average, which is 807,000 acres. The crops were a foot high and generally in excellent condition, and there is every promise of a good average yield.

In Central India, Rajputana, Hyderabad, and Mysore, the prospects and condition, of the wheat crop, so far as can be gathered at present, are also favourable.

The general condition of other food-grains and non-edible crops sown at this season appears to be good, and there is no reason at present to apprehend and diminution in the proportion of the wheat harvest available for exportation.

The supposed normal wheat area of each Province is quoted below:—

	Acres.
Punjab	7,000,000
N. W. P. and Oudh	5,037,000
Central Provinces	4,000,000
Bombay (including Baroda)	*1,883,000
Berar	803,000
Bengal (Behar)	850,000
Rajputana	2,500,000
Central India	2,500,000
Hyderabad	750,000
Mysore	20,000
Kashmir	500,000
Total	25,843,000

* Inclusive of Baroda but exclusive of the other Native States under the Political control of the Government of Bombay.—Allahabad Pioneer Mail.

A STARTLING CHANGE.

In the Political Situation in Great Britain—An Agreement.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The Star's London special says:—"A startling change has come over the political situation during the past twenty-four hours. Prominent supporters of Mr. Gladstone and Lord Hartington have decided to make an attempt to bring the political deadlock to an end. Confidential meetings, with that object in view, were held to-day. The failure of the Tory Government to solve the problem, and the necessity of immediate legislation in the direction of Home Rule, were admitted by the Hartington men. Mr. Parnell was taken into the confidence of the promoters of the new Government, and eventually a basis of common action was arranged, whereby the claims of Ulster to separate treatment were agreed to. Mr. Parnell frankly expressed his dislike to the proposal, but in view of the difficulties in the way of the Liberals considered the concesssion solid enough not to be rejected off hand. The basis for negotiation having thus been found the details have next to be considered. In the meantime an endeavor is being made to enlist the rank and file of the Liberal dissidents on the side of the promoters of the settlement. Considerable difficulty is anticipated with the extremists among the Radicals and Nationalists who have repeatedly declared that nothing short of an absolutely independent native Irish parliament will be accepted by them. A Unionist whip was sent at the request of Lord Hartington, to test the strength of the dissident side of the coalition. Only 11 members of the party turned up to support the Government. This test measures the effect of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's violent speech last week, and the progress of the doctrine of reconciliation among the Liberal Unionists. Mr. Gladstone came down to the House to aid in the hope of influencing the obstructionists. He declared that the estimates must be passed, and that no possible good could come of further vexatious delay in the public business of that character. It is believed his appeal will prove not to have been made in vain, and that greater moderation will be exercised. In Liberal quarters there is great rejoicing at the prospect of an understanding between the various wings of the party. It is believed the event of the past twenty-four hours have brought the country many weeks nearer to a general election and the triumph of the allied Gladstone Liberals and the Parnellites."

J. J. Daly's Restaurant.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

New Parliament Buildings—The Spoils in Lennox—The Poor School Fund—Delayed Returns—A Short Sitting.

MONDAY, March 7.—Several bills were introduced, one being to abolish distress for rent, and two others bearing the familiar title, "to amend the Municipal Act."

NEW PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

Hon. Mr. FRASER laid on the table a return of copies of advertisements, tenders, specifications, contracts, etc., in connection with the proposed new Parliament buildings, including tenders received in 1882, but not the specifications received in that year.

MR. MOWAT CONFESSES.

Mr. MOWAT, in reply to Mr. Miller, said that a Registrar had not been appointed for Lennox, and that the delay was caused by the large number of qualified applicants.

POOR SCHOOL FUND.

Mr. WOOD (Hastings) moved for a return giving a detailed statement of the expenditure from the Poor School Fund for 1885 and 1886. He thought there should be some fixed principle followed in the expenditure.

Mr. G. W. ROSS said he would have such information brought down as was not in the public accounts.

RETURNS.

Mr. HARDY presented the public accounts for 1886 and other returns.

DELAYED RETURNS.

Mr. PARDEE said that some returns moved for last session, and which Mr. Meredith had enquired about, had not been brought down on account of the trouble and expense their preparation would cause. He suggested that Mr. Meredith meet the officials of the department and arrange as to the returns to be presented.

Mr. MEREDITH said it was a pity that Mr. Pardee had not examined the scope of the motions before they were passed, as notice was given for that purpose. He might be able after seeing the officials to modify the particulars required.

Mr. FRASER, in reply to Mr. Clancy, said he would enquire regarding returns ordered in reference to drainage.

The House adjourned at 3.45.

PETITIONS.

TUESDAY, March 8.—Several petitions were presented.

CHARITY AID.

Mr. HARDY moved the ratification of an Order-in-Council granting aid to the Belleville Hospital.

The motion and a similar one regarding the Peterborough Protestant Home, was allowed to stand.

SUPPLY.

The House went into Committee of Supply and voted $250,000 in advance of the general estimates.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

Mr. FRASER asked that Mr. Creighton's motion for returns regarding the new Parliament buildings be struck off the notice paper, as papers had already been brought down.

Mr. CREIGHTON asked that the notice stand until he had examined the papers brought down.

The House adjourned at 3.45 p m.

TWO CONSERVATIVES ELECTED.

Messrs. Shakespeare and Baker to Again Represent Victoria.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., March 8.—The Victoria election took place yesterday, and resulted as follows:—Baker, 621; Shakespeare, 571; Humphreys, 351; Fell, 321; McCallum, 247; Robertson, 179, with one outlying district of 20 votes to hear from. This insures the re-election of Messrs. Baker and Shakespeare.

A BRUTAL MURDER.

Three Men Murder One Trader and Fatally injure Another.

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 8.—Various accounts of the tragedy which occurred at Grand Falls the day before the election have come forth, but the following seems correct: Two traders, named Blake and Kelly, have been in the habit of selling goods in that vicinity. When they last left there was some trouble about a note, and a man named Searway swore that if ever Blake came back he would beat his life out of him. On the 21st ult. Blake and Kelly returned and went into a public house. Seated in the room were two Frenchmen, and shortly after Searway entered. The Frenchmen called on him to carry out his threat against Blake. Searway was afraid to attack Blake openly, and, going behind his back, picked up a poker and struck him on the head, knocking him senseless. Then he picked up the body, threw it in a wood box and jumped on it until Kelly interfered to save his partner from being murdered. Then the Frenchmen jumped upon Kelly, Searway also turned on him, and, catching him up, threw him over the table and jumped upon his chest until it was pulp. Help came and Searway and the Frenchmen fled. The beaten men were taken to the Grand Falls Hotel, where, two days later, Kelly died of his injuries, and even now Blake lies at the point of death. Searway has been arrested.

PORT HOPE.

KILLED A WOLF.—Mr. AARON TRUE was in the woods on lot 1, con. 8, Clarke, on Saturday last drawing wood. He had with him a big black dog, part collie and part Newfoundland, when they came across a large male wolf. The dog tackled the animal, and Mr. Wolf jumped on him, but the dog, which is a powerful brute, weighing about a hundred pounds, was too much for the wolf. After a fight for over half an hour, the dog came off victorious, succeeding in strangling the wolf. Mr. True will no doubt get the bounty paid in such cases—the first paid for many years in this county.—Guide.

THE DEAD DIVINE.

Mr. Beecher Passes Peacefully Away in the Presence of His Family.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher died in the presence of his family. Those present at his bedside were Col. H. Beecher, his wife, his daughters Hattie and Daisy, and his son, Henry Ward Beecher, Miss Edith Beecher, W. C. Beecher and wife, Rev. S. Scoville, Mrs. Scoville, the eldest daughter of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; Miss Scoville, who has just come from the Pacific slope; Miss Bullard, Rev. S. B. Halliday, and wife, Deacon S. V. White, E. A. S. Secomb, one of the trustees of Plymouth Church, and Major S. B. Bond. Dr. Searle said he had noticed a change in his patient's condition at 3.30 a. m., and summoned all the house to the bedside, momentarily expecting his death, but he lingered on much longer than had been anticipated. He passed away gradually, and almost imperceptibly, drawing his last breath without apparent suffering or a return to consciousness in any degree. Mrs. Beecher bore up wonderfully and with marvellous courage. No crape was hung on the door. Mr. Beecher having always objected to the use of this and the gloom associated with it in the presence of death. Instead a wreath of flowers hung from the left side of the door way, at the top of the stoop, composed of white and red roses and lillies of the valley, and tied up with satin. At 10.30 it was given out that the funeral would take place in Greenwood on Tuesday next. Some time ago H. W. Sage, a member of Plymouth Church, appropriated by will a sum of money to place a statue of Mr. Beecher in Prospect Park after his decease. Mr. Quincy Wood, the well known sculptor who is to do the work will call at the house in course of the day for the purpose of making a piaster cast of Mr. Beecher's features. It is not intended that any examination shall be made of Mr. Beecher's brain organism.

He Helped Himself.

"I would like you to help me a little, said a vagrant, poking his head into a country shop "Why don't you help yourself?" asked the proprietor. "Thank you; I will, "said the tramp, picking up a bottle of pickles and two loaves of bread and then vanishing.

A Recommendation.

Johnson—Do you know young Jones?

O'Kelly—Yes, sor, I know him.

Johnston—Can a person believe what he says?

Pat—Faith, sor, it's just this way: When he tells ye the truth, ye can belave every word he say's but whin he lies to yez, ye better have no confidince in him at all.

Heavy Claim to be Paid.

NEW YORK, March 8.—It is announced that the claim of Moses against Spain for nearly $1,500,000 damages for property lost in Cuba during the rebellion there about twenty years ago has been settled, and that the money will soon be paid over to the claimant, who are well known photographers of this city. The amount named was awarded them by the Spanish American claims commission.

Lives Lost.

NEW YORK, March 8.—It is reported that the establishment of Nicoll, the tailor, on the Bowery, was burned this morning. The fire was caused by a blockade of trains on the Third avenue elevated railroad. It is said the conductor of a train, which had come to a standstill near one of the stations, told the passengers that they could get out and walk along the track to the depot. A number of them made the attempt, but they fell to the street, and several of them were killed.

Anarchist Spies' Wife.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Nina Van Zandt was permitted to enter the county gaol to-day, and for the first time in six weeks had an opportunity to converse with Agust Spies, the Anarchist, to whom she claims to be married by proxy. She was not permitted to go beyond the cage where visitors converse through the netting and iron bars with the prisoners. She and Spies stood with their finger tips together and chatted in a low voice for an hour, when other vistors being expected she hurriedly withdrew.

A Suspicious Package.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—A package has been received at the dead letter office which was mailed in Boston and addressed to the Prince of Wales, London, England. It was held for postage. When it was opened it was found to contain a brass figure of Christ evidently detached from a small crucifix, and a small glass tube containing a white liquid, and having two wires running through the tube and projecting from both ends. A paper enclosed contained an incoherent sentence. The contents of the glass tube will be analyzed.

Australian Wheat.

A Melbourne circular says the wheat crop promises to be six bushel average in South Australia and is a complete failure in the Queensland district, the rust having destroyed all hope of a yield. In the North of Austra ia the crop will run from 35 to 40 bushels to the acre on a small area of irrigated land, while on dry land the yield will be only about four bushels to the acre. This is an enormous difference, and may well be supposed to furnish a powerful argument in favor of the artifical watering which has already worked such wonders in the Rocky Mountain districts of the United States and the further west. The uncertainty of the rainfall in Australia appears to be the great drawback of that country to the agriculturist.

Turnbull is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new patterns. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

Napoleon the Great

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word (impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using r. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvelous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

MORE EXECUTIONS.

BUCHAREST, March 8.—A despatch from Rustchuk says that another band of rebels has been executed. At a private soiree, given here last evening, M. Hitrovo, the Russian Minister, inveighed against the Bulgarian regents, whose action he denounced as infamous. The Roumanian Government has expelled from the country all Bulgarian political refugees.

GLORIFICATION OF THE REBELS.

LONDON, March 8.—The Moscow Gazette glorifies the memory of the executed Bulgarian rebels. It says:—"They were massacred for protesting like men against the unhappy, ignominious state of their country and against its oppressors and betrayers. Their honorable death will bring forth events and set history in motion." The Gazette expresses indignation at the powers which "secretly approved" the execution of the rebels and concludes: "We shall not forget that these men were victims of their devotion to Russia."

SOLDIERS ATTACKED BY A MOB.

GALWAY, March 8.—During a riot last night while the troops were confined to their barracks, a mob numbering a thousand men beat and kicked a dozen soldiers found straggling in the streets, and chased them into the barracks. They afterwards stoned the windows of the barracks.

AN AGREEMENT.

LONDON, March 8.—It is rumored that Russia and Austria have agreed upon a plan for the settlement of the Balkan difficulty.

THE NEW CHIEF SECRETARY.

LONDON, March 8.—Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, the new Chief Secretary for Ireland, was sworn in at Dublin to-day.

EXCITEMENT OVER ARRESTS.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Excitement has been caused at Joughal by a report that the Court of Bankruptcy has issued warrants for the arrest of Father Killiher and Michael Kennedy, for contempt in refusing to attend Court as witness, and for the arrest of a man named Doyle and the brothers Brian, for threatening the Court's messenger.

A REBEL EXILED.

RUSTCHUK, March 8.—Capt. Ballmann, a leader in the recent revolt, has been exiled. He is wounded in both legs. Col. Filoff, another of the rebel leaders, is dying from his wounds. The Russian Government, acting through the Roumanian consul here [illegible] on which he is to reside.

REVEALING SECRETS.

LONDON, March 8.—A sensation has been caused at Chatham by the suspension of a foreman employed in the government works there. It is alleged that the man has been guilty of revealing important secret [illegible] Russian Governments.

MONTREAL SHIPPERS COMPLAINT.

LONDON, March 8.—Lloyds's Committee has consented to bring before the underwriting community of England the complaint of the Montreal Board of Trade that that shipping port is much injured by the present rule of the underwriters compelling transient vessels to leave the St. Lawrence before September 30th., each year.

ARCHBISHOP CROKE EXPLAINS.

DUBLIN, March 8.—Archbishop Croke has written to the Pope an explanation of his attitude on the rent question. He says he has proposed nothing, nor has he made any recommendation relative to taxes. He has simply expressed an opinion concerning the relative value of the "no tax" manifeste and the "no rent" manifesto. He states that it never entered his head to recommend a general uprising against the payment of taxes. He would trust alone to constitutional agitation for the restoration of national rights in Ireland. Under existing conditions, only a knave or a fool, he declares, would trust otherwise. It is believed the action of Archbishop Croke in offering this explanation is the result of pressure from the Pope.

SECRETARY FOR SCOTLAND.

LONDON, March 8.—The Marquis of Lothian will be appointed Secretary for Scotland.

ARMY ESTIMATES.

LONDON, March 8.—The army estimates, which have just been issued, amount to $91,969,500. being an increase of $803,500.

THE IMPERIAL INSTITUTE.

LONDON, March 8.—Mr. John Morley has written a letter, in which he expressed his entire sympathy with the spirit and objects of the proposed Imperial Institute. He recalls the Queen's fifty years of blameless life and orderly progressive reign, and says the anniversary about to be celebrated is an occasion over which all good citizens rejoice.

THE EMIN BEY MISSION.

LONDON, March 8.—The Stanley expedition for the relief of Emin Bey arrived at Simonstown, Cape of Good Hope, to-day.

SUBMITTED.

LONDON, March 8.—The Woontho Isawbwa has submitted to the British, and has agreed to pay tribute and deliver up his arms. This is an important step in the work of pacifying the people of Upper Burmah.

DUTIES ON CEREALS.

PARIS, March 8.—The French Chamber of Deputies to-day rejected by a vote of 354 against 151 a motion to abolish all duties on cereals.

SOCIALISM.

ROME, March 8.—The Pope is writing an encyclical on the subject of Socialism. He will treat concisely of social problems, distinguishing good and lawful from dangerous and unchristian combinations.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE DENIED.

PARIS, March 8.—The Temps and the Journal des Debats semi-officially contradict the report that a treaty of alliance has been signed by Germany, Austria and Italy

CONFIDENT OF PEACE.

VIENNA, March 8.—Emperor Francis Joseph conversing with members of the Hungarian Diet to-day, said he had every confidence that peace would be maintained.

NO RUSSIAN PROTEST.

VIENNA, March 8.—No protest has yet been made by Russia concerning the execution in Bulgaria of officers provided with Russian passports. In official circles here it is believed Russia will not depart from the policy inaction which she has hitherto pursued.

THIRD CANDIDATES.

In several journals we see comments upon reports of third candidates having to forfeit their deposits because they polled so few votes. Not unfrequently it is asserted that this is unfair, and that it is not in the public interest that the advocates of any particular movement or the members of any class should be debarred from running a candidate.

We think these critics do not lay sufficient stress upon the consideration that the intervention of a third candidate is very likely to result in the nominal representation of the constituency by a man who has only a minority of the votes, and who represents only a minority of the electors. This is undoubtedly an evil, which should be obviated as far as possible. In Germany and in France a remedy is sought by providing that in such cases there shall be supplementary elections between the two candidates at the top of the poll, the others being dropped out, so that their supporters may give their second choice between the two who remain in the field. Perhaps [illegible] has the great disadvantage of rendering necessary an addition to the number of elections, which are quite frequent enough already. Under our system, if hopeless candidatures are not altogether prevented, they are at least discouraged and rendered infrequent. Neither can we see the unfairness of requiring that a candidate who puts the electors to trouble and expense, when very few of them want him as their representative, should be called upon to bear the cost he unnecessarily forces upon the people.

It is the common practice in Canada for candidates to be chosen by preliminary conventions. It is at these meetings that the advocates of any particular movement may make their weight felt. If there are a body so strong as to have a claim to representation this could not fail to have great influence in the choice of a candidate.

INDIAN WHEAT.

We have given from a recent number of the Allahabad Pioneer Mail authentic statistics of the acreage under wheat in India. This 26,000,000 acres is a large area, and it is constantly increasing. The enormous extension of the supplies of wheat drawn by Great Britain from India is a matter of serious and growing importance to the farmers of Canada as of the United States. Not only is wheat from this side of the Atlantic thus ousted from the British market, but the cheapness of cultivation in India from the low remuneration with which labour there is content, must have a permanent effect in keeping down the price of wheat.

It is evident that nothing can be done to prevent or even to check this competition. Under these circumstances our farmers would do well to consider whether it is wise of them to grow as much wheat as possible, to rely mainly upon one crop. It would certainly be to their advantage to vary their produce as much as theycan, and to consider whether they cannot, under the particular circumstances of each case, produce something at least in part that may be more remunerative than wheat.

The Toronto Globe hypocritically censures those who have attempted to make bad blood between Quebec and other parts of the Dominion. The Globe itself has been the foremost in this evil course. It is now figuring up a majority for Mr. Blake, based on its hope that it has been so successful in making bad blood that some of the Conservative members from Quebec will desert their party and their principle to obtain vengeance. And when the Globe finds itself disappointed because the Quebec Conservative members are too honorable to be such renegades, it will endeavor to stir up more bad blood by vociferating that its old political opponents have been bought to continue their opposition.

The cases of the seized American fishing schooners Ella M. Drughty and David T. Adams will be resumed in the Halifax Vice-Admiralty Court on Saturday.

CAVALRY HORSES.

The fact that the Imperial Government is again sending officers to Canada this year to purchase cavalry horses and that it proposes to continue the practice, should not be lost upon our farmers. Last year comparatively few horses were purchased for the army in the older Provinces, but there is no cause why this should continue to be the case. Probably the ranches of the Northwest Territories with their more abundant stock and cheaper methods will continue to do the larger share of this business, but there are many reasons why the farmers of Ontario should derive a profit from it. The price itself, £45, is not unsatisfactory and colts that did not quite reach the standard of height would not be unsaleable. Even if some had to be sold cheaper there would be the chance, to keep up the general average, of an occasional superior animal that would be of value as an officer's charger.

Some of our well to do farmers, with a taste in this direction, might well invest a little capital and trouble in breeding cavalry horses for the British army or those of other European powers. There used to be horses of the required stamp in this district, but the demand for the civil war in the United States carried them off, and they have not been adequately replaced.

One cause of rejection by the Imperial officers who were here last year should be remembered. Horses that were up to the standard and otherwise acceptable, failed to pass muster because their legs and feet were not quite clean and sound. This was attributed by these experienced judges to their being knocked about prematurely on hard roads, a practice that should be avoided, though light work on the farm would be beneficial rather than otherwise.

To show the hypocrisy of their pretended conversion in favor of the protection of Canadian industry, the Reform press, now that the election is over, are renewing their jibes at the National Policy. For instance, the London Advertiser gloats over the depreciation of the stock of a manufacturing company, and tauntingly attributes it to the N. P. For the next five years we may expect these hypocrites to rave against protection, and then just before the next general election to pretend to think it rather a good thing than otherwise in the hope of catching the votes of the electors.

LEGAL DECISIONS.

Two Judgments of General Importance and of Local Interest.

The Globe publishes the following more extended accounts of judgments given in the Divisional Court:—"A number of very important and valuable decisions were given by the Chancery Divisional Court on [illegible] which were concluded a week ago. Perhaps the most important of all was one under the Canada Temperance Act in the case of the Queen vs. Fee. Mr. Justice Ferguson had quashed the conviction without hearing the Crown, owing to a mistake as to the day for which the motion was set down. Counsel for the crown afterwards appeared and desired to show cause, but the learned judge referred the matter to the full court. Objection was made to the court hearing the case owing to the well known rule obtaining in civil cses since the Judicature Act, that the decision of a single judge sitting for the court cannot be reviewed by the Divisional Court. But the Court held that this did not apply to criminal cases like this one, and that the practice of such decisions being re-heard, which was in vogue before the Judicature Act, should be still continued, more especially as in appeals from orders quashing convictions there is no appeal to the Court of Appeal. (See the decision of the latter court in the Queen v. Ell.) The Divisional Court accordingly decided to entertain the motion and proceeded to discuss the merits. Mr. Justice Ferguson had in quashing the conviction merely followed the order of Judge Galt in the Queen v. Halpin, 12 Ont. Reports, 339, and by that of course the full court was not found, even if Mr. Justice Furguson was. The point decided in that case is one of great importance, and shortly stated is, that under sec. 123 of the Canada Temperance Act, by which the accused is made a competent and compellable witness, he is not bound to criminate himself. The identical point was decided in the same way by the Supreme Court of Prince Edward Island in the Queen v. Connolly, 4 Canadian Law Times, 301, but the Chancery Division has now reached an opposite conclusion, as it holds that the defendant in a Scott Act prosecution is bound to answer, even though by so doing he criminates himself. This will, of course, be a great aid to persons engaged in working out the Scott Act, as it will render convictions much easier. From this decision there is no appeal, so that the law may be taken as settled, unless some adventurous person manages to bring the matter up on habeas corpus before the Court of Appeal. The Chancellor, who deilvered the judgment of the Court, dealt very exhaustively with the subject, justifying the decision upon English authority. He pointed out that it was one of Bentham's theories of law, that the accused should be compelled to testify against himself, and quoted a remark of his upon the maxim nemo tenetur seipsum accusare, to the effect that if a number of burglars and highwaymen formed an association for the purpose of furthering the interests of their profession, nemo tenetur, &c., would naturally be the first rule or by-law they would pass.

"SPEAKS FROM THE DEATH.

"In Hatton v. Bertram the point decided was a nice one and may be shortly stated. To the average layman the decision will no doubt be a surprise. A testator devised to his daughter 'that part of my property known as Walkerfield, being the property I now reside upon, containing 50 acres more or less.' After making the will the testator acquired some land adjacent to Walkerfield, and added it to that property. The contest was chiefly upon the meaning of the word 'now,' and it was held, that as it clearly appeared that the testator bought it to form part of Walkerfield, and as the will spoke from the death, 'now' meant at the time of his death, and the after acquired property passed under the devise to his daughter."

The developement of the Cascade coal mines near Banff, N. W. T., is being vigorously pushed, and the daily output will soon reach five hundred tons.

NEWS NOTES.

Agents for the German Government have purchased 20 horses in Ireland at a high price.

It is reported that the movement of Russian troops to the Galician frontier is continuous.

Astonishing Success

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive at least to try one bottle, as 70,000 dozen bottes were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 75 cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers, in the United States and Canada. d99

MARCH.

Oh, this is the month of the year
When nature says to the snow,
"It is time that you disappear;
You must take yourself off, you know.
Just get yourself ready and go;
Pack up your drifts and March!"

She says to the icicles, "Come,
Have you fallen into line?
Then hark for the sound of my drum,
And watch till I give you a sign;
When, bright little soldiers of mine,
Shoulder your arms and March!"

But the winter wind and the sleet
That never to April belong,
She chases and hunts thro' the street.
She hurries and drives them along;
And with clarion voice and strong
She orders them to March!

Then she quickens the violet's heart,
And says to the daffodil, "Dear,
Are you getting ready to start?
Let me whisper low in your ear
That the spring time is almost here,
It is now on the March!"

A TOUGH TIME.

A Fisherman's Terrible Experience on Lake Ontario.

A few days ago we noticed the miraculous escape of Peter Nath, the Port Dalhousie fisherman, and his assistants, from extraordinary peril amidst the moving ice on Lake Ontario. The detail, as first given, were not perfect, as we now learn from Mr. Nath that shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning, himself, son-in-law, and his hired man, went out in their punt, which they pulled for several miles over the shore ice. Peter had two lines of net out, the nearest being 4 miles from shore, and the outer 6 miles off, being set for the large cisoe herring, which are only caught during winter. Their journey to the open water was easily accomplished, and they gathered what fish were in the nets, leaving the nets as they were. During their work a strong southwest gale, accompanied by a thick snow storm, sprung up, and in a short time the land was lost to their view, and the water became thickened to such an extent with the snow that it was impossible to move the boat through it. In fact, it became, as Nath says, like porridge, or more properly speaking, "lolly," a word which many salt water fishermen on the Bay of Chaleurs and other parts of our maritime provinces will understand. They were stuck, and prudently managed to get on to the main floe, upon which they trotted alongside the rift during the long night an action which Nath says saved their lives, although he had much difficulty in keeping one of the party from going into that deadly sleep from which there is no awaking. Towards morning the gale abated and changed up the lake, which caused the slop ice to go to leeward and open a channel for escape. Nath had a pocket compass with him, and from their bearings he assumed the rift in the floe move westward, along which they rowed, expecting to reach [illegible] beach. Above the loom of [illegible] clouds they could see the glare of the electric lights in St. Catharines, but they could not see the torch which Mrs. Nath kept burning during the long night. They pushed along the open water to the west, and as morning broke they were off the mouth of the Fifteen Mile creek, and were first observed by Eli Gregory, who, when they reached the shore, harnessed up a conveyance and kindly drove them home. Peter says they brought nothing to eat along, and after 48 hours he became terribly hungry, and before they reached the land he admits he had serious thoughts that some of them would have to take lots and resort to cannibalism.—St Catharines Journal.

DUMMER.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The Council met in Warsaw on Feb. 26th. All the members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Councillor Moore was instructed to make enquiries as to the value of the work done by Henry Hughes on the 12th con. line, and report at next meeting. The Treasurer was instructed to pay up any interest that may be due to the county, and for the future to pay up the county rates promptly. It was moved by Mr. Kirk, and seconded by Mr. Webster,—That, after having compared and examined the auditors' reports and detailed statements, the same be now received and adopted; that the Clerk cause the abstract to be published, and have 150 copies of the detailed statement printed in sheet form for distribution.—Carried. On motion no action was taken in the matter of the demand of Augustus Roche, on behalf of John Middleton, for the keep of Atchison Newell. On motion the petition of John Clements and 26 others, regarding the opening up of Ford street, Warsaw, was laid over for future consideration. The Clerk was instructed to notify the Collector to abate the following statute labor taxes, as the work was done:—

Richard Wilson, sr., on	w ½ 16, con 6	$2 00
Richard F. Wilson,	" 17, " 6	2 00

The following orders were granted:—

Chas. Grinn, house for local election	$2 00

Benjamin James, jr., auditing accounts, 1886	5 00
A. R. Kidd, attending adjourned land sale	3 00
Chas. Nicoll, Sec. Treas. No. 2, School house for local election	2 00

Council adjourned to Saturday, the 19th March next.

A Miscalculation.

She—James, do you know you put three buttons on the plate in church to day?—He—Yes, I knew what I was about. She—James perhaps you don't know that I bought those buttons yesterday for my new dress and paid fifty cents apiece for them.

Injured Innocence.

A San Francisco Chinaman who had been found smuggling cigars in his coat-sleeves was asked how he came by the cigars. "A fiend askee me hold them till he come back; he one bad man, he no come back; he habee ebil eye," replied the innocent Ah Sin.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the cure of colds, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. It affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

A LATE PRETENCE.

The pretence that either Mr. Blake or the Grit party, as a party are committed to manhood suffrage is fraudulent and hypocritical. The public naturally judge of their professions as to what they would do if they obtained power at Ottawa by what they have done or failed to do in Ontario, where they have had everything their own way for many years. Until they give us manhood suffrage here it would be folly to be misled by Mr. Blake's speciously worded sentences, full of "ifs" and "buts," to suppose that they would show themselves more liberal in Dominion matters.—Toronto News (Indep.)

THE IRON INDUSTRY.

In many other ways the Canadian people can assist in the development of the Maritime Provinces, and in one branch of industry almost everything depends upon the policy of the Dominion Government. No part of the world has greater natural advantages for the manufacture of iron and steel, but in order to insure permanent establishment of a great iron industry in any part of the Dominion, it will be necessary to follow the example of England, the United States and every other great iron manufacturing country and inaugurate a policy especially adapted to the fostering of the iron industry. The Dominion ministry should give the matter immediate attention.—Montreal Star (Indep.)

PARNELLISM AND CRIME.

LONDON, March 7.—The Parnellites propose to call the attention of the House to articles in the London Times charging Mr. Parnell, Mr. Sexton, Arthur O'Connor and others with guilty knowledge of and complicity in a series of murders in Ireland. The Times began the series of articles entitled "Parnellism and Crime," with an outspoken denunciation of the League leaders, as having intimate, notorious and continuous relations with avowed murderers. One passage is as follows:—"The National League movement is based upon a scheme of assassination, carefully calculated and coolly applied. Murderers provide their funds; murderers share their inmost counsels; murderers have gone forth from League offices and set their bloody work afoot." This violence of language pervades the whole attack; which is designed to assist the passage of a Crimes Bill.

PROPOSED CONTINUOUS SITTING.

LONDON, March 7.—The Parnellites and Radicals are concerting arrangements to have relief ready for a continuous sitting.

Miss Skinner's meeting, which was announced for to-day, has been changed to Thursday afternoon at the same time and place.

Illustrated London.

A lecture on London, England, illustrated by 100 dissolving views, will be given Thursday, March 10th, in St. Luke's School Room, Ashburnham, by D. W. Campbell, Esq. Admission 25 cents; children, 10 cents. Instructive, pleasing and profitable. All should attend.

Fire Insurance.

The Mayor has issued a proclamation, in accordance with the voice of the Council calling a public meeting of the ratepayers to discuss the fire insurance question, and to devise means for lowering the rates The meeting will be held on Friday evening in the Council Chamber, not Thursday evening, as previously stated. Every person interested should attend.

Curling.

After arrangements were made between the Peterborough and Truro clubs as to the contest for the Governor-General's trophy, the Truro club wired that it was impossible for them to go. The Peterboroughs asked for instructions from Ottawa, and were informed that they would play the next best club to [illegible] Thursday—and that [illegible] would have to go to Ottawa. Thus the old antagonists will meet on a different field of battle than the customary. Though Peterborough would have preferred playing the Nova Scotians, they did not hesitate to comply with instructions, and are off today for the capital. They will play Ottawa to-night, and the Governor-General contest will take place to-morrow.

Mission Band.

At a meeting held in the school room of the George Street Methodist Church on Monday evening a Mission Band was organized, the membership consisting of the lady teachers of the Sunday school and young ladies and girls, pupils of the Sunday school. The object of the Band is to work in connection with the Woman's Auxiliary Missionary Society of the church, whose special work is providing means for carrying on the University of Japan. The officers of the Mission Band are:—President, Mrs. A. Wilson; Vice-President, Mrs. J. B. Pentland; Recording Secretary, Miss Josie Ellsworth; Cor.-Secretary, Miss Thirza Frise; Treasurer, Miss Goldie; Executive Committee, the officers and Misses Green, Butcher and Keele.

Y. M. C. A. in Sterling.

A Young Men's Christian Association was organized in Sterling on Tuesday evening, Geo. E. Williams, of Peterborough, representing the Provincial Committee. The following officers were appointed:—

PRESIDENT—Rev. J. M. Gray.

FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT—Benj. Bush.

SECOND VICE-PRESIDENT—C. F. Hamilton.

SECRETARY—Jno. S. Murray.

TREASURER—T. G. Clute.

A constitution was adopted and a good number of young men were received as members. They have already secured very nice rooms which will be opened in a week or so. Mr. Lindsay Micklejohn was appointed corresponding member of the district committee.

Telephone Patents.

The Bell Telephone Company's officials say that a great deal of unnecessary importance has been attached (through misleading reports sent from Ottawa) to the last decision of the Minister of Agriculture, voiding the Blake transmitter patent. This was not an original patent for a transmitter, but only for an improvement on its method of construction and is only one of the numerous patents held by the company on this class of instruments; and the setting aside of this does not by any means allow the public to manufacture or use Blake transmitters, and will make no difference whatever to the company. The decision was given on evidence put in two years ago, and was anticipated by the company, which did not contest the case at all. In the case of the Edison patents, after all the evidence for the petitioners had been heard, the Bell Company's counsel moved to have the petition dismissed without the necessity of bringing forward evidence for the defence on the ground of absence of proof. The Minister stated that he would consider this and announce his decision on this point in a few days.

WOMEN'S WORK IN THE EAST.

The Field in India for Women Doctors Missionary Work.

On Tuesday evening the Rev. E. C. B. Hallem, M. A., formerly of Dundas, Ont., who has had twenty-seven years experience in missionary work in India, delivered a lecture in the Baptist Church, Murray Street, on "Work Among the Women of India."

The Rev. Mr. Ratcliffe occupied the chair.

The LECTURER, on being introduced, entered upon a description of the country, in which he spent so many years, and the condition of the people. He dwelt particularly on the condition of the women of India, and described how, on account of the customs of the country, they were all but inaccessible. That part of the household of the native in which the women are kept was sealed to all men but the head of the house himself. The lecturer knew of not more than six during his whole stay in India that had gone to visit these women thus caged up. He dealt with the magnitude of the missionary work now going on in India and stated that a very important auxilliary of recent birth was the Medical missionary work. The lady doctors were allowed to go to see the women of the saraglio and the men gained easy access to the native men. At first there was an opposition to the ministrations of European doctors but the Brahman priests told the natives that there was no danger of defilement as it was not "food" they were receiving but "medicine." The all important work now was to reach the women. A school for the education of native medical missionaries was being now established at Bombay. Still the native women did not compare with the Eurpoean women doctors. The amount of good done by the means of missionary efforts was inestimable. Every now and then they saw some one coming to the front who had received the power of the truth, and who could tell the number who received the truth and did not make it known! Some were bold and avowed their belief openly and became in time active co-workers in the Christian cause. Others were obliged to abide their good time. Once he knew of grave results from pressing too hard. A woman, half native and half European, had been converted. She became a worker and converted the wife of a prominent native. She at once urged her to get baptized, saying that she could not be a Christian till she was baptized. The wife in alarm consented though dreading that her husband should find it out. A palaquin was brought in the dusk of the evening and the wife was taken to the missionary's house. Shortly after the husband came home. He found out about it. He at once gathered a company of about 200 native gentlemen—not roughs and rowdys, but educated men—and went to the missionary's house. They entered and dragged the wife away and belabored the missionary, and the lecturer thought he deserved it. The next day the lecturer went to the bazaar to preach. At once he was confronted with a man who stood with his arms folded. "Oh," said he, "we now see what your preaching means. You want to get our wives away from us by stealth in the dark, don't you?" The lecturer unhesitatingly denounced the act, boldly telling them that it should not have been done. It was not Christian. But nevertheless every saraglio was closed for months against even the women. Their position was this: They laid great stress on baptism, but they did not think it of such exquisite importance that the good work should be impeded, or that other duties should go undone. The proper thing to have done would have been to allow the mother and wife to Christianize her husband and children, and then have all come together.

It was out of just such assemblies as this that women doctors and missionaries were drawn, and in case any before him were seized with a desire to go into the great work, he would tell what qualifications were necessary. First, deep piety. Second, a fair scholastic training. Third, the power to sing. This was very necessary, for unless those going there have the quick ear of the singer they can never master the peculiar intonations of the Hindoo language; and again, many places where missionaries were not allowed to preach they are allowed to sing. Large congregations of natives came to hear singing. The whole Bible might be sung to them and they would listen, but to listen to preaching they would not, until their hearts were touched. Fourth, a good constitution; and last, and as important as any, a warm, sympathising heart, so that you may get very near to the poor, distressed women of the great dependency. He concluded in telling the audience that this was peculiarly women's work, for show him a land where women are degraded and he would prove that Christianity in its purity was not taught. But on the other hand in every clime and county where Christianity was taught women is raised to her rightful position of equality.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer and the chairman. Mr. Jas. Stratton moved the motion and Mr. Graham seconded it.

The Rev. Mr. Hallem then displayed some Hindoo curiosities consisting of rings, anklets, dresses, and several other articles. He also sang a hymn composed of a Hindoo.

Latest Returns from Algoma.

PORT ARTHUR, March 8.—A large number of places on Manitoulin Island were heard from yesterday, and the majorities so nearly balance one another that Mr. Dawson was 11 ahead. The east has altogether fallen off from Reform calculations. Rainy River gives 5 majority for Mr Burke, and Fort Francis 31, making Mr. Dawson's majority so far as heard from 58. There are yet six places to hear from.

THE GAOL BIRDS.

They Sing of Their Troubles to Peterborough People.

Handbills were distributed around town on Tuesday announcing that those who have been spending 15 days in Lindsay gaol for the awful crime of praying on the street! Capt. Smith, Lieut. Wood, and others, would appear in their prison costume at the barracks on Tuesday night.

On Tuesday night the barracks were filled an hour before the speaking was announced to take place. Those present from Lindsay who spent their time in gaol recently were: Capt. Bertha Smith and Lieut. Wood, formerly of Peterborough; Happy Jack Rogers, Bob Lindsay and Private Menzies. The visiting officers present were: Capt. Florence and Lieut. Cornell, Millbrook; Capt. Haugh, Omemee; Lieut. Kelly and Cadet Eakins, Lakefield. Adjutant Bolton and the resident captain were also present. Adjutant Bolton conducted the meeting. Several of the visiting brethren gave testimony.

Capt. Smith and Lieut. Wood spoke, both telling of how they had been put in gaol at Lindsay for praying on the street. While in gaol three of the prisoners were converted. The prison attendants were very austere at first, but before they left the attendants became very kind. The army was stronger than ever in Lindsay now.

"Flirtation" at the Opera House.

The above very pleasing drama was presented last evening at Bradburn's Opera House by the Lindley Dramatic Company. The audience was not large but nevertheless all present enjoyed the play immensly. Harry Lindley as "Bailey," never appeared in a better roll, "Hip never," and Laura Booth's representation of "Laura Rathley," the giddy young wife, was so good, that the audience frequently applauded her. The remainder of the support was equally good and, without the laughable farce that followed the play was better than the great majority that are presented. To-night the "Phoenix," the great sensational performance will be presented, when will be added extra scenery.

Mission Circle.

The annual meeting of the Mission Circle in connection with the Baptist Church, Murray street, was held on Tuesday afternoon in the school room of the church. The reports presented were very satisfactory, showing that the work was progressing well. The following officers were elected:—President of Foreign Mission, Mrs. Gilmour; President of Home Mission, Mrs. J. C. Turnbull; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. Hutchinson; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Aldridge; Secretary, Miss Nicholls; Treasurer of Foreign Mission, Miss McDonald; Treasurer of Home Mission, Mrs. J. McKee. A social tea was served between five and six o'clock, at which there was a large attendance.

Sunday School Anniversary.

The Charlotte Street Sunday School anniversary was held in the church on Tuesday evening. On the platform there were the Rev. Messrs. Wallace, Tovell and Manning. The children to the number of over two hundred occupied seats raised tier above tier. The programme given was unusually interesting, consisting of solos, choruses, dialogues and recitations by the children. The Rev. Mr. Manning gave an address. Some one in the audience was so well satisfied with the evenings entertainment that he moved a collection be taken up in addition to the payment of the admission fee. The motion was carried and nearly $20 was collected. The debt on the Sunday School of $50 was more than discharged.

Horses.

Peterborough is getting to be quite a source of supply of horses. During the past month Mr. Ted Cavanagh has shipped six car-loads, or over one hundred horses, out of town to different points, but principally to Montreal. To-day he shipped 17 fine animals to Louis Larin, of Montreal. Among them were a very handsome team purchased on Tuesday at Lorneville, by Mr. Cavanagh. The price paid for this team went well up to $400. The average price paid was $125. These horses nearly all go to supply the Montreal local trade.

HORRIBLE CRUELTY.

A Young French Girl Tortured to Death for Her Property.

PARIS, March 9.—A horrible case of murder is being investigated by the authorities of Mimes, in the department of Gard. A few months since Mmilie Dupont, aged fifteen, who had been living with her uncle and aunt, M. and Mme. Roche, near Beaucaire, since the death of her father in the latter part of 1885, died of what was supposed to be consumption, and under the will of the girl's father M. Roche inherited Mlle. Dupont's fortune. A couple of weeks ago a servant in the employ of M. Roche, who had been suddenly dismissed, told a story, which the authorities evidently believe, as they have ordered the arrest of Roche, who is a well-to-do farmer, as well as his wife. The servant says that from the very day of M. Dupont's death a system of horrible cruelty was adopted with his daughter, evidently with the object of causing her death. At first the girl used to be beaten, sometimes as often as two or three times a week, being stripped and tied down, while her aunt lashed her with a leather whip, frequently drawing blood. After a time the flogging was discontinued, but the girl was then confined in an attic and kept without food for a day or two at a time until she has reduced to a mere skeleton. The girl under this treatment became spiritless and nearly imbecile, when a new system was adopted. She was moved down to a comfortable room, and each night after she went to bed her aunt used to throw water over her, and fastened her down to prevent her rising. This, together with insufficient clothing and frequent fasts, had the desired effect, and the girl became very ill and a doctor was called in. Then the last act was consummated. One night the servant heard moans, and stole down stairs, and, looking through the keyhole, saw Roche holding the girl down in bed while his wife held a wet cloth over her mouth and nostrils until she was suffocated. In the morning Mlle. Dupont's death was announced, the doctor was called in, gave the necessary certificate, and the unfortunate victim of cruel cupidity was buried.

Bloodhounds as Detectives.

THE PROTESTANT HOME

AMPLE CONTRIBUTIONS TO MEET ALL OF OF LAST YEAR'S NEEDS.

The Presentation of Reports at the Annual Meeting—The Amounts Received and Discussed—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the supporters of the Peterboroogh Protestant Home was held in the Home on Wednesday afternoon. There were present: Mrs. Vernon, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. Hazlitt, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. J. G. Hall, Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. McWilliams, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Dunlop and Mrs. Roger.

After the meeting had been opened in the usual manner Mrs. Hall read the Secretary's report as follows:—

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Nothing very remarkable has transpired in the annals of this institution during the past year. The most noteworthy feature is the number of very aged ones now sheltered in the Home, no less than five between the ages of 80 and 90, one 90, four over 70, two almost completely bedridden, one palsied and two partially paralized. Present number of inmates 20, including four little girls. There have been no infectious diseases and no deaths, although more than once some of the aged ones have been very near death's portals. Fewer this past year have come and gone for a day or so, partly from want of accommodation, partly through the inability of receiving emigrant servants who have no claim on the Home.

It is considered most desirable that the roof of this building should be raised thereby increasing the accommodation and giving separate wards to the men and women. In order to do this we would require finances. It would take at least in the neighborhood of $500 or $600. Are there any among our wealthy, those enjoying ample competence, willing to help in this praiseworthy work? Our resources it is well known are most uncertain; still, year by year, the Home holds out, sheltering the lonely, helpless and homeless, a quiet, comfortable haven to not a few weary ones.

We are open to contributions of all kinds—money, provisions, vegetables, furniture, bedding, clothing, &c. A few easy chairs, such as rockers, would be much appreciated by the aged. Spring will soon be ushered in, and we would thankfully receive flowers or seedlings, anything to make the Home attractive, and add to the happiness of those who must soon bid adieu to time.

How shall we sufficiently thank Mr. Galletly for the beautiful Cantata got up in the Opera House last June, for the benefit of the Home, or the young ladies for the admirable way in which they acquitted themselves? It was one of the most charming entertainments ever given in town. Mr. Galletly is largely endued with the milk of human kindness, is ever at home in the midst of children, and we would say, in the words of his own vernacular, "May his bicker age be fou to shelter." Sincere thanks to those who engage in religious exercises Sabbath and week days, to those who so thoughtfully and delicately devote a portion of their valuable time singing their sweet songs of Zion, which the inmates greatly enjoy. Sacred music frequently touches a chord, when the preaching of the Word and prayer has no effect. Our heartfelt gratitude to the medical practitioners for their great kindness in attending whenever requested gratis, to the gentlemen of the press for their papers and insertions free of charge, to the Masons, Scarlet Chapter, Foresters and Orangemen, through J. B. McWilliams, and to all others who have contributed in any way to further the interests of the Home. "Inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these ye did it unto Me."

The Xmas donations were liberal and displayed a good deal of kind thought, the generous donors no doubt enjoyed their own festal board and happy homes all the more, in that they fulfilled the Scriptural command, "Go your way, eat the fat, drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared, and thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, thou, the stranger, the fatherless and the widow."

Mrs. Dillon, our matron, deserves our warm approval for the neatness and order in which the home is kept, and the happy gift she has of putting things to the best account.

We would again welcome among us Miss Roger, our former able Secretary, and desire to thank God for the preservation of the "daughters of the Manse," in their perilous journeyings. Miss Roger's sterling worth is well known in many a home in Peterborough, where in the sacred, dismal hour of mourning she has proved herself invaluable as a sympathizing, unselfish, practical friend.

We deeply regret the loss of Mrs. Wallis, one of our lady managers, who ever befriended this establishment by her means and advice; she was always ready to help on the Lord's work, and do all she could to advance the happiness of others; courteous, pitiful, considerate, and unobtrusive, she was one rarely met with, and we desire to extend our heartfelt sympathy to her bereaved ones. He lovely example and gentle life will serve them in some measure as a beacon light to guide them on to a better world.

If at times we should meet with ingratitude from those we benefit, our Saviour experienced the same. Let this be no barrier to us strewing, with kind words and deeds, the burdensome pathway of others. It will be subject of no regret at a dying hour that we mingled the tear of sympathy with the sad, the afflicted and the sorrowful.

Respectfully submitted,
JANE GIFFORD HALL,
Secretary.

Mrs. Cox then read the following report:

PETERBOROUGH, March 9, 1887.

To the President and Directors of the Peterborough Protestant Home:

I have pleasure in submitting for your consideration the accompanying statement of receipts and expenditure for the year ending February 28, 1887.

The receipts from all sources amount to $1,133.01, and while this amount is not as large as the previous year, still there has been sufficient funds to meet all requirements of the home amounting to $1,075.35, leaving a balance in the treasury of $57.66.

All the accounts rendered to date have been paid and the vouchers for same are at your disposal.

Yours respectfully,
M. COX,
Treasurer.

PETERBOROUGH, March 8th, 1887.

I hereby certify that I have examined the accounts of the Peterborough Protestant Home and find them correct, and to correspond with the attached statements.

J. T. C. LACEY.

Mrs. HAZLITT moved seconded by Mrs McWILLIAMS—That both reports be received and adopted.—Carried.

The officers were elected as follows:—

PRESIDENT—Mrs. Vernon.

1ST VICE-PRESIDENT—Mrs. Gilmour.

2ND VICE-PRESIDENT—Mrs. Hazlitt.

SECRETARY—Mrs. J. G. Hall.

TREASURER—Mrs. Cox.

The Committee was also the same as last year's except that Mrs. Hazlitt was elected to fill the place left vacant by Mrs. Wallace.

The meeting then adjourned.

FUR BEARING ANIMALS.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—You will oblige a large class of natives by allowing me a small space in your columns to make a few remarks in their behalf respecting a letter that appeared in your issue of the 9th of February under the above heading, signed W. Lech, wherein the writer seeks to still further shorten the season for taking the fur bearing animals, which would practically amount to prohibiting the Indians from hunting, as they are the only class of trappers who pay the least attention to the law regulating these matters. As it now stands, they cannot trap before the 15th of October, and as the marshes, bays, creeks, &c., freeze up early in November, they have only three weeks in the fall. The same hunting grounds, or waters, open about the 20th of April, which gives them about ten days in the spring for their entire hunt.

Any person competent to offer an opinion knows that otter, martin, beaver, &c., invariably disappear as the country becomes settled; the white settlers not only hunt and destroy the fur bearing animals, both in and out of season, but they destroy the beaver dams and houses also, leaving any beaver that may escape the hunter no chance for his life, except moving beyond the haunts of civilization. We require no more changes in this law, but should be glad to see it better observed by white men.

Yours truly,
CANADIAN.

Serious and Fatal Fire.

WALLA WALLA, W. T., March 9.—A fire this morning destroyed a business property worth $125,000. The insurance was $40,000. The remains of two human beings were found in the ruins.

THE EXECUTION.

RUSTCHUK, March 9.—The execution of the rebels took place at three o'clock on Sunday morning. The condemned men stood beside open graves. Three soldiers were detailed for the execution, and were instructed to fire two shots each from their revolvers so that each of the rebels received six shots. The public were excluded, only soldiers and officials witnessing the execution. The friends of the dead have since been allowed to disinter the bodies and bury them elsewhere.

RELEASES AND ARRESTS.

SOFIA, March 9.—M. Zankoff's son-in-law and others suspected of having been concerned in the recent uprising, have been released. Captains Jercheff, Soppoff and Teneff have been arrested at Varna.

A SIGNIFICANT MESSAGE.

PESTH, March 9.—Some members of the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet have sent a message congratulating the Bulgarian regency upon their execution of the rebels, and expressing the hope that Hungarians and Bulgarians may soon have an opportunity of shedding their blood together in the defence of their common liberties.

AUSTRIAN OFFICERS.

PARIS, March 9.—The Journal des Debats says that 10 Austrian officers have arrived at Sofia to drill the Bulgarian army.

TO SUPPORT SALISBURY.

LONDON, March 9.—The reunion interviews between members of the Gladstone and Hartington wings of the Liberal party were continued yesterday. Lord Hartington was seen, and declined to be a party to the proceedings. He declared that he is pledged to support Lord Salisbury and intends to do so. Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Parnell and Sir George Otto Trevelyan were in communication yesterday on the subject of a basis of agreement.

AN EGYPTIAN FREEMASON.

LONDON, March 9.—A sensation was created in the masonic world yesterday by the initiation of Ibraham Pasha, a nephew of the Khedive of Egypt, into the secrets of Freemasonry, as a member of the British lodge, under unusually distinguished auspices. Ioraham Pasha intends to establish native branches of the craft in Egypt.

SALISBURY'S SPEECH.

LONDON, March 9.—Referring to Lord Salisbury's speech to the Conservative club last Saturday the Times says:—"Nothing could be more energetic or empathic than Lord Salisbury's speech. If we could be quite sure that his words would be translated into deeds there would be no room for doubt as to the result." The Standard says: "We are glad to find that Lord Salisbury has decided that the Government must immediately address themselves to their urgent and all important task."

ALEXANDER AND THE CZAR.

VIENNA, March 9.—The advance sheets of Koch's memoirs give numerous proofs that Prince Alexander, while ruler of Bulgaria, made repeated attempts to conciliate the Czar, all of which were rendered futile by the intrigues of M. Hitrovo, formerly Russian Consul at Sofia, whose calumnious reports were sent to St. Petersburg. Prince Alexander in 1881 sent his resignation to the Czar, who insisted that he should remain upon the throne. The Zankoff party, which was then anti-Russia, supported Prince Alexander.

LAND COMMISSION.

DUBLIN, March 9.—Commissioner Knipes' report on the land question agrees generally with the Land Commission's advice, especially as to the reduction of the term of rent revisions, but on the subject of tenant combinations and the recommendations bearing on the question of social order he thinks sufficient weight is not attached to the evidence as to the causes of the agitation and combinations, and that the Commission failed to represent the gravity of the situation or the severity of the crisis.

OPINIONS OF THE ENGLISH PRESS.

LONDON, March 9.—The Telegraph says: "No preacher and no platform orator in America put more intensity of heart into his discourses than the man whose clarion voice rang every Sunday in Plymouth Church. With all his faults—and they were many—it is doubtful if America will ever produce another Beecher." The Standard says: "Mr. Beecher was one of comparatively few Americans enjoying world-wide reputation. Having peculiar exceptional gifts for the ministry his capacity for work was amazing."

MORE SENTENCES.

RUSTCHUK, March 9.—Sentences were pronounced to-day against more insurgents Four officers were condemned to prison for life, four were sentenced to confinement for fifteen years and three for eight years. One hundred and twenty soldiers, belonging to a battalion of sappers, were all sentenced to three years' servitude. It is thought probable that the Bulgarian commander-in-chief will reduce all these sentences. No further executions are expected. The troops sent to Silistria to suppress the revolt have been withdrawn from that place.

CHINA AND FRANCE.

LONDON, March 9.—A rich Christian merchant named Lo was executed in Shanghai, in disregard of French meditation in his behalf. This indicates that China is determined to maintain her denial that France has any exceptional rights of protection on religious grounds.

SIGNIFICANT.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 9.—It is stated on the highest authority that on a recent occasion the Govenor-General of Odessa issued an order to the troops warning them not to be alarmed if they have to face the repeating rifle without possessing it themselves.

Want to Make More Sugar.

HALIFAX, March 9.—Efforts are being made to revive the Woodside refinery. The proposals has been made to reduce the interest on the existing $200,000 preference bonds from 8 to 4½ per cent. and to float $135,000 new debentures.

Napoleon the Great

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvelous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful.

OUR INTERNAL WATERWAYS.

An important deputation from the Boards of Trade of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Kingston has waited upon Sir John Macdonald in reference to the navigation of our great internal waterways. The chief requests that were urged upon the Governm were that the canals should be made free of toll and that they should be deepened to fourteen feet. There seemed to be some difference of opinion not only as to other minor points, but even as to the relative importance of these two main objects, some delegates being far more interested in the freedom from tolls, and others in the deepening of the canals, so as to obviate the [illegible].

What seems to us the most important aspect of this question was ably laid before the Ministers. It was shown that the $25,000,000 expended on the enlargement of the Welland Canal was absolutely prejudicial to Canadian interests, from the fact that in consequence of the canals on the St. Lawrence not being similarly enlarged, freight passing through the Welland Canal was even more likely to proceed by the United States than by a Canadian route. In fact so far Canada has spent enormous sums of money more for the benefit of our neighbors than of our own people. If the enlargement had been begun in the lower St. Lawrence, instead of above, and had progressed upwards, this would not have been the case. But as it is now, vessels passing through the Welland and being unable to proceed, are as well able to discharge their cargo at a United States as a Canadian port. Our cousins take care by their laws as to their coasting trade, and by other means, to direct this traffic strongly to themselves. The result is that the major portion of the freight through our own costly Welland Canal avoids our ports.

Sir John Macdonald assured the deputation that the Administration would adhere to their policy of enlarging the St. Lawrence canals and would proceed with the work as rapidly as the finances of the country would permit. Though this reply gave some satisfaction to the delegates, it is manifest that financial considerations will make such costly improvements a work of time.

In the meanwhile there is a way of attaining part of the desired object by a work that could be rapidly completed and would be comparatively cheap. The opening of the Trent Valley Navigation from the Georgian Bay to the Bay of Quinte, besides the other great advantages it offers, would have the effect of counteracting the tendency of produce from the North-West to seek an outlet through the United States ports. Once they have entered our canal, vessels would have no temptation to tranship for the United States route, would have every inducement to continue on to Montreal. In this way the business of our ports would be built up, instead of the business of foreign ports being augmented. It is surprising that the people of Montreal are not more impressed than they are with the aid that would thus be afforded to their interests.

Of course our great canal system must be completed till our country reaps the full benefit from it. But it must necessarily be so costly that it cannot be effected in a hurry. Meanwhile the opening of the Trent Valley Navigation could be rapidly completed for a sum that would be well within the means of a country like ours, and thus what is most required could be secured. And the navigation of these waters would be no mere temporary expedient. Even when the St. Lawrence waterway is improved and utilized to its utmost from end to end, the Trent Valley Canal will always have its special advantages. Its saving of distance, its cheapness and above all its safety for barges from the Georgian Bay to the great ports of the St. Lawrence will always make it a route that will attract freight. If a ditch with artificial banks and with its higher levels ill-supplied with water, such as the Erie Canal is, can take into New York city more grain than all the immense network of railways centreing there, what may not the Trent Valley Canal be expected to do for Montreal?

THE ODDFELLOWS' OVATION.

Preparations in Progress for the Great Gathering in August.

A meeting of the joint committee of the Oddfellows lodges of Peterborough was held in Mr. E. E. Henderson's office on Wednesday evening for the purpose of organizing committees to proceed at once with the necessary arrangements for the reception of the Oddfellows Grand Lodge, which will hold its annual session here in August next.

A large representation from the lodges and the Mount Hebron Encampment was present. The business or organization was proceeded with.

On motion of Bro. Henderson, District Deputy, Mayor Stevenson was unanimously elected Chairman of the Joint Committee

On motion of Bro. McFarlane Mr. A. McNeil was elected Secretary.

On motion of Bro Mills Dr. R. W. Bell was elected Treasurer.

A committee appointed to draft the sub-committees met after the meeting, and selected the following which will be confirmed at the next meeting of the Joint Committee:—

RAILWAY COMMITTEE.—Jas. Stevenson, J. R. Stratton, A. McNeil, J. J. Hartley and D. H. Moore.

RECEPTION AND HOTEL COMMITTEE.—E. E. Henderson, S. Clegg and A. McFarlane.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE.—A. McNeil, S. Clegg, D H. Moore, H. W. Watson, Jas. Hendrie, J. Nugent, W. F. Green, J. D. Craig, A. McFarlane and T. Workman.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.—W. Clixton, J. Mills, R. W. Errett, S. Clegg and D. H. Moore.

PRINTING COMMITTEE.—E. E. Henderson, J. C. T. Lacey and J. J. Hartley.

HALL COMMITTEE.—Dr. Bell, Bro. Kidd, D. H. Moore, J. R. Stratton, S. Clegg and A. McFarlane.

MILITARY CANTON COMMITTEE.—J. C. T. Lacey, T. Workman, R. Nimmo, J. D. Tully, A. McFarlane, D. H. Moore, Dr. Bell, S. Clegg, R. J. Lee and H. Long.

The estimates made point to about 400 delegates visiting Peterborough at the coming session of the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment. The four hundred will have to be received and entertained irrespective of the cantons militant, who are the independent military branch of the Order, and will number probably about 250. There will be six companies of the latter, forty two strong each.

For the cantons militant it is the intention of the local Oddfellows to procure a large building to serve as a barracks.

The entertainment to be furnished will be of such brilliance that it will attract thousands of visitors. The session will last four days. Full particulars will be given as the event approaches.

A STRAN GEPROCEEDING.

Photographing a Dead Wife—The Body Disinterred for that Purpose.

AVON, Mich., March 8.—Charles Adams recently startled and incensed the community by an act without a parallel in the history of the State. On February 8th Mrs. Adams died, and on the 21st was buried. On Friday Mr. Adams announced to a few friends that he intended to have his wife's body disinterred and a photograph taken of her as she lay in her coffin. Strenuous objection was made by Mrs. Adams' relatives, who urged that, as there were several good likenesses of Mrs. Adams, no excuse existed for the proposed desecration. Adams persisted, however, and early yesterday morning, with the sexton and his assistants, went to the cemetery and began throwing the frozen earth form the newly-made grave. In half an hour a crowd collected, among them the mother of Mrs. Adams and other more distant relatives, many of whom wept as the work proceeded. After an hours work the coffin was reached, and before the lid was removed Adams was again urged by Mrs. Adams' relatives not to persist in his work. He would not yield his preference, however, and though surrounded by a crowd of weeping and wailing women, and men who threatened violence, he ordered the lid to removed. This was done, and the face of the dead was exposed to view at the bottom of the grave. The coffin was lifted out and removed to where it could be placed against a background of snow-covered evergreens, and was photographed in the presence of fully one-half of the villagers. The lid was then replaced on the coffin and Mrs. Adams was buried a second time. Some of the towns people believe that Adams is insane.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

Russia Negotiating with England for a Settlement.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Star's London special says: M. de Stael, the Russian Ambassador, was the bearer of a fresh communication from the Czar to Lord Salisbury today on the Eastern Question. The interview was protracted. The Russian communication is understood to be pacific in tone and opening a way to the resumption of negotiations between the great powers for the appointment of a successor to Prince Alexander. M. de Stael informed Lord Salisbury that a similar communication had been sent to Vienna. Russia is willing to give England carte blanche in Egypt in consideration of the abandonment of English oppoition to Russian plans in the Balkan States. Vienna despatches confirm the statement that Russia has broken the reserve that has for some time characterized the relations of the two governments, and intimated a desire to reopen negotiatiions. It is added that the Austrian cavinet will welcome the opportunity to attempt a settlement. Peace prospects, would, therefore, be in the ascendant were it not for the extracts from the continental press wired which declare that, notwithstanding more pacific outside appearances, the situation is, in reality, growing more critical.

He Could Wait.

"What's the matter with the train, conductor?" asked a passenger: "do you expect to stop at every crossroad?" "If you don't like the way this tram is run," growled the conductor, "you can get off and walk." "Oh, I'm in no hurry," said the passenger.

ENNISMORE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEATHER NOTES.—There is an old Scotch proverb as follows: "February fills the ditches either with black or white." Our wee month now gone has fully verified the the latter prediction in filling every corner and crevice with white. Snow fell on 14 days, exactly the half of the month, to the depth of 2 ft. ¾ in., and some of the storms were accompanied with fierce driving gales, drifting the snow in all directions and especially into the roads, making them in many places impassable, and where travelling is now through the fields. On eight mornings the thermometer ranged below zero, the coldest being on the 25th when it was 16 deg. Rain fell on 5 days to the depth of 1 72-100 in., the heaviest being on the 8th, when from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m. it fell 95-100 of an inch. The mean temperature of the month has only been 15 deg., being below the average. We only had white frost on two mornings and auroral lights on two nights. The following are the different points from which the wind was blowing at sunrise during the month, namely: West, 4 days; south, 1 day; southeast, 8 days; northeast, 2 days; northwest, 6 days; north, 2 days; southwest, 3 days, and east 2 days.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Miss Shields died very suddenly on Friday last from inflammation of the lungs. The funeral was on Sunday and, considering the weather, was largely attended.

RUNAWAY.—A party consisting of members of the Salvation Army and others left here in the afternoon on Tuesday to attend a Salvation wedding in town. While going down the Douro road the team was overtaken by the train and ran away, the occupants being thrown out, but no one hurt. The train stopped at Nassau and took them on to town, the team being stopped in Douro.

NEWS NOTES.

The Maritime Bank, of St. John, N.B., suspended payment on Tuesday.

The death is announced of Frances Harriet, the wife of the Duke of Richmond.

General Middleton will start on his annual tour of inspection as soon as the snow disappears.

It is stated that the Railway Commission will not present their report to Parliament at the coming session.

It is stated England and Germany will endeavour to effect an amicable settlement of the dispute between Zanzibar and Portugal.

Owing to the unparalleled depth of snow in the woods this winter, the lumber cut in the Ottawa Valley will be reduced about 25 per cent.

If a well be poisoned, woe to those who drink thereat. It is worse to poison the fountain of life, for one's self and for posterity. Often by carelessness, or misfortune, or inheritance, this has been done. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood, and restores health.

The Russian Government has sent secret instructions to all the Government railway inspectors on the subject of the mobilization and transportation of troops.

The annual meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West was commenced in Toronto on Tuesday, about two hundred delegates being present.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the cure of colds, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. It affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

The Bishop of New Westminster read an able and interesting paper on British Columbia before the Colonial Institute in London yesterday, in which he highly eulogized the commercial advantages of the Canadian Pacific railway.

A special cablegram says the chairman of the Bank of British North America stated on Tuesday at the annual meeting that the opening of the Canadian Pacific railway tended greatly to advance the position of Canada and her financial institutions.

DR. PARKER'S TRIBUTE.

He Pronounces Mr. Beecher the Greatest Preacher Who Ever Lived.

LONDON, March 9.—Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker, pastor of the City Temple, publishes a tribute to Mr. Beecher's memory. He says he does not hesitate to pronounce Mr. Beecher the greatest preacher who ever lived, and continues: "We who have bowed with him in prayer know with what might of humility, penitence, faith and love he stormed the kingdom of heaven. His moral fearlessness was consistent throughout. It was in vain to threaten. Mr. Beecher having made up his mind, no Luther was better prepared to face loss, infamy or desertion. I never heard him say one unkind word to any enemy. When Mr. Beecher left my house he put his arms around my neck, kissed me and said: "Good bye, old fellow; I love you." These were the last words I heard from Mr. Beecher's lips. My house is larger and brighter because Mr Beecher tarried there. Mr. Beecher and his wife used to call themselves two old folks. Verily they might have been young lovers, so devoted were they to on another. I wish to be at Mr. Beecher's grave in spirit, to take one short look at the place where his body lies, and thereafter to look steadily upwards to the heaven to which he ascended."

Telegraph Negotiations.

NEW YORK, March 8.—The Sun's financial article says that its enquiries have resulted in some confirmation of the view that important negotiations are pending in telegraph matters. The indications are that some of the capitalists interested in the East Tennessee, Richmond terminal and other corporations have obtained some sort of an understanding between the Western Union and Baltimore & Ohio Companies, and the end to be accomplished is not only an improvement on the telegraph situation but of the railroad situation as well. Exactly what form the deal will take or whether it will be successfully concluded cannot be predicted.

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, seamstresses, housekeepers, and over-worked women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "Cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent Specific for all those Chronic Weaknesses and Diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It promptly cures weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating, weak back, nervous prostration, debility and sleeplessness, in either sex. Favorite Prescription is sold by druggists under our positive guarantee. See wrapper around bottle. Price $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

A large treatise on Diseases of Women, profusely illustrated with colored plates and numerous wood-cuts, sent for 10 cents in stamps. Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Forewarned

of danger by the condition of your blood, as shown in pimples, blotches, boils, or discolorations of the skin; or by a feeling of languor, induced, perhaps, by inactivity of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, you should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will renew and invigorate your blood, and cause the vital organs to properly perform their functions. If you suffer from

Rheumatism,

or Neuralgia, a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will relieve and cure you. Alice Kendall, 218 Tremont st., Boston, Mass., writes: "I have been troubled with Neuralgia, pain in the side, and weakness, and have found greater relief from Ayer's Sarsaparilla than from any other remedy." J. C. Tolman, 336 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "In no other remedy have I ever found such a happy relief from Rheumatism as in with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, there need be no fear of Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Catarrh, Liver troubles, or any of the diseases arising from Scrofulous taints in the blood. Geo. Garwood, Big Springs, Ohio, writes: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been used in my family for a number of years. I was a constant sufferer from

Dyspepsia,

but Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a permanent cure. Seven years ago my wife was troubled with Goitre: two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured her, and she has never had any return of the disease. I regard this preparation as the best medicine in use for the blood." B. Barnard Wair, 75 Adams st., Lynn, Mass., writes: "For many years I suffered terribly from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Scrofula. Almost hopeless, I took Ayer's Sar-

THE CITY AND SUBURBS

Hibernian by Name.

A gentleman named K. M. Ireland registered at the Grand Central Hotel on Wednesday. He came from Kingston.

Personal.

The Rev. A. Bell, of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, will deliver a lecture on "Why am I a Presbyterian?" in the Presbyterian Church at Havelock on Tuesday, March 15th.

FOR spring beds and bedding, carpets, and furniture of newest design and best quality, go to A. CLEGG'S.

The Ontario Rubber Coy.

Mr. R. Houghan is in the city representing the Provisional Directors of the Ontario Rubber Co. of Toronto for the manufacture of fine rubber shoes, the stock of which is being rapidly taken up by the best men of the west. Mr. Houghan can be seen at the Oriental until Friday evening.

The Harmony Club.

A company of five musicians from the Salvation headquarters, Toronto, will swoop down on Peterborough on Saturday and remain over Sunday. They will sing the halleujah songs in glorious style. The company will be composed of Staff-Capt. Griffith, Prof. Wiggins, Bapt. Ashton, Capt. Connet, and Cadet Dyke.

TURNBULL is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new designs. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

Social.

A social under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church will be held at the residence of Mr. Bruce Ferguson, Stewart street, on Friday evening March 11th, at half past seven o'clock. Refreshments will be served during the evening and a good musical programme will be provided. Admission 25 cents.

Fire Insurance.

The Mayor has issued a proclamation, in accordance with the voice of the Council calling a public meeting of the ratepayers to discuss the fire insurance question, and to devise means for lowering the rates The meeting will be held on Friday evening in the Council Chamber, not Thursday evening, as previously stated. Every person interested should attend.

Tennyson's Princess.

Mr. B. Earl will give a talk on the "Princess" in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Monday evening next, when a class to take up the study of English Literature will be formed. Mr. Earl has obligingly offered his valuable services gratis, and no charge will be made for attendance. Ladies and gentlemen, whether members of the Association ornot, are invited.

From Africa's Sands.

Mr. Sidney Blade, who served in the Soudan with the late John Sherlock, has presented Mayor Stevenson with a trophy he brought back from the east. It is an Arab's spear which he picked up on the battle field of Kirbercan, where General Earle fell. The spear head, which resembles the blade of a elongated trowel, is mounted on a tough wooden shaft about six feet long.

CORNICE POLES, window shades, a splendid line of stock engravings, and the newest designs in picture framing at A. CLEGG'S.

Trent Valley Canal.

A large number of mechanics arrived here this morning in charge of Mr. Laughren, to work on the Trent Valley Canal, and three sleighloads of them started immediately for the works at Burleigh. Mr. Goodwin, the contractor, is pushing on his operations so vigorously that early in July vessels will be able to pass through where once was Burleigh Big Chute.

Hindoo Dresses.

Among other things shown by the Rev Mr. Hallem at the Baptist Church on Tuesday evening were two Hindoo dresses The fashion of Peterborough would no doubt be interested to have seen them. The peculiarities of these dresses were: they had no sleeves, no skirts, no waists, no buttons or button holes, no hooks or no eyes—in fact there was no anything to them except a piece of prettily decorated cloth about a yard wide and five yards long. The rev. gentleman shook the garment out just as a dry goods clerk does when he goes to fold up a piece of goods, remarking at the same time that a Hindoo lady could in fifteen seconds, by using a few pins, attire herself in a very graceful manner with what he was showing his audience.

MISS MAHONEY has just returned after two weeks absence in the wholesale millinery markets where she has been picking up all the latest novelties and styles. Ladies will find everything new in Millinery at Turnbull's.

No. 6.

Capt. Cooper's company will meet for drill in the old Music Hall this evening.

Town Council.

A meeting of the Town Council has been called for three o'clock to-morrow afternoon for general business.

NEW Tapestry Curtains for parties just received at A. CLEGG'S.

$50 of a Surplus.

Mr. Jos. Daly, the treasurer of the Peterborough Driving Club, reports a surplus on hand of $50 over and above all expenses from the recent races on the Little Lake. This money will be kept in hand until next winter, when it will be put into a purse for another ice meeting.

What a U. S. President Said.

Garfield said that the education obtained at a business college was worth more than the scholarship of Harvard, Yale or Princeton. The Peterborough Business College imparts the most practical instruction. For catalogues, &c., address Bannell Sawyer, Chartered Accountant and Examiner.

Lindley.

The play of Phœnix was rendered at the Opera House on Wednesday night to a fair sized house, Harry Lindley taking the principal part. Saturday promises to be a red letter day. Sal Walters and Mr. Daly, after scouring the country for three or four days, have succeeded in buying the cow, to be drawn on Saturday night. The lucky one having the right number will come into possession of the "critter." Those who can't get into the hall to-morrow night may take advantage of to-night's performance.

It May be Remarked.

—That the fire insurance business is the talk now.

—That the people will vent their various opinions to-morrow evening.

—That, speaking of fire insurance, the Oddfellows are going to have a big time next summer.

—That Harry Lindley has bought his cow.

—That Sal Walters says its a real cow, and some one will get it.

—That the ladies manage the Protestant Home; there is no deficit.

In Campbellford.

The Campbellford Herald says:—"Mr. Williams, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Peterborough, called at this office on Monday. He was on his way to Stirling to assist in the organization of an association in that village. During his stay of several hours, here, he visited a few gentlemen to ascertain their opinion regarding a Y. M. C. A. in Campbellford. He thinks that with so large a population of young men an association of this kind should flourish here. The matter will be taken into consideration, and perhaps something will be done to organize during the next summer."

Walking.

The beautiful, beautiful, snow is fast disappearing, to the joy of Terry Smith and the disconfiture of pedestrians. All week the walking has been something dreadful. People who have had a couple quarts of water ripple into their boots while on the sidewalk have taken the Inspector's task and tried the road—with a similar result. On Wednesday evening Councillor Yelland was observed to be industriously plying the shovel and axe in front of his carriage factory. Some interperted his action to mear an exposition of his temperance principles—let the water flow freely. Others said that he was out making a start on the T. V. C. between Peterborough and Lakefield.

Fell on the Horses.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. Ryan, of Douro, put his team of horses in the American Hotel shed. Mr. Wm. Moher drove up and tied his fast horse alongside. Mr. Ryan went up about four o'clock to take his horses out, but just as he was about to do so a friend of his called him away to look at some horses it another part of the yard. While the two were crossing the yard the shed, which was heavily loaded with ice and snow, came down with a crash on the backs of the three horses. They were crushed to the earth. A number of men began to remove the debris and in a short time by the use of axes and hand the horses were liberated. Mr. Ryan's horses were little hurt, but Mr. Moher,s received several wounds. Fortunately they were all flesh wounds, and under Dr. Stephenson's care will soon heal. Mr. Moher says that his horse can do a mile in considerably less than three minutes. He has frequently refused $300 for him.

BULGARIAN INSURGENTS.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, March 9.—A small band of Bulgarian insurgents has made a raid across the Turkish frontier and cut the telegraph line between Harmanli and Haskovo.

AMERICAN LEGATION EXONERATED.

LONDON, March 9.—Commander Chadwick, United States Naval Attache in London, had an interview to-day with Vice-Admiral William Graham, controller of the navy, in relation to the statements that Draughtsman Terry revealed the secrets of naval designs to the American legation. The controller said these were merely newspaper assertions, and that as far as the stories connected anybody in the legation with the dockyard treachery they were entirely false.

LONDON, March 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone have gone to visit Windsor.

WILL TERRY BE PROSECUTED.

LONDON, March 9.—The question will be raised in Parliament why the Government should not prosecute the dismissed draughtsman Terry for breach of trust.

THE ARMY BILL.

BERLIN, March 9.—The Septennate bill was called up for a second reading to-day. Herr Stauffenberg's amendment proposing that the term of the bill be three instead of seven years, was rejected by 231 to 222. Eighty-eight members abstained from voting. The Polish and Alsatian members were absent. The Polish Socialists voted with the minority.

ACTIVITY IN KRUPP'S WORKS.

BERLIN, March 9.—Extraordinary activity is disylaped at the Krupp works in Essen. New buildings are required to enable the works to complete the orders for guns for the German Government within the specified time.

IRISH CRIMES BILL.

LONDON, March 9.—Lord Hartington has offered the Government the solid vote of the seventy Unionists for the Irish Crimes Bill. The opinions of his followers, privately ascertained, favoured stronger coercion than the bill proposes.

BELGIAN'S NEUTRALITY.

BRUSSELS, March 9.—One of the ablest officers in the Belgian army has published a pamphlet in which he cites numerous reasons, which he holds to be conclusive, to show that France, in the event of another Franco-German war, will invade Germany through Belgian territory.

COMMERCIAL PANIC.

LONDON, March 9.—There was a panic on the Bourse at Odessa yesterday. Exchange on London had fallen heavily. The panic was attributed to military movements in Southern Russia.

Dawson Elected in Algoma.

PORT ARTHUR, March 9.—Complete returns give Mr. Dawson a majority of about thirty in Algoma.

It Silenced the Barber.

"How would you like to have your hair cut?" asked the barber. "With the scissors," replied the customer, and silence fell on the place with a dull thud.

One Reason Why.

She—I don't see why women should not make as good swimmers as men.

He—Yes—but you see a swimmer has to keep his mouth shut.

Was No Mermaid.

Fashionable Young Lady—If I give you some money will you promise me to go and take a bath?

Beggar—A bath! And is it a mermaid that you take me for?

Another "Colonist."

BOSTON, March 9.—Wm. C. Hickeman has joined the American colony in Canada after having, it is alleged, swindled Boston capitalists out of between $30,000 and $50,000. Hickman claimed to have a formula for manufacturing articles called "sugarine" out of common starch. Several capitalists became interested and furnished considerable sums of money, which, it is said, Hickman divered to his own uses.

Butterworth's Opinion.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Representative Butterworth, member of the House Conference Committee on the Fortifications bill, which failed, says: He considered it for the good of the country that no Fortification bill was passed. He thought the passage of a bill for warlike preparations must have retarded the movement for complete reciprocity between this country and Canada.

The Morrisburg Floods.

OTTAWA, March 9.—Major Anderson, chief engineer Marine Department, denies the statement attributed to him that the ice bridge across the St. Lawrence between Morrisburg and Farran's Point, which will likely lead to great destruction of property, was constructed by smugglers. He has just returned from there, and reports the water rising and fears that great damage will follow. The bridge was merely built to enable the residents on Croil's Island to get from shore to shore easily.

To Arms! To Arms!

Young ladies, there is a work for you to do. God calls for it, society looks for it and duty demands it. Buckle on the armor of perseverance and self-denial, and sally forth with shield in hand and sword unsheathed to the call of Christ, and "Home and Native Land." Young ladies, we want you to come out and help us in this work of transformation. We have a good opening now in the Young Woman's Mission, through which we may pass to the bedside of the sick and dying with the refreshing flowers of thoughtfulness, to the home of the poor and destitute with the garment of warmth and bread to revive, to the inebriate father and hopeless mother with a word of comfort and cheer, and also to seek employment for those who are discouraged with the buffeting of this cold world. Girls, will you give this your earnest thought and grateful attention?

THEY WANT THEIR SHARE.

The Daughters of the American Contest His Will.

CHICAGO, March 9.—A bill was filed in court here yesterday by Mary and Lizzie Webster, and Annie W. Corlett, children of the late Richard R. Webster, whose death in Canada last autumn is being investigated by the Canadian authorities, to set the will of their father aside. Mr. Webster was worth $30,000, which, by his will probated last month, was all left to his son, Wm. E. Webster. The three daughters and Mrs Annie Webster widow of the deceased, were cut off without a shilling. Charges have been heretofore made in the litigation pending among the Webster family that Wm. E. Webster procured the execution of the will in his favor by undue means. The complainants charge that their brother spirited the decease away so that his family could not find him and kept him concealed in Upper Michigan and Canada where his mind is asserted to nave been systematically poisoned against his wife and daughters.

NORWOOD.

FOOTBALL.—A meeting of the Norwood High School Football Club was held March 2nd, when the following officers were elected:—Honorary President, Mr. Roxburgh; Vice-President, Mr. A. Hutchinson; Sec-Treas, Mr. H. Anderson; Counsellor, Mr. J. Spence: Curator, Mr. F. Roxburgh; Captain, Mr. H. Bewell;

OBITUARY.—It is with feelings of deepest regret that we annouce the death of Maggie Rork, second youngest daughter of Mr. Thomas Rork, of this village. The sad event took place on Monday evening last after a short illness. The young lady was a bright, intelligent girl of nineteen years, and her amiability and readiness at all times to contribute to the happiness of others had rendered her a general favorite. Many anxious inquires were made during her brief illness; many earnest prayers were offered up that her life might be spared; and all that medical aid could do to avert death was done, but in vain. L'homme propose, mais Dieu dispose. During her illness her mind was directed towards heavenly things and divine, and before her decease the most emphatic assurances were given that she was trusting in Christ, and that our loss would be her eternal gain. The remains were followed to their last resting place on Wednesday by a very large concourse of friends, many of whom came a great distance to pay their last tribute of affection to one so loved. Appropriate religious services were held at the house by the Rev. J. Carmichael. The parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.—Register.

THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1887.

A GLOBE CLAIM.

THE Globe is very much disgusted at the signal defeat of its friends in this Province, as in others, after all its boasting. To detract from the victory of the Conservatives, it is having recourse to all sorts of falsifications, of which the following is a specimen:—

"The combined Tory majorities in North and South Ontario amounted to [illegible]. The Liberal majority in West Ontario was 599. By virtue of the gerrymander a minority of the people have a majority of the representatives in Parliament where they should have none. As in Bruce, so in Ontario county; two seats have been directly stolen from the people."

The official returns really show that the municipalities forming the county of Ontario gave a Conservative majority of over a hundred and twenty. It is, therefore, reasonable, in spite of the objections of the Globe, that the Conservatives of the county of Ontario should win two out of the three seats. But the Globe pushes its claims to an extent that is really amusing. It says that the two Conservative seats have been stolen from the people of Ontario county, so it actually wants all three seats for the Reformers of the county, though they have a majority of more than a hundred and twenty against them.

LINDSAY VICTORIOUS.

They Win the Governor-General's Trophy.

The match played between the Lindsay and Peterborough Curling Clubs at Ottawa on Thursday resulted in a win for Lindsay by 20 shots.

The match played in the forenoon was closely contested. From the beginning Rutherford led Flavelle, but at the 23rd and 24th ends Flavelle got ahead and won by three.

At noon the clubs dined with His Excellency. The Governor-General presided at the table, with skips to the right of him and skips to the left of him.

During the afternoon His Excellency was present and watched the game with much apparent interest.

The afternoon match was all one-sided. McMurtry got the lead and not only kept it but increased it as he went along.

The following is the score:—

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

A Sitting of One Hour's Duration—A Number of Private Bills Introduced —Local Timber Cutting.

WEDNESDAY, March 9.—A number of petitions were presented.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

A number of bills were introduced, principally private bills.

LOCAL TIMBER CUTTING.

Mr. WOOD (Hastings) moved for a return of the number of standard logs cut by local millowners by authority of the Crown Lands Department from the timber of limit holders during the year 1886. Such return to give the location of mills, names of millowners, with the amount each paid by the way of dues to the Department, and to the owner of limits, with a copy of the Departmental regulations affecting the same. He said he wished to obtain information in reference to these mills. There had been no complaints as to the management of the Department, but in regard to the principle of conducting these matters. Parties having local mills were bound to pay the Government and the limit owner. The ground on which the limit owners charged the sum of 15 cents per log was that they had to pay ground rent to Government. This sum, it was said, was in excess of what ought to be paid.

Mr. PARDEE said that the sum charged the local millowner was as low as possible under the circumstances.

The motion was carried and the House adjourned at 4 p.m.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Cardinal Gibbons Explains his Position in Regard to the Order.

ROME, March 10.—In an interview, to-day Cardinal Gibbons said his and Mgr. Stranieri's reports, although published through a wonderful stroke of newspaper enterprise, were in the first instance confidential. The Cardinal said: "I am and ever shall be an enemy of the plutocracy of soulless corporations and men. The Catholic church will take the side of the weaker against the stronger in all cases. The organization of the secret societies. Mr. Powderly and many other chiefs are good Catholics. Above all I wish it to be known that there is no essential divergence between myself and the Archbishop of Quebec on this subject. The French Canadian society is not that of the United States, and perhaps the French ecclesiastic of administrative mind is more inclined to take alarm than we, and to see revolutions behind every hedge. America is quite able to take care of itself and the interests of American citizens. It will be time enough to consider all sorts of side issues when they are raised."

THE LANSDOWNE ESTATES.

The Governor-General's Explanation on the Charges Made Against Him.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 10.—In answering the charges of harsh treatment towards his Irish tenants which have been recently made against Lord Lansdowne, the following explanation was obtained from His Excellency last evening:—

It appears that a scheme for the eviction of a number of cottagers upon diffrent parts of Lord Lansdowne's estate at the expense of the ratepayers, under the "Laborers' Act of 1883," was promoted more than a year ago by the Local Board, which is entirely in the hands of the Nationalists. The scheme was resisted by Lord Lansdowne, upon the grounds that the cottages were, in several cases, unnecessary, and that where additional cottage accommodation was required he was prepared to supply it himself. Thus, in one case, the person for whom the cottage was intended was not resident on Lord Lansdowne's property; in two others, the erection of the proposed cottages was strongly objected to by the tennants on whose land it was proposed to build them; while in another case the site had been chosen by local authorities in the centre of the grounds of Lord Lansdowne's private residence in contravention of the express provisions of the Act. In other cases the landlord had offered to build the requisite cottages himself. Lord Lansdowne's tennants did not adopt the "plan of campaign" until Nov. 1886, months after the incidents referred to. The "plan of campaign" was adopted on this estate in consequence of Lord Lansdowne's refusal to allow the tenants upon it a sale of abatements identical with that allowed to his tenants in the county of Kerry. The Kerry tenants are, without exception, occupants of small holdings in a mountainous country with little or no capital except their labor, and have experienced exceptional losses during the last season. The reasons for which these tenants were, in Lord Lansdowne's opinion, entitled to a special measure of indulgence, were fully stated in a letter published in the Irish papers in October last, and re published by the Canadian press. Lord Lansdowne's Queen's County tenants belong, on the other hand, to an entirely different class, the greater portion of the estate being held by large farmers, many of whom pay several hundreds a year each for their holdings. The two ringleaders against whom Lord Lansdowne is now proceeding are rented approximately at £800 and £1,300 a year respectively. These, as well as other tenants who have adopted the "plan of campaign," although they have held under lease for many years past and were therefore protected from an increase of rent when the prices of agricultural produce were high, constantly received abatements during the recent period of depression and were, in November last, offered reductions averaging between 15 and 20 per cent. The dwellings upon the estate are, as a rule, of a superior class, the largest tenants being without exception provided with excellent houses. Evidence was given by Lord Lansdowne before a Royal Commission, that during the past twenty years $20,000 had been spent by him and his predecessors in executing improvements for the tenants on this estate, and that the percentage charged upon this large outlay to those for whose benefit it was incurred, amounted to three hundred a year. As an indication of the nature of the relations which existed upon this property between landlord and tenants previous to the agitation now in progress, I may be mentioned that during the past twelve years only one action for non-payment of rent had taken place upon the whole property.

RAILWAY CONSOLIDATION.

Negotiations Concluded Concerning the B. and O. and other Railways.

NEW YORK, March 9.—The Times announces that the control of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway company has passed into the hands of Mr. Alfred Sully, of New York. Negotiations with President Garrett have been in progress for some time. Yesterday and late into last night there were important meetings relative to the transaction. To-day Mr. Sully will be able to show a written contract by virtue of which Mr. Garrett puts him in possession. The combination acquired includes the Central R. R. of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, Richmond Terminal, Richmond and Danville properties, East Tennessee, Virginia, and Georgia lines, Central Railway of Georgia and Baltimore & Ohio and of all properties there is close communication with the representative of Mr. Sully, but it may be stated authoritively as yet that Mr. Gould be admitted to no share in the deal, and if there is to be any settlement of the telegraph war the terms of that settlement are yet to be arranged. Mr. Gould expects to see Mr. Sully personally to-day. A despatch to the Tribune from Baltimore says that it is believed that arrangements were practically completed, by which Mr. Garrett will sell his interest in the Baltimore & Ohio Railway. The understanding is that Mr. Garrett has acquired stock held by the John S. Hopkins University (about 15,000 shares), and will transfer these shares, together with those previously owned by the Garrett family, and with whatever amount a stock additional may be necessary to give control of the property to the Syndicate, headed by Mr. Alfred Sully, Gen. Saml Thomas and Calvin S. Brice. Leading spirits in the Richmond terminal understood the Syndicate, when it comes into possession of the property, to be made one great trunk line with 16,000 miles of track. There is no longer any question about how the Baltimore & Ohio road is to get an entrance to New York. The Jersey Central and Reading lines give that, and with the control of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway Company goes also the control of the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph Company. It is considered probable that Mr. Garrett will continue in the presidency. Some of the strongest and most influential moneyed interests in this country and Europe are with Mr. Sully in his new venture, or are about to become affiliated with him. Mr. Calvin S. Brice and Gen. Thomas, of East Tennessee, and the Virginia and Georgia Railway syndicate were invited into Mr. Sully's confidence some time ago, as was Mr. John G. Moore, the head of the Wall street firm of Moore & Schley, Messrs. Drexel, Morgan & Co., Brown, Brothers & Co., Winslow, Lanier & Co., and other influential bankers are quoted as cognizant of being interested in it. Mr. Jay Gould has been for some days in hopes to negotiate a contract with the Pennsylvania road by which the line built by the Baltimore & Ohio between Baltimore and Philadelphia will be sold to Pennsylvania, and a contract with the Western Union Telegraph Co., by which it will acquire the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph lines. As an additional consequence of the change of control of the railway, the Company's express business will be absorbed by one of the great express companies of the country. The object of these sales will be to relieve the Company of a heavy floating debt. It is stated by some to be as high as fifteen millions, and and it is hardly claimed by any one to be less than nine or ten million, which have been run up in course of Mr. Garrett's management. The amount of Baltimore & Ohio common stock now outstanding is $14,792,566, and of preferred, $5,000,000. The city of Baltimore owns 8,150 shares and has seven directors on the the Board; the State of Maryland holds a large interest, and has four directors while individual stock holders are represented by twelve directors. The understanding is that Mr. Garrett has given an option on a controlling amount of five hundred stock at a price not yet known, Gen. Saml. F. Thomas said, last evening:—"I am not in a position to talk about this transaction, for it has not yet been consumated. Negotiations have been made favorable to its progress, and have reached a stage where I think there is reason to expect that the wildest of the hopes of those who are aiming at reconciliation will be realized.

NOT ENDED YET.

Russia Endeavoring to Foment A Fresh Rebellion in Bulgaria.

LONDON, March 10.—Official advices received by the Government do not confirm the report that the rebellion in Bulgaria is ended. It has transpired that Russian officers, newly arrived in Bucharest, have received large sums of money for the use of Russian agents in the Balkan states. Documentary evidence discovered by the Bulgarian authorities has been submitted to the English diplomatic agents showing that a fresh rebellion is in preparation. Copies of these documents have been forwarded by agents to Vienna and London. These seizures have improved the chances of an early selection of a Bulgarian Prince, the majority of the powers hoping to force Russia to a settlement before further complications arise. The Bulgarian Regency were advised by England and Austria last night, in order to avoid further difficulty with Russia, to commute the death sentence on all the remaining prisoners tried by court martial to penal servitude for life. In accordance with this advice the prisoners, with few exceptions, were turned over to the civil authorities. From Vienna it is telegraphed that the Czar, who, until recently, was extremely reserved on Bulgarian matters has, since the failure of the rising, frequently expressed his displeasure at the result, and referred in threatening terms of the treatment due to usurpers and ingrates, who have seized the government of the country.

CHAMBERLAIN'S ADVICE.

LONDON, March 9.—At a Unionist meeting last evening Mr. Chamberlain said that although he held to the hope that improved relations with the Gladstonians would be established, he would advise his friends to be cautious about accepting reports of a re-union. He said that the Unionist position and policy of supporting the Government had undergone no material change.

ARRESTED AND RELEASED.

LONDON, March 10.—Mr. Wilkinson, the military correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, was arrested by the Austrian authorities at Cracow yesterday, as a Russian spy. He was released after twelve hours' imprisonment.

GERMAN AUTHORITIES ON TOP.

BERLIN, March 10.—Two hundred anti-German societies and clubs in Alsace-Lorraine have been dissolved by the authorities.

STEREOTYPED VERDICTS.

DUBLIN, March 10.—The session of the Limerick assizes was suddenly closed, owing to the fact that the juries constantly returned verdicts of acquittal. The counsel for the Crown applied for an adjournment of the remaining cases.

LORD SALISBURY'S IDEA.

LONDON, March 10.—Count Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador in London, had a long interview with Lord Salisbury at the Foreign office yesterday. The Prime Minister suggested that an attempt be made to open communication between France and Germany with a view to the removal of misconceptions and the re establishment of a friendly understanding. Lord Salisbury thinks that a gradual, mutual disarmament will restore confidence and destroy the danger of war.

THE "PLAN OF CAMPAIGN."

LONDON, March 10.—Earl Spencer, speaking at Cambridge last night, said that he regretted that the "plan of campaign" had been adopted. It was a dangerous movement, but he thought it only fair to say that the Government was in a great measure responsible for the adoption of the plan, because it had refused to consider Mr. Parnell's bill. He denied that the Irish leaders in Parliament had ever sanctioned the commission of crimes and that the Government would never secure law and order by repressive measures.

GLADSTONE AND THE QUEEN.

LONDON, March 10.—Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Morley were guests of the Queen, and dined with her Majesty yesterday. This significant honor to Mr. Gladstone, who never was lower in court favor than since the introduction of the Home Rule bill, is much commented on at the political clubs, and is regarded as a proof that the Queen is convinced that Mr. Gladstone will soon be back in power.

GEN. BULLER'S EVIDENCE.

LONDON, March 10.—A sensation has been caused by the publication of Gen. Sir Redvers Buller's evidence before the Land Commission. It appears that General Buller testified that what law there was in Counties Kerry, Clare an Cork was on the side of the rich, and he expressed the opinion that it would be a serious matter, with their grievances unredressed, to attempt to suppress by force the tenants' right to openly associate for the protection of their interests. A majority of the tenants, he said, struggled to pay their rents, and where they could did pay; but in a great many cases the rents were too high. He said there would never be peace in Ireland until there had been established a court having strong coercive powers over bad landlords and protective powers over poor tenants.

HOW THE PLOT FAILED.

BUCHAREST, March 10.—It is stated that M.M. Renderoff and Grueff should have led the revolt of troops at Silistria, but fearing to cross the Danube owing to floating ice, sent a fisherman on ahead with enclosed instructions for commander of the garrison. The fisherman, either by accident or design, took the papers to the prefect of the town instead of the commander. The latter hearing that the authorities had got wind of the plot, started the revolt prematurely, and thus probably prevented its successful accomplishment.

INVITATION TO THE POWERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 10.—Before the recent executions at Rustchuk were known in St. Petersburg, Russia invited the powers to use their influence with the Bulgarian Regency to prevent the commission of atrocities during the struggle of the political parties in Bulgaria for power. The invitation was not received by any of the powers before the executions had taken place.

SOUDANESE REBELS.

CAIRO, March 10.—It is reported that the Soudanese rebels are advancing in force from Dongola upon Wady Halfa.

OPPOSITION TO COERCION.

LONDON, March 10.—Mr. Gladstone has informed his party that he himself will lead the opposition to the Coercion bill in Parliament. The Liberals will continue their efforts against the bill until Easter, maintaining in the meantime an active agitation throughout the country.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE.

LONDON, March 10.—The Times publishes a despatch from Vienna positively affirming that the alliance between Italy, Germany and Austria has been renewed, but for a term of three instead of five years.

RUSSIA WILL NOT PROTEST.

LONDON, March 10.—The Standard's correspondent at St. Petersburg says the Russian Government will take no action with reference to the executions at Rustchuk.

FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1887.

HARD WORK.

Mr. Paterson, of Brantford, might appropriately make a few alterations in a part of the speech he delivered in the Opera House before the recent election and give it again. We refer to his remarks on the Senate, and those orators who repeated them throughout the county might make use of them again, only changing the Senate to Ontario Legislature, after this style: The Legislature met on Feb. 10th, elected a Speaker and listened to the Lieutenant-Governor's speech. The speech having been written by Mr. Mowat, was so prosy that it wearied the members greatly, and the House adjourned until March 1st, having been in session two hours. On March 1st the members again assembled. After prayers several petitions were presented. Whether it was the petitions or the prayers that made the members tired the records do not say, but the House adjourned, after being in session a few minutes. On March 2nd the address in reply to the speech from the Throne was adopted. The members did very well, considering, that day, as they spent about four hours in the House. They evidently struck for shorter hours however, four hours a day being too long for them, as the next day they only worked less that an hour and adjourned till next day. On March 4th (Friday) they received some petitions and heard one bill read a first time, which took about fifteen minutes, and then formed a procession which proceeded to Government House with the address. They returned before four o'clock, but the walk of a few yards, or the four line speech written by Mr. Mowat and spoken by the Lieutenant-Governor, had wearied them to such an extent that they adjourned until Monday to recuperate. On Monday they re-assembled. A few petitions were read and some returns laid on the table, which took nearly half an hour. It was blue Monday, however, and the House then adjourned for the day. On Tuesday the members chatted for nearly half an hour, passed interim estimates and again adjourned. On Wednesday a Tory member made a little speech, and Mr. Pardee replied. This made the Government too tired to bring forward any business and again the members dispersed, the sitting having lasted nearly an hour. A month had elapsed since the Legislature had been called together, but the time spent in the House by the members was less than ten hours, about an average of twenty minutes a day, which was, perhaps, doing very well for Mr. Mowat's Parliament.

After making Mr. Paterson's speech, as thus revised, the orators would no doubt call for the abolition of the Ontario Legislature.

SYSTEMATIZED SLANDER.

The professional slanderers and falsifyers who earn their degraded living on the staff of the Ottawa Free Press, have invented the following calumny:—

"An instance has come to light at a poll in North Renfrew, showing how Mr. Peter White's majority was rolled up. There were 37 names on the voters' list, and 36 persons only voted; but 39 ballots were found in the box. Mr. White naturally had a majority at this poll. Three additional ballots in each box distributed over some fifty polls will total a respectable majority."

And all the little Grit papers that have not the brains to invent, but have the malice to circulate, such slanders are eagerly republishing the invention of the Free Press.

The whole story is a deliberate falsehood, part of the organized tactics of the Opposition to assail the Conservative Administration and its supporters with incessant false charges in the hope that the people, being unable always to expose the falsehood, may believe at least a portion of it.

The official return for North Renfrew shows that there was not one polling place where less than 40 votes were cast. There were only two polling places where 50 votes or less were given. At both of these there was a Reform, not a Conservative, majority, McRae's school house, where the vote stood 33 Reform to 16 Conservative, and Connaught, where the poll stood 43 Reform to 7 Conservative. There was not a single polling place giving a Conservative majority where the vote polled was less than 75. Thus it will be seen that this vile calumny invented by the Free Press is without a shadow of foundation.

It may be difficult to punish adequately the miscreants who thus vilify their betters for political objects, but it is certain that there are far honester men in the Penitentiary. The Ottawa Free Press is about the worst offender of them all.

The Belleville Ontario informs the world that "every honest man must know that the extension of the franchise is a cardinal principle of the Liberal platform." Then Mr. Mowat and his colleagues either cannot be honest men or they cannot be on the Liberal platform, for they have obstinately resisted the proposals of Mr. Meredith and his supporters for the extension of the franchise to the extent of manhood suffrage.

The Premier's Kindness.

Ottawa, March 10.—Shortly before he died yesterday, the late Mr. W. H. Fraser, Dominion appraiser, expressed a wish to see Sir John Macdonald. Word was sent to Earnscliff, and hurrying through with a deputation waiting upon him, the Premier started for the residence of the deceased, where he remained for two hours, and not leaving the bedside of the dying man until life had become almost extinct.

JACOB AT BETHEL.

DR. CURTISS' NOTES ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Lesson XI of the International Series for Sunday, March 13—Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxviii, 10-22—Golden Text, Gen. xxviii, 16.

Isaac—In due time Isaac was married, and had two sons. The story of his life shows what blessings came to him from God's covenant with his father, Abraham. The angel of Jehovah went before him, and caused his way to prosper. His marriage with Rebekah, however, introduced into the family those distinctive traits of sharpness and commercial thrift which characterize the Jews to-day.

Jacob and Esau—Isaac's sons were twins. The first, Esau, impulsive, generous and fond of the chase, was his father's favorite. The second, crafty, politic and a keeper at home, was beloved of his mother.

In those times, as is the case now in some countries, the first born son enjoyed special privileges. This was pre-eminently the case not only because the eldest son became chief of his clan, but also because the blessings of the covenant were especially his.

Esau one day, when very hungry, becoming a slave of his appetite, sold his birthright to his brother for a mess of pottage. While we must characterize this act of Jacob, in taking advantage of Esau's hunger to buy his birthright, as the height of meanness and most unbrotherly, we must say that a man who would sell his birthright for an appetizing dish, even when hungry, was not fit to have it (compare Gen. xxv, 34; Heb. xii, 16) and to be an heir of the noble promises made to Abraham.

So, too, Rebekah's device for Jacob to secure the blessing which belonged to Esau as the elder son was contemptible (Gen. xxvii, 8-17). While Jacob objected, it was simply because he feared that his father would discover the deception. Nevertheless, Jacob was far superior to Esau in his natural traits, for he possessed force of character and a worthy ambition, while his brother was of that good hearted, careless temperament which not only makes a young man an easy prey to his passions, but also to temptations from without.

The subsequent history shows that God did not approve at all of these acts of Jacob in getting the advantage of Esau, and punished him severely for his deception by twice making him the victim of deception in his own family.

But Jacob was the child of the covenant. The rich blessings which God had promised to Abraham was to be his. Even Isaac recognized this fact, and gave him a benediction before he died. The wonderful leadings of God's special guidance of his chosen people and of their progenitors is illustrated in the lesson which follows, and we shall see how God causes all things to work together for good to those that love him (Rom. viii, 28).

THE LESSON.

Jacob's Flight (v. 10)—To avoid the murderous revenge of Esau, Jacob was compelled to leave his home, Beer-sheba. He started, therefore, for Haran in Mesopotamia, where Abraham had once lived when on his way from Ur to the promised land, that he might have an asylum from his brother, and that he might find a wife who would be in religious sympathy with him. It was a trying thing for him, as it is for every young man, thus to leave home.

The Ladder (vs. 11-15)—But his father's God was with him, although he seems to have been unconscious of his near presence.

He lay down to sleep at a certain place, and as he slept he dreamed. He saw a ladder extending from heaven to earth, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon it. While he gazed with wonder, Jehovah himself stood beside him (Revised Version, margin; compare Gen. xviii, 2), and, telling him that he was the God of Abraham, his father, and of Isaac, he repeated the promise already made to Abraham—that his descendants should occupy the land, that they should have a wonderful increase, and that in him as the head of the family, and in his seed, which was finally to culminate in the Messiah, all the nations of the earth were to be blessed. He also added the precious assurance that he was with him, would keep him whithersoever he might go, and would bring him back again to the promised land.

Why Was Jacob Afraid? (vs. 16, 17)—The sleep from which Jacob awoke was a natural sleep, but the dream was sent by God himself to comfort his servant. His first sensation when he realized that God was in the place was that of fear. This could only come from a sense of his sinfulness. In this respect his experience was like that of Isaiah (Isa. vi, 5) and Peter (Luke v, 8). Like Abraham, he had not yet clearly grasped the truth that God was everywhere; so that when he realizes that God is attending him, he feels his unworthiness. To his very incomplete religious experience the place where God had been seemed dreadful. The thought that he had been in God's house and at the very gate of heaven inspired him with awe.

Bethel (vs. 18, 19)—The stone which he had put under his head on going to rest he raises up as a pillar in commemoration of the event, and pours the oil of consecration on it. After such an experience he gives the place a new name—Bethel, or house of God. It was quite in accord with the Oriental way of giving names that he should embody one of the most solemn experiences of his life in a name, and it was natural that one who was to be possessor of the land should begin to give the places distinctive designation.

Jacob's Vow (vs. 20-22)—Even Jacob's vow is characteristic. He sees the advantage of having God's protection and help, and promises that, if God will bless him, he will give him a tenth of all that he has. The Scripture does not commend Jacob as an example in this unspiritual view of his relation to God. Really he seeks to make a bargain with God as he would with a powerful man. He evidently had not learned that all that he possessed belonged to God.

From this passage, as well as from the account of the tithe which Abraham gave to Melchizedek (Gen. xiv, 20), it is evident that two of the patriarchs, at least, on one or more occasions gave a tenth of what they had to God. Their descendants (Deut. xiv, 22, etc.) afterward followed the same custom. It is often argued from these examples that we should give a tenth of our income to God. The New Testament, however, sets a higher standard. We are not to make a gain of godliness (I Tim. vi, 5, Revised Version), and to give because we thereby expect to insure prosperity (Prov. xi, 25). The New Testament teaches that all we possess belongs to God, and that we are simply stewards (Matt. xxv, 14-27); that property and talents are given us simply to be administered for him. Hence it is doubtless the duty of many to give far more than a tenth.

POINTS TO BE REMEMBERED.

1. It is a great blessing to be a child of the convent.
2. Men lose everything that is desirable in this world and in that which is to come by yielding to their appetites.
3. The fact that the sins of good men are recorded in the Bible does not show that God is indifferent to them. Jacob had to pay dearly for his deception.
4. God causes all things to work together for those who love him.
5. God is with his children everywhere to keep and help them.
6. All that we have belongs to God. The least that we can give him is a tenth of what he has already given us.—Sunday School World.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

THE MARKET REPORTS.

REVIEW OFFICE,
Thursday Evening.

The chief thing to be noted this week is the great advance in wheat. From 76 cents per bushel, which was paid last Thursday, it went up to 82 on Wednesday of this week. It has again receded to 80 which price was paid for both spring and fall this afternoon. The rise is due to war talk and a large export trade. Pork is firm at 6.25 to 6.50. Several car loads were brought in this week. Eggs have taken a drop in price of about five cent per dozen.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

Over Cox & Co.'s Wires.

CHICAGO, March 10.—To-day's noon cash quotations are as follows:—Wheat, 76¾; corn, 36¼; oats, 24¾; pork, $20.61; lard, $7.85.

Horses.

The Montreal Gazette says:—The horse market continues active owing to the good demand from American buyers, who are shipping largely to the United States where the marke is active with a brisk demand for good drivers, workers and saddle horses, which are fetching good prices there. The receipts of horses during the past week by the Grand Trunk railway were 162 head.

Movement in Wheat.

Milemane, Bodman & Co.'s weekly report says in regard to wheat movements:

"Receipts at the primary markets during the week have been comparatively light, aggregating 850,000 bushels, against 1,400,000 bushels during the first week in February, and two and a quarter millions the first week in January. The reduction from last week is about 90,000 bushels. The smallness of the movement is in part attributed to severe weather in the North-West, as Minneapolis received only 347,000 bushels, against 587,000 the preceding week, and Duluth again reports nil. With the advent of warmer weather and good roads a material increase will be expected at both places, provided also the latter port can get rid of some of the present stock.

"The export movement from the three largest Atlantic ports is about one and three quarter million bushels. Shipments the 1st and 2nd having been over a million; since then they have been light, and but little new business is reported to-day. It is the largest week's shipments, however, thus far this year, and ought to be sufficient to prevent any decrease on passage by the next report.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "as bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. 25 cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

London

On Thursday evening Mr. D. W. Campbell, a student of McGill College, Montreal, delivered a lecture on London in St. Luke's school room, illustrating it as he went along with dissolving views. The audience were highly gratified with the practical manner in which the descriptions were given.

Dogs.

On Wednesday night Mr. McIntosh, of North Monaghan, was wakened by noises outside, and getting up found a sheep being attacked by two dogs just at his bedroom window. He hurried out and had to beat the dogs before they would leave their prey. Afterwards one returned and Mr. McIntosh despatched him with the gun. On the same night a company of canines entered the barnyard at Mrs. Stewart's farm, Otonabee, and killed a number of sheep.

A Part at Least.

Though the Governor-General's trophy goes to Lindsay this year again Peterborough can claim one-eighth of the glory of defeating the rinks which played against the victor. Mr. T. E. Bradburn, who played with Lindsay is a Peterboroughite by nativity, though Lindsay can claim him by naturalization. But Lindsay won the trophy fairly and the Peterboroughs wish them all success. This is the second time the trophy has come to the Midind district, and Lindsay has had the honor of bringing it both times. The rink that got six in this contest think that McMurtry is a good curler.

Renovating and Improving.

Work is now in progress in renovating and improving Messrs. Fairweather & Co's dry goods store, and when the contemplated changes have been made it will be one of the finest places of business in the Midland district. The front has been altered and an additional plate glass will be put in on the Simcoe street side of the corner. The largest plate of glass in the four counties, has been put in in the clothing department. Added to these improvements the whole place has been painted and decorated in the latest style. Under the management of Mr. E. McGaffey, (formerly of Dundas & Flavelle, Lindsay) the business promises to go on with the same success as it has been doing so many years.

Turnbull is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new patterns. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

Hamilton Helpers.

The Hamilton Helpers have been secured by the Women's Christain Temperance Union to carry on a series of Gospel Temperance meetings for one week, beginning March 17th, after which the White Brothers will continue the meetings for another week. They will be held in the different churches and a collection will be taken up each evening to meet the actual expenses. We might here add a few clippings from the Bowmanville papers regarding the "Hamilton Helpers," as they are not so widely known here as the White Brothers, whose untiring zeal as Gospel temperance workers has won for them widespread fame. The following is from the Bowmanville Sun:—"Gospel Temperance Meetings —The advent of the band of temperance revivalists popularly known as the 'Hamilton Helpers,' into Bowmanville has been the means of arousing fresh enthusiasm in the temperance ranks for the past week. They have been working under the auspices of the Royal Templars and Sons of Temperance, and have held large and enthusiastic meetings in the Town Hall, which have undoubtedly been a great benefit to all present, while the melodious and inspirited singing of Messrs. Stead and Dunnett has been the great centre of attraction, fully proving them to be admirable vocalists, not merely lip singers, but heart singers also. Meetings during the week have been largely attended, and the earnest addresses and rousing songs of the 'Helpers' have done much to awaken fresh interest in the temperance cause in our midst."

All the Spring shades in Satin Merveilleux are now on sale at Turnbull's. If you want new goods see them.

THE LATE DR. O'SULLIVAN.

Resolution of Condolence Adopted by the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

At the regular meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, of Peterborough, held on the 6th day of March, 1887, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:—

"Whereas it hath pleased the Almighty in His infinite wisdom to remove from amongst us Dr. John Sullivan, an honorary member and generous benefactor of our Society,

"Be it therefore resolved, that while bowing in reverential submission to the Divine decree we deeply deplore the loss which society in general and the suffering poor in Peterborough in particular sustain through the death of their devoted friend and physician;

"And resolved, that in the hour of their supreme affliction, we hereby tender to his sorrowing widow and child our most sincere and heartfelt sympathy;

"Resolved also, that copies of this resolution be forwarded to Mrs. O'Sullivan, the local papers and the London Catholic Record.

"Signed on behalf of the Society,

"JOHN O'MEARA, Secretary. THOMAS CAHILL, President."

A "Y" ORGANIZED.

An Address by Miss Skinner and a Young Women's Union Formed.

A meeting of ladies was held in the school room of the Baptist Church on Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, to listen to an address from Miss Skinner, of Toronto. The attendance was quite large. Miss Sanderson, President of the Union, presided. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises.

Miss SKINNER expressed her pleasure at seeing so many young ladies present. She gave a sketch of the extent of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, of its organization, its objects, and its method of work. Unions had been organized in Australia, Japan, China, and the islands of the sea. The first Union in Canada was organized at Owen Sound in 1874. There was now 180 local Unions in Ontario, with a membership of 5,000. The statement of the work done by [illegible] had vigorously prosecuted the work they had undertaken to do. Seventeen Young Ladies' Societies had been organized in Ontario, with a membership of over 700. Women's Unions had been organized in Manitoba and the Northwest, and a Dominion Union was organized in 1885. The official roll of members for Canada showed a membership of 10,000. They hoped to extend the chain of Young Women's Societies around the Dominion and eventually around the world. The plans usually followed in carrying on Band of Hope were explained. The objections to Young Women's Unions were stated and answered. It was better for a young lady when married to start housekeeping for herself, rather than to board with her mother, and it was better for the young ladies to organize and work on their own account in the temperance cause. There were several departments, including Band of Hope work, kitchen gardens, and flower missions. The Unions permitted gentlemen to become honorary members, and their influence was thus extended. They might think themselves weak, but they should remember David and take courage.

It was then decided to organize a Young Woman's Union, or a "Y," as it is called for convenience.

Miss SKINNER explained that the "kitchen gardens" were for the purpose of instructing children in house work, including washing, scrubbing, etc., which work was all done to music, the children singing as they worked.

The following officers were elected for the "Y":—

PRESIDENT—Miss Edwards.

VICE PRESIDENTS—Miss Poole, of St. John's Church; Miss Mercer, of St. Andrews; Miss Hamilton, of Charlotte Street Church; Miss Ellsworth, of George Street Church.

COR. SECRETARY—Miss Keele.

REC. SECRETARY—Miss Stenson.

TREASURER—Miss Bird.

Miss SKINNER said that the badge of the Union is a white ribbon. It was customary for each "Y" to choose a text for a motto and a flower for an emblem, and she wished them to consider this before the next meeting.

After devotional exercises, the Union adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

For spring beds and bedding, carpets, and furniture of newest design and best quality, go to A. CLEGG'S.

"At Home."

An At Home under the auspices of the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School will be given in their rooms on the evening of Thursday, 17th of March. Hamilton will furnish a contingent of superior talent and our own local celebrities will be well represented. Abundant refreshments. Admission 25 cents.

Town Council.

A meeting of the Town Council commenced at three o'clock this afternoon. The appointments to office business was up for discussion.

Band of Hope.

The Band of Hope will meet to-night at 7 o'clock, over the China Hall, March 11th.

POLICE COURT.

THREATENING.

THURSDAY, March 10.—James Whitehair, a young man about 27 years of age, was charged by his father, Wm. Whitehair, with having used threatening language. The old man is blind and well on to seventy years. After getting at the facts of the case His Worship found the defendant guilty and bound him over to keep the peace at $1,000. Failing to get the necessary sureties he was taken to gaol, but procuring them afterward, was liberated.

He Doesn't Drink.

An unsophisticated temperance Councillor wanted to know to-day if the curlers had a "Josh Collins" while they were at Ottawa.

Obituary.

The Pittsburg, Pa., Leader contains the following notice of the death of Prof. Chas. Black, of the Pittsburg high school. Dr. Black, who a brother-in-law of Mr. W. H. Hill, of Peterborough, was classical master in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute from 1870 to 1873, and was Superintendent of the Sunday School of St. John's Church: "The many friends of Dr. Charles Black, the gifted professor of chemistry at the high school, will be shocked to learn the news of his death, which occurred this morning at his residence, No. 4,900, Liberty avenue, Twentieth ward. Dr. Black had had been ailing for some time with Bright's disease, and a few weeks ago was compelled to relinquish his duties and take to his bed. His illness rapidly reached a climax, and for the past few days he was in a state of unconsciousness. His only lucid interval occurred on the arrival of his two brothers from Canada. Hearing their voices at at his bedside, he regained consciousness for a few moments and feebly exclaimed, "Boys, this is too bad. How is mother?" Even when death had set its seal upon him, the affectionate spirit which had marked his disposition through life asserted itself, and the one thought present to his mind was the welfare of those nearest and dearest to his heart. Dr. Black was born in Canada forty-six years ago. He was educated at McGill University, Montreal, where he graduated first in his class. Subsequently he entered the university of Ann Arbor, Mich., where he studied medicine and obtained the degree of M. D. Ten years ago he came to Pittsburg and was elected professor of chemistry in the high school, a position he has since filled with conspicuous ability. "He was a man of wonderful versatility," said Principal Wood, of the High school this morning: "He was prepared to fill at a moments notice, any chair in the institution. A profound classical scholar, a practical scientist, a well equipped historian and logician no department of knowledge seemed beyond his scope, and he was equally at home in all." In addition to his duties at the High school, Dr. Black attended also to an extensive medical practice, enjoying a high reputation as a practitioner among the people of Bloomfield, where he lived. He was held in considerable esteem as a lecturer, and of late years appeared frequently on the platform, taking for his themes a wide variety of topics, although the discussion of educational and scientific questions was his forte. As a chemist he had few superiors. Much of his time was given to the making of important analyses, and he was frequently called upon to testify in the courts in cases of poisoning.

"The private life of Dr. Black was quiet and unostentatious. He was of an affectionate disposition, full of kindly consideration for those around him, and living in the enjoyment of the quiet existence of the ideal scholar, apart from the vices and turmoil of the busy bustling world. As a teacher, he was painstaking, gentle and courteous, and won for himself the lasting esteem and admiration of those under his charge.

The arrangements for Dr. Black's funeral have all ready been completed. He will be buried on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence. The faculty of the High school will be the pall-bearers, and those who but recently sat at the feet of the departed teacher will follow him tearfully to the grave."

SATUURDAY. MARCH 12, 1887.

A PUBLIC PARODY

ON WHAT A PUBLIC MEETING SHOULD BE.

They go to Talk About Insurance; but They Fall Away into Temperance, Labor and Educational Topics—Mr. E. C. Hill Sat Mr. Yelland.

Of all the public meetings held in Peterborough since incorporation or before, that one held on Friday evening stands without a parallel. It was for the purpose of discussing fire insurance—whether affairs should stay as they are, whether a chemical engine should be got, or a mutual insurance company be formed. Instead of it being a "chemical" question it degenerated into the "comical."

The meeting opened in as decorus a manner as could have been wished.

The Mayor was elected to preside. Taking the chair he said that the matter to be considered was an all important one. He stated its objects and said Councillor McNeil deserved much credit for having taken the trouble to get so much information together about so important a question. It they succeeded in reducing the rate of insurance to Councillor McNeil all thanks were due for he had undertaken the matter voluntarily. Without doubt Peterborough was paying too high rates. Look for the last five or six years and not one heavy fire was there, and yet all this time Peterborough was paying heavy rates and getting very little return for it. The fact of having no large fires was no doubt chiefly due to the present efficiency of the fire department, and it had been made still more efficient during the last few months. He called on Councillor McNeil.

Councillor McNEIL regretted not having the letters he had received from the Underwriters' Association, but no doubt the people were acquainted with their contents through the press. In one of these it was stated that if Peterborough would buy a chemical engine that the town would be classed in B instead of C. All of the other requirements were now in hand to place the town in class B except this engine, the only extra expense being the purchase of an extra team. Since the subject was last discussed he had written to various towns and cities for information regarding the cost of their fire protection and their classification, which shows that, according to the classing of others, Peterborough is classed about right. He submitted the following:—

	Cost per year.	Class.
Belleville	$ 5,000	D
Cornwall	1,000	C
Brantford	6,438	C
Guelph (salaries)	1,200	A
Chatham	5,500	C
Bowmanville	694	D
London	14,000	A
Galt	550	C

Peterborough, as it was, was a good deal better off than Belleville, at least. Guelph was privileged on account of keeping up a brigade of 22 paid men. He submitted a letter from Mr. J. McMahon, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, of Toronto, which stated that a chemical engine was of great advantage to them. He submittted a letter for Mr. R. McLean, Secretary of the Fire Underwriters Association, setting forth the rates charged on different classes of risks under C and without they would be under B as follows:

	C As at present	B If requirements are complied with
First class risks	80	75
Second " "	95	90
Third " "	105	100
Fourth " "	165	160

The meeting was called simply to get an expression of opinion and he submitted these bits of information which he had been able to procure for the benefit of those interested in the matter. The Underwriters Association was next to immovable being composed of some 50 insurance companies which do as the association direct. This Association practically can do what they like. There was a movement on foot to establish a mutual insurance company. In Waterloo they had one and it was now in existence for 20 years and it never changed more than 80 per cent. of the rates charged by the stock companies. It was for the people to say whether Peterborough should be longer dictated to by the Underwriters' Association or not. The Waterloo Mutual now had a surplus of $163,000. He went on to show that by being classed in B the saving in insurance rates in the centre of the town alone would be more than $1,000, the reduction all round being about 5 per cent. The cost of the chemical engine would be $2,500, which at 20 year 5 per cent. debentures would cost just $200 a year.

Mr. ERRETT introduced Mr. Morrison, of Toronto, manufacturer of chemical engines.

Mr. Morrison addressed the Council and went on to give a practical illustration of how the engine worked. The base of the compound with which the engine was charged was bicaborate of soda. Adding sulphuric acid released the gas contained in the soda and produced carbonic acid gas, the agent for putting out the fire. He demonstrated its powers by plunging a lighted piece of paper into the glass jar containing the gas and, of course, the flames immediately went out. He said that the chemical engine saved property from the waste of water. Generally more damage resulted from water that fire. Statistics showed that chemical engines put out 7 out of every 10 fires and that water engines only extinguished 3 out of every 10.

Mr. MCNEIL—What does a single charge cost?

Mr. MORRISON—A single charge will be about 40 pounds of soda and twenty pounds of acid. About 65 cents.

Mr. ERRETT—How much gas will this generate.

Mr. MORRISON—About 800 cubic feet.

In reply to Mr. Bannel Sawyer and Councillor Kendry, Mr. McNeil stated that the purchase of the chemical engine was the only thing required to place the town in Class B.

Mr. SAWYER advocated making the fire department more efficient if a reduction of rates were to be made or even if no reduction were to be made. It was of great importance that the best fire protection should be had.

Mr. E. C. Hill entered the Council Chamber at this juncture and was received with loud applause. After silence was restored he was invited by the Mayor to give expression to his views on the question.

Mr. HILL—I don't know what you've been talking about—I can't preach without a text. (Applause.) He would say that if they wanted the town to grow and prosper they should keep the taxes down and keep the drones away.

The MAYOR—No drones in this hive. (Laughter).

Councillor MCNAUGHTON—What do you think about this engine, Mr. Hill.

Mr. HILL—Well, Mr. McNaughton twelve men has to do the town's business, and when they can't do it they should be kicked out.

Councillor CAHILL said that as no expression of opinion had been given he supposed that the ratepayers had confidence in the Council and they were now at liberty to do what their best judgment thought to be the interest of the town. He agreed with Mr. Hill that the Council should be entrusted with doing the town's business, and when they were found to be unfit they should be turned out.

Mr. HILL attacked the Council for having this day done an act of injustice to the poor man. They had held a hole-in-corner meeting this afternoon to appoint officers. "I am a poor man's friend," continued Mr. Hill; "that's what I am," and he smote the railing in front of him with emphasis. He wanted to see fair play. When, the other night, the Council had a chance of disposing of that important business, and when a large number of working men were present, and all of the Councillors were making their gigantic speeches, some one jumped up and said, "I move we adjourn," and they all got up and skedaddled. The Council had not done their duty in this matter. If they wanted the town to grow they should do the square thing with the working man. They might coax drones in if they had money, but if they hadn't money for God's sake keep them out. (Laughter.) They should endeavor to raise up the workingmen's children and educate them.

The MAYOR here interrupted the speaker and invited him to discuss the educational question in its various forms.

Mr. HILL continued, giving a clear exposition of his common sense opinions on the subject. He denied that he was an opponent to education, but he went on the principle that people should be made to pay for their luxuries. He pointed out to the people present that while they were squabbling over a paltry $2,000 for fire protection the Board of Education could snap their fingers and say "We want $23,000," and they were given the money. (Hear, hear.)

Dr. D. BELLIGHEM—We are here to discuss the chemical engine question, Mr. Hill.

Mr. HILL went on to say that that was just what he was discussing. The doctors and lawyers and preachers could send their children to school and have them made into anything at the poor man's expense and not a word of indignation was raised. But when they came to talk about fire insurance behold they called "public meetings."

Mr. KENDRY—What are your views on the chemical engine Mr. Hill?

Mr. HILL—What's that, sir?

Mr. DAVIDSON—He asks you what your views on the temperance question are. (Uproar.)

Mr. HILL announced that he would give his views on the temperance question. (Laughter and applause) He was in favor of moderation and temperance in all things. This had been his rule through life and when the preachers had educated the people up to that idea society would be much benefited (applause.) "Look at me" said he "some say I am forty and if I haden't lost my hair I would be taken for a younger man. Some say I'm 45 and other's 50. Well gentlemen in a short time I'll turn my sixty-fifth birthday. Gentlemen, I've used my body well.

A VOICE—What about your soul?

Mr. HILL disregarded this imprudent interruption.

Councillor DAVIDSON—What about Dr. Bell.

Mr. HILL—Don't ask me about Dr. Bell.

This brought on a discussion about bill boards, churches, and church actions in which Mr. Yelland and Mr. Hill had a prolonged word tussle. Mr. Hill said that Mr. Yelland "didn't have the first rudiments of christainity" was "a sinner" and other things. Mr. Yelland acknowledged he was "a sinner but Mr. Hill would have to "mend his ways" before the churches would take him in. It ill became Mr. Hill to hammer on the churches when Mr. Hill had tried every church in town one after another.

Mr. HILL—They're not worth hammering on—

Mr. FOOT, of Foot & McWhinnie, accused Messrs. Hill and Yelland of putting up a job to take up the time of the meeting. (Both combatants rose to deny the accusation.)

Resuming, the discussion grew hotter and hotter, till at last there was a general hubbub.

The Mayor left the chair and the meeting broke up in disorder.

TOWN OFFICIALS.

Their Names and Salaries—Mr. T. Beavis Gone.

Friday's meeting of the Town Council decided the appointment question as follows:—

Name.	Office.	Salary.
C D Macdonald	Town Clerk	$600
Wm Cummings	Collector	600
R W Muncaster	Caretaker town clock.	50
C D Macdonald	Police Court Clerk	400
T Rutherford	Chief Fire Brigade	50
J D Craig	Assistant Chief	30
J E Belcher	Town Engineer	No salary
Jas English	Engineer at Fire Hall and Town Buildings	375
Robt Pope	Street Inspector	400
Dr Clarke	Medical Health Officer	250
Dr. Kincaid	Town Physician	125
W H Cooper	Chief Police, 3 mons	150
R Pidgeon	Police Officer	450
R H Adams	"	450
Chas McGinty	"	450
H W Watson	Pound keeper	No salary
W H Roberts	"	No salary
E C Hill	"	No salary
J Armour	"	No salary

One thing noteworthy was the dismissal of Mr. Beavis as janitor. He has served the town well for 11 years, but owing to the increased duties, which were the care of the firemen's rooms, he was thought incapable of doing the work.

License Commissioners.

Messrs. James Drummond, Wm. Mober, sr., and Robert Wilson have been appointed License Commissioners for East Peterborough.

THE AFGHAN FRONTIER.

Statement Regarding the Massing of Russian Troops.

NEW YORK, March 11—The Star's London special says:—The reported massing of Russian troops on the Afghan frontier was made the subject of a question by Mr. J. H. Heaton, Conservative member for Canterbury, in the House of Commons to-night. Sir James Ferguson, answering for the Government, professed to have no official knowledge on the subject. He said that the railway being constructed by Russia on the eastern shore of the Caspian Sea has been completed to Chardjin on the Oxus River, about sixty miles from Bokhara and 100 miles north-east of Merv. The Government had no reason to believe that Russian troops were being massed in that vicinity. The question will be repeated in another form, and the proper department be requested to ask the Indian Government to give more definate information. The convenient practice has grown up in the departments here and in India of transmitting important information intended to be kept secret through private channels until the time has gone by when it would be inconvenient to officially acknowledge it.

LATEST CABLE NEWS

CRIME IN KERRY.

DUBLIN, March 11.—Judge O'Brien, in opening the Kerry assizes, said he grieved to announce that there had been no decrease in crime since the last assizes. Noonday audacity, he said, had succeeded midnight terrors. There was an expectation that something was about to happen beyond local or agrarian disturbance. He was confident that order could be restored, but it was not his duty to indicate who was responsible for the attainment of that object.

STOPPING THE SUPPLIES.

LONDON, March 11.—In the debate in the House of Commons last night on the Egyptian army at the defence of Sankim, thus compelling Egypt to provide for the deficit in her budget or to suspend the payment of interest on the national debt. The latter course would necessitate a meeting of the International Commission to bring about a final settlement of England's position with reference to Egypt.

NARROW ESCAPE OF HORSES.

LONDON, March 11.—The Canadian horses recently purchased for the English army, at a cost of £44 each had a narrow escape. The vessel grounded after leaving Montreal and the greater part of the cargo had to be discharged before she floated. The animals are highly spoken of by the military authorities.

THE FRENCH SUB-PREFECTURES.

PARIS, March 11.—The committee of the Chamber of Deputies having the matter in charge, has unanimously condemned the Government's bill to abolish 64 of the 300 sub-prefectures in the country. Four members of the moderate party opposed the abolition of any of the sub-prefectures, while seven radicals voted for their entire abolition.

ANOTHER UNDERSTANDING.

BERLIN, March 11.—It is believed in well informed circles here that an understanding has been reached between Russia and Austria by which Russia will occupy Varna and Bourgas, while Austria will occupy Salonica.

A GOVERNMENT CONCESSION.

VIENNA, March 11—The Government, through the Chamber of Commerce of various cities, will invite small tradesmen to make tenders for supplying cloth, leather, linen and cotton for the Landsturm and Landwehr. Hitherto only big firms have been asked to make these tenders.

All the Spring shades in Satin Marveilleux are now on sale at Turnbull's. If you want new goods see them.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CARNIVAL.—The last carnival of the season was held by the Keene Curling and Skating Rink Co. in their rink at Keene on Tuesday evening last, and was a grand success. There was one drawback, however, viz.: the want of music caused by the piper failing to put in his appearance after having been engaged. The prizes were awarded as follows:—

Ladies—1st Miss Jane Lang, "Fish Wife"; 2nd, Miss Massie, "Lady Jane Gray"; 3rd, comic, Miss Bella McFarlane, "Old Woman."

Gentlemen—1st, Mr. Kennaley, "Dick Turpin."

Girls—1st, Miss Bella B. Campell, "Peasant Girl"; 2nd Mina Hope, "Highland Lassie."

½ mile race, D. McIntyre; ½ mile race, M. McIntyre; potatoe race, D. McIntyre barrel race, M. McIntyre.

The following is a list of those who appeared in costume:—

BAND OF HOPE.—The Band of Hope held a very successful entertainment on Monday night last.

PERSONAL.—Mrs. Andrew Weir is very low at present, and her death is momentarily expected.

CORNICE POLES, window shades, a splendid line of steel engravings, and the newest designs in picture framing at A. CLEGG'S.

The Algoma Election.

OTTAWA, March 11.—Mr. James Isbister, who has just arrived from the West, says the returning officer in Algoma announced Mr. Dawson's majority to be 31.

Napoleon the Great

(there was only one great Napoleon) wished the word impossible banished from the dictionary. In many a case where leading physicians have pronounced a cure impossible, consumptives and victims of other fell diseases have been restored to health by using "Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Soothing and healing in its nature its power over scrofulous and pulmonary diseases is simply marvelous. Far more nutritive than cod liver oil, a powerful invigorating tonic and harmless as it is powerful.

The Daily Review.

SATUBDAY, MARCH 12, 1887.

A THIRD PARTY.

THERE is something very silly in the frantic attempts made by Mr. Blake's friends to persuade the people that the Macdonald Administration is in a minority or at least that it has such a scanty majority as to be unstable. The Reformers cannot muster 90 members out of a House of 215, giving them every doubtful vote and every constituency where they have a candidate in the field. Their only ground for their pretences is their hope that about ten conservatives will form a third party, because aggrieved at one proceeding of the Government.

Even if the "Nationalist" Conservatives should form a third party, and even if the Blake Reformers should form a coalition with them, the Conservatives supporting the Administration would still be in the majority. But to form such a coalition the Nationalists would have to accept the Reform policy, which they have hitherto bitterly opposed, and the Reformers would have to accept the "Nationalist" claim that a man of French extraction must not be subject to the general administration of the law. Mr. Blake may take this position in his craving for power, but can he get all his party to follow him in the coming session any more than he could in the last? Why the majority of the people of Quebec scout such a contention, in spite of the agitation stirred up by a few demagogues, as they have shown by re-electing all four of the cabinet ministers from their Province and by sending a compact body of members to support Sir John Macdonaly and his colleagues.

The very fact that Mr. Blake is willing to obtain power by such tactics has but made the people of Canada more convinced that he is unfit to be entrusted with the administration of their affairs.

MR. MOWAT'S ARCHITECT.

Mr. Creighton very properly asked in the Legislative Assembly, for papers connected with the choice of plans and of an architect for the proposed parliament buildings. Mr. Fraser with remarkable warmth flatly refused to give the information especially as to the reports on the plans of Canadian Architects, and Mr. Mowat struck in lustily to his support. The eagerness of these gentlemen to exclude any light from their proceedings, is a plain confession that their doings in this matter willnot bear the light of day. Such facts as are known and their own admissions place the Ministers in a position of grave suspicion. Plans drawn by Canadian architects were submitted to an architect in the United States, Mr. Waite, who procured their rejection. What were the grounds for the objections of this foreign critic, the Ministers flatly refuse to make known. They do not even adhere to their obviously false pretence, that the fault was that the buildings planned by the Canadian architects would somewhat exceed the sum at that time appropriated by Ontario Legislature. Then after Mr. Waite had got rid of the Canadian architects the Administration employed this foreigner, who had thus cleared the way for himself, and engaged him as architect without confining him to the amount even of the increased vote. He is, we are told by Mr. Fraser, to have his architect's commission of 5 per cent. only on the $750,000 voted as the maximum limit by the House, not obtaining it on the amount which the Commissioner of Public Works evidently assumes will be spent in excess of that sum.

There is every appearance of jobbery, maladministration and extravagance, and this conclusion is strengthened by the terror shown by the Ministers at the very idea of publicity.

An unauthenticated statement that a Canandan Commissionership is to be established at Washington has aroused the ire of the Belleville Ontario. Although the rumor has received no official confirmation the Belleville organ says:—"Thus another useless and expensive commissionership is to be provided to deplete the pockets of the Canadian taxpayer." This Reform paper eagerly seizes on on a rumor to attack the Conservative Government, but it had no condemnation for such a Commissionership when it was recommended by Mr. Blake. Perhaps the Ontario has forgotten Mr. Blake's advocacy of such an appointment, or may it mean its words for a sly drive at the Reform leader?

THE Ottawa Free Press finds fault with the Montreal Gazette, alleging that the Montreal paper does not give certain Reformers credit for the majorities they received, and says:—"Mr. Lang of East Peterborough, had 175 majority but the Gazette credits him with only 109." Mr. Lang's majority was 109, and the Free Press, as usual, is wrong. This may be taken as a sample of the figuring of the Free Press.

Immigrants From the States.

WINNIPEG, March 10.—Nearly one hundred immigrants arrived here from the East this morning. A large number of settlers in Dakota are taking up land in southern Manitoba and will move over the line as soon as the snow disappears.

The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance concluded its annual meeting on Thursday night. One of the most important questions discussed was the formation of a Prohibition party, but no definite action was taken.

The traffic receipts of the Grand Trunk railway for the week ending March 5th were $308,482, an increase of $17,165 compared with the corresponding week last year.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

THE FIRST SESSION OF THE SIXTH PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

Considering the Formation of New Counties—Discussion on Toll Gates—Plans for the Parliament Buildings.

THURSDAY, March 10.—A number of petitions were presented and a couple of private bills were introduced.

TOLLGATES.

Mr. LEES moved that in the opinion of the House the Government should consider the question of tollgates and introduce legislation that would lead to their abolition.

Mr. FRASER suggested that the mover of the motion introduce a bill. The Government could not be expected to take the responsibility of dealing with the question.

Mr. MEREDITH asked why the motion might not be referred to the Municipal Committee. A government should grapple with existing evils requiring a remedy.

Mr. FRENCH moved that the question be referred to a special committee.

After considerable discussion the debate was adjourned.

PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS.

Mr. CREIGHTON moved for a return giving the reports of experts on plans for new Parliament and Departmental Buildings submitted to them in 1880; the reports of experts, if any, on the amended plans on which tenders were advertised for; the report of Mr. Waite on which said plans were ultimately rejected, and the report of experts, if any, on the new plans prepared by Mr. Waite. Also, all correspondence concerning plans or proposed plans for the said buildings, and any agreement made with Mr. Waite, as architect of the new buildings, concerning the amount or rate of remuneration to be allowed to him as such architect.

Mr. FRASER said that the report of Mr. Waite on the amended plans was confidential and substantially verbal. Correspondence with other architects was in progress and could not be brought down. There was no objection to furnishing the agreement with Mr. Waite and he might say that the rate of renumeration was 5 per cent. on the appropriation of $750,000.

Mr. CREIGHTON said the country desired to know the reasons for rejecting the plans of the Canadian architects, which had at first been considered satisfactory.

Mr. FRASER moved an amendment to the effect that all be struck out of the motion except that part calling for the correspondence with Mr. Waite concerning the plans prepared by him and any agreement made with his as to the remuneration.

Mr. MEREDITH considered that the ground taken by the commissioner in holding that the reports and correspondence were private was not tenable. The House ought to know the grounds on which the plans were rejected on the report of an expert to whom was given the privilege of preparing the plans which were subsequently accepted.

Mr. MOWAT said that all necessary information had been submitted to the House.

The amendment was carried on a division and the House adjourned at 5 o'clock.

NEWS NOTES.

Construction work on the Ontario Pacific Railway will be commenced early next month.

Gen. Boulanger proposes to adopt measures to prevent the publication of news in France relating to movements of the army.

The private banking firm of McLellan & Co., of St. John, N.B., has stopped payment temporarily in consequence of the failure of the Maritime Bank.

It is probable the health of the Princess of Wales will permit of her accompanying her husband and son on their approaching visit to Ireland.

The Welland canals will be opened on May 2nd for vessels drawing twelve feet, and on and after May 16th a depth of fourteen feet will be available throughout.

The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance commenced its eighth annual session in Toronto on Wednesday. There was a large attendance of delegates.

The Supreme Court on Wednesday finished the Quebec appeal list and adjourned till Monday, when judgment will be rendered. The Ontario list will be taken up on Tuesday.

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayers Cherry Pectoral for the cure of colds, and all derangements of the respiratory organs tending toward consumption. It affords sure relief for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

At a convention of prison wardens of Canada and the United States, held on Tuesday in Detroit, a Prison Wardens' Association was organized, and it was decided to hold the annual meeting next year in Toronto.

The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West, at its session in Toronto on Wednesday, adopted several resolutions and elected officers. The visiting brethren were entertained to a banquet in the evening.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was held in in Toronto on Wednesday, when the reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and officers were elected.

Work will be commenced immediately on the railway from Winnipeg to the international boundary, arrangements for connection with the Northern Pacific Railway at the boundary having already been made.

LINDSAY.

ODDFELLOWS.—On Monday evening last there appeared before the Oddfellows' Lodge a gas jet, the three emblematic links, so familiar to all acquainted with the order. The idea is a good one, and will attract any wayfaring member to the friends in town.

FREE MARKET.—The town council on Monday night passed a by-law doing away with all fees from farmers and persons selling produce on the market. The only exception to the absolute freedom of the market is found in a fee for the use of the large weigh scales; for loads of straw; and for transient butchers selling in small quantities an annual license fee of $10.

A. F. AND A. M.—One of the most pleasant events in connection with the last regular meeting of the above body, on the 4th inst, was the presentation of Past Master's jewels to W. Bros. A. Mills and W. J. Hallett. The presentation was made by W. Bro. D. Ray on behalf of the brethren of the Lodge, a large number of whom were present. The W. Bro. spoke in the highest terms of the progress in the Order, made by each of the recipients, and of usefulness and assistance to the craft. Both the W. Brethren were much affected, and returned thanks in a brief but appropriate manner. The jewels were suitably inscribed, and were beautiful specimens of engraving in gold.

A Great Crash Predicted.

NEW YORK, March 10.—The World's Washington special says a high Government official said yesterday: "There will be a financial stringency very soon, which, in my judgment, will lead to a panic. The constant accumulation of money in the Treasury, without any form of relief possible after the first of the fiscal year, is certain to be followed by a crash. It may be tided over to next autumn, but in my judgment the event is not over two months away. If Congress were to be assembled to-morrow the crash would come before they could get through wrangling over the measure of relief. The failure of the deficiency bill also adds to the complications of the present financial situation. Whether this financial stringency can be headed off until next autumn depends very much upon whom the President places at the head of the Treasury." The correspondent says this gentleman is no alarmist. He is a serious, grave man of affairs, who understands the financial situation thoroughly.

Enjoy Life.

What a truly beautiful world we life in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health, but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from disease, as when born. Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as Billousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. d90

CHAPTER I.

THE STONE HOUSE.

The teacher read:

Forgetting herself, as was her wont, when she saw the flames come near him, she took leave of him and bade him go farther off, only asking that he would lift up the cross on high that she might see. He went a little farther off, but still near enough to hear her say to the last, in the fire, that her voices were of God. As the flames rose about her and drew her breath away, she told him in her soft, clear tones that she still heard her voices in the air. And they said to her:

Daughter of God, go on! Be not dismayed at thy martyrdom. Thou shalt enter at last into the paradise of God.

Then her head sank and her spirit went to Him.

"Are the heroes and saints all dead?" asked Shirley. "Has there ever been a saint since Joan of Arc was burned at the stake?"

The teacher closed the book. "My child," said he, "the world never knows its saints and martyrs till 200 years after they are dead. There are heroes always. Heroic men and women live and walk the earth to-day and their fellow men know it not. A century later and mankind will read of them and wonder at the blindness of those who knew not their own best and bravest. But we don't burn martyrs at the stake any more, Shirley. We torture their souls and let their bodies die a natural death."

"I don't quite understand," said the girl.

"You don't understand! You never will, I hope. Marshal your army of Carstones and go home, General Shirley. The picnic is over."

The teacher turned into the path toward the village.

"Good-by, Mr. Morrison," said the girl, looking after him.

"Good-by, General Shirley."

The sun was setting. Up on the hillside the windows of the old stone house shone glorified.

There were six of the Carstone children under the big willow by the mill race that afternoon. Names and ages respectively: Shirley, 14; Tom, 9; Percy, 7; Brownie, 5; Pet, 3, and Baby, the ruler of them all, not quite 6 months.

The old stone house stood upon a hillside. It is there still, for that matter. It was near a century old when our Carstones lived there. A great, cool, double porch extended across its front. The little windows were like the loopholes of a fort. The walls were a foot thick. There were deep, sunny window seats, where generations of kittens and Carstone babies alike curled up and went to sleep.

The house had belonged to the family almost from the pioneer days. The grim, fort like walls had echoed many and many a year to the childish laughter of the earth—the laughter of children. Shirley Carstone's grandmother was born there, and her father.

The family history, as far back as could be known, had been an especially bright and sunny one. So much of innocent mirth had sounded through those wide old rooms; so many years of gentle, tender, happy home life had passed there, that the very walls themselves seemed to have caught at length some of the joy and light. It was a fine, strong blooded race, with never a hereditary ailment of mind or body, never an inherited flaw of meanness or weakness. No Carstone had ever shown himself a coward or been faithless to a friend. There was a knightliness, a gentleness, a courage and purity in the blood. It ran through the men and women alike.

Great orchards and fields surrounded the stone house. At the foot of the hill a wide, deep brook ran, heavily fringed with beeches and shiny barked sycamore. A stone's throw from the house was a big water mill. It belonged with the estate, and it, too, was two generations old. Higher up, the brook had been partly turned off into a deep, clear mill race. The water glided down and turned the huge mill wheel as softly as if it was afraid of disturbing somebody's afternoon nap.

Ah, those days were before the age of iron and steam!

It was hereabout that successive families of Carstones had played. The hillsides were covered still with forest. Shirley and the little ones played in their day as the others did before them. They darted in and out among the trees like squirrels. They played bopeep like spots of sunshine and shadow over the mill wheel. They rode the colts bareback and ran races with the calves and the shaggy house dog. They whistled to the bob whites and catbirds till the feathered creatures knew not which was their own mate and which a little rogue of a Carstone.

In the spring they dug the turkey pea, the bloodroot and the fragrant smelling sassafras. In the fall they gathered the paw paw and the hickory nut. In the winter they set traps for rabbits and built snow forts or sat by the wide fireplace, where the blazing hickory logs crackled, and guessed riddles. When they parted for the night they sang the songs their mother taught them.

Not a tree in the forest but they knew from its leaf; not a flower or a shrub but they named by its name; not a bird or a wild creature of the woods but they knew its haunts and its habits.

They had a menagerie of pets, these woodland children. There was Sherry, the tame crow. Sherry had whipped the poultry yard, till every pullet ran and hid at the sight of him. He chased the hens from their nests and devoured the eggs. At odd spells he made a lunch off the buttons of old Sam's coat. He would alight upon the bare head of that respectable colored gentleman at wholly unexpected times and tangle his toes in the dignified gray wool. Then Sam howled with wrath. Then, too, every curly headed Carstone dodged around the house, choking with hidden laughter, while the old man made complaint to their father.

"Fo' de Lawd, if dat ar crow don't stop his foolishness dar'll be a dead bird roun' dis plantation, sho'. An' dem chillen a laffin' fit to kill."

There was Felix, the educated pig, who was quite a gentleman. There was Billy, a youthful black sheep of the male sex. He was erstwhile as sweet and innocent a lambkin as ever opened his eyes on a sinful world. But with the lapse of time Billy had grown bold and bad. After that Billy wasn't a pet any more.

But there were plenty left to keep the circus going. There were so many indeed that the young ones could hardly find names for them. After the new schoolmaster came he helped them out. He taught Shirley Latin, and told wonderful tales of Greeks and Romans. The children gave the birds and beasts they tamed the names of these brave old heathen. A frisky young squirrel they named Dido. They were at a loss at first what to call the pair of colts that came and ate apples from their hands. But Mr. Morrison told them stories from the Odyssey, the Iliad and the Æneid till they took sides and fought the siege of Troy over again. They named the blooded colts Ulysses and Penelope.

There was a drab mouse that would scamper up Percy's sleeve and hide, and eat cheese and toast off a plate at the table. The schoolmaster said it looked like their sister Brownie when she peeped out from under her sun bonnet. They called the mouse Brownie. Snow, the pullet would "possum" and pretend to go to sleep on Brownie's bed, to the ineffable delight of the youngest among the merry crew.

The chronicler of the fortunes of the Carstones may well be pardoned for lingering over such idle nonsense. They themselves looked back to those days in after years as to a paradise. Heaven was in very truth about them in their infancy. Trouble enough came in later times to one and another. But in the saddest days there was still a remembrance of the old stone house. They were reared in the gentlest, kindliest way. Theirs was the ideal childhood. Despair, disease, sin even, might crush them in deadly fold later—naught could rob them of the power to look back and say:

But I was happy once!

Fortunate such children!

CHAPTER II.

SHIRLEY.

They were wholesome pretty children, the five whom "General Shirley" marshaled for the home camp at sunset. Tom was a sturdy, broad shouldered lad—a frank, honest fellow. They called him the governor.

Percy was a little blue eyed lad, who took a childish interest in all living creatures. He studed the ways of birds and butterflies. He prisoned shining winged beetles and watched their efforts to escape. He peered into snake holes, and birds' nests, and rabbit burrows. His mother called him her little Paul Pry.

Then came Brownie, a dancing sunbeam of a creature, who seemed good for nothing but getting into mischief. She was the most thoughtless child of the six, and the most unlucky. A tangle of dark curls covered her head, and ever and anon tumbled down over her wide brown eyes. She was continually in trouble, always drawing on the rest for help and sympathy.

"Whatever will become of Brownie!" said their mother.

"Whatever will become of the whole pack!" said their father. "You can't teach them all any longer. They ought to be in school this day, every little pest of them. But where to send them I don't know. We can't let them away from home, can we?"

Their mother shook her head. It would have been like sending part of herself away.

"I know what to do with 'em!" cried little Shirley. "Send 'em to the new school teacher. He plays the 'Star Spangled Banner' on the violin, and has a glass case full of butterflies and humming birds."

"And the boys say he goes fishing with them, and shows them how to bait a hook better than old Pete himself can do it. He's a good teacher," chimed in Tom.

"And he shows the girls how to make pictures, and he picks the children up when they get knocked over in the mud," lisped Brownie.

"They say he was educated over the sea, and that he knows Latin and Greek. Yes, and he can write poetry, too. They never had a teacher here before who could write poetry."

It was a softer voice that spoke this time—a voice that had a sweet, thrilling ring. It was Shirley who spoke.

Shirley was the flower and the star of them all.

Older by several years than any of the others, she exercised remarkable influence over them. Indeed, among the children they knew, she was the head and the leader. Not that she seemed old and overgrave for her years. No sweeter, sunnier child alive than she. Her merry, rippling laughter was like the music of a bird song. Her hair was light brown. She wore it in the fashion of the time, in long, heavy braids. She was tall and strong for her years, with straight, black eyebrows, and large beautiful eyes, black at night and clear bright gray in the daytime. Wonderful eyes they were, reflecting, as face answers to face in the glass, the many sided nature of the soul within. Now they flashed with scorn and anger, like fire from a flint; again they were tender and pearly as the dew drop in the heart of a lily. Sometimes an intensely seeing, rapt look lay in them, as though all the things that are had been somehow burned away in the white fire of thought, and this child looked far beyond and saw centuries into the future, and the things that are to be. They were strangely magnetic too. She drew whom she chose toward her by a look.

"When Shirley looks at you, you must come," said Brownie.

She was a very child in some respects, innocent and trusting, believing everything that was told her, as if she had been 5 years old. As a scholar she was the pride of her parents and the prodigy of the neighborhood. All studies came alike to her; she was easily master in them all. In practical matters it was the same. Whatever work needed to be done, such as little country maidens were wont to perform, her quick, strong hands could accomplish more rapidly than another. Her light, patient feet were always ready to run merrily at her mother's call. Shirley soothed the babies and mended their little garments; Shirley weeded the garden and gathered in the vegetables, and she sang about her work like a redbird. She could swim, row a boat and ride a wild colt, and among all the children was none so fleet of foot as she, this strong, bright, happy girl.

"Our Shirley's as good as a boy," said Tom. "She can do everything. There never was a girl like her."

Food for Consumptives.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, is a most wonderful food. It not only gives strength and increases the flesh but heals the irritation of the throat and lungs. Palatable as milk and in all wasting diseases, both for adults and children, is a marvellous food and medicine.

Forewarned

of danger by the condition of your blood, as shown in pimples, blotches, boils, or discolorations of the skin; or by a feeling of languor, induced, perhaps, by inactivity of the stomach, liver, and kidneys, you should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will renew and invigorate your blood, and cause the vital organs to properly perform their functions. If you suffer from

Rheumatism,

or Neuralgia, a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will relieve and cure you. Alice Kendall, 218 Tremont st., Boston, Mass., writes: "I have been troubled with Neuralgia, pain in the side, and weakness, and have found greater relief from Ayer's Sarsaparilla than from any other remedy." J. C. Tolman, 336 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass., writes: "In no other remedy have I ever found such a happy relief from Rheumatism as in saparilla." It instils new life into the blood, and imparts vitality and strength. Being highly concentrated, it is the most economical blood purifier.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Forearmed

with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, there need be no fear of Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Catarrh, Liver troubles, or any of the diseases arising from Scrofulous taints in the blood. Geo. Garwood, Big Springs, Ohio, writes: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been used in my family for a number of years. I was a constant sufferer from but Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a permanent cure. Seven years ago my wife was troubled with Goitre: two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured her, and she has never had any return of the disease. I regard this preparation as the best medicine in use for the blood." B. Barnard Wair, 75 Adams st., Lynn, Mass., writes: "For many years I suffered terribly from Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Scrofula. Almost hopeless, I took Ayer's Sarsaparilla and am a well man to-day." Be sure and get Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the most thorough and effective blood purifier. The best is the cheapest.

Dyspepsia,

SATURDAY, MARCH 12, 1887.

AN AFTERNOON SESSION

THE APPOINTMENTS ALL MADE FOR 1887.

Chief Cooper to Leave on June 11th—Robt. Pope the New Street and Bridge Inspector—Mr. Thos. Beavis Discharged.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Friday afternoon.

There were present: His Worship the Mayor, and Councillors Hartley, Menzies, Douglass, Moore, Yelland, Stenson, McNeil, Kelly, Kendry, McNaughton, Cahill and Davidson.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were read:—

From the ladies of the Protestant Home, requesting the Mayor and Council to visit the Home.—To be complied with.

From E. E. Henderson, on behalf of the Oddfellows, asking that August 10th be appointed Civic Holiday.—Granted.

From J. Corkery, asking the collection of the Separate School roll.—Finance Committee.

From Richard Hall, stating that $245.88 was required for the Nicholls Hospital for February.—Received.

From Edg. Pearse, asking the Town to appoint the arbitrator to arbitrate between the Town and Township in regard to administration of justice.—Received.

From R. Menzies, asking remission of taxes.—Court of Revision.

From Charles E. Thorne, asking what inducements would be held out for the establishment of a factory to employ between 25 and 50 hands.—Finance Committee.

From G. Peck, asking assistance.—Received.

From the Scott Act Association, giving a resume of their work, and requesting an appropriation of $1,000 of the fines already collected, and that one-half of the future fines be given to the Association for purposes of enforcement.—Received.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented:—

J. D. Baptie, filing saw	$ 60
Fortye & Phelan, nails	22 00
A. Hall	17 75
J. W. Flavelle, charity orders	6 00
A. Elliott, R. R. ticket	2 95
Elliott & Tierney, charity orders	14 45
S. Hall, digging drain	5 00

The accounts were all referred to the Finance Committee except that of Mr. Hall.

SCOTT ACT.

Dr. Fife was heard in reference to the Scott Act petition. He said that as had the Scott Act had been passed they wished to see it fairly tried. When the Act was carried it was understood that the prosecution should have half the fines. When it came in force such was the case. But before the close of the last Dominion Parliament the law was changed and the counties and towns, where the Act was in force, now got the whole fines for the purpose of enforcement. Thus the money was taken out of the hands of the private prosecutors and put in the council's hands. The Association now asked that a portion of the money collected be handed over to defray expenses incurred.

The Rev. I. Tovell said that it occurred to him that the request was a reasonable one and one which would conduce to good order and the welfare of the town. He hoped they would see the $1,000.

Councillor Yelland considered the Association had a right to a part of the money, as the most of the cases were worked up by the Association.

The Mayor said the County Clerk had made a demand on the Town for a portion of the money and threatening law proceedings if it was not paid over. He thought it well for the Council to understand the facts while this matter was being considered.

Councillor Hartley moved, seconded by Councillor McNaughton—That a special committee be appointed composed of Councillors Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Stenson, Yelland, Douglass and Kendry, to consider the question and report at the next meeting.

Councillor McNeil moved, seconded by Councillor Cahill—That the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

Councillor Cahill supported the amendment, on account of the appointment of a special committee appearing to vote a want of confidence in the Finance Committee.

Councillor McNaughton thought Councillor Cahill was trying to throw cold water on the Special Committee.

Councillor Cahill—It's a question of cold water.

Councillor Menzies pointed out that there were three bodies claiming this money—the town, the county and the Scott Act Association. He thought that the matter should be considered by the Finance Committee.

Councillor Hartley supported his motion.

Councillor Moore said that it would be contrary to the rules of order to take the matter out of the hands of the Finance Committee.

The amendment was put and carried.

BUILDING COMMITTEE.

A matter as to building a blacksmith shop on King street was referred to the Building Committee with power to act.

LICENSE.

Councillor McNeil presented the report from the License Committee recommending the purchase of 800 dog tags from J. H. Bonfield at 8 cents each.

Councillor McNaughton held that purchasing tags was a waste of money. Only three hundred dogs had tags last year, when he was sure there was 600 or 700 in town. The constables didn't do their duty.

Councillor McNeil said the committee made over $160 by issuing tags last year.

Councillor McNaughton was very glad of it. He would take it all back.

The report was adopted.

AFTER THEIR SCALPS.

A by-law making it the duty of the police officers to shoot down all dogs not having tags was presented by Councillor Moore, the said by-law to take effect on May 1st. The by-law passed its several readings.

APPOINTMENTS.

The by-law to confirm the report of the Committee on Appointments, brought in at the last meeting, was introduced. In the second reading it was carried clause by clause till it came to the 14th clause, which would appoint Robt. Pope as Street and Bridge Inspector.

Councillor Cahill moved, seconded by Councillor McNaughton, — That Joseph Lundy be appointed.

Councillor Kendry moved, seconded by Councillor Hartley,—That Geo. McBurney be appointed.

Councillor Hartley moved, seconded by Councillor Menzies,—That Edward Thompson be appointed.

Councillor Kendry moved, seconded by the Mayor,—That John Bird be appointed.

All of the amendments were lost and the clause appointing Mr. Pope was carried.

On the next clause, appointing the Medical Health Officer and Town Physician, there was another fight.

The clause was to appoint Dr. Clarke.

Councillor Hartley moved to appoint Dr. Kincaid.

Councillor Cahill proposed to abolish the offices of Medical Health Officer and Town Physician.

Councillor McNaughton would support abolishing the office of Medical Health Officer.

On a vote being taken on the motion moved by Mr. Cahill, he was the only one voting for it.

Councillor Cahill—Give us the yeas and nays, Mr. Chairman. (Laughter.)

Dr. Clarke was appointed Medical Health Officer and Dr. Kincaid Town Physician.

Councillor McNeil moved in amendment to clause 18, seconded by Councillor Yelland,—That R. H. Adams be appointed Chief of Police at $500 a year.

Councillor Yelland moved, seconded by Councillor Hartley,—That the present police officers be dismissed and a new set of men be employed.

The two amendments were lost, and the clause to appoint W. H. Cooper as Chief of Police, was also lost, the vote being 7 to 5.

Councillor Kelly moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry,—That W. H. Cooper's name be added to the number of the police officers.

Councillor Moore moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry,—That the police force be composed of four members.

Both motion and amendment were lost.

Councillor Cahill moved to appoint W. H. Cooper Chief of Police.

The motion was lost, four members voting for it.

The committee rose.

Councillor Moore moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry,—That the Committee go back into Committee of the Whole with instructions to amend clause 18 to continue Chief Cooper in office till June 11th.—Carried.

The Council went back to Committee and made the amendment.

The Committee rose.

A motion moved by Councillor Cahill to go back into committee to appoint Joseph Lundy as Street and Bridge Inspector was lost.

The Council adjourned.

Turnbull is now showing an immense stock of Carpets and Floor Oilcloths, all new patterns. Intending purchasers should not fail to see them.

Military.

The officers of the 57th Battalion held a meeting in the drill shed on Friday evening to take into consideration business of importance to the Regiment. Among other matters of interest brought before the meeting, was the visit to Peterborough of the Queen's Own of the Queen City, Toronto. A good deal of correspondence has already passed, in connection with the visit of this distinguished corps to our town, but not being official, details cannot be given at present. It was decided, however, by the 57th officers, to send the Queen's Own an invitation, and a committee of the officers was appointed to select a favorable location for the camping grounds and other details required for the comfort of the regiment while under canvass here. The visit will accomplish a great deal of good in a military point of view at any rate, and it is to be hoped our city fathers will give the subject a hearty and substantial consideration.

Handsome Mantle Cloths in Silk and Velvet Brocades, with new trimmings to match, at Turnbull's.

The Candidates.

Those whose applications for the Street and Bridge Inspectorship were taken up at the Council meeting on Friday and the support received are as follows:—Thos. Pratt, 4; John Bird, 4; E. Thompson, 3; Geo. McBurney, 4; Jos. Lundy, 5; Robt Pope, 7.

For spring beds and bedding, carpets, and furniture of newest design and best quality, go to A. Clegg's.

The Clerk's Little Joke.

Mr. Macdonald got of a quiet joke on himself at Friday's meeting of the council. In reading over the bylaw to appoint offices he came to that of caretaker of the town clock. He read: "Clause—to appoint R. W. Muncaster caretaker of the town Clerk" amid considerable amusement. He corrected himself a second later.

New Tapestry Curtains for portiers just received at A. Clegg's.

"At Home."

An At Home under the auspices of the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School will be given in their rooms on the evening of Thursday, 17th of March. Hamilton will furnish a contingent of superior talent and our own local celebrities will be well represented. Abundant refreshments. Admission 25 cents.

Lecture on "the Princess."
